THE

National Freeman,

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,

First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

To increase the membership of your Lodge, get up a list of subscribers for the RESCUE.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St. San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums for Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

THE RESCUE,

THE ORGAN OF THE

GRAND LODGE, I. O. G. T.

OF CALIFORNIA.

THE RESCUE is devoted to the advancement of the business interests of this State. California never had any drawback or obstacle to the highest prosperity the world has ever seen, but the grog-shop, brewery, distillery and wine-vat. Those schools of vice, and the other evil resorts which they have engendered, have swallowed up all the wealth and industry which should have been employed to make this finest country of earth a paradise of happy, virtuous, prosperous industry. They have filled the State with crime, madness, pauperism, divorce, murder and cruel violence; they choke every nascent enterprise and trade and industry. And no conceivable productiveness of mine or field or forest or mill or garden can ever bring any improvement to this State as long as 10,000 busy factories of pauperism and crime are in full blast, seven full days and nights of every week.

THE RESCUE is the only paper in the State that deals in the truth as to the true financial interests of the people; the only one that dares tell the whole truth on any and all subjects that relate to the welfare of the State, and on all others.

If you desire to see the truth placed before you each week, and the only curse of California removed, subscribe for THE RESCUE and induce your neighbors to do likewise. Address—

MARRIED.

Stanley—Allen.—In Napa City, July 10th, by Elder E. B. Ware, (Christian Church) at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. A. T. Stanley and Flora L. Allen.

Mr. Stanley and wife have long been identified with the cause of temperance and the I. O. G. T. in Napa Valley, both are members and P. W. C. T.s of Aqua Pura Lodge No. 111 at Napa City. They have departed for Hayden Hill, Lassen county, where Mr. Stanley has been engaged in teaching the public school for nearly a year. The cause and Order will still have their co-operation and support in that outpost of civilization. Many friends in this locality will remember them with regret for their absence, and best wishes for their good.

MR. BEECHER.—Miss Willard, in the kindness and goodness of her heart, has been asking Mr. Beecher a question or two, to see if he really is not a temperance man after all. The great double sider was equal to the occasion and seems to have convinced Miss W. that for his weak brother's sake, he is a total abstainer, except when his doctors advise him to gratify Henry W. with an exhilarating beverage. We all have his record on the temperance question: His father might almost be placed at the head of the American Temperance pioneer patriots, and H. W. represents the family at the tip of the tail of the procession at the other end. He came to California a few years ago; left his record on the road as a drinker of ale. In California he was careful to publish himself as an approving connoisseur of California wine, and accepted a present of some of it reported as made for communion purposes and said it was too good for communion purposes. Afterward he was reported as making a public statement that he had been a teetotaler till the age of 60 "then he learned to like lager beer and found it an excellent thing to go to sleep on." His paper makes Christ a common tippler and a very positive exemplar and teacher of drunkard making. In defence of drinking alcohol he puts the bible out of the reach of the belief or respect of men of common sense, because he makes it false and misleading as well as eminently and profusely self contradictory. No matter if the Bible is wiped out so we save the darling drink. His paper stands with Dr Crosby and the Independent, and if Bob Ingersoll was thoroly sincere and very cute, he would drop his open fight and publish a religious rum organ, the best manufacturer of infidelity in the world.

If Mr. Beecher could be made out a temperance man, he would be too heavy a load for us to carry; we dont want any body sixty-five years old on our side who has to be coaxed to tell whose side he is on. By the way, he does once in two or three years make a little speech for Mr. Dodge at a parlor meeting, which is supposed to be favorable to temperance, Now there are a great many men of fine talent and good intentions who are utter fools upon some point, and many of them have selected the temperance question as their favorite topic to be ignorant upon. Gladstone, Grant, Secy Sherman, Bayard, Edmonds are as eminent fools upon that one point and all its relative surroundings as a three months babe.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD seems to be out of danger now except from quack treatment. His fine robust physique and temperate habits have enabled him to make a successful resistance to the assassin's bullet, and whatever mistakes the doctors may have practiced upon him. It now remains to be seen whether he can stand the infernal and iniquitous quackery of dosing him with rum. Just a "little old rum" they say and they have not the least security in the world that it is not a sample of the vilest and most poisonous deadfall vitriol, and they administer it with his milk in doses of an ounce and a half, enough whether it is pure or bogus rum to inflame and disorder his blood and system and produce fatal results in his present weak condition. Perhaps he may be able to withstand the rum and the other quackeries that may be practiced upon him by fossilized superstition, and if he does they will attribute his recovery to their treatment. If the rum turns the scale and kills him, they will attribute his death to the bullet; "the rum could not save him" they will assert.

It is well known that the doctors killed Prince Albert with brandy, which was almost a surely fatal poison in his case, and they would have killed the Prince of Wales similarly, had not a new physician, called in at the last moment, induced his quack brethren to substitute milk for brandy, and the patient, who it was bulletined could not possibly live till morning, began instantly to recover and in a few days was out of danger; another night's brandy would evidently have killed him as it did his father. It is time that this ancient fanaticism and ignorant superstitious quackery of using rum and whisky as medicines should be done away with, and none but intelligent physicians entrusted with the lives of the people.

WHISKY GROCERIES. Not Good Templars and advocates of temperance alone, but every citizen of the State male and female, who confesses to any duty to self and society, ought to engage now and for life, in an active war of extermination upon those pest houses of infamy which sell and give liquor to men, women and children, under the guise of keeping a grocery.

The corner grocery or any other grocery that sells liquor, is a viler and meaner and more poisonous institution than the open saloon or brothel: it catches the innocent and unsuspecting, entraps and deceives and schools its victims to become graduates of both those dens of vice, or to sink into besotted hangers on and professional loafers of the grocery.

Women and children have a chance of escape from the pitfalls of the grogshop and beer dive, but the rum grocery is the devils decoy duck, to catch those who avoid the open pitfalls of shame, and insidiously fit them for the jail and the poorhouse and the morgue.

No one who cares at all for the welfare of his family or community ought to patronize one of these filthy deadfalls, these poisoners, these worst corrupters of the public morals, these pauper and thief factories. And surely every person of ordinary intelligence should know that a grocer, who for a few dimes will poison his customers and their wives and children, ought not to be trusted to sell food, nor can be expected to deal honestly in any respect.

The cash Temperance grocery of San Francisco has already proved that a grand good business can be done in selling good honest groceries to honest people in an honest upright manner; and if it were not so, if no grocer could make a living by selling good wholesome groceries and food without selling poison and prostitution and death along with them, it would be right to denounce the grocers business as one more despicable and degrading than that of the professional hangman.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE I. O. G. T.—The Good Templars are invited to attend in regalia a reception to be given to our brother Geo. B. Katzenstein as R. W. G. T., and to celebrate the 30th anniversary of our Order at B. B. Hall on Eddy st. between Mason and Taylor streets, S. F. on the evening of Monday, the 18th of July. The exercises will begin with a musical program, then an address of welcome and congratulation by the G. W. C. T., Judge Thompson, and response by the R. W. G. T., followed by addresses from Dr. Haswell, Mrs. Stevens and various other speakers. It is hoped the Order will be well represented on this occasion, and that all interested will endeavor to make it a success.

DELINQUENT. There are 30 Lodges placed in the delinquent list of the G. W. S. this week. In the communities where these lodges are, their temperance literature has been as follows. One had one 3 months subscriber to the RESCUE, expired. One has a yearly subscriber not a Good Templar. One has 3 subscribers and that Lodge is only delinquent, because of a family row which it will get over: the other 27 probably never looked at a page of any temperance literature except the Lodge ode card; the usefulness of such Lodges must be exceedingly limited and their fading out only a question of time.

SAN LUIS OBISPO TRIBUNE. Last week the "Temperance Tornado" taken from the above named paper appeared in the RESCUE without credit: reason, absence of the editor at Campmeeting and oversight on his return; accidents will happen, but that kind dont often occur in the RESCUE.

NOW.

Arise, for the day is passing,
And you lie dreaming on;
The others have buckled their armor
And forth to the fight have gone.
A place in the ranks awaits you,
Each man has some part to play;
The past and the future are nothing
In the face of the stern to-day.

Rise from your dreams of the future,
Of gaining some hard-fought field;
Of storming some airy fortress,
Or bidding some giant yield.
Your future has deeds of glory,
Of honor (God grant it may!)
But your arm will never be stronger
Or your need so great as to-day.

Rise? if the past detains you,
Her sunshine and storms forget;
No chains so unworthy to hold you
As those of a vain regret.
Sad or bright, she is lifeless ever,
Cast her phantom arms away,
Nor look back, save to learn the lesson
Of a nobler strife to-day.

Adelaide Proctor.

TEMPERANCE CONSERVATISM.—NO. 10.

REV G. W. FITCH.

Webster says a conservative is one "who desires to maintain existing institutions and customs."

In the "New Gospel of Peace." a book published during the war with rebellion, there is the following description.

"Now the Knsurvutivs were they which when they had got into hot water stayed there that they might not be scalded.

And they have been Knsurvtivs from the beginning of the world, yea tho they have all been scalded and these shall be forever, they will remain in hot water, and suffer no man to pluck them ont thereof.

And this Knsurvutiv opened his mouth and said; It is because this war is not waged according to the doctrine of the Knsurvutivs that we are afflicted with this grevious victory, and because Abraham and his counsellors and the men of their inclining do continually struggle, and strive to get out of hot water, when they ought to remain quitely therein.

Now therefore let there be rezzleooshuns issued according to the doctrine of the Knsurvutivs.

And let the rezzleooshns be two: and let the first be: that this people is a Knsurvutivs people, and that the Knsurvutivs are in favor of the war.

And let the second rezzleooshn he that the Knsurvutivs are opposed to all means of carrying on the war."

Now we submit that the above description of the half and-half-rose-water policy men who existed during the war, applies with equal force to a large class of temperance politicians and leaders, who oppose independent political action because it will injure their favorite rum and license party.

They will meet and solemly resolve;

1st That we are in favor of the war (Prohibition).

2nd We are opposed to all (radical) means of carrying it on.

With the assistance of the rum element this temperance war henceforth "shall be conducted according to the doctrine of the konservativs, and we shall remain in our hot water and no more grevious (temperance) victories shall afflict our land." This was not the spirit that preserved our glorious Union, neither will it save our land from the maddening, killing power of rum. To attack this rum power is to attack the strongest combinations of men, allied by interests of money, social position and political influence.

Undaunted heroism must lead in this fight. Weak-kneed konservativs and secret, plotting, unprincipled politicians with their shuffling arts, and deceptive tricks must be pitched overboard. The day is past for timidly striking at the skirmish line, while the strongholds are left undisturbed. Radical measures are needed. If there is any truth in history, it is this, that existing politicai parties cannot be depended upon to secure prohibition. The rum power is supreme in both. If they grant us anything it will be because of an irresistible pressure brought to bear upon them from without, hence we are radical enough to be a total prohibitionist, and advocate with all our power separate political action.

We cannot see why any conscientious temperance worker should stand aloof and refuse to co-operate with us in the use of the ballot for State prohibition.

It is evident that the first great object is to get all temperance people to act together. We believe that here in California they are numerous enough, and strong enough if united and determined, to carry State prohibition to a successful issue. But to secure this they must be so far consolidated and vitalized as to be known and judged, not by their professions, but by their actions.

It is to be regretted that there is a divsion among professed temperance people. But the radicals who believe that California is practically but one town, and see no vital difference between city and country are determined to push for state prohibition, as the alpha and National prohibition as the omega of their policy at the polls. They know that party lines are strong, but God is stronger. They know that at present they are in the minority, but with God on their side they will shortly become the majority. Heroism and right are invincible. The heroic spirit will ripen fast.

A larger temperance faith, better organized effort, more radical leaders will be forthcoming. A time serving conservatism with a fossilized rum party on its back will present no more formidable barrier to temperance than it has to the rum traffic.

The people are becoming sick of such leadership, these men who refuse to stand by principle in preference to party will not be permitted to wear the honors, but be consigned to merited oblivion. The great fight is before us, and many earnest, thinking, praying men are sighing for the contest to begin.

Let the 5000 Christian temperance voters of this state but be united and stand firm at the ballot box, and our victory will be glorious; peace will smile on many wretched homes and dry up the tears of unnumbered weepers.

BRIBERY.

EXTRACTS FROM DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON JUNE 19th.

"Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery." Job 15: 34.

The grandest earthly science is the science of politics. National order, national preservation, national defence, national morality, are all swept by that circle. But politics from being the science of good government has often been bedraggled into the synonym for truculency and turpitude.

A MONSTER SIN,

plausible, potent, pestiferous, has gone forth to do its dreadful work in all ages. Its two hands are rotten with leprosy. It keeps its right hand hidden in a deep pocket. The left hand is clenched, and with its ichorous knuckle it taps at the door of the court room, the legislative hall, the Congress and the Parliament. The door swings open and the monster enters, and glides thru the aisle of the council chamber as softly as a slippery page, and then it takes its right hand from its deep pocket and offers it in salutation to judge or legislator. If that hand be taken, and the palm of the intruder cross the palm of the official the leprosy crosses from palm to palm in a round blotch, round as a gold eagle, and the virus spreads, and the doom is fixed, and the victim perishes. Let bribery, accursed of God and man, stand up for trial.

The Bible arraigns it again and again. Samuel says of his two sons who became Judges, "They took bribes and perverted judgment." David says of some of his pursuers, "Their right hand is full of bribes." Amos says of some men in his day, "They take a bribe and turn aside the poor in the gate," whiie Eliphaz in my text foretells the crushing bolts of God's indignation, declaring, "Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery." It is

NO LIGHT TEMPTATION.

The mightiest have fallen under it. Sir Francis Bacon, Lord Chancellor of England, founder of our modern philosophy, author of a whole library of books, the leading thinker, having an income which you would suppose would have put him beyond the temptation of bribery—thirty-six thousand dollars a year, and Twickenham Court a gift, and princely estates in Hertfordshire and Gorhambury—yet under this temptation to bribery falling flat into ruin, and on his confession of taking bribes, giving all excuse that all his predecessors took them, he was fined two hundred thousand dollars, and imprisoned in London Tower. So also Lord Chancellor Macclesfield fell; so also Lord Chancellor Waterbury perished.

The black chapter in English, Irish, French, and American politics is the chapter of bribery. Some of you remember the Pacific Mail subsidies. All of you remember the awful tragedy of the Credit Mobilier. Under this temptation to bribery Benedict Arnold sold the fort in the Highlands for $31,575. For this sin Gorgey betrayed Hungary, Ahithophel forsook David, and Judas kissed Christ. When I see so many of the illustrious going down under this temptation, it makes me think of the red dragon spoken of in Revelation with seven heads and ten horns and seven crowns, drawing a third part of the stars of Heaven down after him. * * *

It seems to me that this is the right time to preach a sermon against bribery. The Legislature of the State of New York are now investigating charges of bribery. That body and the whole country, North, South, East and West have awakened up with holy horror at the charge that have been offered a Legislator for his vote, as tho this were something new; as tho hundreds of thousands of dollars have not been given in bribery to the Legislatures of this country, and millions of dollars. As tho nine hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars had not been given to one Legislature and State Government by a railroad company to get a charter and to put thru a donation of public lands. As tho the majority of the Legislatures of the United States thru bribery have not gone into putrifaction whose stench reaches Heaven.

By all means hunt down that two thousand dollars. Put the witnesses on the gridiron and broil them until they tell the whole truth. Perhaps after a month or two's hunting the squirrel that stole those hicory nuts we may have enough righteous indignation in this country to begin to hunt the lions and the bears and the tigers and the panthers and the behemoths of political corruption which are devouring this country. By all means go on, gentlemen of the Legislature, aud investigate the two thousand dollars. Find out all about them. Do as you testify you have been doing. Hunt wrong all day, and then go down to the Delavan House, and play poker and old sledge all night! When I see the Legislature of the State of New York, after years of corruption, going into a paroxysm of surprise at a paltry two thousand dollars given in bribery it is as tho in 1873, when the whole country was bringing law suit for six millions of dollars against William M. Tweed, the country had suddenly gone into hysterics at the discovery that he had stolen a box of steel pens. O gentlemen of the Legislature, by all means strain out that gnat, but do not swallow the camel.

of the legislatures of this country control the country. They have submerged California, putting her in the grip of a great moneyed institution. You remember the bribery in Kansas involving a United States Senator. Again and again a Congressional district in Connecticut has been bought up with no more embarrassment than you would buy a box of strawberries. You know which State is called the State of Camden and Amboy. In March of last year members of the Pensylvania Legislature were convicted of bribery. * * *

A United States Senator from Pennsylvania for many years was in the habit of putting a price upon members of the Legislature, just as a Kentuckian would put a price upon his race horses, two thousand dollars for this, and five thousand dollars for that. Railroad companies, which were intended to be the common carriers for the people and ought to be impartial, by a contract which is only another form of bribery in that case, give especial favoritism to certain companies, to certain firms, aud to certain businesses.* * *

Bribery in so many forms I can only hint at them. How much was given by certain railroad companies to keep their fare from dropping from 10 cents to five cents? It is alleged they gave $300,000. * * *

But the trouble begins far back of that, in what are called subscribed election expenses. If a man have no wealth he can hardly afford to run for Congress or for some other high position. Before the nomination is made the question is asked, "How much is he worth? how much will he give?" or, "How much will his friends give toward the success of the election?" And from this deep reservoir of subscibed election expenses the rill rolls down in ten thousand directions, and by the time that the Gubernatorial and Congressional and Presidential elections are closed, the land is

DRUNK WITH BRIBERY.

I pity that poor little orphaned two thousand dollars wandering about the streets of Albany, finding no parentage, when it belongs to a family of big brothers who ought to go out and take charge of that foundling which was laid at the door of the Senator. Wonderful phenomenon, that after fifty years of corruption, and the expenditure of millions of dollars in the legislatures, only two thousand dollars have miscarried. It shows that if there were no God and no judgment day, the safest business in this country would be bribery. What other business of millions of dollars could be carried on even for ten years with no more than a loss of two thousand dollars. All the contention about this spoils of office, which kept the Senate of the United States for four months playing the fool, and which for the last four weeks has kept the private parlors of the Delavan House at Albany the centre of national interest, is only another form of bribery. It is not so much the cash down as the offices promised. You put me into one kind of office, and I'll put you into another kind of office—dont you see? And it is often true that before a man is sworn into office he has pledged away all the patronage of that office, and the trouble comes from his incapacity or unwillingness to deliver the goods which he sold on the first Tuesday in November. Ah! what a state of things.

The machinery of bad American politics is made up of about five hundred wheels, and the cogs of these wheels play into a greater wheel, and this great centre wheel has a tire of railroad iron, and also a crank on which is the hand of Satan, and he turns the great wheel and that turns all the five hundred smaller wheels in the political manufactory. What has been seen in other countries threatens this land. While as a consequence of partial legislation the great masses of the people find it harder and harder work to make a living, we have too many men in this country who are worth their five millions, and their ten and forty and their eighty millions, they carry the Legislature in one pocket and Congress in the other.

REVOLUTION AHEAD.

I pray God it may be peaceful revolution, and at the ballot box, where only this wrong can be corrected. We had a forty years' contest about black slavery. We are to have a ten or twenty years' contest about white slavery. We are to have emancipation for American labor from the curse of monopoly. We must send to State and national councils men who cannot be suborned of perjury whether in the shape of promises of office or of hard dollars.

I do not believe in the union of church and State, but I do believe that unless the Church of Jesus Christ rises up and proves herself the friend of the people. as well as the friend of God, and in sympathy with the great masses who with their families at their back are fighting this battle for bread, the Church as at present organized will become a defunct institution, and Christ will go down again to the beach and invite twelve plain, honest fishermen to come up into the apostleship of a new dispensation of righteousness man-ward and God-ward.

The time must come when all classes of people shall have equal rights in the great struggle to get a livelihood. What is the present disgraceful state of things? You and I are paying the board bill, and the washing bill, and the cigar bill, and the whisky bill of the Legislature of the State of New York while they squabble about the offices.

There is not anybody that snpposes that the fifteen gentlemen nominated for senatorial position are the only men competent for it. Why not branch out in a new field, and for a change send two great Christian philanthropists who would adorn the senate of the United States more than the Senate could adorn them? I nominate William E. Dodge, Christian philanthropist, of New York, and George I. Seney, Christian philanthropist, of Brooklyn. I do not know whether they are Conkling men or anti-Conkling men, but I know this, they are anti-rum, anti-ignorance, anti-fraud, anti-villainy. And yet I am aware that the nomination will not be ratified. The time has not come when such men can be elevated; but it will come. God did not make the Atlantic Ocean to allow a few great whales to swallow up all the small fish, nor did He make this continent to furnish a few great, moneyed magnates with blubber. The greatest commercial blessing in this country is the railroads made for us to ride over; but do not let us lie down as sleepers to let the railroads ride over us.

"O!" says some one, "there's no need of talking against bribery by promise or by dollars, because every man has his price." I do not believe it. Even heathenism and the dark ages have furnished specimens of incorruptibility.

My charge is to you in all departments of life, steer clear of bribery, all of you. Every man and woman at some time will be tempted to do wrong for compensation. The bribe may not be offered in money. It may be offered in social position. Let us remember that there is a day coming when the most secret transaction of private life and of public life will come up for public reprehension. We cannot bribe death, we cannot bribe sickness, we cannot bribe the grave, we cannot bribe the judgments of that God who thunders in my text, "Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery."

Men of the world often regret that they have to leave their money here when they go away from the world. You can tell from what they say in their last hours that one of their chief sorrows is that they have to leave their money. I break that delusion. I tell that bribe-taker that he will take his money with him. God will wrap it up in your shroud. or put it in the palm of your hand in resurrection, and there it will lie, not the cool, bright, shining gold as it was on the day when you sold your vote and your moral principle, but there it will lie, a hot metal, burning and consuming your hand forever. Or, if there be enough of it for a chain, then it will fall from the wrist clanking the fetters of an eternal captivity.

The bribe is an everlasting possession. You take it for time, you take it for eternity. Some day in the next world, when you are longing for sympathy, you will feel on your cheeks a kiss. Looking up you will find it to be Judas, who took thirty pieces of silver as a bribe and finished the bargain by putting an infamous kiss on the pure cheek of his divine master.

WONDERDORF, June 26, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—I would like to ask of you one, two questions vitch I haf on me mind and gifes me vary mutch trubles. Somedimes he makes me so mad dat I feels like biting mine teeth together and sthomping mine feets, but that vould not become mine office as Worly Chief, sho I hav yusht to hold mine tongue and dot is vary hard somedimes. Und den ven any pody else gits vone office he bees so vary yealous he most bits hisself, he dinks he ought to get vone office all de dimes, und his frow too all de dimes, und no vone vants him for vone office man. And ven ve sings he alvays vants for to lead in dot, but he gits off from de tune or gits it so high or so low, dat no vone can sing mit him at all.

Ven vone of de members gits up to say somedings and maybe forgits to make de sine from de order or somedings dat vay, up pops dis broder und says Wordy Chief de broder did so and so votefer it may haf been; dot is all right but den it vould look better I dinks if he vould let some body else do so somedimes, not him always, it makes himself too plenty all de times. Und dot de members all gits tired of hearing from him. Now Meester Editor, dis bees a very great bodder to me for ve vould haf very gud meetings if it vas not for dis vone bruder, de oder Bredrens und Sisters bees all vary nice and social like and kind mit anoder, and I hopes you can help me oud in somevay. I vould like to see de lodge meetinge going on in gude feelings mit vone anoder and pleasant, and if you can tells me some vay to helps me oud from dis, I vill be vary mutch obliged to you.

Wonderdorf Lodge No. 0.

COMMUNION WINE &c.—The N. Y. Eastern Christian Conference in Session June 3rd issued its declaration, that "no christian is justified: (1) in voting with the liquor interest: (2) or in signing a petition for a license or a license bond: (3) or officially granting a license to sell liquors: (4) or in raising hops, apples or grain for the brewery or distillery: (5) churches should discipline any member guilty of the sins above named: (6) no christian church should be continued in membership with the conference that insists on using intoxicating fluids called wine at the Lords table: (7) each church should provide frequent temperance meetings: (8) all our people should unite with all the other people so far as practicable in temperance work: (9) all this and all that God permits us as a people, we ought to do to destroy the rum traffic: (10) we extend our hearty support to all temperance workers and especially to those working for entire prohibition &c.

Item No. 4 was discussed, but passed 42 to 4.

That reads as if that conference has arrived very near to the standard indicated and enjoined by apostolic authority.

SPELLING.

The more one reflects upon the nonsensical absurdities of English spelling, the more it seems a sin to conform to the exigencies of the false and perplexing and expensive system; it has not a single commendatory or mitigating feature, except that we are taut an immensely bad habit, and are too indolent or superstitious to do anything, or help others to do anything, to relieve the next generation and the Anglo-Saxon race from this miserable relic of barbarism and ignorance. Probably not one adult foreigner perseveres in learning book English for ten who would, if it were not the most utterly corrupt of all human languages; and yet we hear of preserviug the purity of our beautiful English: Whereas it is an impurity and a falsehood every time that we use letters which do not properly spell our words. The present mode of spelling has no inconveniences for the RESCUE: not the least. From early schooldays the old method has remained faithfully photographed on the memory of the writer and it has never been necessary to own or consult an English dictionary as a spelling guide. But it surely is a matter of great importance that all the rising generation who attend a course of school study, should be compelled to waste a good year of their most precious time, not in learning to do something right, but do it wrong everytime. The time wasted might just as well be employed in teaching them to memorize the Koran in Arabic or to repeat the Psalms of David backwards without understanding a word of their meaning.

The English language has more good literature than any other in the world, and every good citizen and christian and friend of humanity should desire to see our beautiful language and its teachings become the universal sole or second language of the whole world. Whoever improves our spelling or hastens its purification, is to a great extent a missionary of good to the world. Those who say the old way did them well enough and will do for others, or who are too indolent to say or do anything they are not paid for, or who are bigot-lovers of old abuses, are stumbling blocks in the way of the world's improvement, and are forging a burdensome yoke upon their own children which is a serious obstacle to their advancement in knowledge. It is just as ridiculous and heathenlike to spell thru, taut, buty, kat, tu, (two, to, too:) filosofi, ruf, kof, kant, rize, roze, lite, mite, kud &c as they are usually spelled, as it would be to write thynggc, schyppe, pryzzonne, pygges or poughteighteanx.

If letters should be used to misrepresent sounds, we ought to make the disguise complete and go back to the Chinese hieroglifics. It is a commentary upon the old spelling system, that perhaps not over one in ten lawyers, ministers, doctors, merchants or teachers can write an article as long as this without orthographical errors enough to condemn a system of useless absurdity, which no one can ever thoroly learn.

THE National Temperance Society have just added to their former packets of four and eight page 12mo tracts, Packet No 4, embracing the 12mo tracts from Nos. 151 to 200 inclusive, making 246 pages. This is a valuable packet of tracts written by some of the ablest workers in the temperance cause, and very useful for individual distribution. Sent postpaid, price twenty-five cents.

Nos. 112, 126, 159, 164, 208, 308, 342, 402, 403.

DELINQUENTS.—The following lodges remain delinquent, and have so far failed to fill quarterly returns for the term ending April 30th last. The dep uty of each has been notified and requested to forward the delinquent returns, In consequence of this delinquency the pass word now being mailed must be withheld from these lodges: Butte county Nos 240 and 282, Colusa 132 and 168 Contra Costa 175 and 349, Fresno 365, Humboldt, 363, Lake 347 and 432, Los Angeles 103 and 174, Inyo, 250 and 352, Mendocino 333, Modoc 229, 234 and 275, Monterey, 131 and 357, Placer 218, Shasta 142, Sonoma 166, 353 and 405, Stanislaus 187, 249 and 311, Tehama 315, Tulare 301. District deputies of the counties named will confer a favor by notifying the G. W. S. as to the condition of the above named lodges. If the lodges have ceased to meet, either of them, that fact should be made known that the lodges may be stricken from the active list.

YUBA COUNTY:—Upon invitation of members of the Order at Wheatland, it was our pleasure to meet the people in the neighborhood of Elizabeth school district, Yuba county on Saturday evening last, at which time Elizabeth Lodge was organized with thirty-four charter members. Bro. John Wallis was installed W. C. T., Bro. Geo. McWilliams W. S. and Bro. T. S. Carr P. W. C. T. and Lodge Deputy. The lodge will meet every Saturday evening in Elizabeth school house, situated about seven miles from Wheatland, and nine from Marysville, which should insure to it frequent visitations from the neighboring lodges at those points. A delegation from Wheatland Lodge composed of Sisters Hattie Sheets, Victoria Brown, Lizzie Taggart and Brothers John Landis, C. E. Justis, W. Fraser. H. Boynton and William and Charles Mack were present and lent material aid in the organization. The new lodge commences under the most favorable auspices, numbering among the charter members many of the permanent and prosperous citizens of the vicinage. The organization was completed at midnight and the return ride to Wheatland under the guidance of Bro. C. E. Justis, by the light of the full moon, under a clear sky studded with the galaxy of planets rarely visible in each others company was not one of the least enjoyable incidents of the journey. Sunday morning at Wheatland, afforded an opportunity to witness the rigid enforcement of the "Sunday law," all the business houses and saloons being closed, the town having a restful and sabbatarian appearance, in strong contrast with the appearance of similar communities where this beneficent law is not enforced. In this connection it is suggested that a list of towns and communities where the "Sunday law" is observed and enforced be published in these colums for the information and encouragement of other communities who are moving, or desirous so to do in the matter. Will not some one in each community where the "Sunday law is now being observed notify the RESCUE that it may make up such a list? While at Wheatland the hospitalities of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Justis, parents of the Lodge Deputy of Wheatland Lodge were enjoyed. Elizabeth Lodge is the ninety and ninth lodge of the present fiscal year's list of new lodges.

PERSONALS.—Bro. J. H. Whitmore P. W. C. T. of Georgiana Lodge Isleton was in the city last week under examination for a teachers certificate, and was so successful as to receive a first grade State certificate.....Bro. J. W. Whitson of Arbuckle Lodge called at the G. W. S. Office and reports the cause as progressing favorably in his county. He reports Col. Goulding as having stirred up the Colusaites considerably.....Bro. H. J. Miller of Yolo Lodge, called and reports a decided increase in membership and interest in his Lodge within the past year.....Bro. William Crowhurst, Grand Lecturer also called en passant to his field in Shasta county, Bro. Crowhurst has recently suffered from a slight malarial attack, which it is hoped the altitudes of Shasta may rid him of.....Bro. and Sister Stanley favored the Grand Lodge office with a call on Monday last on their way to their new home at Hayden Hill Lassen county until the very recent change of her name Sister Stanley was known as Lodge Deputy, Flora L. Allen of Aqua Pura Lodge at Napa. They have the best wishes of all in their new venture and it is hoped that a live Lodge will be reported from Hayden Hill in the near future.

THE HUNDRED ROLL.—So far nineteen lodges have reported a membership of one hundred and more each. The lodges so reporting are Siloam, No. 2; Sylvania, No. 12, Vallejo 64, Ceres 109, Summit 125, Amador 152, Grangeville 169, Rose of Lompoc 176, Red Bluff 192 Nevada 201, San Bernardino 220, El Monte 258, Golden Rule 263, Morning Star 266, Riverside, 284, International 291, Merill 299, Soulsbyville 340 and Merced 459. The aggregate membership of these nineteen lodges is 2550. The lodge in the above list having the largest membership is Merrill Lodge, which reported 198. The smallest, Ceres with an even 100 members.

NEWVILLE.—The W. C. T. of Newville Lodge of Colusa county, Bro. G. W. Scribner, writes: "We have been having some grand temperance meetings in the last few weeks. About three weeks ago Bro. Crowhurst lectured twice for us, and his lectures resulted in several additions to our numbers. On the 27, and 28, ult. Bro Goulding was with us, and also lectured to large audiences. While he was here and since he left we have initiated fourteen, and several others are soon to be initiated. We have nearly doubled our membership in three weeks and the new members comprise the cream of our neighborhood.

THE RIGHT RING.—The W. S., Bro. J. C. Ralston of Avonia Lodge at Durham, Butte county, writes under a recent date: "Our influence is manifest in this place. The three saloons are closed here on Sunday of their own accord and without complaint. We are a determined band, and will stand by our colors until the death knell of the liquor traffic is sounded."

In reply to a newspaper insinuation that Virginia city is going to decay, the Chronicle of that place says: We are going to pay a tax of $5 on the $100 this year, and we have the most flourishing and hearty lot of paupers here that ever the sun has shone upon. We pay $20,000 a year to maintain the indigent, and there is no other place in the world where a gentleman who will not cut wood for $2.50 cord can so readily obtain from the sympathizing authorities an order for a few weeks' provisions, a plug hat or such other assistance as his sad condition calls for.

The condition of Virginia city is truly pitiable; poor fellows, for about twenty years they have been compelled to work for such wretched pittances as $6 down to $4 a day; and it never would quite pay up their saloon and gambling bills. But with Virginias peculiar institutions licensed and tolerated, it would have been just the same if the workers had been paid 60 to 40 dollars a day. Even the grave digger would be pauperized in a city of grogshops and gambling dens, like most of the cities of Nevada and California.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding and George Bramall.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

MRS. STEVENS.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

Previously to my visit there I knew but little of San Luis Obispo, save that it was the seat of the county bearing its name. and what little I had heard had not impressed me. Fancy my surprise when I drove into the town to find a lovely picturesque village, embowered in trees with pretty homes and flower gardens and busy and bustling streets. I said, "why, this cannot be a bad place; how lively it is!" "Forty saloons" was the reply; "temperance dead here." Besides a teachers' institute had just wound up with a ball: everybody tired! Consoling, I replied, "I wish I had not to speak here tonight;"I found however that Rev. W. Kirkland. pastor of the M. E. church, had made what arrangements he could, giving me the church, furnishing a choir of singers and paving the way for me.

I did not expect to find the atmosphere all oxygen nor the dear public anything but indifferent. It is somewhere said that "every point of life is a point upon which turns the whole action of our after lives, and so indeed the after lives of the whole world;" this may apply to places as well as persons. But we are often so blind that we only see this of certain special enterprises, and endeavors which we call critical. The temperance meetings proved the pivot for San Luis Obispo's future.

The uprising of the citizens, the lodge of nearly three hundred have all been published. It only wanted that pivot to turn the tide. The coffee house is doing nicely. The building of the hall is an assured fact. On the fourth of July the temperance agitation acted like a charm. No liquor was sold on the grounds, and the gathering under the olive trees was a most happy and peaceful one. The town was gratifyingly sober. In the evening the large number who attended the Good Templar lodge, the many new members made new and active work for the secretaries. There was an earnestness of purpose pervading the meeting, and the forty-four subscribers to the RESCUE proved that the members were determined to make theirs a live reading and working lodge.

It was with real sincere regret I said good bye to all these new brothers and sisters. I came expecting nothing and received everything; the largest lodge ever organized in the state, composed of live men and women. The most cordial of welcomes. Certainly San Luis Obispo has a future in this temperance work; that she has splendid resources none can gainsay, situated in the heart of that large grazing county with more produce shipped from the wharves than from any other point this side of San Francisco, proves the fact; and with total abstinence for a shield what may not be accomplished? Hitherto saloons have absorbed the wealth of the people and given nothing in return but blighted hopes and wasted opportunities. Now that the pivot has turned, who can predict the results, who shall say what may not be the bright future nor how largely instrumental San Luis Obispo shall be in shaping the destinies of the new temperance state?

C. N. GOULDING.

LAKEPORT, Cal. July 10, 1881.

I crossed the mountain on the 5th from Leesville to Upper Lake, remaining over night at "Bartletts Springs" (the Saratoga of the coast.) Arriving in Upper Lake on the 6th, found that no notice of my appointments had reached the county, which necessitated some active advertising. Had a fair audience the first evening and a large audience the second evening at Upper Lake.

The meeting here this evening was held in the Court house it having the largest seating capacity of any building in the place. The pastors all gave up their services, urged their congregations to attend, the result was that not more than half could obtain admission. The audience gave the best of attention, and I am of opinion that some good was accomplished, hope so, at least. Shall remain here another night, speaking only once in Kelseyville. For some reason the cause languishes in this county, have not been here long enough to familiarize myself with temperance matters. Nature has been very bountiful, and Lake county can boast of as beautiful lakes, valleys and mountain scenery, as can be found in America and can fully realize the saying "Where every prospect pleases and only man is vile."

The Sunday law is generally observed, and there is an entire absence of that "rowdy element" found too often in mountain counties. I have well and faithfully distributed the RESCUES, urged the importance of temperance literature, have sown the seed; trust you may gather in the harvest.

HUGH R. HUGHES.

SUTTER CREEK, July 11,1881.

July 6th at Mok Hill, the L. D. absent, and no one left to look after lodge business, so no notice had been received of my coming, and no one had read of the appointments in the RESCUE. Met with the lodge and had a pleasant meeting. Mok Hill, the old home of our G. W. C. T. is being built up again and ought to have a flourishing lodge.

The 7th at Jackson. a small bnt pleasant public meeting; am obliged to lodge deputy Turner and Rev. Wythe for kindness and favors. Jackson is the county seat of Amador, and is filled with saloons and is a very hard field. But good work will tell. Hold the fort, brethren.

The 8th went to Ione city. None of the officers and read the notices in the RESCUE, and the D. D. Wood does not reside in the place as the RESCUE has it. When officers change P. O.'s they ought to have the address changed. Bro. Wood resides in Amador city; so I had 18 miles dusty driving for nothing. The 9th and 10th in Sutter Creek, had a pleasant meeting with old friends, Mr. H. Reese. Had every assistance rendered by the pastor of the M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Dodge. Speak in Amador city this evening and consult with the D. D., Bro. Wood in regard to work in this county, before going to make a thoro canvass in El Dorado county.

It is high time that officers in the lodges made it a business to read the appointments of their lecturers. and make some provision for public meetings. There is a time to sleep and a time to work. Let us work while we have the grand opportunity and work altogether.

ATLANTA, July 8, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—I am a constant reader of the RESCUE, and tho a prohibitionist from my boyhood, I never was so much so as now. My soul is stirred by this subject which touches every interest of society. I in common with every other friend of temperance, rejoice in the magnificent success of our cause in Kansas. I believe that the time has fully come to throw down the gauntlet to the Rum party and fight them squarely and fairly on a Prohibition platform. I am heartily sick of the selfishness and greed of existing parties. Let us have an early Temperance Convention and may the God of temperance give us unity of action.

J. W. BLUETT.

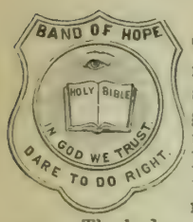
That has the right sound. The old parties are the bot and owned and branded property of the drunkard makers. And all that we can ever expect to get from them is the kind of temperance legislation that will be entirely acceptable to their whisky bosses. The time for union in political action was 3 or 4 months ago, is yet perhaps but if deferred a little while longer, any action united or otherwise will be like barking at the moon.

SOMETHING OF INTEREST TO THE PUBLIC:—All of the foreign wines and liquors are imported direct to this coast, and we are but little behind any State in these importations, while in domestic liquors, we have a superabundance. As the duties are heavy on imported liquors, and the Revenue Tax equally so on the domestic ones, there is, of course, an open field for the operation of imitators, who have crowded on the market vast quantities of spurious and doctored liquors, some of them so accurate an imitation as to almost deceive competent judges. Especially is this so in the line of whiskies, the almost universal drink of the age. Notwithstanding the efforts of such able temperance advocates as Gough, Murphy, Bain, Hallenbeck and others, it is undeniable that men will drink. But, nearly the entire list of evils which are claimed by these apostles of total abstinence to arise from the use of liquor, would be abated, if not entirely destroyed if instead of tarantula juice, Jersey lightning and fusil oil, men would drink pure unadulterated liquors- If man's nature craves for, and he will drink whisky, we reccommend as beyond compare and unequalled, ——— ——— Whisky.

Taking what the whisky and beer and wine men say of each other, and putting the pieces all together, we get at about the exact truth, and find it coincides with the estimate put upon them by the sober people. The advertizers of this new brand of tarantula juice are liberally bribing the "prostitute" newspawers to herald their particular poison and commend it. But this fancy, genteel and no doubt high priced article of beastliness and criminal debauchery, is very probably nothing but the commonest kind of cheap potato or kitchen slop snake juice, costing outside of the duty about 20 cents a gallon and probably selling for 6 or 7 dollars as a choice fool's bait.

It is not here intended to belittle this whisky; for if it was made from potatoes and a few flavoring drugs and sulphuric acids to make it penetrating, it is just as good, for all its purposes, as the most refined and costly of all strong liquors which under no circumstaaces ever cost the compilers over 40 cents a gallon outside of the revenue tax. This Nabob Whisky no doubt contains as many murders and fights and jimjams and blasphemies and debaucheries per gallon as any other.

POLICE WORK.



Classification of the various arrests made in June. the arrests made by the Police Department in June were as follows: Assault, 14; indecent assault, 5; battery, 185; assaults with deadly weapon, 15; begging. 2; bench warrants 12; burglary, 14; attempted burglary, 2; carrying burglars' tools; 2; burglary, second degree, 11; cruelty to animals, 15; carrying concealed weapons. 23; deserters. 1; disturbing the peace, 36; drunkenness, 784; common drunkards, 39; embezzlement, 7: escaped from Industrial School, 2; exhibiting obscene publications, 1; felony, 1; discharging firearms, 5; fast driving, 9; visiting gambling-houses, 14; hackman for overcharging, 1; soliciting. 35; visiting house of ill repute, 7; indecent exposure, 4. children for the Industrial School, 16; insane, 18; insane prisoners en route, 1; vulgar language, 85; grand larceny, 12; petty larceny, 42; attempted petty larceny 2; selling liquor without a license, 16; peddling without a license, 5; selling lottery tickets, 9; malicious mischief, 21; manslaughter, 2; mayhem, 1; misdemeanor, 124; murder, 1; attempted murder, 6; nuisance, 3; perjury, 11; subordination of perjury, 4; prisoners enroute, 8; fellonious assault, 1; resisting an officer, 1; robbery, 11; attempted robbery, 2; violating revune law, 3; driving on sidewalk. 1; State prisoners en route, 11; depositing dirt in the street, 6; obstructing street 18; surrendered by bondsmen, 1; threats against life, 1; vagrancy, 16; witness detained, 1; total, 1707; lodgers, 67.

Of these 1707 offences in the month of June it is quite probable that 1612 may be counted as solely attributable to the grogshop and the corner grocery. And it is quite as probable that beside the 823 drunks arrested there were 8230 or more, that might have been arrested were the act of drunkenness itself in all cases visited with arrest.

It will be a source of wonder to all future generations, that grogshops should have been able in this age to purchase for a few thousand dollars a year, the privilege of robbing the public, principally the poor of this city, to the extent of 20 or 30 millions a year, filling the jails and courts and asylums and brothels with their poisoned victims, cursing every honest interest and industry of the country, and doing never one single act of benefit to the people or the world. Who will understand in future ages why we employed 4000 to 5000 establishments in this city all the time for the sole purpose of converting the young as fast as they grow up into criminals, hoodlums, paupers and prostitutes?

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE WIDOW'S PRAYER IN WELSH.

A PERSONAL EXPERIENCE STRICTLY TRUE IN EVERY PARTICULAR. A STORY FOR YOUNG AND OLD.

The Mersey river rolls its current swift, in ceaseless ebb and flow, between the towns of Birkenhead and Liverpool: the two comprise a great commercial port of numerous and capacious docks; the shipping center of the world; vast rendezvous of sailors from all modern and all ancient lands. Where thoughtless sailors, rude, unguarded, unsuspicious congregate, be sure the human vultures gather fast in greedy flocks, to batten on their human prey. Few sailors but have been in Liverpool, and met with some adventure there, most commonly a sad one, but not invariably so.

About three-quarters of a million people live or stay in these two towns: we'd call them cities here; but there the name of city only dignifies the town that has a bishop as its pastoral head. In all such populations vast, the wealth is centralized among a favored few: what's left, the poverty, is liberally diffused among the swarming multitude. The dwellers in a plenteous golden land, can no idea form as yet of poverty, as it exists in crowded cities of the older world; that hopeless, blighting, withering woe whose ceaseless wail ascends to heaven, and bears accusing witness of the giant crime of nations civilized, who sell the privilege to rob and kill and curse the poor, and fill the land with sin, companion sure of sorrow, woe and suffering dire.

Near twenty years ago there lived in Birkenhead an aged lady who had suffered four score years and six of poverty; a lady? No; a woman only, poor and widowed, and a pauper then. Her husband and her sons and daughters all, some ten or twelve, were in the grave. No living relative was left, or none whose whereabouts she knew; no one to care for her in all this world; no friends, not one, except her God and yours. I never saw her, never heard or knew her name: perhaps it was a very humble plain one, but God had printed it in shining golden letters in the book wherein the names and records of his best beloved are kept.

Tho called a pauper here, she had a store of wealth beyond the wildest dream of grasping millionaire. She knew and loved her God, and he loved her! All other wealth is dross compared with such as hers. Without assistance she had struggled many weary years alone; but in her later days of failing health and creeping age, the guardians of the plenteous public chest allotted her a stingy weekly dole of cents, just thirty-six; enough to avoid the verdict, "starved to death" and yet incur no risk of lengthening out the "pauper's" days.

The wealthy owner of the room in which she lived with vise-like fingers grasped for rent, one-third her weekly stipend, On the rest she had to live, about three cents a day for board and clothes and all her wants. Think, children of a plenteous home, of grinding poverty like that!

Her room, a bare and miserable box; no mat or carpet on the wretched floor, no chair or holstery, no pictures on the dingy wall. Such memories of a brighter day, if e'er possessed, had gone to purchase bread. A bench, a bed of straw, a plate and cup of pattern cheap and old, a garment coarse and worn and patched, comprised her stock of worldly goods. And still she dwelt so near the throne of God, her prayers he heard distinctly. He who loves the lowly righteous poor, and ever is the solace, comfort, balm and help of all who cast their burden at his feet, was with her every day, Companion, Friend and Comforter according to his word. A friendless pauper here she seemed, but ranked in Paradise with Moses, Job, Elias, for she like them communed with God, who heard and answered her as he did them.

In Liverpool same time there lived a kindly noble hearted woman, one whose life had been a constant blessing to the poor; she sought them out with studious care, and to their needs was e'er an angel minister. She had no means beyond her daily needs, but that concerned her not; she sought as well the generous rich, and interested them to lend from their abundant store, and render to the indigent and sick the help which she herself had not to give.

A noble Christian she, in works of mercy, charity and love, in tenderest sympathy with every soul that needed help; yet failed to understand and feel and know that God was near enough to hear and answer prayer: believed it not, believed that he who made the sun and moon and stars and all the host of heaven ruled, had on them all, and on his people too, a rigid law imposed, stern and inflexible, which neither he nor any else could modify or change: believed the arm of God was limit bound; his power to save, his mercy, measured out by law; a cold belief it seemed, but it was hers.

But no less frequent were her visits to the poor for this. In one of these she found the lonely widow out, who lived so near to God, and was a pauper. Her mission was to render help; perhaps the angels led their sister to the aged saint, to learn of her a better, higher, nearer estimate of God. Thus often is the generous helper blest. The gift received may bless but once, or may not bless at all; the gift bestowed with motive pure may never cease to bless. Perhaps another day the giver may be blest, he strays, altho he know it not, into the company of angels on similar errands bent. From frequent meetings with the angels thus, in ministering visits to the sick and dying poor, their sister more and more had grown to be like them.

Returning to her home that eve, she found a sailor friend, a visitor, arriving from a far off land, and knowing well her household and their generous kindly natures, he had learned to love to visit there, and in the circle of their pleasant home, enjoy a happy hour in cheerful converse, enquire of Maggie and her baby boy in York, how Walter fared in distant Iowa, when Herbert might return from sea—and hear of all their plans and hopes, and help them build their castles in the air.

That eve the conversation turned on creeds, opinions, providence and prayer. "Oh, that recalls," the lady said, "my visit of to-day. I found in Birkenhead a curious specimen of faith and prayer, an aged Methodist, a widow, who every Sabbath goes three times to hear the gospel preached in ancient Welsh. I was amused to observe her sturdy faith. She prays in Welsh for every thing she wants, and thinks the Lord hears every word and answers it in kind. At times she's in a strait for clothing, food or coal, and prays for twenty cents, 'Oh, Lord, thou knowest my need", and wonders then what messenger he'll send, and how, but never doubts; she feels the answer's sure,"

She has a shawl, the only thing she owns that's worth a shilling, and she used to pawn it for her pressing needs, till God should send her help, But that she does no more, because it seems a lack of faith to doubt that God will answer just in time. She's praying now for forty cents and wonders how he'll send to meet this extra call unusual. To my remark upon her faith, 'I never doubt,' she said, 'his promises I know are true; he's always answered me, and always does and always will. No "if" at all disturbs me, but I love to wonder how.

"The widow's right," her friend replied; "please give her this, and say that God has heard her prayer and thus supplied her present wants and more for months to come" * * * The widow's heart was filled with joy to find her prayer so promptly more than answered: and her thanks arose to heaven's white throne, snd with them went a fervent prayer for blessings on the stranger friend whom God had moved to do his will.

That friend went forth abroad, and in the varying rounds of ocean's storms and calms, and in the stirring scenes of cities strange, among the worlds great marts and merchants, in communion with old friends and new, the lowly widow and her story from his memory had altogether passed. A year and more had gone when it returned as fresh as if it happened yesterday, and with it something said, "the widow's prayer in Welsh goes up again for help; she's calling now." The message, or whatever else it was, took full possession of his thots, and effort made to cast it off as idle fancy met resistance firm; the call for help prevailed and would be heard.

Next morning saw a hurried letter on its journey of 6000 miles: enclosed it held the answer to the fancied prayer, and asked the lady friend who loved the poor to find the widow, "for I'm sure she's praying; see her wants supplied; but if she's gone from earth and needs no help, just make the money sent an answer to some other prayer."

The impression was correct; the widow still was there, her Father had not called her home: her prayers were going up with vehemence. The rigorous winter threatened, and her tattered garments worn and thin, no longer gave protection from the cold; her flannels and her blankets ceased to be of use, and several minor wants were menacing. To her a dollar seemed a moderate fortune, two or three composed a wealth prodigious, and the trifles which she needed seemed a bill of merchandise enormous. Altho no cloud of doubt had ever cast a shadow o'er the sunshine of her faith, she wondered much how God would this time plan to honor such an unaccustomed draft.

The help came just in time; her wants were all supplied, and there was something left for future use. Again her grateful thanks went up to God, who never once in all her life had failed to keep his sacred pledge. Again the choicest blessings were invoked upon the friend unknown. And if the loving Father ne'er forgot to hear her prayer of faith and answer it, when offered in her own behalf, was it not answered too, when offered for another? Yes, indeed it was: the blessing of the praying poor returned to him a thousand fold; if not at all in monied wealth, in worldly honors or success material, the memory of the story of the widow's faith and love and trust, has blessed a thousand times the unknown friend for whom she prayed; it does to-day; the blessing is from heaven.

To have been called to minister to one who lived so near to God, with whom the Savior dwelt, and whom the Savior loved, was of itself a blessing richer, sweeter, better; yes, a thousand times than any boon of gold or place or praise of men.

The widow, pauper while on earth, dwells now in presence of her God, her home, his palace in the city of the pearly gates and golden streets. No pauper now; a jeweled crown she wears among the saints and prophets, robed in spotless righteousness and radiant with the brightness of the glory which surrounds the throne of God. Perhaps her poverty and trials here, her tears and prayers, were needed means to exercise and train and fit her spirit for a high and holy destiny which had been planned for her in that exalted sphere, in which the spirits of the pure and just, not idly rest, but work in harmony with God.

The widow's name is lost, her place on earth is no more known. But still her prayers live fresh and green in the all Father's memory; and he has not yet ceased to answer them.

The faith and trust by which she rose above all ill may now be yours, the gate by which she entered into bliss stands open wide for you. And may the memory of the widow's steadfast trust, and of the Father's watchful care and answering love, convey its lesson to the hearts of all who read, and lead them each to seek the all-surpassing great reward, the true, exhaustless, priceless wealth of LIVING NEAR TO GOD.

THERE are a good many boys working in the various shops of the city who spend nearly all their earnings for beer, and are drunk every Saturday night. And some boys who earn no money themselves are spending their father's money for beer and wine and bringing shame upon their father's memory. Boys who drink thus at fifteen can hardly reach thirty, and will probably not reach twenty-five years. They will die some shameful death long before they reach their prime.—Dr. Story.

BRO. S. WHITMORE. D. Dep. reports reorganization of Band of Hope in San Diego with about 30 children and eight adults. He says the children are eager enough to be taught but it is difficult to get the teachers to take an interest in teaching them, which is very much to be lamented. He also says constitutional prohibition for him or death.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

TEMPERANCE.

ESSAY BY MISS HENRIETTA SCHLOSS OF GUERNEVILLE JUVENILE TEMPLE.

This word temperance literally means being well timed as to one's habits; but in this essay it means to abstain from all alcoholic liquors. The word alcohol was first used in the year 1698, but was intended only to describe something refined or beaten into a very fine powder; while now it is not used in that way. It now expresses the pure spirit produced by the fermentation of the grape, or any other substance that will undergo fermentation and produce this spirit.

All liquors are made in the same way, inasmuch as the fruits or grains from which they are made must undergo the process of decay. In ancient times wine was used very sparingly and valued very highly. It was offered as a sacrifice to the gods, and in some countries young men under thirty years of age were not permitted to use it at all. Women could not use it at any age. In time these laws were more and more disregarded. When crime became more plentiful the people used it a great deal. They said it cheered up their spirits and made their hearts light. This held its position for many centuries, but there was a wonderful change during the dark ages as they are termed.

Then distillation was discovered, by which strong liquors could be manufactured on a much larger scale and comparatively little expense. There are different kinds of alcoholic drink, viz. wine, der beer, rum, brandy, whisky, gin and ale. A person who drinks these freely is called a wine or beer drinker. Now as I have described alcohol, I will tell its effects on the human system. When alcohol is drunk it is carried all over the system by the blood. It injures the stomach and prevents digestion, which is ascertained from the fact that when a man has drunk freely the food has been known to lay in the stomach many hours in nearly the same condition as when eaten. The alcohol prevents digestion by neutralizing the effects of the different juices which enter into that process, and if taken repeatedly and in large quantities it will finally destroy the organs which secrete these juices. People say it makes them feel good; but that is only because the system tries so hard to work it off, and in consequence makes them red and excited. If alcohol imparts no strength to the body, it seems odd that a person does not feel hungry after drinking it. But this is another fact that shows how poisonous it is. It poisons the nerves and gets them out of working order so that they do not call for food. Another important question is, how does it make them fleshy? For the reason that the blood cannot work off the worn out matter of the system, and so lays it aside as dead matter or fat. It causes all sorts of diseases. Just to imagine 60,000 dying yearly from this fearful traffic. The doctors say that beer drinkers are the worst cases to cure in the hospitals.

Alcohol has a tendency to make them cold. Drinking men are much more likely to freeze and die of cold than sober men. They are also more likely to be sunstruck, and they cannot work so hard at any employment.

Now as to its effects on the brain. The blood carries it quickly to the brain, where it crazes the mind and makes the drinker tipsy. It is not right to make fun of him, for he really does not know what he is doing. He is, we might say, poisoned with alcohol, During that time he often abuses his poor wife and innocent children. It is estimated that strong drink is the primary cause of at least three-fourths of all the crimes committed. Many drink to such an extent that they are troubled with delirium tremens, and imagine they see all kinds of terrifying objects after them. They often commit murder while in this state. My opinion is, that they should be punished, but that the people who give them liquor should receive the worst punishment.

At first I hesitated to set myself about this grand work, but it is so interesting I'm afraid I'll never find the conclusion. So this grand word temperance teaches us to abstain from the use of all poisons.

I am proud to state that our temperance organizations were started as early as 1808. The first society was organized at Moreau, New York, and the first general society in Massachusetts in 1826. The temperance societies are now adding many names to this magnificent work. There are a great many different societies formed, viz. Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, Templars of Honor, Temperance Publication Society and many others; especially for the children have been formed Juvenile Temples, Bands of Hope started in 1855, and the Cold Water Templars. But this is not near what has been done to promote the cause. Meetings have been held, lectures given, temperance camp meetings held, books, papers and tracts printed and distributed, and there is a law in Maine and Kansas prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, Only a few years ago I witnessed at Portland, Oregon, crusaders going to the principal saloons, and by their prayers hoping to do some good. In many places they were treated respectfully, but in others all sorts of tricks were played npon them.

Several quit saloon keeping at that time, but in a month there were as many if not more than before. I am glad to call myself one of the temperance band, and find it a glorious cause to work for. I have an idea that when a man is drunk and others see the effect liquor has had on him, it would make them abstain from it, but such is not always the case. It weakens the mind, and in many cases totally destroys mental activity; to say nothing of the effect it has on his social standing, neither of the effect the craving has on his pocket. Of course a drink costs but a trifle, but let one indulge, and it can make a rich man poor.

Oh! what a pitiful sight it must be to see one's loved father come home staggering into the house. Nothing in this world has been the cause of so much misery, crime, woe and death as alcohol. Some men look upon our great cause as being vulgar, and only fit for weak men and women. But the time will come when they shall change their minds. Surely drunkenness is no foundation for prosperity or progress. And there is no one who will deny this; for maybe there have been incidents in your own life that you can recall, where a friend has started in life by your side and you are progressing while he may have filled a drunkard's grave long ago.

In some houses where the occupants are wealthy, scarcely a meal is eaten without the so-called best of wines. How much a fond country mother dreads her son's starting for city life where so many temptations surround him. In large cities there are comparatively but few blocks that do not contain at least one saloon, and oft times many. It is not alone sold by those that are in that business exclusively, but it is also kept by grocery stores. In cities there are generally grocery stores situated on nearly every corner and called corner groceries. Oftentimes I have seen women come out of these wretched places so intoxicated that the policemen could hardly take them to the station house. It is a very sad sight to see them carried to such a place. perhaps they have small children and loving husbands who work hard for their support and try to make them reform, but all to no purpose as the craving for liquor is too strong.

How many a one has started on life's journey laughing at those who have fallen a prey to this fiend, and making sport of them! But very often you see those who laugh at others in the same condition ere they are aware. The temperance reform has saved many a one from ruin. The juvenile temple to which I belong contains a total of about 100 members. The Bands of Hope in this state are both numerous and active. I shall always remain one of the number, and should be happy to see liquor banished from this state and from the world.

FORSAKEN NESTS.

BY MRS. JULIA P. BALLARD.

Little flakes of snow were flying about, half of them melting in the sunshine before they fell. "I should think there would be a "snowbow" somewhere," said Ruth, watching the flakes glittering in the sunbeams.

There was no snow- bow however, to be seen, and the little birds were already laughing at these flying April flakes, altho their feet were chilled, and they were glad of the crumbs they were sure to find near Rose's window. While Ruth was watching the April flurry of snow, Rose was feeding the little Quaker phœbe- birds, hopping about in their drab coats or wheeling in circles in the air.

"I'm so glad they've come again said Rose. "It seemed as if it would always stay winter this time. I like to see the snow-birds in the winter, with their white bills and banged foreheads, for they look just as if their mothers had cut their feathers straight across above their eyes. But when phœbes come, then I know it's spring, and I shall be sure to find some flowers pretty soon. Who teaches the phœbes and the blue-birds and robins just when to come back? asked Rose. "They dont get fooled by a little snow storm or a spring day that looks just like winter."

"No," said her mother, "and they go right on and build their nests every year, never failing or forgetting to make a warm and comfortable home in time for the little tiny phœbes yet to come."

"They must think," said Rose, "and plan; and I think they are as wise as people, and just as kind."

"What would you think if I said they were kinder than some people? What would you think if a wren, or a phœbe, or a robin should begin to build its nest, and when it was about half done say, "I'd rather be eating worms and hopping about in the sun than weaving straws all day," and so when the little eggs are laid in the nest they fall out and are broken; or suppose they are hatched, and the little birds are hungry. and the mother-bird should say, "I cant attend to you all the time; you must get your own breakfasts and dinners," and she and the father-bird go off and leave them to die?"

"But I dont think it," said Rose. "No phœbe ever did that!"

"That is true; no bird ever did. And that is why I said they might be kinder than people." If there is any "Society to Prevent Cruelty to Birds," you may be sure it is not cruelty from father and mother birds, but from rude boys, that they are to be shielded. But when we have a "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children," I am afraid we find some of this cruelty, if not the most of it, comes from fathers and mothers who leave their little children to cry and to suffer, while they are ruining themselves at the ale-house. It was worse than finding a nest full of starving birds when your father went into old Peter Brown's the other day and found three little children alone by themselves, one of them crying bitterly because it had fallen against the stove and burned its hand, and the others hungry and watching at a broken window for their mother, who would at last come home cross from drinking."

"Is that where he took my dresses and hat?" asked Rose.

"Yes; and he got them some food and tied up the little smarting hand, and that made them contented for a little while. But such mothers will soon find only empty nests if they do not grow wiser."

"I am glad there is a "society" to take care of them," said Rose. "And I think such mothers ought to go and watch the phœbe-birds and take a lesson about taking care of their own homes."—Banner.

AN APPEAL TO OUR FRIENDS ABROAD.—The Indiana temperance people have a big work before them, with all the hosts of rum to antagonize them. The Anti-Prohibition League are busily engaged within and without the State raising money to fight the prohibitory amendment which has passed one legislature and is to be voted on in the next legislature. The liquor men of St. Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and other large cities all over the Union are raising large sums of money to fight the amendment. We need funds with which to circulate documents, organize &c. Therefore we appeal to you, in the name of the thousands of blighted homes in this State and the unknown and unknowable sorrow and despair caused by the traffic, to come to our assistance.

We must have help. All sums of money, no matter how small, will be thankfully received and placed to your credit, and published in the MONITOR-JOURNAL, State Official Temperance Organ, and will be strictly applied to the purposes herein set forth, Make remittances to

THE KANSAS LAW.—The following extract from a letter from Gov. St. John, of Kansas, will be read with interest:

There will be all kinds of falsehoods circulated and published by the whisky ring in relation to the working of prohibition in Kansas, and I want to say, once for all, that it matters not what report you may hear to the contrary, that prohibition in Kansas is a grand success, and with the exception of violations in two or three of the larger towns and cities of the State, the law is being honestly obeyed and enforced everywhere within our borders. Kansas is getting a splendid immigration, and never was more prosperous than she is to-day.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

A FEW WORDS TO THE GERMAN BREWERS' ANTI-AMERICAN LEAGUE.

This republic with its liberty and prosperity, all that it has of value and virtue, worth, honor, and good name—has been purchased and created and whittled out by the American people themselves, without any help, advice or pattern from the people who live in other countries. The religious, educational, political, governmental and social and legal systems under which this country has grown to its present stature, are all distinctively American or native. Native industry and native common sense have provided house, home, food, clothes, school, liberty, protection for all the fifty millions now here, and for many more to be here in the near future. We did not beg, borrow, buy or steal any of our elements of thrift and progress from Germany, France, England or Ireland. Not a native of any of these countries now here, has ever had any hand in making this country or framing its institutions. Some of them have voted and talked and written and acted for years in our midst: some of them have been very good citizens, and some of them very bad indeed. Not a word of this article touches a good citizen who is of foreign birth. But the country would have acquired its liberties and wealth and power, and perhaps would have arrived at a higher degree of civilization and culture and happiness, if not a single native of any land beyond the seas, good or bad, now living in this country had ever left his native home.

The foreign born citizen should remember that no people of any country in the world, have ever exercised such a magnificent and generous hospitality to strangers as the Americans. Every other people of history have had laws and customs discriminating against the stranger, more or less severely; and the countrymen of the people so kindly sheltered here, are at this day perpetrating fiendishly cruel atrocities and injustices upon the Hebrews, a much more sober and better behaved people than themselves. This Union has stretched forth both arms to welcome the poor and oppressed of all nations, and has tucked them away safely under her great protecting wings, and adopted them into her family without question or condition.

Now there are a few things which our adopted German and other European citizens should ever most particularly and carefully consider:

1. You and your fathers have framed and built up and worked out a social and political system, which was and is a miserable failure. Its faults and failings and wants and vices drove you into exile from the country God gave you; and millions are groaning there still in bondage who would leave it if they could.

2. That country was and is, just as good as this, so far as the Creator's hand modeled it; but you and your fathers and your countrymen cursed it with drunkenness, vice and pauperism, and made it unfit for you to live in: and nothing else ever ailed your country but the vices and wrongs of its people and rulers, and of its political and social systems and customs.

3. You did not have the least part in the providing and fitting up of this country, to be a happy and beautiful home for you and your children. If you had, it would have been a failure, just like your own. But all this has been done for you by the "blue law," "puritan," "down east," "New England," "intolerant," "fanatical "Sunday law," "sober," "moral" and "Godfearing" "Yankees," whom you so execrate. And because they and not you, were the builders, the structure is neither rotten nor a failure.

4. All that there is of prosperity and happiness and success in this country and its institutions is directly due to the virtues only of its people. All that is ragged and sore and sick and poor and unhappy, the tears and woes and miseries are all due solely to the vices of somebody; and mostly to the vices of our foreign born citizens, who helped to damn one country already, and are trying to similarly ruin another.

5. The country you left has no such lofty honor in its power to bestow upon its favorites, as that of American citizenship, which has been made a free gift to you. And in return for all this, and for all the privileges and kindnesses you have received, a decent respect for common honesty, a decent interest in the welfare of your children, demand that you should maintain a respectful and friendly bearing toward the people and government and social system, which has afforded you an escape from your native earthly hell, and given you an equal place among a free and happy well fed people.

6. There are quite a large number still on hand of the American race, who have engineered this country, and protected it and cared for it so far; quiet, industrious, peaceable people, but not cowards: patient and long suffering men, but when set down upon too persistently, it will be found that they have very hard and tough bones somewhere, and will display a terrible activity of force when once roused and set up on end.

7. They intend to stay in this country.

8. They intend to run it.

9. They dont intend you to run it to suit you and not suit them. They dont propose that you shall make it a general poor house and slave pen.

10. They will see that your proposition to substitute your beer dive and brothel for our church and school will not win, and they point you to Kansas and Maine as samples of what 36 more states and 9 territories will be in a very few years.

11. When strangers and aliens have banded themselves together, as the German brewers and drunkard makers and American-citizen-slayers of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and various other states have done against the people of this country, against the laws and the government; determined to destroy and rob and murder harmless people, and involve people and country in ruin; they place themselves outside the pale of civilized treatment and in such a country as the one they have left, such conduct, if attempted by alien interlopers, would be rewarded with instant extermination by the sword. The same class of people who are here exhibiting the most unrelenting hostility to the women of America, and to all the respectable male American citizenship, are even now trying in Europe to exterminate the Jews, because they are sober and prospering better than their debauched and drunken neighbors.

There is not probably one citizen of this republic who intends or desires to talk of extermination: but if ever a foreign faction of outlaws attempts to go a few steps farther, in open warfare against the liberties and laws of this country and against the women of America—if they continue to evince a stubborn determination to sink this country to the moral cesspool level of the Sunday beer garden and the beer-dive civilization from whose slimy corruption they have swarmed—they will suddenly awake to the discovery that they have wonderfully miscalculated the physical stamina that stands ready to protect the women and the children and the liberties of this country. Happier for them if they dont learn all these things by actual and dire experience.

ASSASSINATION.

AN OLD RUMSELLERS ARGUMENT.

The Rev L. A. Banks editor of the Pacific Censor at Vancouver W. T. and a minister of the M E. Church, passing down Main street on Thursday morning 23 June was accosted by a drunken wreck of the saloon keeper's manufacture, and shot in the thigh quite seriously. The occasion was a communication, published lately in the Censor reflecting upon some of the deadfalls there without naming them. There is every reason to believe the rum thugs hired their wretched slave Sperry to kill Mr. Banks, and several of them openly expressed their regrets that the bullet had not gone thru his brain.

The warmest sympathy is felt by the honest citizens of Oregon and W. T. for Mr Banks, whose outspoken advocacy of the interests of the people has elicited the admiration of all good men. Doubtless this act of villainous ruffianism and assassination, always the favorite recourse of the cowardly murderers who make a business of poisoning their fellow men, will open the eyes of many people who have been hitherto blind, and will rouse to a vigorous activity the friends of temperance. The Pacific Advocate can now repeat its criticism that Brother Banks has been "more forcible than discreet," but the latter would suffer a seven times greater affliction than the present, rather than be one of the cowardly reptiles who are afraid to stand up and face the murderers and butchers of our bethren with the truth. It is cheering to know that the Censor is still vigorous and its editor convalescing: and it is to be hoped he may before long have the satisfaction of seeing those of the conspirators of the rum ring who are unrepentant, wearing striped clothes in their proper home, the penitentiary.

PROHIBITION PARTY.

During the past year, people have frequently heard of the silly and contemptible action of the prohibitionists of California, at and before the last presidential election. The charges are that there were so few of them; people who dont read the temperance papers, never heard of the convention being called: people who believe in voting whisky up and temperance down with the old parties, and who sing "labor a little and wait a good deal" did not come to the convention at all; and the few who attended the call of the committee did not go home sick, but persisted in nominating a ticket and voting for it: and the meanest thing they did was to nominate electors who had not a high political standing in the state, and who could not be elected any way. and a meaner thing than that, they called themselves the prohibition party committee; and meaner still, they persisted in sticking to Neal Dow when they knew he could not be elected. And meaner yet, they risked this state being carried for the other whisky party, and there is no end to the mean things and contemptible fizzles those few insignificant people perpetrated. They plead guilty to having done all they are charged with; they did not go with the multitude to do evil and sell out their Christian and temperance principles for thirty pieces of bogus copper. They did not vote for a platform framed to suit exactly the worshippers of Satan. They did not wait till everybody else should come over to their way of thinking. They did not sit in the seat of the scorner. They did not vote that the devil should be the first and most exalted object of worship in this state and country. They did not vote for the continuance and strengthening of the 250,000 schools of blasphemy and corruption and crime which are defying the living God and openly dragging the soul of this nation to ruin.

These things and more those few people did not do last year: they dont repent their action, but will do no less and probably much more in the same line next time and always. Let those who love the flesh pots of Egypt and the ring master's whip cleave to their idols as they may.

MORE ABOUT MAINE.

"A REPORTER of a secular journal, who was sent to Maine to report on the liquor law, says:" A man can get enough to drink, but generally has to go to a very peculiar place to get it; it is sold at a price beyond the reach of most workingmen, and it is abominable stuff when you do get it."

That clipping is probably going the rounds of the pro whisky press, doing service as one of the long catalog of standing "wilful lies" about Maine. The facts of the case are as follows. The Toronto Globe recently sent two reporters, one a prohibitionist, the other a noted, active anti-prohibitionist, to investigate the workings and effects of the law in Maine.

The letters of each were published in fnll and thoroly confirmed the statements always made by Neal Dow and all of the thousands of respectable witnesses who have given their testimony to the facts. They agreed that, in Bangor and Portland, where at the time of their visit, there was a laxity in enforcing the law, owing to the wiles of a few political thieves—the state of things reported in the above paragraph existed; but that in the major part of the state, and in all the rural districts the traffic is utterly stamped out, or as nearly so as possible.

Their interviews with Neal Dow and other leading citizens on both sides were published.

They found some men who were very sour apples indeed against the prohibitory law, mostly from political party reasons, or because it had not brought entire sanctification to every resident of the state.

But when asked if they desired the law repealed, not one of them could be found, who would consent to anything of the kind; not one would return to either license or free rum on any account: not one denied that the law had been a mine of financial and domestic blessings.

The parliament of Canada, about five or six years ago sent two commissioners to Maine to report on the same subject. One of them, Judge Davis, went out a stalwart anti-prohibitionist, but returned thoroly converted and with his colleague strenuously commended a Maine law for Canada.

Mr. Thompson, the reporter of the paragraph in question, came home a convert to prohibition: perhaps the published statement of Mr. Thompson himself over his own signature may be allowed some little weight by the friends of temperance, if not by its enemies. This is what he says of his conversion, and it must be remembered, he was selected for this mission because he was a fiery anti-Maine law man.

"I am perfectly aware that the tenor of some of my observations in recent letters, and the bearing of the facts set forth, have not been calculated to uphold the view that prohibition is a failure in Maine, and presumably unworkable elsewhere. But what am I to do? I was not sent here to distort or suppress facts, or bolster up either side of this great and grave question, but to give a fair and candid statement of matters as they appear upon careful personal investigation and conference with men of all shades of opinion. If some of my observations tell against my previous convictions and opinions formed on hearsay and from biased sources, is that any reason why I should ignore or misrepresent them? I have endeavored to tell a plain, unvarnished tale —to 'clear my mind of cant,' and to speak of men and things just as I find them. 'So much the worse for the facts,' is no motto of mine. There are many phases of the subject on which I am not clear, but these two points seem to be established beyond question, viz., that the people of Maine, with much fewer natural resources than the people of Canada, are more thrifty, prosperous, and comfortable—and that after thirty years trial of prohibition the public opinion of the State is overwhelmingly in favor of continuing and perfecting the law.

It is a poor business, giving currency to falsehoods about the Maine law: as men are supposed to act from motives of some kind, it would be well sometimes, if the motive of such paragraphs was stated at their close.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXPERIENCES.—No. 8.

ANTS.

The Ant family are a very important department of the animal economy of Equatorial America. Immense duties and responsibilities are expected of them; their labors are incessant and arduous. They are under contract to eat up every tree and limb that falls or dies anywhere in the country. In some of the very hard and solid trees they have about as difficult and prolonged a task as we have to annihilate the grogshops. But their lodges never surrender their charter nor do their members neglect to answer to their names and fall in at roll-call. They tackle anything impartially, bark, root, trunk and leaves. They work and move in every kind of an organization, from a few guerilla stragglers or foragers, to compact armies of many millions.

They are found of every size from the "conga" which is nearly 2 inches long to the little "hormiguita" which is only just visible. Perhaps there are squadrons of myriads of microscopic ants too, that we dont see at all. The conga is found almost anywhere in the forest; you are very sure to know the exact instant that you find one, if he comes in contact with your unprotected skin. He appears to bite and sting at both ends at once and you feel the pain of the sting enter in about an inch like a lightning stroke. You have done about work enough for that day, if one of these fellows gets a genuine opportunity to display his nerve and muscle, and you will think about him regretfully for 24 hours. There are several other ants that will attack people who disturb them, and they assault with a courage and energy that no odds can in the least disturb.

Armies of ants sometimes march into a house and cover every spot of it from roof down. The family move out till the ants go, which they do in a day or two when their business is completed. For weeks at a time an army of ants may be seen traveling over a road of their own, each loaded with a piece of leaf of about his own weight, which they have brought from a certain tree, and there are returning an equal number of light ones. There are some too, that appear to be officers giving orders; they move with great rapidity from one side of the road to the other (a few inches) and walk right over the others, climbing on the top of their loads, without seeming to say excuse me, or at all discommoding the cargo-bearers. We used to suppose these leaves were for food for the young of the ant aristocracy. for the ants are inveterate slave holders.

But the most aggravating of all animals is the smallest visible specimen of ant. They are no where and everywhere at the same time. You can satisfy yourself they are nowhere by dusting your table, chairs &c and sweeping out your room. It is certain there are not one of the scamps in the house anywhere. The moment you have satisfied yourself of this, put a few crumbs of sugar on the table or anywhere and when you have looked at it a few seconds, it has become black with ants, and you know they did not fly or come any other way. Leave a glass or cup with a little water or milk, and in a few momenls, the ants are helping themselves about 600 strong, piled up on each other. If you should go to take a drink in the dark you might easily get a spoonful of them with the first sip. A paper of sugar or meat or bread is entered and stormed at once wherever it may be. You may preserve a small package half an hour or so, by suspending it on a string from another string stretched across a room, but in an hour or two if there is anything worth going for in the paper, they are there by hundreds, and the string is covered its whole length with marching battalions of newcomers.

There was one way of dealing successfully with them—for a few days, to set the feet of the table each in a dish of kerosene oil. They would not swim across that. But if a broom or an umbrella or a chair ever touched the table for a few minutes, not only was the table swarmed, but after you had cleaned them off six times, little squads would issue again when all was quiet, from the joints and crevices where they had stowed away. And worse than that, after a few days a scum would form over the top of the oil, if left undisturbed, and these rascals used to know the first moment it would bear, and cross it in battalions, and it might take 2 or 3 days to get the last one killed or dislodged. To kill brigades or army corps of them never seemed to disconcert or discourage the rest or in the least to diminish their number. Another of the is the cricket, and the Colombian cricket is the most illbred, impudent, unprincipled and thoroly malicious and mischevious of all insect nuisances. They are cute enough to select the Russia leather binding of your best books to eat first. It seems they know every time just what will make you the maddest. If you have a pair of rubber shoes, they will go to the trouble and expense of eating a strip right thru all round the toe of one, altho they dont care at all for india rubber. Your boxes they will eat the joints of, and they select the choicest spots to tunnel thru your clothes and shoes and coats. They come into a house by thousands too, and stay in the thatch roof as long as they please. As soon as evening comes, they descend in battalions and go for everything destructible.

I made some traps which slautered a good many generations, but the natives said there was only one way to get rid of them or the roaches which are nearly as troublesome but not so malicious. You must have a dish arranged with a cover and some delicacy inside that will entice a squadron of them to enter: when the pot is full slip on the cover quickly, take them out and let them all go on parole on the other side of a brook at some distance. They cannot cross the brook to come back and their comrades feeling concerned and mournful over their absence, sally out to look for them, and not being able to get inteiligence across the brook they keep on in their search and never come back to the house, which has been so unlucky for them. That is the only way known to get away with them, unless they take a notion to go themselves and when they do it is always attributed to the agency described.

LETTER FROM J. W. WEBB.

LOMPOC, July 5, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—The work goes bravely on in Santa Barbara Co. Lompoc Lodges are doing well; very fraternal. While visiting our county seat, have attended both lodges, one open lodge and Band of Hope. All doing well and growing. Also the new lodge at Montecito; good interest, but needing encouragement and instruction, which I gave. Two weeks ago preached a temperance sermon in the M. E. church, Goleta; last Sunday gave an address in school house on Bands of Hope. Yesterday a grand fourth of July celebration under the auspices of the Good Templars at same place. Bro Van Anda was orator; late in the day I spoke on Juvenile Temperance and received many names for two Bands of Hope.

Next Friday I go to Goleta and Cathedral Oaks to institute them. Expect to be at San Diego next Sunday and few days after, and have sent word to Good Templars to make use of me if they wish. The boom in this southern part of the state, started by that glorious worker, Sister Stevens, is grand and encouraging, to many, astonishing. If it could be followed up before any reaction takes place, it can be solidified and increased. Whoever goes over the field next should take time to canvass for the RESCUE. We must have reading Good Templars if we would have intelligent working and permanent ones.

THE WINE INTEREST.

NO. FOUR.

FRANCE AND ITS WEALTH.

It is proposed to look up the sources of wealth in France, to see how much drunkenness at home and the making of drunkards abroad, have contributed to that wealth.

The French people when sober are as careful, calculating, economical in all their modes of living as the Chinese; and they are probably as industrious as any other people in the world. Economy, industry, intelligence. sobriety, morality are about the sum of the sources of all national wealth. The lack of any one of these things is a leak in the national finances. In the two first, France stands first in the world, away ahead of all the rest. In the third she is among the foremost, and is not much behind any of her neighbors in the others. Therefore we have a reason good and sufficient, why France ought to be the richest nation of Europe without any help from wine and brandy.

The French are the most intensely and practically patriotic people of the world. They never go out of France to spend a cent if they can help it. They never go abroad to display their wealth; never go elsewhere for pleasure: never buy anything foreign, if it can possibly be had, French. They believe a Frenchman, if he goes abroad to earn money, and dont intend to return and spend his fortune and himself, and live and die in France, is a rascal and a traitor. Reason No. 2 for being the richest people in the world.

The French have had a good land system ever since they guillotined their aristocracy in 1793. Great numbers of the agriculturists own their own farms, and none of them pay any rents to foreign absentee landlords. Reason No. 3 for prosperity.

France has a delightful climate and a most fertile soil, two important conditions of health, wealth and prosperity. It has abundant fisheries and employs vast numbers of ships and boats and men and boys in developing a wealth of food from that quarter. France has a splendid fleet of merchant ships and steamers, most economically and capably run by the most experienced and best trained and educated officers of the world, and the best navigators; far ahead of the American and English, as a class. France has a finely managed railway system and the attractions of its capital and its works of art and taste invite millions of tourists and travelers to come and squander there, the wealth they have earned elsewhere. That makes about six more sources of unusual wealth for France.

AND STILL MORE.

France has wood, coal, iron, salt, marble &c, almost every product of mine, field and sea that man needs. They manufacture almost everything, and here is an enormous source of wealth; for their manufactures are the most faithful and honest, and their material used the best in the world—in everything but wines and liquors; their people in that business could no more help being frauds than the English and Americans and Germans engaged in the same debasing, defrauding, destroying business.

The annual product of the silk, cotton, woolen and linen fabrics of France are about 640 million dollars and other industrial products amount to about 400 millions more. That is alone enough to make France wealthy without any other help.

France exports annually about 800 million dollars worth of material of which liquors are valued at about 45 millions. And here we can see most clearly the absurdity of claiming that any wealth is derived from her wine and brandy,

THE VINEYARDS

Of that country occupy about 3 ¾ per cent of all the lands, just the same amount as the public streets, roads, walks &c. The grape sugar product of this ground is converted into about 1000 million gallons of wine, of which about one seventh is made into brandy: 50 millions gallons are exported, valued at about 45 million dollars. The rest, 950 million gallons, value say 25 cents a gallon or 240 million dollars. is drank in France, and every one knows, that dont enrich France a particle. Not a whit more than burning 240 million dollars worth of powder would. But it pauperizes hundreds of thousands of people who drink it; drives them by thousands to jail, mad house, poorhouse, and suicide; every gallon of it that any one buys and drinks is a dead loss to him and is no more benefit to him than if he poured it on the ground.

DRUNKENNESS

Is appallingly prevalent and alarmingly on the increase in the wine and all the other districts of France. Immediately after the war with Prussia, stringent laws were enacted in France punishing drunkenness and a heavy fine was exacted of any barroom or restaurant, which had not a large printed placard hung up, specifying the penalties for drunkenness or selling liquor to drunks and minors.

In the Congress of France during the debate upon the enactment of that law, one of the members of that body declared, that in the portion of the French army that went to the war from his district, there was not a soldier who would not sit at a table and drink till he fell helpless under it, if he got the chance. "Mine is a district of light wines," said he, "gentlemen, and I challenge any of you to say that your soldiers were any more sober than ours," and no one disputed his assertion.

Perhaps it did not help to enrich France, that the drunkenness of her army led to their being soundly whipped, every time they were engaged with the Prussians; the latter sober because they were in an enemy's country and under stricter discipline.

Now while France exports the 45 million dollars worth of liquors, it is admitted there is money made by some of the exporters themselves, because a very large part of their export, all of it to North and South America and to most other countries—in fact about all the export, except a part of what goes to England, is only potato and apple alcohol and beet syrup whisky and water doctored. This wine costs them about 10 or 15 cents a gallon and sells for fancy prices, and there is a profit as well as a pleasure for the French wine doctor in gulling the poor silly wine guzzlers of Yankeedom.

This is no new thing, for there were regular premiums awarded at the Paris Expositions of 1855 and 1867 for fabricated wines.

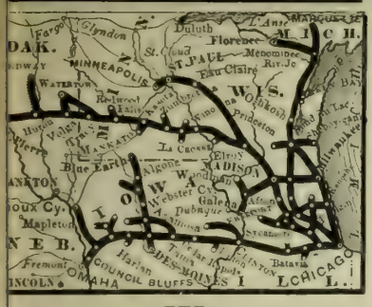
A WASTE.

But let us now, after giving every credit to this wine, look at the debit side. To produce this wine for export and also to furnish material for more drink required by the people of France, vast imports are made of potato and rice and grain whisky from Holland, Belgium and Germany: British spirits from England; rum from the West Indies: and vast quantities of native beet sugar are made into spirits: so that it is somewhat doubtful if France after all, does not pay as much for her imports of beer and spirits as she gets for her exported drinks.

And a matter of much more consequence. Because of the waste of the ground employed in raising the grape sugar, to make this useless and pauperizing drink, France has to import over 200 million dollars worth of grain food for her people to eat, and of late years the balance of trade has been getting more and more against France every year: and because she utterly wastes all this land and labor devoted to the wine and brandy business, she has to pay out something like 200 million dollars a year in cash which never comes back. There is little doubt that the ground thus wasted would supply the food needed if properly used.

But for her wine, France would doubtless be incomparably richer than any other nation. But any impartial honest observer must see that that is her one weak spot, a cancer that is eating out the life of the nation. We have only looked at the financial question so far. But if the wretched and scandalously impudent falsehoods asserted as to the enriching effects of wine and brandy in France were true, what American would purchase national wealth at the price of the utter bankruptcy of American morals and decency? Who covets the honor of supplying the world with harlotry and immorality and obscenity. Who covets to follow the example of one of the finest races and peoples the world has ever seen being transformed into a nation of libertines and drunkards? and one whose population is decreasing under all conditions the most favorable for rapid increase, save this debauchery of wine.

And after preaching so long of the untold wealth that France derives from wine, the priests of Bacchus lately tell us, that this year because of the Phylloxera, it must import 100 million gallons of wine to drink, about double their annual export. That is a confession that France must waste 250 million dollars worth of her own annual harvest in drink; then she has to pay out 50 to 75 millions of cash to get more drink; and after all that she must send money abroad to purchase 200 million dollars worth of bread which she might have raised upon her own vineyard lands that go to waste. This is bad economy and is pauperizing France by degrees.



But there was no place whence France could import this year or last 100 million gallons of wine, except it was bogus wine made in England or Germany. France will never want to import 10 million gallons of wine, unless it can be imported cheaper than her wine doctors can make it from potatoes, cider and molasses, which costs about 10 to 15 cents per gallon. The large "import of wine by France" is another delusion put forth by the wine sharps of this state to deceive the vineyard men.

was set afloat thru the Chronicle a few days ago to fool and deceive our vineyard men. It was stated that the transport of wine affords about one-third of the railway traffic of France. One-third of that traffic is about 20 million dollars; just enough to transport every gallon made in the country from the northermost to the southermost point of France and then back to where it started. But as it is probable not over one gallon in 20 goes any distance by rail or goes at all from the ranch on which it is made, it would have to pay 40 cents a gallon freight to pay one-third of the railway receipts. If the advocates of sobriety and prosperity, who desire to see grape growing make every vineyard man and every one of his family wealthy and happy, should assure them that a market is awaiting them for a millon tons of raisins every year in China at a dollar a pound, we would still have a larger margin of truth left us, than the wine and brandy sharps have ever presented as to that interest in other countries. Their impositions upon the farmers have been monstrous and cruel, like their business, which itself is the essence of fraud and wrong and mockery.

The National Temperance Society have made arrangements to publish in pamphlet form the proceedings of the National Temperance Convention which was called to meet in Saratoga Springs, June 2, 1881. It will contain the various reports, essays, resolutions, together with a full report of all discussions and addresses. A first-class shorthand reporter was engaged for the occasion. It will be issued immediately after the convention, and will be sent to any adddress on receipt of price, 25 cents single copies, $20 per hundred. Address J. N. ☞ Above are only a part of the new items we are continually adding to our stock.

The following goods have recently

Changed in Price:

The market for tea is very strong, an advance of 1c to 3c per lb. on most grades has been made. We have not changed our quotations.

Sugar has declined ¼c per lb. Dry granulated is 13c, cube or crushed 13¼c, extra golden C 11¾c, Mariposa C 11¼c, in bbls; less quantities ¼c additional.

Hams of good quality have advanced slightly. Little or no change in California hams.

The market for canned vegetables and fruits is weak, and in some cases a decline is noticed.

Flour is firmer, and nearly all grades have advanced a fraction.

Coal oil has advanced. Starlight is worth $2.80; Continental, $2.65. Low test oils, $2.00 to $2.25 per case.

Eggs, fresh California, 22½c; select city eggs, 25c; common to good Eastern and Southern, 17c to 20c per doz. Cheap eggs find a poor market.

☞ A large addition to our store-room, made during the last few weeks, will give us much greater facilities for doing business, enable us to fill orders more promptly, and also to buy goods in larger quantities at lower figures, all of which advantages shall be shared by our patrons. If you hesitate to send your remittance direct, send it to the RESCUE or any paper in which you see our advertisement, or to any bank or friend here to be delivered on presentation of shipping receipt. We wish to give you all the security possible, but do not include losses sure to be made by credit sales in arranging our prices.

National Freeman,
A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.
Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL,
148 Madison St., Chicago.
Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

To increase the membership of your Lodge, get up a list of subscribers for the RESCUE.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M, Carpenter, 150 9th St. San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix. Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums for Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

THE RESCUE,

THE ORGAN OF THE

GRAND LODGE, I. O. G. T.

OF CALIFORNIA.

THE RESCUE is devoted to the advancement of the business interests of this State. California never had any drawback or obstacle to the highest prosperity the world has ever seen, but the grog-shop, brewery, distillery and wine-vat. Those schools of vice, and the other evil resorts which they have engendered, have swallowed up all the wealth and industry which should have been employed to make this finest country of earth a paradise of happy, virtuous, prosperous industry. They have filled the State with crime, madness, pauperism, divorce, murder and cruel violence; they choke every nascent enterprise and trade and industry. And no conceivable productiveness of mine or field or forest or mill or garden can ever bring any improvement to this State as long as 10,000 busy factories of pauperism and crime are in full blast, seven full days and nights of every week.

THE RESCUE is the only paper in the State that deals in the truth as to the true financial interests of the people; the only one that dares tell the whole truth on any and all subjects that relate to the welfare of the State, and on all others.

If you desire to see the truth placed before you each week, and the only curse of California removed, subscribe for THE RESCUE and induce your neighbors to do likewise. Address—

AMADOR CO. District Lodge meets at Amador Friday Aug. 12th at 10 A. M.

THE LIVING ISSUE, Cooperstown, N. Y., a very live prohibition paper, is adding to its subscription list one hundred a week, which indicates that there are people around there with level heads and of good taste.

Like our contemporary the RESCUE of California, we decline all advertisements of questionable character. We only advertise such as we believe, after due enquiry to be honest and reliable dealers.—Social Reformer, Sidney, Australia.

A SUPPLY of the works of the N. T. Society which are advertized in this paper are for sale at the RESCUE office at New York prices of course; will be sent post paid by return mail if ordered. Same are also to be had at 1041 Market St. See ad.

THE New York Tribune comforts the man who fears a collision between the earth and a comet: it was supposed that individual had died in the early part of this century, but if he is still alive, tell him that the Lord would never find it necessary to take the trouble of sending a comet all that distance to kill a few mosquitos.

AUSTRALIA.—The Social Reformer (Sidney) L. E. Harcus G. W. C. T. editor, tells of a temperance township to be called Gough Town which is being set on foot near Sidney. There is to be no liquor sold of course. The streets are to be named after noted local temperance men and in the center is to be a public square named after Sir Wilfred Lawson. They have heard of Vineland, Bessbrook, Saltaire &c, and are commencing to pull down the temples of Satan in their land. Much success attend them.

THE Record-Union says of the late fiasco report of 600 picnickers in Missouri poisoned by drinking lemonade "Apart from the deplorable loss of life resulting from this affair it is but too evident that it will have a tendency to break down the temperance cause thruout Missouri, for there will be no answer possible to the argument that if these people had drank whisky iustead of lemonade they would all have been alive and well to-day." A good deal better get poisoned with lemonade and die than become whisky idiots and live. Modern whisky is evidently much more prolific of idiotic tendencies in its votaries than the old kind used to be.

A STANDING ARMED guard has been seriously proposed to shield our presidents from assassination. Ex Secretary Sherman congratulated the Republicans of Ohio lately on the happy fact that the revenue from drunkenness pays the interest on the national debt. But he was entirely silent on the other fact that the cost of that drunkenness to the country and the damage it works to the national wealth every year, exceed the whole amount of the national debt. If an armed force is used to protect our president from the drunkard makers' bullets, every other citizen has a right to the protection of a detachment of soldiers to protect his life from the drunkards which we are making by law every day.

THE REDWOOD CAMP GROUND.—The Encinal says the Good Templars have purchased about two hundred acres of the Redwoods at Guerneville, including the camp ground, to be laid out in park style and improved, and will be a camp ground and summer resort for all good, respectable societies who wish to avail themselves of its pleasant and healthful attractions. The Encinal lays much of the blame of this affair on Dr. R. H. McDouald, and as he was known to be prominently present during the whole camp meeting, it is very probable a chain of evidence might be established that would give very strong confirmation to the suspicion. If the report is correct, it is one of the handsomest movements ever made in the State, and will be a magnificent enterprise to count up along with the Home for Orphans, etc.

THE WESTERN WORLD says; "Niobrara has 152 children." No such family as that has ever been raised in California. Mrs. N. ought to be pensioned.

SUNDAY LAW. It is reported that all places of business are strictly closed on the whole 24 hours in Marysville and that the city officers are instructed to see the rule observed.

EXETER HALL was to be on the 28th and 29th of June the scene of a jubilee to commemorate the formation of the first temperance society in the some building June 29, 1831.

SUPERINTENDENTS of Bands of Hope are specially requested to read with care the letters of Julia Colman in the RESCUE, and avail themselves of the instructive hints which they contain.

Dr. O. H. CONGOR of Pasadena last year reported the net profit of raisin grapes at three years from cuttings and without irrigation or quite proper attention, to be $63,74 per acre: raisins sold $61,76: grapes $13: cuttings $13,98 per acre, and all expenses $25. per acre.

A. B. CAMPBELL, of Kansas, thinks that it is not creditable to the Uuited States Government to receive seventy-four million dollars a year as its share of the grog-shop business, and thinks the time will come when the saloon keeper will have to be made to quit his business at the bayonet's point.

EZRA DEGARMO, one of our standard Good Templars, a regular attendant at G. L., and a thoroughly consistant and active advocate of temperance, was brutally murdered on the 24th of June, near Pine Grove, Amador County. He was night watchman on a mining claim, and was killed by sluice robbers in the night.

IT IS NOT of the slightest interest to the readers of the RESCUE to know that a Lodge or a Band of Hope met on a certain day or occasion, elected and installed their officers and closed the meeting. Everybody knows they all do that once a quarter; and the names of the officers elected are only desirable for publication in the local paper of the community. We want to hear of their doing something else.

Strange that in all the history of the darkest and most bloody barbarisms that ever existed on this earth, not a single instance is recorded of them having sold licenses for the robbery and butchery of their own flesh and blood. It was reserved for a christian system to invent that mode of raising a revenne. The devil saw that in the future, when, in the days of ignorance, he secured the introduction of the whisky cup on the communion table of the christian worship.

MONTEREY has the boom in temperance matters. Open lodge works well. The sisters are at work, and that always produces good results. Monterey has a "Jimmy Duckworth," now in San Luis Obispo, who seems to be a very talented young orator, and he gives promise of being a genuine aid to the boom. We shall have a conjunction and a perihelion of booms pretty soon, that will boom Mr. Grogshop out into the cold, dead past, and then California will put on her spring attire of prosperity, and rapidly bloom out into a God's country.

LOMPOC.—People are moving into the temperance colony and making purchases, now that they know it is going to be a "clean" place. The community has lately lost, however, two settlers, Butchart and Walker, men of much importance. If they had staid and sold rum, Lompoc could in a few years have put on exhibition its proportion of sign-board noses, of drunken paupers, of gamblers, loafers and dead beats, like any of the rum-blighted towns and villages of California. As it is, Lompoc, like Vineland, Bessbrook, Saltaire, etc., will probably never require a jail or poor-house, but its population will remain as now, perfectly respectable, and the moral scare-crow class of settlers won't come there to live.

TEMPERANCE CONSISTENCY—NO. 10.

REV G. W. FITCH.

Webster defines a radical as one who advocates a radical reform or extreme measures in a reformation, who goes to the root (radix) of the thing in question.

Every great revolution has been originated and made successful by and thru radicals. Eighteen centuries ago the Lord Jesus "laid the axe at the root of the tree" and cast a solitary vote for truth, with a blind pitiless mob against him who voted unanimously to crucify him. They called him a madman, a fanatic, altogether too fast, too much in earnest. St. Paul was saturated with radicalism and he was called a fool, but he denied the charge, and said he was not mad. Luther, when changed into the heroic radical reformer was thought to be mad. Wesley put pious conservatism into a spasm when he shook the ghost of cold formalism out of the church; and so it has ever been with God's uncompromising heroes and so it ever will be. A grand moral upheaval, a sublime faith, a noble inspiring purpose in a man's soul makes him so different from those around him, that they think him mad; tor his realities are but visions to them.

Would that every town in California were full of such madmen, with all the symptoms of madnes , a true conversion, faith in God and in prayer, s quenchless zeal for work, an earnestness in testimony for the right, that troubles wrong doers every where. We want two or three of just such men, radical to the core, to lead the rank and file of the temperance army in this state. We have had enough of these compromising, skim-milk, back boneless, political fossils whose temperance is held in abeyance when their party interests are in danger or when the temperance movement means separate political action. We have been deluded long enough by the blarney and blandishments of political demagogues.

These are the men who are branding the National Prohibition party as a madman's project, but just as sure as prohibition is a vital force it will find the way of organization and victory in spite of the wishes of party hacks, tipplers, topers and cowards who vote with rum parties. The radicals will not stop to ask what party will be affected by the work assigned them. Their mission is not to save parties, but to save men.

Every conscientious Christian voter will welcome this new party movement, for it is an undeniable fact that neither of the existing parties can receive a vote without linking that voter with all the abominations of the liquor traffic.

We have the largest charity for those who may differ with us as to methods, but the greatest contempt for those who deliberately sacrifice their honest convictions to partisan expediency and insist on continuing this reform as an adjunct of a rum governed conclave of politicians. God save our cause from the degradation of such shameless and unholy alliances!

We have been hood-winked and cajoled for the last ten or twelve years by this cry of "wait, continue in the Republican party, vote our ticket, keep us in power and office, and the odious Democrats out; and when prohibition becomes the undoubted will of the people and we cannot longer hope to be a majority party without espousing it, then we will think about it. Dont endanger our success, for success is the chief thing with us you know.

And thus they have kept us in the traces, and we have been made a laughing stock to our enemies. The radicals are not to be fooled any longer and the party lash applied by rum politicians has lost its power. And now what will the rummies do? They have declared their line of policy and solemnly

Resolved: Never to vote for any man in any party for any office in any election who is in any way disposed towards the total abstinence cause.

Nobody will accuse these anti-temperance people of being conservative; they believe in radicalism. The man who is not for them must go down. Temperance radicals propose to meet them on their own ground at the ballot box. They have resolved that they will never vote for any man in any party for any office in any election who is in any way disposed to favor the rum traffic. We honor the rum seller and rum drinker for voting their principles on election day. That is honest consistent voting. But we have little faith in the honesty of that professed temperance Christian voter who joins the rummy in voting for his rum candidate and sneers st his neighbor for voting prohibition.

Temperance radicalism therefore scorns to compromise or consult expediency. Its creed is this; The absolute and perpetual legal prohibition of the liquor traffic by the states, everywhere within its jurisdiction thru independent political action.

We believe in putting this question before the people as a present issue and keeping it there till it prevails. We base our command upon the criminality of the traffic, and hence we ask the state to punish it as a crime. We cannot surrender this high moral ground with the local optionists, for he would condition the existence and punishment of the rum traffic upon the popular will, suppress it only when and where the people ask for it; and thus punish a man in one town for that which in another he is authorized to do without punishment. We dont wonder that temperance politicans who are glued to their license party favor this; for it dont compel that party to speak one word in condemnation of the rum traffic which it does not dare to do. It announces that it does not care whether rum selling is voted up or down; a sentiment which is a disgrace to any party.

We hail the prohibition party and its noble champion, Neal Dow, that uncompromising herald of this reform and fearless advocate of total prohibition. We are glad the RESCUE is not ashamed to hoist the standard. May it close up the ranks, call in every straggler, rally every soldier, inspire enthusiasm all along the line, and with it we will charge upon the enemy; for it means uncompromising, relentless war against rum selling until our state is free.

THE CAMP MEETING.

DEAR RESCUE:—I send a few thots in relation to our late camp meeting not contained in the Editor's report of last week. The meetings were interesting from first to last, but I merely give some of the important points not mentioned last week.

On Saturday forenoon Bro. Crowhurst gave an address that was well received and elicited very favorable comments, he was not feeling well and desired as much rest as possible, but we were anticipating the pleasure of hearing him again several times. Imagine our disappointment on Sunday when after enquiry to secure his aid for the evening he was no where to be found, nor have we heard of him since. Sat. P. M. was allotted to the children. They did not march as in former years. But had their banners with appropriate mottoes, such as, "Dare to do right," Marching on to victory," "Touch not the wine cup," "Water is my drink," "The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine," "I will vote for the prohibition party," &c. The Juvenile Temple appeared in Regalia. The exercises by the children during their meeting were without any exception very creditable to them and to those who assisted them to prepare for the occasion..

Dr. R. H. McDonald had a seat on the platform with the children, it was easy to read in his countenance the great satisfaction he experienced. It may be stated here that some months ago Enterprise Lodge offered prizes to children of the public school for essays on temperance. First prize "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" by T. S. Arthur. Second prize, "Three Years in a Man Trap." These prizes were awarded to Miss Henrietta Schloss and Miss Ella J. Manning. Another temperance book, "Water Lilies," was offered for the best declamation. The competition for this prize was vigorous, all deserved great praise. The Prize was awarded to Miss Katie Smith. Mrs. Dr. Burns gave a second prize, a copy of "Longfellows Poems," and Mrs. Annie Wllits as a third prize a book, the name of which I have not learned. Second prize awarded to Miss Sally Haas, and the third to Johny Maddox. The prize essay was read by Miss Schloss during the children's exercises, and the declamations recited by the other children. At the close of the exercises, the prizes were publicly presented in a pleasing manner by Dr. McDonald. The children's meeting was a grand success.

Open lodge meeting by Enterprise Lodge was the order of the evening. The opening ode was sung by the choir, members and others joining. Opening prayer by Dr. Haswell. When the W. C. T. declared the meeting open under the Good of the order (The G. W. C. T. not feeling well F. J. Culver S. D. presided.) 1st—Song, "Yield not to Temptation." 2nd—An address by the G. W. V. T. Sister Mayhew, was listened to attentively and well received. 3rd—Song, "Only an Armor Bearer." 4th—Address by Dr. Merrick. 5th—Song, "Where is my Wandering Boy to night," by Mrs. Herrald and Miss Mayhew. 6th—A recital of personal experience by Bro. Muir of Calistoga; he referred pointedly to the fearful effect of wine drinking in Napa valley, as witnessed by himself: even small children are known to wallow in drunkenness by the use of our much lauded California wine. His remarks were well received. 7th—Reading, "Objections to Good Templarism, answered" by Miss Gussie Thompson of San Francisco; read in a very pleasing manner. 8th—Speech by Dr. R. H. McDonald. 6th—Song, "What shall the Harvest be," by choir. 10th—Reading, by Miss Mary Mayhew of Red Bluff. 11th—Remarks by H. H. Peckinpah of Guerneville. 12th—Short pithy speech, by Dr. Haswell. 13th—Closing ode and prayer by Bro. F. J. Culver. This was a very pleasant and profitable meeting.

Next week I will send a short account of our closing meeting on Tuesday night.

LOCAL OPTION.—WHAT THE PEOPLE ASK.

EDITOR RESCUE:—As Local Option is a question of vital interest to the readers of your paper will you please publish the following address. I trust it will be carefully read and well pondered.

July 5th 1881, Sebastapol, Cal.

A NATIVE OF DELAWARE.

The Rev. Dr. J. H. Caldwell, of Wilmington Del., in an address before the State Legislature at Dover, Feb. 2d, after an able argument in behalf of prohibition, closed his remarks with the following appeal: "Your petitioners do not ask you to destroy, by any act of yours, the monster evil of which they complain; all they ask is that you give them a chance to do it. Let them take the club in their own hands, and nothing will afford them greater pleasure than to give the blow that shall rid the State of the monster that ravages every part of it. The ballot is that club. Put it in their hands. It of right belongs to them. It is their natural, inherent, undeniable right. They have never been divested of that right. But, as law-abiding people, they do not undertake to use it unlawfully. The polls are hedged about by legal provisions. The franchise is the noblest prerogative of freemen, but it must be exercised under the forms of law. Law is made to protect it, to give it the fullest possible scope, to aid it, not to fetter it, not to destroy it. All the people ask at your hands is to let them express their will in the only way that the popular will can be freely expressed—that is by voting. Will you do it? Will you let the people have a chance to have their own way? We do not ask you to make the people free. They are already free. They are the sovereign power. They come to you asking that every obstacle to the free, full, unbiased expression of their will shall be removed.

Legislators of Deleware, will you let your free constituents go to the polls and vote? Will you let them say whether liquor shall be sold to make drunkards, to make brutes of men, to make widows, to make paupers, to make criminals, to fill our jails, to fill our almshouses, to increase our taxes tenfold? Will you let them have an opportunity to say whether they shall pursue their peaceful occupations unmolested by drunkenness and disorder? Will you let them say at the ballot-box that taxation shall be reduced, that public morals shall be protected, that helpless women and children shall find a true friend and protector in the State? Will you not gladly say to these petitioners, 'Yes, fellow-citizens, your demands are reasonable, they are just, they are humane, and they shall be granted.

Do this, gentlemen of the Legislature, and you will do honor to your State; you will deserve to have yonr names enrolled upon a list of imperishable honor and fame. And why should it not be done? Suppose you let this question go to the people, who will be injured by it? What harm will there be in it? What injustice will be done to any human being by it? Gentlemen, yon know that it cannot do any possible harm to any man. You know that many of those who oppose it are interested in the liquor traffic, and are persons who are influenced in one way or ar other by it. Then, for Heaven's sake, for humanity's sake, for truth's sake, and for your own sakes, let us have the Local Option law?

"If you enact such a law, and a majority votes in favor of licence, we submit. We are willing the majority shall win. If the friends of temperance, of society, of good order, of the public welfare win, then we shall have gained a noble cause. Then we shall have done for our State by your help a thing for which you will have reason to be thankful as long as your heads are above the ground. And in that eternal state to which we are all tending, whatever else you may have cause to deplore, it will not be a reason for regret that you let the people of Delaware have their own way with the liquor traffic. I thank you for your kind, respectful attention."

Do we want Prison Wardens and other public officers, whose sobriety wants investigating?

CLUBS.

Attention is requested to the offer of premiums for clubs, found elsewhere in this paper. The Encyclopedia offered is a reprint of Chambers Encyclopedia complete, in nonpareil type, size 6½by 5 inches, 15 volumes 830 pages each, bound in cloth. The Library of Universal Knowledge is also 15 Volumes 9¼by6¼ inches 900 pages each, in good clear brevier type, and is a handsome well printed book: contains all of the encyclopedia above and American additions,said to be altogether about 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's.

These works should be of inestimable value to every Lodge: give full information upon almost every subject or question that can be raised: they form a nucleus for a complete library, and will give the members a stimulus for the acquisition of useful information. Either of the two supplies the reading material that used to cost quite lately, $50 to $90 but the latter is the fullest and best printed and is recommended as the best choice.

In addition to the premiums offered elsewhere, for a club of 12 subscribers for one year at $2.00, an engraving of Mrs. Hayes portrait will be presented, and the same will be given for 6 subscribers for one year at 2.00 in addition to the clubs of 18 and 30.

For a club of six new subscribers for one year at $2.00, Julia Colmans excellent and useful works,the Juvenile Manual and Alcohol and Hygiene handsomely bound in cloth and six catechisms will be presented. It will be seen that these liberal premiums are offered for the purpose of extending the circulation of the RESCUE, not to make money for it. To put 52 copies in the post office prepaid costs a good deal more than $2.00. Renewals of former expiring subscriptions will be counted in new clubs.

A CORRECTION.—Mrs. Hayes' influence has spread to Canada, and at her last reception Mrs. Tilley, wife of the Canadian Secretary of the Treasury banished the flowing bowl from her table, and her colleagues in the cabinet will do likewise.—Living Issue. Honor to whom honor is due. Mrs. Tilley's record in that line is much older than that of Mrs Hayes, Her husband, Hon S. L. Tilley, was G. W. P. of the Sons of Temperance of New Brunswick over 30 years ago, and was Governor of the province some years previous to 1879. All these 30 years Mrs. Tilleys receptions and private and public entertainments have been free from wine and all noxious drinks. Mr. Tilley has won a higher name for patriotism, consistency and honesty than any other leading Canadian official; took his first start in life as an advocate of temperance, has never swerved an inch from his principles adopted at least 30 years ago. So in all that time Mrs Tilley has never had anything on her table to banish: nor has a single fly speck ever tarnished the record of the Tilley shield in that or any other direction. That may be depended upon as authentic information from one who knows the circumstances. It is a mistake and a great injustice to state that Mrs or Mr. Tilley ever banished the flowing bowl from their table within the last 30 years. It has never been there. It is hoped the colleagues will banish theirs however.

KANSAS:—The Commonwealth. a Kansas newspaper of the gin prostituted genus, says the "temperance people of that State have inaugurated and are responsible for an era of crime and disorder which is simply appalling, they have brought all law into disrepute." What a capital item for all the prostituted papers to copy, it will help the grogshop to give it all possible publicity; lots of drunkards will say they believe it for a glass of beer. And it has a grain of foundation too, unlike all the other lies about Kansas and Maine. The temperance people of Kansas have put a complete stopper on the murderers and robbers of the grogshop; have arrested the murders and suicides and wife beatings and the starvation of the drunkards children which were formerly so common there—but they have not hung the thieves yet who have been doing all this mischief, and they are committing still all the outrages they can in secret. Some of these days those gallant, earnest, honest, noble patriot fathers of Kansas will find it necessary to hang up two or three of these law breakers, and then the disrespect of law will cease from that State forever.

"We clip the following from an exchange: Ley Teep, a young Chinaman who was murdered in New York by a drunken rough, was buried on Friday last. Several of the most prominent clergymen were present, among them Dr. Crosby, who said, beginning somewhat abruptly and with energy:

Who killed Ley Teep? A young rowdy. Who made the rowdy? The grog shops. Who are responsible for the grog shops? The apathetic christians. And the apathetic christians are responsible for this murder."

Dr. Crosby's Chinese hearers fixed their attention closely upon him as he continued to speak with vigor. "It is a shame and disgrace," he continued, "that this fair city is to be known throughout the whole world as a city which coolly and camly manufactures murder!—a city which has laws that are not enforced! And there will be no change until the church people realize that they have got to do a great deal more than pray. They have got to act. We must be ready in this city to discharge our duty, and not one of us is exempt. If the christians would rise up with one voice there would not be a grog shop left in two weeks."—Lever.

SOME READING.—Enterprise Lodge at Guerneville and its membership subscribe for one copy of the N. T. Advocate, 7 of the National Freeman, 1 of the New York Gem, 7 of Our Union (of Petaluma), 33 copies of the RESCUE, and are about to order 6 of the National Liberator of Chicago. For their juvenile temple they take 24 Youths Temperance Banner, 24 Royal Road, 24 Careful Builder. Those are monthly papers. They are distributed in three weeks of the month, and on the fourth they supply 150 tracts. No wonder that lodge and temple stand at the head of their classes all over the world.

STRONG LANGUAGE.—The Rev. Robert Hall, a Nonconformist minister. celebrated for his great power as a preacher, was one day travelling with a friend, and on staying for refreshment at a hotel, was surprised to hear his companion order a glass of hot brandy-and-water. Why did you not call things by their proper names?" "I did" "No, you should have ordered a glass of liquid fire and distilled damnation." O ! that all held that demon Strong Drink in such horror as did that good and great man ! The language is certainly not stronger than the drink.—Ex.

EDITOR RESCUE—Knowing that we are helped by the example of others I wish to report a couple of items concerning Riverside Wide Awake Lodge.

It is holding open meeting and has twice charged 10 cents admission and found it worked well.

In the last open meeting they sought a new line of help, getting those outside of the Lodge to take the lead in the entertainment, that also worked well.

Perhaps other Lodges can develop this outside help to advantage. H.

THE Monitoren our Swedish ally in New York has the following cheerful news from Kansas.

Kansas.—Forbudslagen borjade att tillampas den 1 maj inom hela staten och en het strid med krogarne vill nog uppsta pa manga stallen innan de gifva vika. Apothekarne vilja ocksa forsoka sin lycka, men sa smaningom maste de underkasta sig lagens stranghet.

Hearty good wishes to the Monitoren and its work.

THE BISHOP of Exeter presided lately at a public meeting and lecture in the interest of the Rechabites, and said he believed theirs was the best organization it is possible to form among men of any class whatever. It made provision for one's family and abolished the use of strong drink, and therefore presented a double claim to the respect of all good men. The secret password did not shock the bishop.

A CASE OF SUICIDE.—The Republican party of Ohio have adopted a plank in their platform which very distinctly promises to the liquor sellers a legal license. It is very likely this plank will be harikari for the party in that state, and then how they will curse the temperance people for not kissing the rod which was made to skin their backs with, in accordance with time honored usage.

ABOUT THE R. W. G. T.

We cordially congratulate our good friend and Brother, George B. Katzenstein of Sacramento, on his merited promotion. He has for many years been G. W. Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of this state. and at the recent session of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the Order for the World, he was elected R. W. G. Templar, the highest office in the Order. Knowing well his ability we feel confident he will fill the office with credit to himself, and win the approbation of the organization.—Greenville Bulletin.

During one of the sessions, Brother Katzenstein, of California, introduced a report, which was accepted, recommending that the Grand Lodge cooperate with all other Temperance and benevolent organizations,and take a dime collection, to be sent to the National W. C. T. U., half of which shall be returned in Temperance Literature.

It will rejoice the hearts of all Temperance people to know that one who takes such a broad view of the Temperance question, and who has a heart that can expand to such a liberality, has come to stand at the head of the Good Templars. Of all the brilliant and talented men who were present at this session, there was one among them who only rose to his feet when necessity demanded; who uttered no word that did not carry conviction with it; who on all occasions was the thorough gentlemen, quiet and dignified, though earnest and alert. This gentleman to-day is the Right Worthy Grand Templar of the I. O. of G. T.—George B. Katzenstein, of California—and under his leadership the Good Templars of America may expect to do a work which will overtop all the grand successes of the past.—Our Union.

THE DOCTORS' WORK.

The doctors' have proven to be willing and powerful allies in the work of making drunkards.—They prescribe liquor under all circumstances. No matter what ails the patient, whisky comes in as a remedy. The man has a cough, the doctor says, "you are threatened with consumption; you must take cod liver oil and whisky; the man probably had no consumption and gets well—He leaves off the cod liver oil but continues the whisky. A man is taken sick and sends for the doctor: the doctor finds the patient chilly, with feeble circulation: he must have whisky to warm him up. The doctor's next patient has pneumonia or typhoid fever. He must have whisky.—The cases are in no sense alike, but their remedy is the same,—sometimes we wonder physicians with so much book learning, will never learn to exercise a little common sense. If whisky was a good remedy for fevers, which it is not, conscientious physicians would use it sparingly, knowing the danger of making their patients drunkards. But when we see them prescribing it under all circumstances, in all diseases, for men, women and children, we do not wonder that drunkenness is prevalent everywhere.—The Truth.

SAN BUENA VENTURA Cal., July 10, 1880.

I send you a brief account of our doings on the 4th and 5th, extending over the time of the races. The fourth was heralded with but little display, owing to the sad news from the national capital. At an early hour the people came flocking from adjoining towns and country till the number was more than on any previous occasion. The weather was that of an Eastern 4th, the hottest of the season and linen coats were at a premium. The ladies of the temperance cause took the matter in hand of keeping a refreshment stand at the race track with cold lunch, tea and coffee, ice cream, strawberries, lemonade, soda water, fruits and confections; we thereby ruled out intoxicating drinks of all kinds.

We gathered in the dimes and dollars which otherwise would have been spent for liquor, amounting to about $250, realizing a handsome profit for our work; but the best of all was, there was no drunkenness nor inclination to fight on the ground during the whole of the two days. The best of order was preserved, and tho two pool stands were within speaking distance of the ladies table, there was no profanity indulged in.

Beside this, the ladies of the coffee house up town were as vigilant in their work, keeping the coffee house open till the small hours in the morning to accommodate those who attended the ball either night. They took in about $70 during the two days and nights. It is expected a portion of this money received will go into a temperance hall building fund. This shows what can be done, and gives rise to a spirit of emulation. Mrs. Stevens' labors in our place have not been in vain.

D. G. W. C. T.'s COMMISSIONED, ETC.—The following commissions have been issued and forwarded from the Grand Worthy Secretary's office during the past week:

LODGE DEPUTIES.

C. C. Dunn for No. 111, Napa city.
J, C. Colburn, for No. 1, Mil. Fort Grant.
W. H. Barron for No. 340, Soulsbyville.
Rev. F. H. Wales for No. 195. Tulare.
Wm, Jones for No. 218, Gold Run.
T. S. Carr for 448, Wheatland.
C. J. Ball for No. 449, Shingletown.

Nos.174, 218, 365, 397, 405, and Hawaiian Islands, No. 7

STATEMENTS OF ACCOUNT.—Statements of account were last week forwarded to every lodge deputy of each lodge in any way indebted to the Grand Lodge. The statements were made up to July 15, and the amount should be forwarded in every case with the remittance of Grand Lodge Tax for the term ending July 31st. Any lodge in arrears to the Grand Lodge in any amount, for supplies or tax prior to August 1st is debarred the privileges of the Grand Lodge until the account is settled. All should pay up promptly, and save themselves the mortification of being reported as delinquents to the Grand Lodge. The system of crediting lodges with supplies etc., is only in vogue in California, and makes the work of the G. W. S. office of this jurisdiction almost double that of any other. Since open accounts must be kept with each of the three hundred and fifty lodges. It entails an immense amount of labor, which could be materially lightened, did each deputy remit promptly and fully at the close of each quarter the amount due from the lodge to that date. As the Order grows, the work of the Grand Lodge office increases, and it has become impossible under our system for one head and two hands to do all that is necessary.

A LARGE MAIL.—There was deposited in the Sacramento post office on Saturday last two large envelopes addressed to each of the lodge deputies. One of the envelopes contains the password circular and a blank form of quarterly returns upon which to report for the term ending July 31st, and is sealed. The other is an open envelope, and contains a circular concerning the RESCUE, and which is to be read in open lodge, and also a circular relative to the manner of electing representatives in the Grand Lodge, etc. Also duplicate copies of blank forms of credentials of representatives to be elected to the Grand Lodge. Also a blank form upon which to certify the choice of the lodge for lodge deputy for next year. Also a form of annual report to be filled up and returned to the G. W, S. Also a form of annual report to be filled up and returned to the G. W. C. T., together with a printed envelope addressed to that officer, in which the report should be forwarded. There should be eight circulars and papers in all, which every lodge deputy should now be in possession of. Thus, nearly three thousand circulars were mailed to the various lodge deputies this week. Should any deputy fail to receive either of the above circulars, the fact should be made known to the G. W. S.

DELINQUENTS.—The following lodges still remain delinquent in having failed to fill their quarterly returns for the term ending April 30th last: Butte Co., Nos. 240 282, Colusa 132 and 168, Contra Costa 175 & 349, Humboldt 363, Inyo 250 & 352, Lake 347 & 432 Los Angeles 103, Mendocino 333, Modoc 229, 234 and 275, Monterey 131 and 357, Shasta 142, Sonoma 166 and 353, Stanislaus 187, 249 and 311, Tehama 315, Tulare 301. The password coupon has been withheld from each of the foregoing, until such time as they shall forward returns.

CORRECTION.—In the RESCUE of June 23d, under the head of Orphans Home Receipts," writes Bro. J. S. Naismith, "Brooklyn Lodge, I. O. G. T., is given credit as donating $45 to the Orphans Home while I regret that our lodge is not entitled to the honor we wish that it might be given where it belongs. The credit is due to Brooklyn lodge I. O. O. F. and was for support of orphan children. It was the printer's error.

LOST, STRAYED OR CAPTURED.—A Grand Lecturer of tender years, answering to the cognomen of F. J. Culver who has not been heard from headquarters since the camp meeting at Guerneville. Whether he imbibed too much fourth of July, or he has become lost or strayed or been captured deponent knoweth not. Any information as to his whereabouts will be gladly received at the G. W. S. office.

THE WELCOME TO THE R. W. G. T.

A large assemblage was found at B. B. Hall on the 18th to welcome the R. W. G. T. and to honor the 30th anniversary of our Order. The hall was gracefully draped with flags and the large painting of the Home for Orphans and a "Welcome to the R. W. G. T." were conspicuous above the platform,

Dr. R. H. McDonald was chairman and made the opening remarks, followed by singing and a prayer by Rev. Dr. Bushnell. Address of welcome was given by Jndge Thompson G. W. C. T., and responded to by Bro. Katzenstein. After which addresses appropriate to the occasion were delivered by Dr. Haswell and Mrs. Stevens. The intervals between these exercises were brightened with several harp and piano solos magnificiently rendered by Miss Inez Carusi and songs by our youthful prodigy Miss Anna L. Kelley, all of which (songs and solos) were greeted with an unusually energetic applause. Mr. Leman also rendered several recitations in his usual happy manner. Limited space permits only a short extract from the address of welcome. After following up the rise and growth of onr order and its results the G. W. C. T. said.

"About 17 years ago the order found a curly headed boy in an inland town and took him under its protective influences. Four years later he was assistant Secy. in the office of our G. W. S. In three more years he was G. W. S. and his election had been strongly recommended by his predecessor and former instructor and now for ten years he has held that post of honor and usefulness. For three years he has represented us in the Council of the great wide, wide world. Each time returning with some fresh laurels for us, and now the second overland road has brought us that same curly headed boy now grown to manhood, laden with the highest honors our great order can bestow.

Bro. Geo. B. Katzenstein as R. W. G. Templar we give you a hearty welcome. We hail your return to our jurisdiction with pride and satisfaction. You have honored us at home and abroad. You have done much to give us a thoro system of work. You have ever been a friend to that aggressive policy which has carried us on to power and renown. By your sound judgment you have healed over difficulties, and by your firmness kept on the road of progress. By your thorough business habits, you have gained the confidence of all, and by your genial disposition won the hearts of our entire brotherhood.

We feel that our standing as a Grand Lodge owes to you more than to any other one individual. Without great efficiency in our Grand Secretary's affairs, it would not have been possible to have reached our present standing and power within the time.

These good qualities are not alone seen by us. You go out among the delegates from all quarters of the globe, and are there singled out as possessed of merit.

The Right Worthy Grand Lodge made no mistake in selecting you as their standard bearer.

We honor you the more, that though upon the highest pinnacle of fame, you yet are within speaking distance of your co-workers. In your own estimation, you are not yet among the gods. All honor that good quality.

While we honor you for your official position; while we give you gratitude because you have brought honor to our jurisdiction; while we prize your services as an officer of our Grand Jurisdiction, yet allow me to say that we support and honor you more than all for your many private virtues and manly character. These are the foundation, without which all else must fail. These, broad, sound and numerous, render secure the superstructure, though massive and high.

In conclusion, allow me to express our entire confidence in the management of our powerful order by you for the present year.

May the same success attend your efforts in that broader field, as has been realized from your labors with us. May you find the same hearty support accorded you there as here.

May He who looketh down from above be with us, and crown our efforts with success, and may these pleasant ties that now bind us together be severed only in death.

Bro. Katzenstein made a suitable reply, in which he stated he believed the honor had been conferred more in consideration of the general good report of the Grand Lodge of California than for personal considerations. Alluded to the increasing growth, influence and future victories of the temperance army &c &c and took his seat amid long continued applause.

Dr. Haswell P. G. W. T. and Mrs. Stevens followed in their usual happy and acceptable style, and at the close of the program, a general reception and good time were enjoyed. Numerous delegations were present from the interior of whom no list has been received here.

Some interest was added to the proceedings by the active applause which every two minutes emphasized the enthusiastic utterances of a Democratic convention in progress in the basement below. It was stated next day that the plaudits of the upper crowd rendered equal aid and comfort to the patriots in their deliberations.

W. C. T. U.

Dear Rescue Readers: I should like to say a great many nice things about your editor, but will refrain, as I know he is a modest man. However, I must thank him, right here, for the able manner in which he presented the subject of communion wine for our society, at the camp meeting on the 4th. He gave us solid facts for consideration, and convincing proofs that our Savior never blessed the fermented wine; and it is just such logical talks that will break down the prejudice that now exists in many of our churches in favor of fermented wine at our communion service. Now let me tell you about the grand camp meeting held by the I. O. G. T., in the redwoods. Exercises for the day commenced with a praise service and prayer-meeting at 9 o'clock. At 10:30 A. M. temperance meeting opened by reading of scripture and prayer, closed with benediction. At 2:30 P. M. exercises same as morning; at 7:30 another service. For five days I attended these meetings, and received new ideas and a fresh inspiration to work. The I. O. G. T. was represented by its G. W. C. T., G. W. V. T., G. W. C., Capt. Wood, editor of Rescue, Dr. Haswell, the grand lecturer, Dr. Merrick, Rev. F. J. Culver and Prof. Crowhurst, and by a large number of lay members, both ladies and gentlemen. The executive committee extended an invitation to the W. C. T. U. to be represented, and I responded in behalf of the Union, being also a member of the Good Templars. On Saturday we had one of the best meetings of the session. In the morning Prof. Crowhurst gave an interesting address upon the juvenile work. I like Brother Crowhurst's manner of speaking, and was impressed with the feeling that he is a man who works hard and persistently, and we all regretted he was feeling so ill that he was not able to speak often during the meetings. It was children's day, and the Juvenile Templars occupied the afternoon with recitations, readings and song. Every piece was well rendered, and showed careful training; the prize essay published in last week's Rescue was read, and the prizes awarded by Enterprise Lodge and two individuals, five in all, were presented by Dr. R. H. McDonald, of San Francisco, who is always happy when with the children. Sunday morning Dr. Haswell deliv- a most powerful sermon from Mark xi: 28 29, 30: Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden; and I will give you rest." To one at least, that sermon spoke volumes, and it brought rest to my soul. In the afternoon I gave a Bible temperance reading, followed by Dr. Haswell on temperance literature, while Dr. Adams of Oakland closed with an excellent address upon the evil effects of tobacco Having been a practicing physician for years, he spoke authoritatively and from a medical view of the subject. He gave facts and arguments enough against the practice of tobacco to convince any one (that was at all reasonable or open to conviction) that it is wrong and injurious.

In the evening Dr. Merrick presented his views of a constitutional prohibitory amendment in a most enthusiastic and eloquent manner. It was a most able speech. Monday forenoon the crowd was variously estimated, some placing it at 2500. Declaration of Independence read by Dr. Haswell, Oration by Dr. Merrick, afternoon devoted to W. C. T. U. Judge Thompson presided for us, and as I explained to the audience. we did not exactly steal the thunher of the Good Templars, but had borrowed considerable of it. They were very kind to be willing to loan it.

I conducted the devotional exercises, and then Rev. F. J. Culver presented the enforcement of the Sunday law. This is a practical work that is being done in the state, and Mr. Culver urged the people to take hold of it, and spoke in his usual enthusiastic and logical manner. Mrs. Hattie Harris of Petaluma gave a reading. I gave an acconnt of the National and our state work; then Capt. Wood spoke upon Communion Wine. Judge Thompson cordially extended the right hand of fellowship for the I. O. G. T. to me as the representative of the W. C. T. U. Tuesday we held meetings as usual, and at night sat up around the camp fire until the small hours of the morning.

The woods are among the grandest of the state and two hundred acres will probably be bought by the I. O. G. T. as a permanent temperance ground. A place where quiet, sensible, temperate people can go and take a rest with their families. Russian river running thru the grounds offers as fine opportunities for bathing as any in the state. The trees tower up some 350 feet high, 2000 years old and one with two sleeping rooms arranged in it. The people of that section are grand like the trees, upright in their characters, holding true principles, with hearts big enough to take in all the workers in the temperance cause. Some of them said they couldn't make speeches, but when they began to talk they were so full of ideas that they were making speeches unconsciously. Mr. Peckinpah delivered an excellent address one evening, and as chairman of the Ex-Com. for the Guerneville Lodge rendered efficient service.

In closing, I want to thank all the kind friends who did so much to make my stay pleasant. Mrs. Manning who played the organ thru all the session, added much to the success of the meetings, and deserves much credit for her faithfulness and excellent music. Next week or very soon I wish to tell you about our new tracts and what we wish to do with them. Hoping to meet all the temperance people inGuerneville next year, Yours in F. H. & C.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding and George Bramall.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the Rescue, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

C. N. GOULDING.

San Francisco July 18th 1881.

I wrote you from Lakeport, where I lectured on the 10 and 11th, went from there to Lower Lake where I lectured on the 12 and 13th to good audiences, and in Middletown on the 14 and 15th and notwithstanding the fact that no announcement of the lectures have been made in Lake Co. (with the exception of Middletown) I had a good audience, and found the temperance people firm in in the faith "Lectured in Suisun on Sunday evening 17th to an immense audience, this concludes my two months labor under the auspices of the I. O, G. T, (at least for the present) and it may not be out of place to briefly review the same, I have delivered 62 lectures, addressed eight thousand four hundred people, and traveled six hundred miles. My meetings were held in the busiest season of the year, heading and harvesting in full progress, and at the time of year when we had no right to expect large audiences, yet such is the interest felt in the Temperance cause that the people at some inconvenience to themselves have turned out to hear, see and determine in this regard--I labored under many disadvantages, I was a stranger in a strange land; the well known character, and ability of the lecturers employed by the Order in the State made it incumbent on me to do what I could to keep up to, and (with pardonable pride) to excel previous efforts, if possible. I have done the best I could, the results if any will be seen in the future; I desire to return my sincere thanks in behalf of the Order for many acts of kindness, have formed acquaintances and friendship, that will be lasting all along the line; the cause is progressing, moving onward "to Victory" in the not very distant future; realizing as I trust we all do that "God helps those who help themselves". We shall fight the good fight, until we snatch a well earned victory from the hand of our enemies.

Yours Fraternally, C. N. Goulding.

Col C. N. Coulding who has been doing grand good work in this State during the last two months under the auspices of the I. O. G. T. will leave on Monday for Oregon where he proposes to remain during the months of August and September; the Col is commissioned for the Temperance work by the National Christian Union of the United States (of which Governor J. P. St John of Kansas is President) and no doubt he will be fully as successful in the work in our sister State as he has been here. It will be a fortunate help for Oregon at this juncture to have another organizing officer. There is plenty of room there for as many lecturers as are employed in California, and the more worthy ones they employ, the easier and fuller will be the finances of the Grand Lodge. Col Goulding is heartily commended to our Oregon friends and it is hoped they will at once have him in active service.

H. R. HUGHES.

July 9th and 10th, at Sutter Creek, had fair houses both evenings. In the afternoon of Sunday, addressed the children, and on the 12th, attended degree meeting, conferring both degrees. Met with hearty co-operation by the pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. E. Dodge, and the L. D. Dr. Giles.

On the 11th, lectured in Amador City; consulted with the D. D. Rev. Mr. Wood, about the work in the county. He meditates a visitation of all the Lodges in the county before D. L., August 12th. He is a live man, and has the work at heart; and his excellent wife is making an active canvass for the Rescue.

On the 13th, visited Amador Lodge; a large attendance, and a splendid lodge, numbering 135. Entertained by W. C. T. Brother Johns.

On the 15th, visited "Old Ironclad," of Drytown, one of the grand old lodges that never says die. Had a very pleasant meeting with the faithful few, among them the old temperance war-horse, W. O. Clark, and lady, and Sister Miller.

On the 16th, visited Summit Lodge, of Plymouth, second only to Amador City in numbers, and second to none in usefulness and efficiency. One of the finest lodges I have visited. On the 17th, talked to the Band of Hope ,and in the evening lectured at Live Oak, to a good house.—Had a splendid meeting.

H. R. Hughes.

Pity the sorrows of the poor Prince of Wales who has never said or done anything in the world that was worth a cent, but gets from the people of England half a million dollars a year besides his other incomes which ought to be of themselves enough to support a whole royal family. And the royal spendthrift and prodigal is constantly begging at the door of the parliament to have his debts paid for him or to have his salary!! increased. A good way to pay off his debts would be to shut him up somewhere, allow him half a dollar a day for his board, let him wear his old clothes and devote the balance of his income to paying his debts. The suggestion is offered to the 35 million people of that country, gratis. They might have struck that thot themselves, but they did not, it seems; all thanks declined.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

HANNIBAL OF CARTHAGE.

About 2119 years ago a boy of nine years, son of a Carthaginian chief and warrior, took a solemn pledge at the instance of his father. It was an oath to hate for ever Rome and its name and its people. The oath is said to have been taken on the altar of their god. At the time and long previously, Rome had been attacking, conquering, subjugating, robbing every nation that could be reached by its armies. It has been affirmed that many of these nations prospered and had better laws under Rome than previously, but to reduce them to submission Rome had butchered their armies, carried away their people as slaves, burned their towns and houses, desolated their country: and so Rome was a great powerful butcher, that scourged all the world then known, with terrible judgments; and people who loved liberty, profoundly hated her.

Carthage was then a splendid and powerful city and a great jealousy and enmity existed between the two peoples. No doubt Hannibal's early pledge had a great influence upon his after life. He hated the Romans heartily. At the age of 29 years he was elected general of the national army in which he had grown up a thoroly trained soldier. He lost no time in carrying out the darling scheme of his life; attacking Rome on her own soil and repaying her with the measure she had meted so bitterly to others.

He prepared himself an army in Spain for the conflict, crossed the Pyrennees and made his conquering way overland to Italy. His victory over the trained and hardy legions of Rome were marvelous. He almost annihilated immense armies with a very trifling loss of his own men, and their most skillful generals were baffled and slain.

He overran Italy and it is supposed he might at one time have marched direct to Rome, taken the city and destroyed her empire for ever: but he did not for some reason. And then the Roman armies never ventured to have a pitched battle with him for years After wintering his troops in Capua a great wine center, it was always reported that his army became enervated with wine and immorality and vice and it is certain that his days of brilliant success were over.

At length after maintaining himself and army in a stranger's country fifteen years, he was recalled to Africa where his old enemy Scipio, the Roman general whom he had once defeated and routed with a terrible slaughter had established himself.

Attacking him again, Hannibal was defeated at the battle of Zama with a loss of 20,000 men. Peace was then concluded between Rome and Carthage. Hannibal had afterward to flee from one country to another to escape the Romans, and at last ended his career by poison, to save himself from capture by his old enemies.

For over 2000 years history has said that his troops, so brave and powerful when they entered Italy, were enervated and unmanned by the wine of that country; lately some people pretend that it was something else, but they dont say how the later news came. It was the opinion that Hannibal could have captured Rome, but failed to realize the ambition of his life thru the influence of the wine cup on his army. Our juveniles can all pledge themselves to an eternal hate, not to Rome or Romans, but to rum and wine and all the tyrant family that curses and enslaves and plunders all this world. Remember that the wine cup when dallied with, has slain its hundreds of thousands of bright and promising men, blasted and blighted their lives and acts. You live in an age more privileged than any which has ever passed in the history of this world. You have been born into the privilege of seeing and celebrating the final victory over rum and the return of peace after a murderous, cruel constant war of four thousand years which the devil and his angels have carried on against our race. What a grand celebration that will be. Wont you make a vow to hasten its coming all you can?

WIDE-AWAKE AND FAST ASLEEP.

A bright summer day came out of the East
And a bright little lad was he;
His lips were red from a strawberry feast,
And his eyes were as blue as the sea.
His yellow hair was blown by the breeze,
Like grass in a windy place;
He had torn his jacket in climbing trees,
And he laughed all over his face.

He danced in the elm, on the leafy spray
Where the nest of the blue bird swings,
Till the birds had winked their sleep away
All under their painted wings.
He shook the stem of the lilies tall,
While they nodded in high surprise,
And rubbed with their fingers white and small,
The dreams from their golden eyes.

The daisy hurried to wash her face
In a drop of the silver dew
And every leaf in its lofty place
The kiss of the sunshine knew.
The squirrel chattered and combed his tail,
That curls up over his spine,
And each red-clover turned almost pale
When the village clock struck nine.

For two little boys, in two little beds,
Lay sleeping the morning long,
Tho the sun shone thru on their tangled heads,
And the birds had ended their song.
"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" said the summer day,
"What sleepy small boys I see!
I wish, I wish they would wake and play
With a bright little day like me."

MISS WILLARD TO THE BOYS.

Every reader of the RESCUE, young and old, ought to know that Miss Frances E. Willard is the captain general and commander in chief of the American christian women who are enrolled in the Society called the W. C. T. Union. You may be sure that the lady chosen by so many thousands of the best women in the world, to preside over them and be their leader, must be a very wise and capable, as well as a very excellent person, or they would have selected some one else; for they have a great many noble specimens to choose from: lots of them that could fill that position or any other grandly. Now this is what your friend Miss Willard says in the Chicago Signal to the boys in California as well as everywhere else.

"I wonder how many of these young folks know that there is a great war going on in this city, on the west side, north side, south side,—going on all over the State from end to end, and all thru the land of the Star-Spangled Banner from Maine to Florida, and Massachusetts to California? Havent you heard the rattle of muskets, booming of cannon, beating of drums? No? Well, pray, where do you keep your ears?

Havent you seen any barracks, arsenals, fortresses, fortifications? Where do you keep your eyes?

Why, this very night you're in one of the forts belonging to our side,—that is, the loyal troops. I've seen bullets and bombshells shot out of this pulpit that have given no small fright to the enemy and no small courage to my heart when times looked dark. I want you to be duly impressed with the fact that there is a war. We call it an irrepressible conflict and a fight against spiritual darkness in high places. The captain on our side is He of whom you often sing:

"Oh! surely the captain may depend on me,
Tho but an armor-bearer I may be."

The Lord of Hosts is His name. The captain on the other side is described in these lines from another of your hymns:

"See the mighty host advancing, Satan leading on."

The recruiting officers of our side are the church, the Sunday-school, the home; while those of the enemy are breweries and distilleries, and grog-shops. To join our army you sign the muster-roll called "The Total-Abstinence Iron-Clad;" to join theirs you clink beer-mugs and brandy-glasses and hurrah for blear-eyed old King Gambrinus. The uniform of the enemy's soldiers is an old coat out at the elbows and a shocking bad hat, and their badge a fiery red nose; while we have transferred the red to a ribbon in the button-hole. Our soldiers are well but plainly dressed, and the girls and women among them wear a pretty knot of white ribbon. The weapons of the enemy are a shillalah or a doubled-up, pin-cushiony fist; they aim strait at the brain or at the heart. Our weapons aim there, too, only for the first we have keen thoughts, and for the last tender pleading and eloquent pathos. The soldiers on the other side are bewildered, untaught youth, ignorant men, and vicious dotards; on our side the smallest boy or girl is up to regulation height, gray hairs exempt nobody, you cant hire a substitute if you would, and when you come to think it over you really dont want to if you could. Best of all, ours is an army in which your mothers, gentle and soft-voiced and very much afraid of guns and gunpowder, can yet keep step with the sturdy and the strong, keeping time to the company's music as they march calmly forward in the name of "God, and home, and native land." Now, my youthful hearers, are you enlisted soldiers? Have you "pledged perpetual hate to all that can intoxicate," from cider to champagne? If not, why not? Come we want you to bear aloft a banner in your firm young hands, and to inscribe upon it "Tremble, King Alcohol! we shall grow up!"

F. E. WILLARD.

THE TRAP-DOOR SPIDER.

I hope you have not forgotten the talk we had about spiders sometime ago, and the pretty little bell-shaped homes they made for themselves in the water. They were called water-spiders, but these in the picture now before you, belong to another family, sometimes called Mason-spiders from the skill they display in building their nests; oftener they are spoken of as the Trap-door spiders, because of the cunning little doors they make to fasten up their homes and to keep burglars, and the rain out.

I have just been looking at one of these nests. It belongs to a collection in the Phildalphia Academy of Natural Sciences, and is very curious indeed. Shall I tell yon how it is made? Well, the young spider has come of age and wants to set up housekeeping for herself. She starts out early some fine morning, when the ground is in good condition for digging—turns her back npon the soft silken nursery, where she had grown from a tiny egg to womanly distinction—and goes to work in good earnest. She is not ambitious to get far away, if she finds a fine building spot near her old home, she sets up her claim—and begins by excavating a smooth even hole—about an inch in diameter—and perhaps three inches in depth;—this gives her ample accommodation. When the walls of her home are completed, she covers them with a lovely tapestry of silk of her own spinning. All spiders, you must remember, are great spinners, and very industrious too. She does not weave her hangings in fancy colors, though you might suppose, when you look at her completed work, that she had appropriated a scrap of grandma's pretty drab-bonnet, so neat and plain is it.

Now comes the most curious part of the whole work, she has finished the rim or top of her walls very neatly, and it is ready for the door. This she makes first of long threads for outline, then puts a layer of fine earth on top, which she covers with the same drab silk tapestry that adorns her walls. Of the same material she forms a hinge, as you will see in the picture, on the outside of the door she puts a layer of moss or anything else that she finds handy, and her building is completed. It is said that she makes tiny loops in the lids, in which she puts her sharp claws to hold their door fast and tight, when her home is attacked by an enemy. The door fits so closely, that it conceals the nest from observation, and is completely water-tight.

There the spider spends most of her time when she has a family of her own, she often has to enlarge her home, which she does with great skill. Sometimes she lifts up her door a little way and peeps out to see what is going on in the world. Woe betide the unlucky beetle or fly that happens to pass that way, —the cunning spider keeps very still until it comes near, then she reaches out her long arms, and drags the poor fellow down into destruction. Sometimes her prisoner is too large, or too horny and tough; in that case her door is again opened, and the creature thrust out, without injury, but very much frightened, no doubt. Some of these spiders go out after night-fall, fasten back their doors, and spin webs in the grass near by, then go back into their nests and wait until the bugs and beetles that fly in the dark, get entangled in the webs, when they go out again and make a royal supper. After they have finished the webs and fragments are cleared away, and the spiders return to their snug homes, leaving no traces of their operations.

Trap door spiders have been found near Vineland in New Jersey. They are more numerous in California and the warm countries of Europe.—Aunty Karlie in Scattered Seeds.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 7.

SOME OF OUR EXPERIMENTS.

BY JULIA COLMAN.

It was our fortune to be obliged to study up our lessons as we went along, and find our materials where we could. It required no small amount of time, but it paid. The chemical experiments were particularly attractive to boys, and we found them much more easily managed than we expected at first. We preferred to use those things which were most familiar, because the changes would be more easily understood, and would make the greater impression when used as illustrations.

For example, when we wished to illustrate the nature of chemical action, we took the manufacture of ink. We dissolved a teaspoonful of nutgalls in an ounce vial of water, and the same amount of copperas in another ounce vial of water, being very careful to keep them entirely separate, and let them stand a few hours. These were shown to the scholars, their names given, and also their chemical names, tannic acid and sulphate of iron.

"Now," says the experimenter, "we propose to put these together and make a new substance, entirely different from either of these." So the two liquids are poured together into a test tube. (These test tubes are not actually necessary, but they are very nice and cheap, and they can be got from the apothecary) and a jet black fluid is the result, making a striking contrast with the lighter colored fluids which were put together.

It is a most effective experiment, and the surprise is deepened when you tell them that this is ink, The tannic acid unites with the iron in the sulphate of iron, and makes tannate of iron or common black ink. These different particles in the two fluids get together, and make an entirely new substance, and the action by which they do this is called chemical action. There was no ink there before, but these particles make it.

So in making alcohol; when the particles of sugar in the sweet liquid are broken up by the chemical action of fermentation, they get together and form this new substance called alcohol. And the alcohol is just as different from the sugar of which it was made as the ink is from the tannin and copperas of which it was made.

"I can make alcohol for you, too," says the teacher, "if you would wait long enough; but it would take two or three days and you would not like to wait so long. You can each try it for yourselves, however." And then the experiments of fermenting sweet fruit juice as described on page 21 of the Manual, are described, and the teacher promises to bring some alcohol in the process of formation for the next lesson. It is quite an important item to always have something attractive to promise them for the next time.

Another excellent experiment shows the difference between chemical and mechanical action. Have a piece of limestone and a piece of quick lime unslaked. Tell them how the limestone has been burned to make the quicklime, and that this is chemical action. Then you pour on water, which will produce another chemical action, and reduce it to the fine powder known as lime. You may explain the difference between that and the limestone.

Then you pound up some of the limestone with a hammer, that is mechanical action. The particles are limestone still. That is like grinding or mashing up grain. Its nature is the same it was before. But let chemical action take place, and you have a new substance out of the same materials. Then you compare lime with limestone very much as you would compare alcohol with grain.

The chemical action has formed a new substance with new properties. The experiment is very instructive, but like all other experiments, it needs to be handled wisely. Never losing sight of the main point, the difference between mechanical and chemical action. These two instances serve as specimens of the manner in which we used chemical experiments for illustration.

ANCIENT THEOLOGY "RUMME AND SUGAR."

The following letter of the Rev. Cotton Mather, the great Representative of New England theology of two centuries ago, will serve to illustrate what a great gulf lies between Cotton's theology and that of the present Christian world.

The letter is said to have been discovered among some old papers in the Massachusetts Historical Society, and bears date "September ye 15, 1682," and is addressed to "ye aged and beloved John Higginson:"

"There be now at sea a shippe (for our friend Elias Holdcroft of London did advise me, by last weeks packet, that it would sail sometime in August) called ye Welcome. R. Green was master, which has on board a hundred or more of ye heretics and malignants called Quakers, with W. Penn who is ye scamp at ye head of them. Ye General Court has accordingly given secret orders to Master Malchi Huxlett, of ye brig Porpoise, to waylaye ye said Welcome as near ye coast of Codd as may be, and make captive of said Penn and his ungodlie crew so that God may be gloryfied and not mocked on ye soil of this new country with ye heathen worships of these people. Much spoil can by made by selling ye whole lot to Barbadoes, where slaves bring good price in rumme and sugar; and we shall not only do ye Lord great service by punishing ye wicked, but shall make gayne for His ministers, and people.

Yours, in ye bowels of Christ,
COTTON MATHER."

William did indeed sail "in ye shippe Welcome," and a goodly number of his friends with him; but the Lord did not allow "Master Huxlett to waylaye him near ye coast of Codd and make captive of ye said Penn and his ungodlie crew;" and the ministers and the people did not receive the "great gayne" that their sale in Barbadoes for "rumme and sugar" would have produced.—Prohibitionist Me.)

MODERATION.

BY MRS. E. J. RICHMOND.

The citizens of M., a thriving town in Central New York, were greatly shocked during the past winter by the announcement that J.C., a leading citizen, and one universally beloved for kindness of heart, was dead. Died of delirium tremens, was the terrible story, and no one knew that he even used intoxicating liquors till the last year of his life. He kept in his cellar the choicest liquors, and doubtless fully believed himself able to use them in moderation. But "wine is a mocker; strong drink is raging." J.C. found that the "mocker" deceived him the "strong drink" overthrew him; and to-day he sleeps in a dishonored grave, and the haunting horror ever hovers over it.—"died of delirium tremens."—Union.

The following advertisement appeared in the American Mercury printed at Hartford, in the year 1776: "$1,000 Reward.—Ran away from the subscriber, within a few years, his whole estate, consisting of houses, land, etc. They gradually and almost imperceptibly stole away, after being put in motion by the magic art of one Intemperance, who lived in the family. Any person who will put me in possession of said estate shall be entitled to the above reward."—Toper.

"N. B.—All persons are cautioned to beware of said Intemperance, as I am told he has established a large number of places of rendezvous in this city where numbers of the incautious are daily secured."

"RESCUE THE CHILDREN."

The National Temperance Society has just published in pamphlet form an able address by Canon Farrar, with the above title. It is a most stirring and eloquent plea for the children. It presents in a striking light the shocking cruelties to which innocent children are so often subjected by drunken parents and others under the influence of strong drink, and shows the great importance of temperance work among and for the children to save them from becoming drunkards. It merits the widest possible circulation. 12mo, 12 pages. Price five cents; sixty cents per dozen. Address J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, N. Y.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dowling & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

THE GATE OF HELL.

BY JEAN PIERRE LUQUET.

[Written especially for Our Union by an Italian Evangelist, and translated by the editor.]

"The cup of wine! This is the magician who changes men into brutes.

The cup of wine! You will find in its depths all debauchery.

The cup of wine! We have met it everywhere in our gloomy midnight explorations.

It sparkles on the salvers which the girls of the wine-shops carry. It glitters on the tables of concert-saloons. It sparkles under the jets of illuminated gardens. It reddens the face of its patrons, it inflames the eyes of its votaries. It stupefies, it brutalizes, it depraves whoever plunges his lips therein.

You think that I exaggerate? Ask the watchmen. They will repeat to you all that I have said to you in this dark night. Almost all the men who go to disgraceful deaths are led there by drunkenness. The cup of wine kills their energy, kills their conscience kills their soul, kills their heart, and all is said.

Young man, if the wine cup has taken possession of thee, all is done. All vices lurk at the foot of the glass. Drunkenness is not the only one. When the vulture has planted his claws in a human breast, he is immediately surrounded by a crowd of vultures. At the first blow of his beak they are there. Impurity, idleness, beggary, fury, abjectness—all the brutalizers, not lacking one. There all preparations are made to open for you the two leaves of the gates of Hell."

That is what the Italians are learning to say after their country, that ought to have been made long ago a beautiful paradise, a palace for God to reign in—has become for nearly two thousand years a field of blood and crime and pauperism, because it has turned its precious grapes into alcoholic wine, and then consequently perverted all its other gifts.

NOTES FROM THE J. S. G. W.

Ed. Rescue: I have received fresh supplies of rituals and badges, and I am now ready to supply demands. Reports from all parts of the state are most cheering, announcing juvenile work. It is a work in which the people in all parts of California manifest an interest, and I am happy in stating that members of our Order in the various lodges are taking hold of the work as never before. A letter now before me has the following: "Our lodge deputy is the superintendent of our Band of Hope, and is present at every meeting and takes a deep interest in the work; we had a good time at our last meeting. After the opening services the Band sang a number of fine pieces. Readings and recitations by the children were then in order and were well rendered. then a lesson of questions and answers from the ritual, interspersed with a verse of song from a Sabbath school book, and after that we had some well timed remarks from older folks and visitors present. The members of our lodge of I. O. G. T. help us very much, and take a great pleasure in its advancement. And I believe by fall we shall have a glorious Band."

Another writes; "We are a hundred and forty strong now in our band and we have never had anything so interesting to our people, and in which they have taken so much interest as they are taking in this children's movement. God bless you, and may you live to see these most interesting juvenile societies spread thick all over California.

Another says: We have organized a Band here, and I have been elected superintendent of it, and I do not know what to do; wont you help me? I never had anything of this kind to do before, but I dare not refuse to act. I see clearly the necessity for the work, I do think it is a grand work. Now do, please give me some instructions and advice, and you will confer a great favor.

Oh, how I wish I had the pen of a ready writer that I might be able to enthuse my brethren in the juvenile work. I wish our Grand Lecturers would give us a line or two now and then for our juvenile department in the Rescue. You say you have enough to do in your own field of labor, and I know that as well as any one does; but then as you travel you hear and see many things which, if you would just send to the juvenile department of the Rescue, would help the paper, help the cause and greatly encourage the young folks.

No more drunkards wanted in official positions.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE ASSASSINATION.

NO LIFE SAFE.

How very carefully, the telegraph and the associated press and the whisky hooped newspapers and all inconsiderate people, avoid mention or allusion to the most prominent and striking and important feature of the late fiendish assassination.

Attention has been called to the fact that the murderer is of foreign parentage, that he is a politician, an office seeker, a stalwart, a Conkling spoilseeker, a communist, a fellow who abused his wife, a loafer, a swindler and one who dont pay his debts. Every one of these things he might have been, and there might have been ten thousand just such people in Washington, each one of them deserving fully all these appellations, but the President's life or person would never have been in the slightest danger from one of them.

But as if by the merest unintentional accident, it has leaked out, that this ruffian is a drunkard; when he visited the jail a few days before the murder, and while plotting it, he was tipsy. He has elsewhere been reported as a dissipated loafer and vagrant. And in that single fact that he was a drinking and drunken fellow, lay the only danger of his murdering President Garfield or any other citizen. Among ten thousand disaffected, disappointed, spiteful enemies, neither the president nor any other statesman or public man is in the least danger in this country—, except from the drunkard or the maniac, and the drunkard is a dangerous maniac at all times. No life is safe in his vicinity; not one.

The story of the smitten firstborn of Egypt has repeated itself many times in the life of this world and even of this nation. American slavery, before it expired, placed a mourning symbol over the hearthstone of every household in the land, and when the last blow it struck, slew the nation's chief citizen, it, was a rum-depraved murderer only, that could be found to shed the innocent blood.

The slavocracy of rum have written their history in the blood of some member of every family in the Union; if not the firstborn, the victim has been very often the brightest and best and most beloved of the family circle: often the one that God designed to be the pride and ornament of the family tree. In this beautiful land which has no curse but the grogshop and the infernal crime brood of its hatching, the expiring cry of rum's murdered victims, the departing wail of some poor soul sent out into darkness by the knife or bullet or bludgeon or brand of a drunken assassin or by the careless criminality of some drunken custodian of people's lives—ascends to heaven about continuously. Every day's history of this highly privileged nation is the record of a bloody battle, waged by the rumfiends against the people's lives, and the blood of over 200 new human victims, men, women and children, calls for new vengeance every day: the record does not close with the list of slain and wounded: a long array of every crime in the catalog of sin, and every agony of keenest human torture, woe and suffering, complete the sum of the results of each day's warfare of these human fiends, against the innocent and helpless and thotless and the poor.

Why do the press and the pulpit and the people conspire to keep silent upon these truths? People in any number can pooh pooh them, and call them temperance fanaticisms and exaggerations, but not one dares to dispute that they are undoubted facts. Not one can prove the slightest exaggeration in them. Not one can prove that any statement ever made by any advocate of temperance, as to the extent and magnitude of the giant drink crime, was ever an exaggeration or ever came up to the full measure of the solem truth.

The truth which has been thundered into our unwilling ears every day of our lives so far, only repeats itself with a more emphatic expression, when the grogshop strikes down the honored and beloved president of fifty million people. That is just all there is of it, gentlemen and ladies, men and women, sisters and brothers. It was not anger, jealousy, ambition, pride, hate, covetousness, that aimed at the life of the president. It was an accident that may happen to any one of us this week or next.

It was only one of the grogshop's daily volley of murderous bullets, and this time it happened to be aimed at the president again, after a cycle of sixteen years since a similar rum-inspired crime selected the firstborn of the nation as its mark. The rumseller's bullets and knives and poisons have been busy at work every day since the lesson of the martyrdom of Lincoln went unheeded; but they have only stricken down poor people and ordinary people and a rich or influential public man now and then. Have we any further use for the grogshop? Shall the proposed thanksgiving for the recovery of the president be a hollow mockery of God? It will be, if we do not promise on that day before God, that our satan worship and its daily river of human blood sacrificed upon his altar shall forever cease.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

The following clipping from the Chicago Signal seems to be just the thing for the folks in San Luis Obispo to read, and it will suit lots of other people as well. Miss Willard has been making a swoop through the Southern States and has started a revival there, which promises most gratifying and important results.

"A lawyer in Paris, Texas, says: "Allow me to express my gratitude for your noble work in Texas. For ten years I have labored almost single handed for legislation against the liquor traffic. The men have been cold and selfish, giving me little aid and sympathy. The women were with me in feeling and sympathy, but owing to an old fogy idea of religion and education, could, or would do nothing. They only needed a progressive woman of independent character, positive will, and comprehensive intellect, to electrify them and put them on the path of duty. Most worthily and effectively have you accomplished your mission in this regard. Our noble women have gone to work in earnest, conducting business as if they had been used to deliberative bodies. And the men are co-operating in earnest. We have rented as a place for ordinary meetings, a splendid hall, 27 by 80 feet, for three years, at $180 per year, propose to put into it a good piano, connect with it a circulating library and by means of concerts, lectures, &c., have a regular place of instruction and amusement, where the young people of the city may assemble instead of going to saloons, billiard tables, gambling halls, ball rooms and the like. We have concluded that if the liquor sellers can spend money to ruin society, we ought to spend some to save the rising generation, at least".

A revival has been set in motion too in Southern California which ought to be carefully nurtured and trained into an active, living progress upward and onward, to a higher and better condition for us all in every direction. As intemperance, open and general, is the most calamitous and far reaching curse that ever befel community or individual, so a genuine general temperance revival and reform is an infinitely greater, deeper, broader, fuller benefit to any place that needs it, than any other which can be proposed or attempted; simply because no other reform of any description can make progress, or be of any avail, while intemperance and satan worship is undisturbed; and a temperance revival renders every good reform possible and practicable.

Churches, colleges, schools, libraries, factories and all the varied interests and elements which are in their nature and purposes calculated and fitted to improve and perfect our condition morally, socially and financially, are all the next thing to utter failures, wherever the grogshop is permitted to reign. This may appear too much to say, but we have only to open our eyes and see that in the very places where the church and Sabbath-school and every good institution for promoting our financial welfare and our moral improvement, have had and do have the largest scope and the fullest opportunity to make men good and happy and prosperous,———right there the devil has planted his grogshop, and right there he most particularly and emphatically and royally holds the fort.

That idea has never occurred to some people before; many people wont believe it at first sight, but it is true and the facts proclaim it every where. Where christianity and godliness have had the most effort and talent and eloquence and money and sacrifice employed in their behalf and where they have had the widest and most favorable opportunity to succeed (but for one obstacle), there we find most vice, immorality, crime, pauperism, misery: right under the shadow of the steeple is a worse condition of humanity than can be found elsewhere on this broad earth.

And why? because of the church? or school? Not at all, but this state of things exists, because we have rendered it inevitable by our folly. It could not be otherwise without a suspension of the laws of God and nature, until we make a radical change in our habits as a people. We have grown to see and hear of the grogshop as one of those things which is to be found everywhere and has a right to exist. But what is it? It is of no possible service under the sun, never was, or never can be. It can have no purpose but to demoralize, debauch, pauperize, destroy men.

Do people ever think what the licensing and opening of a grogshop means? if there was only one grogshop, winery or beerdive in San Luis Obispo or Sacramento or San Francisco, or in the State to-day, the opening of that one place, would be a solemn declaration on the part of every one whose vote permits it, that there is no God or that

We declare war against God;
We declare war against virtue;
We declare war against chastity;
We declare war against industry;
We declare was against honesty;
We declare war against marriage;
We declare war against the Home;
We declare war and death to the women and children of our community;

We curse and dethrone and defy God and we worship vice, crime, indecency, pauperism, and the devil; our temples and our gods shall be the beer garden, the brothel, the police court, the jail, the poor house, the mad house and the pauper's funeral hearse.

There never has been an obstacle of any note at all, to the highest prosperity, religious, moral and financial in California, but the grogshop. That came with the pioneers and it planted and sowed everywhere and does yet the gambling house, the brothel, the prison and every thing that comes thru crime and wrong. And it could not be otherwise. There is no simpler, easier, plainer. truer proposition than this, that no good or moral or righteous or financial interest can prosper where the grogshop exists. Maine found that out 30 years ago and every body there would make affidavit to the fact to-day. Kansas has known it for years, and has served at last a writ of ejectment upon the devil and the poorhouse and jail and vice, and has declared that the grogshop and the devil shall no longer harass and crucify and slauter her people and her women and her children. Right now is the time for San Luis Obispo and all California to do the same thing.

This when begun was intended to be a ten line salute to San Luis Obispo, the baby lodge that came into existence as the Banner Lodge, in numbers. Let it be and remain the Banner Lodge in all things: some one says it is too large; it will have to divide; they wont agree; there will be a reaction: yes, there will be all this and more if the devil can have his way.

But 1000 strong is not a bit too large for a Lodge, if its members are all imbued with a spirit of patriotism and good citizenship; that is all they want, those two things in their highest and best sense. If they make up their minds to banish the grogshop and give no quarter to crime, they will be always on the advance. They are the Banner Lodge in the Rescue books; an even fifty copies go to their P. O. Now they want to own their hall and acquit themselves gallantly in every respect. One tenth part of the money spent formerly to maintain all those saloons and whisky stores, can do wonders, when well applied.

No hardier outrage has been perpetrated of late upon christianity and morality, than the shutting up the temperance lessons of the bible from the children of the Sabbath school. It is exactly in the line of Dr. Crosby's assaults on christianity, backed up by the Congregationalist, Independent and Christian (?) Union papers. It seems part of a plot on the part of a large and powerful section of the churches, which is at the most positive enmity with the cause of temperance, and determines that it shall go no farther. It is now no longer the fault of the European tipplers on the International Committee. They left four vacancies to be used for temperance lessons if desirable: those temperance Bible lessons were provided by skilful christian writers: but a conspiracy headed by the S. S. Times, and seconded by Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and other churches, has supplanted them with other lessons ignoring temperance. This is a virtual cutting out of the temperance portion of the Bible for the Sabbath school children, and is worse if anything than the Catholic principle of sealing up the Bible altogether from the public. As well seal it up altogether, nay better, than make it, as the denominational papers just named have done, a whisky-advocating and alcohol-sanctifying Bible. People may draw their own conclusions from these facts of the action of our American Sabbath school authorities. If there is any other motive for their action than a hatred and jealousy of the temperance movement, to which they are ready and willing to sacrifice the temporal and eternal welfare of the Sabbath school children of America, they should declare it. They have as yet advanced no reasonable motive. The pastors and teachers who desire the welfare of the children even at the expense of a prosperous saloon interest, should so declare and let those who present a mutilated Bible to the Sunday school bear the blame of it. The movement against this injustice to the children, is headed by the W. C. T. U. of America and it gives one a comfortable feeling to be in accord with them on any such matter.

The Pacific Bank.—For eighteen years this deservedly favorite banking institution has gallantly kept on its course in the mid-channel of prosperity. Well manned and found, under a cautious, skilful, thoroly competent commander, a keen sighted experienced pilot, an A. B. helmsman, a sharp look out, and the closest adherence to the rules of discipline, the good ship has never scratched a plank, neared a shoal, seen a breaker or lost a ribbon of canvas in a squall. Under the management of Dr. R. H. McDonald, the Pacific has sailed calmly and safely around and away from the hurricanes and waterspouts and whirlwinds which have dismasted and beached and wrecked and disabled so many of the craft manned by careless, unwary and inexperienced navigators. Adapting its commercial facilities to meet the interests and requirements of farmer, merchant and every class of business men, the strictest integrity stamped upon its colors and these colors nailed to the mast, and a gentlemanly and accommodating as well as a perfectly safe management, have made each year of its history more successful than the preceding, and it now stands in the highest ranks of the A. 1. class.

Good for Kansas.—A recent letter from Kansas to the Monitor Journal reports the new law as working wonders. The constitutional question is settled in the State, and public sentiment sustains and enforces the law, so that its opponents are growing less very fast. Henceforth liquor selling will be classed there with horse stealing, burglary, brothel keeping &c, as it ought to be everywhere, for it is a meaner and nastier business than any of them. The greatest obstacles now to prohibition in Kansas are the rum interests and the press outside of Kansas who are everywhere running lie factories on full time, nights and Sundays included.

Those who do not read the Rescue nor any temperance literature, need not send any more to this office to have the statistics of the liquor traffic and its consequence written out in manuscript for them until there is a whole month of holidays; then it will be a pleasure to write a volume: but till then parties who want to get posted on those matters, had better read print. The Rescue is $2 a year and it advertizes lots of temperance literature beside.

What a mother.—A very dear friend, and that is what we ought to consider every good woman, writes of doing some temperance work in a locality where she is probably the only worker in that line: several young men have signed the pledge, but one was obliged to withdraw his name on account of his mother's opposition. How strange there should be a mother, in these days, that would not rejoice in her son's safety from the most dangerous of all diseases, the appetite for alcohol.

The Chronicle says that at a political barbecue of the Cherokee and Creek Indians, at Greenleaf, where they have grogshops for indians, bad whisky got up a fight in which seven men were killed, two of whom had their heads entirely cut off. There is no proof or indication that the whisky was badder than any other. No doubt the same indians would have done the same on the best California wine.

Cyclopedia. Samples of that useful work, the Library of Universal Knowledge can be seen at this office. See the ads concerning it elsewhere. A splendid opportunity is now offered for Lodges new and old to furnish themselves with an excellent epitome of information upon every subject, by merely getting up a club for the Rescue.

Bro. Leland was heard from this week, at Warm Springs Reservation, Oregon, where he lectured to Indians of three tribes at once, the interpreters rendering the speech into their respective languages at the same time. Our old friend is still hard at work, and still runs across a few subscribers for the Rescue every week.

The Temperance Colonies and settlements in California free from the saloon pestilence are Artesia, Garden Grove, Goleta, Lompoc, Montecito, Nordhoff, Orange, Pasadena, Santa Rita, Tustin City and Westminster in the south and College City in the north, twelve in all and perhaps more to hear from.

The "wine interest" articles will be after this week pushed to a conclusion and published in tract form without delay.

OREGON.

To Oregon Lodges and Members;

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—I have just received a letter from Bro Leland, G. L., which says: "I was very sorry you could not be with us (at Grand Lodge) as you promised; so were many others. I received the rituals; was very glad to get them. All went home revived very much—determined to go to work among the little ones. This assurance is worth many times the price of my little present of 50 rituals; and if those "revived" ones remain revived, and go to work with energy and persistence, I feel sure that the investment will very soon amount to a grand army of saved boys and girls, and a little later to the saved state of Oregon.

An experience of many years work with and for the young assures me that by no other means can we accomplish so much for our righteous cause. Then begin the good work at once. Set up no standard of numbers or help or interest to decide the lifetime of the society, but go ahead and work for numbers and help and interest. Never think once of giving up; persevere, and keep in mind that it is by littles that every great reformation is brot to success. Bear in mind the grandeur of the onward marching army of which your little band forms a part; and then strengthened by such encouraging thots, make your company just as large, as interesting and as useful as possible. Dont fail to enlist all the young ladies, and with their estimable help, induce the young gentlemen to throw away tobacco filth, and throw their influence on the side of cleanliness and right habits. Thus the larger boys may be reached and saved. This latter class are often difficult of access. They are fearful of classification with the little ones. On this account the ritual should be improved and raised a little above the special adaptedness to children. Then in the exercising we want a little more of the war-whoop element than is generally found. A very common error is to distinguish too definitely between members and adults, making the former class a kind of monkey show for the amusement of the latter. The adult members and visitors should come forward, and all classes be mingled upon the same seats, and their speeches, readings and songs thrown in promiscuously together. Thus the large boys (and some girls too) will be relieved from a feeling of littleness of classification.

At an early stage of the enterprise encourage the boys and girls to get up a large club for the youths Temperance Banner, a most charming paper, and only 12 cents a year. Every family takes it where introduced, and it proves a little giant in the battle. Send to Rev. J. B. Hill. 1041 Market street, S. F. for several sample copies (free) or to Capt. A. D. Wood, Rescue office. Also from same places get catalog of National Temp. Pub House from which to select music and other books, and Julia Colmans illustrated tracts. The rituals and badges can be had by order to Geo. Bramall, Haywards, Cal., the former at $1.75, and the latter $7 per 100. Any further information or assistance in my power will be gladly furnished to encourage so good a work. In the bonds of our holy cause.

THAT "CYCLOPÆDIA WAR."

Full particulars of this great literary enterprise given elsewhere in this paper, will interest every' curious reader, and especially every searcher after useful knowledge. The last page of the great "Library of Universal Knowledge" was put in type on June 29th, and the complete work, in 15 octavo volumes, large type, will be ready in large quanity for delivery to purchasers not later than July 10th. A good cyclopedia is recognized by all intelligent people as an essential part of the furnishing of a home. This, the largest cyclopedia ever published in this country, and perhaps better adapted than any other to popular use, ought, and doubtless will find its way into the homes of hundreds of thousands to whom such a work has heretofore been inaccessible on account of high cost. Special terms are given to clubs, and $10,000 special rewards is offered by the publishers to club agents forwarding orders during the months of July and August. DUTCHER AND CO.

About two years ago it was reported in the eastern papers that Mr Dutcher a reformed victim of the grogshop, who had been for years a most successful and highly appreciated and respected temperance revivalist, and had organized in many States a great number of Blue Ribbon Clubs—had fallen. The friends of temperance (the writer included who was down east at the time) and those especially who had known and highly esteemed Dutcher, did not believe it. Secular papers kept repeating it. A letter appeared from Dutcher denying everything and declaring that his endeavors to save a fallen woman had been manufactured by his enemies into a scandal. Same time came a letter thru the press from some religious association in New England sustaining Dutcher and asking the public to suspend judgment till an investigation demanded by him should clear up his character. The friends of temperance accepted this and heartily rejoiced. A few weeks passed when the same society which if memory serves, was a Massachusetts Y. M. C. A. issued a manifesto saying that the investigation, made at request of Dutcher had proved him guilty of drunkenness and other immoralities which were named. This report fell upon the friends who had enlisted under his banner like a public calamity.

Next thing Dutcher and his copartner appear in California. They were reported as organizing clubs and preaching Gospel temperance. The RESCUE made no allusion to them. If it had made any disclosure, the act would have been attributed to jealousy of other temperance organizations and to a desire to pope the temperance reformation; and there was also a chance of Dutcher's innocence after all, which no one here had a right to rob him of. There was also a chance that if he had fallen, he might have been restored and no one had a right to rob him of that chance. It seemed too that if the truths of temperance were preached by unworthy people, the good done might far exceed the harm, if any.

It seems now, that when Mr. Dutcher has been on a long continued drunk and his drunkenness, his desertion of his lawful wife and his relations with his present coadjutor are publicly known, the usefulness of the couple in this State has come to an end. There is every reason to believe that Mr. Dutcher was a sincerely reformed man and an earnest worker for temperance, until a meaner motive than ambition induced him to forsake his Josephine and yield himself up to the enchantments of a pro tem, Maria Louisa.

If Dutcher has any loyal friend left in this State, he will advise him to his only chance for life to go home to his family where, because his wife is a woman and consequently a thousand times more forgiving than any man can be, he will doubtless be forgiven. There he may repent and reform again and stay reformed. But if he stays with the "strange woman," his exit from this world by delirium tremens in the gutter, is a matter of the near future.

To the woman it is suggested to read the history of Cleopatra. Her statue in white marble at the centennial was a very pretty one and much admired. It represented the most creditable act of her life. It would be much better if she would reform and repent and at least give her deluded dupe a chance for his life, after all the evil she has done him.

Those who have taken the pledge and entered the temperance army under the persuasion of these parties are reminded that the truth, is no less truth, because its advocates may be unworthy. It is as honorable to embark in the temperance reform at the instance of Mrs. Judd or Watson as of the purest and most saintly advocate. It will be disgraceful to go back upon a good cause, because its doctrines have been preached by erring people. And the fate of poor Dutcher is a most powerful lecture in itself. It shows the wine cup has such a far reaching capacity for evil, that no one who has in years past been poisoned by it, can ever after live in the least security, that a momentary relaxation of the strictest vigilance and caution will not relegate him to hopeless perdition. Perhaps poor Dutcher may have exhibited more heroism in his struggles against rum and his female tempter than any of his judges were ever called upon to exercise—and let no one boast or feel sure that he would not have fallen under a less pressure than that which mastered him.

TEMPERANCE HOTELS.

There is room for a well kept clean temperance hotel in San Francisco; perhaps for two or three or more; perhaps for two or three grades of them, from cheap and clean up to fair priced and very comfortable, clean quarters. The cream priced aristocratic accommodations are plentiful in the barroom hotels, but a large amount of their custom could be drawn off by temperance hotels, giving equally comfortable accommodations with less gilding, marble, frescoing, cut glass decanters, etc and at a more moderate price.

The old fraud that a temperance hotel wont pay is exploded; it certainly looks as if a hotel could make a little more money if it sold a large quantity of liquors, or run a safe faro game, or robbed its guests at night, or gave them counterfeit money in change or did a variety of villainous things beside the foregoing. But a well kept hotel can pay a good return without robbery, drunkenness, gambling or other debauching influences being included in its sources of revenue.

A temperance hotel will not pay under several conditions, some of which are as follows. If the location is at Fort Point or out of a proper locality —If it is hopelessly loaded with debt at the start— If you select a sick man and a helpless woman to run it, who never had any experience of the kind, who never succeeded in any other business, but who are notwithstanding very excellent temperance people and good Christians—If it has not hotel talent at its head, and a talent that knows that an honest upright morally conducted business has the best chance of success every time.

Wanted then a temperance hotel, and a competent temperance hotel force to run it, and the RESCUE will find customers from all parts of the state to make it a success. The temperance cash grocery is a success already, and is going to be much more so; now let us have a hotel and make a success of it, and be ready then to do likewise with some other good project.

UP WINE AND DOWN BIBLE.

A writer in "Our Union" on Bible wine says;

There seems to be just at the present time an effort made by the wine bibbers and their apologists to convict Christ of being what his unscrupulous enemies accused him of being, a wine bibber. Witness the recent utterances of Prof. Wilcox in the Advance, Dr. Dexter in the Congregationalist, and Dr. Crosby before a Boston audience.

That avowed enemies should reiterate this accusation is not at all wonderful, but that professed Christians should join in the cry of wine-bibber and strive by all the arts of Bible twisting to fasten the charge upon him who was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners." seems past belief, and can only be accounted for by assuming that they love to sip their wine and would be glad to quote high authority for their indulgence.

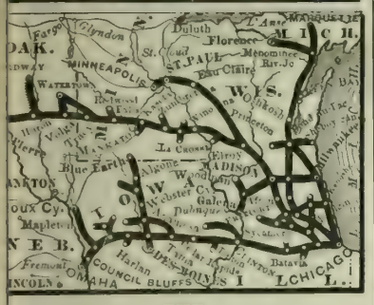
The misconception and false reasoning which have prevailed in the church and bewitched its members on this Bible wine question has arisen mainly, in my judgment from two causes:

1st, the erroneous translation of the wine text of our Bible. Says Dr. Lees: "there are thirteen different words in the original which, unfortunately for the English reader have been commingled and confused in the translation of the single term, wine, either with or without an adjective of qualification —as new, sweet, unmixed or strong; so that when persons attempt to argue from our Authorized Version the merits of the wine question, no wonder they fall into inextricable difficulties and pernicious delusions.

But a better understanding of the Bible is fast dispelling these false views. Many of our best scholars and commentators like Profs. Stewart, Barnes, Bush, Duffy, Peabody, Patton and others take the ground that the Bible sanctions a good wine and condemns a bad wine.

That these false views of wine bibbers have wrot untold mischief in the church and are to-day an obstacle to the success of our missionaries, especially those laboring among the Mohamedans, we have painful evidence. The editor of the Congregationalist has taken the ground that the Bible sanctions the use of intoxicating drink, that Christ approved of and used it, and ordained its use in the ordinances of his appointment: and he quotes our missionaries as teaching the same pernicious doctrine among the heathen and especially among the Mohamedans who observe with great strictness the prohibitory law of Mahomed.

Miss Cochran reports that as the Mohamedans throw off the influences of their religion, intemperance prevails among them. There is no wine made among the Mohamedans in the towns and villages of our provinces, and it is a common remark among them to the Christians, 'You use your grapes for wine, we use ours for molasses' (which is the unfermented syrup) The distinction between th Christians and the Mohammedans right by their side is very marked. They, the Mohamedans, are in a better condition, and the effect, as all can see, is traceable to the use of these wines."



There are no people on the earth to-day among whom there is so much depravity, crime, cruelty, poverty and nastiness as among the so called Christain peoples that worship the devil and the wine cup and grogshop; and about all this evil is due to a perverted and falsified Bible and to the toleration of the wine cup by Christians. There is no present system of Mohamedanism, paganism, mormonism or freelovism that descends to the moral depravity of the Congregationalist and its kindred journals, which prostitute the Bible to their love of liquor, and substitute for the Savior of the world and his teachings an image and a character of the heathen Bacchus. A religious paper, or rather a burlesque of religion, which commits these disgusting blasphemies, ought to be ostracised by all honest people and treated like other poisonous and blasphemous literature. Ingersol and Tom Payne are distanced in their onslaut upon Christianity. There was a time when honest men knew little about wine and little about the translation of the Bible, and were in doubt about these things. That time is past: there is nothing dubious or two faced or contradictory now in the Bible.

THE DIME CCLLECTION.

Mrs. C. B. Buell, who was a delegate to the R. W. G. L, seems to think that the resolution presented by Bro. Katzenstein was adopted just as it was. It proposed that under sanction of our Order, a Thanksgiving dime collection should be made everywhere, one-half to be remitted to the N. T. Society, the other to the W, C. T. U., each of whom were to return the donors one-half the amount of its receipts in temperance literature if desired. This would have united the friends of temperance in a vigorous effort for this most desirable object. But it looks very much as if some mischief maker had tampered with the committee or with the resolutions, and probably when the report was returned to the R. W. G. L. the tinkering it had got on the sly was not noticed. In its present shape, of course no one will touch it. The only thing that can be done is to pursue the original design, or make the whole effort in favor of the W, C. T. U. and help the women, if no other organization is going to adopt the system, It was a sad mistake to apply to the R. W. G. lodge in favor of anything useful.

A FIRST-CLASS temperance man for next Governor of California will soon be nominated.

THE
National Freeman,
A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

Rare Premiums for Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞ As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—In San Francisco at 7 A. M., 27th July, Bro. Chas. A Colby of Valley Lodge, I. O. G. T., long a most worthy and active member of the Order. a regular attendant at Grand Lodge sessions; known far and near, and universally respected and esteemed. He leaves a widow and family with whom a large circle of friends will kindly sympathize.

OVER 200 people in the U. S. died of the grog-shop yesterday, and 200 recruits were enrolled yesterday to take their places and be murdered in their turn.

Bro. G. W. Fitch will be on the rostrum next week in the RESCUE: was a little late for this number.

SOME LIFE INSURANCE MATTERS.

TOUCHING OUR MUTUAL AID.

Forty-one years ago the Temperance Provident Institution was established in London. It insured only the lives of total abstainers for ten years. In that time they had 73 deaths to pay for, whereas there were 135 expected, according to the lowest calculation of the averages of ordinary lives, and the highest gave a chance of 219 deaths.

It was to some extent a mutual concern; that is the survivors insured shared in the profits. There was much surprise at the results, but as those results favored temperance, people kept very quiet about them; they did not telegraph them everywhere nor paint them on the fences as they do Bourbon whisky and other successful rat poisons. In 1850, when the society was ten years old, it added another section to its business. In that section it admitted moderate drinkers, whom they called "temperate," and they were very careful in selecting healthy specimens of moderate, well-conducted people. The business of the two sections has been kept entirely distinct and separate, and the facts that have come to light are astonishing.

It will be remembered that the insured paid the same premium in both sections, but the extra profits of each section were returned to them in what is called a bonus, declared every five years. It must be remembered too, that "expected deaths" are calculated upon the tables of public mortality; they are the averages of all the deaths that occur among people of the same ages and professions.

Now this concern had, at the close of last year, 37,738 policies running, for forty-one million dollars; a large enough number to afford reliable statistics. It should be remembered too, that in the moderate drinker's section, there are doubtless hundreds who are almost as abstinent as the Good Templars, doing themselves the least possible harm with their occasional glass of wine or beer, and they make the showing of their section no doubt, much better than it would be otherwise.

In the last fifteen years then, the expected and actual deaths have been as follows:

GENERAL OR MODERATE SECTION.

1866–70	Expected,	1,108	Actual,	944
1871–75	"	1,268	"	1,330
1876–80	"	1,485	"	1,480
		3,761		3,754

TOTAL ABSTINENCE SECTION.

1866–70	"	549	"	411
1871–75	"	723	"	511
1876–80	"	933	"	651

Now we see that of 3,761 moderate drinkers expected to die in fifteen years according to the tables, all died but seven. Of 2,205 total abstainers expected to die, according to the same tables, 632 lived. From this we learn that where 71 sound total abstainers die, 100 of the healthiest specimens of moderate drinkers are carried off, under all similar conditions except the drink. Now, who will say that there is such a thing as the temperate use of a drink which slauters its moderate friends like that?

Again, when the bonuses are distributed, we find them in the temperate section on policies of $5,000, running according to age, from $462 to $714; in the other, from $288 to $445. One of the gentlemen insured in the latter, complained in one of the annual meetings, that the total abstainers were so much more favored than his companions, the moderates, and wanted to kuow the reason. The reply of the cool business manager was:

"The bonus is a matter of fact. I cannot help people dying. THOSE WHO DONT DRINK DONT DIE SO FAST."

These are business facts which every body should see that his neighbor and his own family, and every body understand. They are very valuable. There are some other large insurance companies in England, which now have a separate section for total abstainers: The Emperor, the Whittington, the Briton, the Sceptre.

The Secretary of the last named, reported, in April, 1881: "We have in the last sixteen years, issued 9,345 policies on the lives of non-abstainers (carefully excluding those not strictly temperate,) and 3,396 on the lives of abstainers; 524 of the former have died, but only 91 in place of 190 of the latter; less than half the proportion of those temperate poison drinkers.

Now people who drink should see the folly of it. If it was discovered that, not 190 but 100 people died in place of 91, from eating cabbage or hash, there would be no more cabbage or hash eaten while the world lasts. And total abstainers should see the folly of insuring their lives along with, and at the same premium as, those who die two or three or six to one of the really temperate people; or, in other words, they should cease paying 10 to 20 assessments in the various wildcat associations upon which the grogshop pensions its victims, in place of settling for four or five legitimate losses in their own legitimate field of insurance. Our mutual aid of the I. O. G. T. will be the safest and best, and most sought after, when it gets started. This is where temperate, sensible people ought to be insured. People ought to keep these items for use and future reference. Every fact relating to the use of alcoholic drink is a powerful argument. The foregoing statistics are from the Glasgow Good Templar, of July 1881.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

OROVILLE, Cal. July 22, 1881.

The committee of our district lodge appointed to enforce the Sunday law in Butte county together with committees and individuals in our various lodges, are meeting with gratifying success in most places in this county. At Cherokee Bros E. S. Derrick of the dist. lodge com. and McGregor of Welcome Lodge have all places closed in their town for several weeks past, and their lodge deputy, Andrew Rapp, informs there has not been a single violation of the law, nor a single complaint entered.

W. M. Crane, L. D. of Taylor Lodge writes me that all places of business in Forbestown closed on the notice of the district attorney (published in six papers of this county at the expense of the district lodge) that he would promptly and impartially prosecute all persons hereafter violating the law. We have had a short fight in Oroville: only one man wanted to try the law by committing a second offense. He proposed to carry it to the Supreme Court etc. etc., but when two complaints were placed in the hands of the constable he soon sought the justice and pleaded guilty to both charges.

You will also notice in the Oroville Mercury that sixteen complaints have been made in Chico this week, that one of our citizens under the influence of liquor committed suicide and two men at Nimshew in this county went to bed drunk and were burned to death, altho every effort was made to get them out. Also notice that the party fined $40 for violating the Sunday law has made the Oroville Mercury a present of six bottles of Budwiesser Beer.

W. S. READ, Dist. Sec.

WOMEN AND WINE.—A writer in Scribner's Monthly uses the following strong language, which will be respondedto by the women who have suffered all over land: "Of the worst foes that women have ever had to encounter, wine stands at the head. The appetite for strong drink in men has soiled the lives of more women, ruined more hopes for them, brought to them more shame, sorrow and hardship than any other evil that lives. The country numbers tens of thousands—nay hundreds of thousands of women who are widows to-day, and sit in hopeless weeds, because their husbands have been slain by strong drink."

A NEW TEMPERANCE MELODY.

TEMPERANCE RECORD.

Strong drink's a curse to brain and purse.
On land as well as water.
It bringeth woe to high and low.
To parent, son, and daughter.

Chorus.

Our pledge, we sing, will freedom bring
To all engaged in drinking,
And this we say, by night and day,
It's bad for work or thinking.

It scatters wealth, it scatters health
Of Radical and Tory,
And stalks around to slay and wound
Without remorse or sorrow.
Our pledge we sing, &c.

Look up, look down to moor or town,
To grove or letter'd city;
Its victims sigh, and bleed, and die,
The stupid, wise and witty.
Our pledge we sing, &c.

It maims and blights both snobs and knights,
The nurse and her fine lady,
The priest it shames, the giant lames,
It's always arm'd and ready,
Our pledge we sing, &c.

It breaks our laws without a pause,
It makes our senates groggy;
With wisdom's words it ill accords,
And makes her vision foggy.
Our pledge we sing, &c.

What's sweet and pure its spell makes sour.
The rich it oft makes debtors.
The strong it rends, the upright bends,
And what is free it fetters.
Our pledge we sing, &c.

This fiend must fall and that he shall,
To wide earth's satisfaction;
And o'er his grave our flag shall wave
No future resurrection.

Our pledge we sing, will freedom bring
To all engaged in drinking;
For this we say, both night and day,
Its bad for work or thinking.

LETTER FROM MEXICO.

MINERAL DEL ORO, MEX., MAY 5, 1881.

MY DEAR RESCUE:—It is so long since I wrote you that I have forgotten where I left off, but I think it was down in the valley of Orizaba. This valley is not large, but it is very beautiful and very fertile. If it were possessed by a people of taste and enterprise it would be one of the most delightful spots on the face of the earth. It is shut in by mountains, steep and rugged, yet covered to their tops by trees and verdure: and behind those are other and grander ranges, whose chilly summits condense the vapors into frequent showers, and send down streams of crystal water in every direction, Some of these join together, and wind thru the valley, supplying the wants of animate and inanimate nature and completing the picture of a perfect landscape. The people have an uncultivated appearance which is due to the lack of education and training.

The sun had just risen as the train halted at the station, and I had an opportunity to observe its make up. The road was built by English capital, and is very English in its arrangements and management, tho somewhat modified by the peculiarities of the country and people. The engine is a sort of double ender, with two boilers, four cilinders and eight driving wheels, the whole arranged especially for steep grades. It looks like two engines, without their tenders, backed together. The engineer's cab is in the middle. The engine has great power, and climbed the steep grades with sharp curves in excellent style. There are three classes of cars in the train which may be rated as fair, worse, worst. In one of the last was a lot of soldiers, dirty and ragged whose duty it was to guard the train from robbers. The passenger traffic not being sufficient to pay for running the train, some freight cars were attached in one of which were two beautiful heifers of Jersey stock, and some choice sheep that had been our fellow passengers from New York.

Half-clad Indian women with fine forms, hideous faces and bare feet, offer for sale various kinds of tropical fruits at all the stations, and strangers are astonished at the great variety which these fruits present, but few of which are ever seen in the United States. I invested quite extensively and found some repulsive, others insipid and some excellent.

The road winds thru a succession of valleys, each higher and less pleasing than the previous one until it reaches the foot of a mountain barrier which stands like a wall at the head of the last. This is about midway between Vera Cruz and Mexico, and here just in the border of tropical vegetation and fruits, we wait for the train going to Vera Cruz. Soon we see it rushing along the side of the mountain, dashing thru the tunnels and thundering over iron bridges which span the ravines with which the mountain side is furrowed, and then it is lost to sight among the foot-hills near the station where we are waiting, and now with a whiz it pulls up by our side. It is now our turn to take the steep grade which attains an elevation of four thousand feet in about twenty-five miles. I was told whilst on the steamer by persons who had vegetated some years in Mexico and were acquainted with the railroad, that on this part of it was expended some of the finest engineering skill in the world, that in railroad building there was no other equal to it. I replied that it was unfortunate for the engineer that the world had not yet discovered or even heard of his skill. And now that I see it I perceive that the eningeering was inexcusably bad and that the engineer in charge was hardly competent to build a turnpike or toll road. He sought the easy grades to the head of the last valley and then had to overcome the most of his elevation in a short distance, when he might have distributed it over double the space.

Our double ender Farley engine does its work well and maintains almost the same speed up the steep grade that it made on the other part of the road. When far up on the mountain side we have a view of a village in the valley below us, surrounded by small fields thoroly irrigated, neatly kept and having the appearance of a garden, it seemed like a pretty picture set in a very rough frame and we looked down upon it as upon a map. On the side of the mountain just above the village we cross the trail, up and down which men and beasts with burdens upon their backs have toiled for centuries, and no labor or care has been expended to improve the road or make a better one. In this place it was found possible to ascend and descend the mountain, and here the peons and donkeys were driven to their tasks, and the men with capital who owned both peons and donkeys, chose to spend their surplus cash in other ways than making or repairing roads to relieve those bearers of burdens.

As we increase our elevation the pressure of the atmosphere is fonnd to be much less. This is felt most sensibly in our ears and the increased chilliness of the air.

About ten oclock the train emerged from a ravine and we found ourselves upon the great interior plateau or table-land of Mexico. The air was keen and frosty. It was Christmas day, The road was dusty and the country had a dreary, barren appearance where we halted at a station for breakfast. The surface of this plateau is a great plain, in some parts gently rolling; but over most of it rise hills and mountains, and a few of the mountains are so high that they are capped with perpetual snow.

As we go on toward the Valley of Mexico, at every station we meet a lot of beggars, some of whom have lost their sight by small-pox, others are deformed, some are idiotic, and a few are aged and decrepit, and all are persistent and well skilled in their trade.

This, as yet is the only railroad of any consequence in the country, and the company has paid very little attention to the comforts or conveniences of travelers. The habits of the natives are such that they do not miss the accommodations which are so necessary to foreigners. In a few places only, private enterprise has provided very small buildings where they may be enjoyed for a real (12½ cents) and these are about the only evidences of enterprise among the natives that I have seen thus far upon my route.

MORE SUNDAY LAW.

ED. RESCUE:—Golden Rule Lodge, No. 263 of this city has recently resolved in favor of shutting up the saloons and bars of this county on Sunday in accordance with the provision of sec. 300 of the penal code of the state. A copy of the resolutions was served on the district attorney of the county and published in the Union here, and the constables of the city were requested to notify the district attorney of any infractions of the law that prosecutions might follow. Result: a terrible hubbub among the rum advocates and their sympathisers. Most of the saloons closed last Sunday, and preparations being quietly but firmly made to punish those disobeying the law. Judge Field of our State Supreme court in his very able and exhaustive dissenting opinion and afterwards Judge Baldwin. Judges Field and Cope concurring in the opinion of the court in Exparte Andrews 18 Cal, laid down the law sustaining the Sunday act, and we have no doubt of compelling its observance here. It was not until very recently that we could get a conviction for selling whisky to Indians; but since the visit of Mrs Stevens we have netted quite an income to our county treasury from that source. Juries do their duty and better order is the result. Bro Webb is here now, and is doing valuable work. I enclose report from the Union of the 12th:

Rev. G. W, Webb of Lompoc delivered an able and interesting lecture on Temperance Sunday evening. A large audience was present, and all seemed to be highly interested and pleased. Last night Mr. Webb lectured at National city. This evening he will visit Monument Lodge in the early part of the evening; and afterward Golden Rule Lodge, at each of which he will make short addresses. Mr. Webb is expected to deliver another lecture in San Diego this week. There will, no doubt, be a full house, to hear this closing lecture, as Mr. Webb is possessed of oratorical powers of a high order, and is heartily enlisted in the work to which he is devoting his time and talents.

The temperance people here are all on the war path to elect a temperance governor of this state. Let us hear from along the line.

HOTCHKISS.

FROM TULARE.

We, the members of Tulare Lodge, No. 195, I. O. G. T., decided to hold a public meeting in honor of the 30th anniversary of our beloved Order, which meeting we held at the Congregational church in Tulare on Sunday evening, and the meeting was pronounced a complete success by all who were present, and gave good satisfaction to those who were engaged in getting it up.

Promptly at eight o'clock the White Lily Band of Hope, numbering about sixty children, each with a small boquet pinned by his badge, and all the girls dressed in white, marched into the church, and took their seats in front of the stand. Upon the stand sat the officers, and on either side the members of the lodge in regalia, while the rest of the house, in spite of the heat, was filled with the audience that had come out to witness the ceremonies. The following was the

PROGRAM:

1. Singing by the Band of Hope.—"Dare to do right."
2. Prayer by Rev. F. H. Wales.
3. Quartette by members of the lodge.—The Crystal Fount.
4. Recitation.—Beautiful Snow, by Sister Gussie Hall.
5. Singing by the Band.—Come Join the Templars Band of Hope.
6. The address of the evening, by Dr. Asa, who is a member of Tulare Lodge.
7. Quartette and chorus by the Band of Hope—The Crystal Spring.
8. Poem by Sister Farnham.
9. Quartette by the Lodge Glee Club.—Remembered.
10. Address by Rev. F. H. Wales.
11. Benediction.

The audience was unusually quiet during the whole of the exercises, and signified their appreciation by their undivided attention. The pieces by the children were well rendered, and gave satisfaction to their friends. The poems also were well rendered with unusual good taste and delicacy of feeling, and held the audience in breathless stillness. But the chief feature of the evening, at least to the thoughtful portion of the audience was the address by Dr. Asa.

It was a carefully prepared essay, dealing with the subject largely from the scientific standpoint, and quoting freely from the most eminent authorities in medicine. Still it was not a dry narrative of statistics, it was sufficiently varied in its treatment to prevent tiring the hearer, and in not a few places a droll or unexpected remark caused a decidedly audible smile from the audience.

We are glad to discover that we have such a man in our ranks, and we dont propose to let him rust hereafter.

Tulare Lodge is pretty full of zeal, and we propose to keep the subject of temperance before the people on all suitable occasions. We believe the time to be fully ripe for a vigorous campaign, both moral and political; and I for one am ready whenever a full temperance ticket is put before the people, from President down to surveyor of wood, lumber and bark, to enter the field and stump this county on my own charges. Let us all take hold of this subject in earnest, "take time by the forelock," have a temperance county central com. in every county long before the time comes, and then it will not go by default at the last moment. Yours in F. H. and C. F. H. WALES.

THE KANSAS LAW.

The following extract from a letter from Gov St. John, of Kansas, will be read with interest:

"There will be all kinds of falsehoods circulated and published by the whisky ring in relation to the working of prohibition in Kansas, and I want to say, once for all, that it matters not what report you may hear to the contrary, that prohibition in Kansas is a grand success, and with the exception of violations in two or three of the larger towns and cities of the State, the law is being honestly obeyed and enforced everywhere within our borders. Kansas is getting a splendid immigration, and never was more prosperous than she is to-day.

JOHN P. ST. JOHN."

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT.—We should say it did in Parsons at least. During the month of June last year there were ten arrests for drunkenness. During the two months of May and June there has not been a single arrest. Judge Steel's court is as quiet as a country graveyard, more quiet in fact. To make a living the judge has to file saws, and increase the price of filing. The constables stand on the street corners with nothing to do. Holmes corner is no longer blockaded with a mass of blear eyed, bloated bummers hunting for an invitation to take a drink. Everybody goes about his business. Everybody is busy. The sound of the trowel and mechanics hammer is heard in every part of the city. The city is blockaded with material for new buildings. This is the dull season for trade, but trade was never as good at this time of the year as now. Prohibition prohibits in Parsons, and the people are satisfied with the prospects.—Parsons Star.

The above are merely given as an indication of the depravity of those Kansas people. Think of it and weep, that they should say such things, when the Dixon Tribune right here in Solano county Cal. who is in the most favorable place for observation of affairs in Kansas, says

"KANSAS does not appear able to enforce her new and stringent liquor law. Altho it has the force of constitutional requirement, and forbids equally the wholesale, retail and manufacture of all intoxicating liquors, the breweries continue to run, saloons remain open in a majority of the towns, juries will not convict men who have violated the law, and, in short there is nearly or quite as much drinking as ever.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

W. C. T. U. CIRCULAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 20, 1881.

The Womans Christian Temperance Union desiring to carry out more effectively the great purposes of their organization, have determined, while not neglecting other fields of labor, to give special prominence to the work among the children.

We believe that money and labor can in no way be more profitably expended than in impressing upon the minds of the future men and women of our country, before they have formed any hostile opinions or prejudices, or contracted any vicious tastes or habits, the great fundamental truths which our "Union was formed to maintain."

In order to carry on this great undertaking of training our youth in virtue. and instilling into their minds correct ideas and principles on these vital subjects, we propose the following plan of introducing into the public schools a knowledge of the evils produced by alcohol and tobacco.

In order that the children may all become interested in the subject, and enter heartily into the work. we desire that our local Unions, with such aid as they may obtain from others interested in the cause, should offer prizes for the best essays upon these evils, to be written by the children of all the departments that are sufficiently advanced.

In Oakland the following course was pursued: The money for the proposed prizes was secured among the friends of temperance. The ladies then waited on all the members of the Board, and they cheerfully consented to indorse the work.

The principals of the public schools were also waited upon, and very kindly and heartily agreed to lay the matter before their teachers. We were therefore enabled to offer the proposed prizes, and to secure a general and zealous competition among the pupils. The result has been a constant and growing demand for temperance literature, showing the wide and deep interest which has been excited among the parents as well as the children.

In Nevada county, Grass Valley and Nevada city the Temperance Unions have combined to offer prizes open to all the schools in the county.

By the munificence of Dr. R. H, McDonald, President of the Pacific Bank, we are enabled to offer prizes amounting in all to one thousand dollars. In this way we expect to reach directly over 32,000 children.

We hope that these examples may be followed thruout the state and elsewhere until the system shall become a permanent branch of public instruction, not only in this state but thruout the United States.

We therefore urge all the teachers and friends of temperance to unite their efforts with us in this work, and in every possible way assist us to carry it forward successfully.

MRS. P. D. BROWNE, President.
MRS. M. E. CONGDON, Secretary.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Why fearest thou? Not death thou carest for,
Nor yet destruction to thy kin and race.
Yea, analyze thy fear, and thou shall find the door
Which ope'd to truth—truth thou must needs embrace;
Wouldst overcome all fear to meet thy God:
His judgment thou dost dread: deny it not.

Too far in world of this thy heart hath gone.
In vain thou seekest peace where it is not;
End thou the world in thee; yea, follow one,
Which overcome the curse thereof and lot:
For, verily, foredoomed to perish is
What now estranged thy heart from grace of His.

Then fear shall know thee not, tho earth doth flee,
With heaven's firmament before his face.
Ay, gloried hope of better spheres shall be
Thy constant guide thru midst of destined race:
Nor comet stray, nor planet, star or sign,
Less prophecy i'll shall burden conscience thine.

KANSAS ITEMS TO APPEAR SHORTLY IN THE WHISKY PRESS.

"Under the horribly depraving influence of the prohibitory law, many of the leading temperance men, including Gov. St John are becomming sadly dissipated. The divorce courts are crowded, and they want Hallenbeck to try his efforts to stem the awful tide of intemperance which has set in. It is said that every Methodist preacher in the state has his demijohn come by express from Chicago with the most perfect regularity, labeled communion wine."—Tricago Chibune.

"Judge Eben W. Pogram of Topeka, writes that the divorces in 'bleeding Kansas' in May and June of this year have run up to 1198 against 4 in the same months of last year and 3 in 1879; this ought to be accepted as a striking indication that prohibi- is fatal to the domestic relation. The Judge adds that drunkenness is appallingly increased.— Y. N. Dependent.

"Before the prohibitory law farce came into play Topeka had 110 saloons. In two months they have increased to 331, and the saloon rents have doubled. Ministers, deacons and pious church members are frequently fined $10 and costs on Monday morning, in squads of 10 or 12 for drunk and disorderly on Sunday preceding. We knew such would be the effect of that wretched and immoral law. We told you so."—Letroit Deader.

"All the dry goods merchants, milliners. grocers, coopers, carriage makers, carpenters, blacksmiths and schoolteachers are leaving Kansas in crowds for Missouri and New Mexico. They say they must move or starve; since the saloons have been all closed there is not a cent of money in circulation."—Bosman Watchton.

"A poor man in Laurence, Kansas, whose seven children were in June prostrated with the whooping cough, had to incur funeral expenses for six of them, simply because a pint of whisky could not be purchased in the whole state, not even for medicine to save life. Sweet results of fanaticism,"—Recamento Sacord, page 2.

"It seems to be generally admitted, even by the temperance people of Kansas that saloons and drinking and crime have all very much increased under the new prohibitory law. This will be a warning to other states."—Recamento Sacord, page 4.

"Prohibition a failure in Kansas: twice as much liquor sold. Saloons doing grand business."—Poston Bost.

"Prohibition is ruining Kansas: all its wealthy and industrious citizens disgusted and emigrating. Property gone down sixty per cent."—Dime Wield er's Gazette.

"The attempt recently made in Kansas to improve upon theDivine law has resulted in a ridiculous fiasco. Human efforts to curse what God has blessed will always be abortive. More drunkenness is the universal cry from Kansas. Since Christ made and used wine and commanded its use, it is folly to set up a contrary heresy.—"Hong Kongregashonalist.

THE Wine dealer's Gazette seems to have changed its time of publication from semi-occasionally to semi-annually, but its subscribers it is presumed will not notice any irregularity; it will be easy to convince any of them who enquire about it, that it comes regularly once a month. They dont take much account of dates.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The RESCUE, in its new form and dress, hopes in this eighteenth year of publication and henceforth, to acquire a much increased prosperity; and presents a claim to be a valuable advertising medium

It is read by the most sober and well conducted people all over the State; goes to every minister of the gospel in the State, and to a class altogether whose sobriety and morality indicate superior thrift and good financial standing.

It ought then to be a valuable agency to the advertiser as introducing him to a capable and upright class of customers, valuable to the customer as directing him to honest and

RELIABLE DEALERS,

For no other can buy an ad. in the RESCUE at any price: and it is the interest of the reader to make the paper a success, so that with a consistent patronage its price of subscription may be reduced.

An ad. in the RESCUE will be good for what it says every time. No fraud or matter of at all questionable propriety or probity can hire this paper for a mouthpiece; no ad. will be received unless the publisher is satisfied of its perfect good faith and character.

This rule will be adhered to, if the paper should not realize fifty cents of advertising patronage during the next three years.

Nos. 131, 132, 282, 301, 357, 382.

R. W. G. L. JOURNALS.—The journal of proceedings of the recent session of the R. W. G. L., held at Topeka, Kansas, has already been printed and distributed by the R. W. G. S., and that officer is to be heartily congratulated on the improved and exceedingly neat appearance of the journal as well as the expedition which has attended its issuance and delivery. This is the first time that the R. W. G. S. has been allowed to consult his convenience and desires in the matter of the printing of his journals. The contrast as compared with previous editions, both as to time and style is decidedly marked. Gradually the R. W. G. L. is working up to the Californian standard of excellence in its methods and work and its measure of usefulness and success increases accordingly. A copy of the journal, which makes a neat volume of 183 pages, has been mailed to each lodge deputy during the past week. The copy so received should be deposited in the lodge by each lodge deputy as the official copy for the lodge. In a few cases where changes of deputy have recently taken place, they will of course be expected to hand the journal over to their successors.

DELINQUENTS.—The following lodges remain delinquent in not having filed Quarterly returns reports for the term ending April 30th last: Butte Co. No. 240, Colusa 168, Contra Costa 175. 349, Humboldt 363, Inyo 250 and 352. Lake 347, and 432, Los Angeles 103, Mendocino 333, Modoc 229, 234 and 275, Shasta 142, Sonoma 166 and 353, Stanislaus 187 249 and 311, Tehama 315. Other delinquents previously reported have since forwarded their Returns.

OFFICIAL MEETINGS.—The executive committee of the Grand Lodge will meet in quarterly session at the Bernard House, Vallejo on Monday, August 1st at 7:30 P. M. * * * The Board of Trustees of the Good Templars Home for Orphans will meet at Vallejo in the Home building at 10 o'clock A. M. Tuesday next, August 2nd. * * * * The Board of Lady Managers of the Good Templars Home for Orphans will meet at the same time and place as the Board of Trustees.

PERSONALS.—During the week the Grand Lodge office was visited by Bro. Jno. Black D. D. G. W. C. T. of Yolo county and P. W. C. T. of Success Lodge, No. 366 at Grafton, also Bro. Veeder of same lodge. * * * Bro. T. J. Pierce of Defiance Lodge, No. 219 * * * Col C. L. Goulding G. L., of Orion Lodge, No, 224, Davisville.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.—Bro. F. E. Darke of Cambria, writes enthusiastically saying:

Our lodge is progressing finely twenty-three persons have joined us already since organizing and five more names are in the hands of the committee. Send us down another lecturer soon (of course Sister Stevens preferred) and we will promise you this county when the time comes for a prohibitory movement.

CIRCULAR.

Brothers and Sisters:—I desire to call your particular attention to the supreme importance of educating our membership and our neighbors, and especially our young folks in the principles and reasons of the temperance reform. If we are not learning ourselves, and teaching something to others all the time, we can scarcely expect to make any perceptible progress.

The most effective and successful, as well as the most convenient and economical of all the agencies of promoting temperance and morality, is the temperance press. The platform and the pulpit have their important missions, but they cannot take the place of the newspaper, book, and tract, whose usefulness has been so fully proved by all experience. No modern reform can trust its advocacy to oral agency alone. The printed page is an absolute necessity for its success. But few persons can make a telling public address on the platform, but any one, every one can be a successful distributor of effective printed argument.

The experience of all religious and other reforms, assures us that we can never hope to triumph over the liquor traffic, or make any satisfactory progress against it, without a well supported temperance press; and it thus becomes emphatically the duty of all Good Templars to be actively engaged in thus aiding to extend our influence.

For nearly eighteen years our Grand Lodge has expended a large sum of money in the publication of the RESCUE, and every year's experience confirms the wisdom of this policy. But a very urgent necessity presents itself, of extending its circulation and widening its field of usefulness. It is not so much to help the RESCUE, as to enable the RESCUE to help and sustain, strengthen and build up our Lodges and membership, and promote and extend the temperance field.

It perhaps does not occur to the Lodges which fail to use and circulate our paper in their communities, that they make, so far as they and their neighborhood are concerned, all the labor, and effort, and expense, which have been for eighteen years, and are now employed upon the RESCUE, an utter waste; and a large and beneficent influence which might be derived from its weekly visits is so far unused.

Far and near our journal is admitted to be an able, interesting and instructive paper. People of taste and culture highly commend it and its capacity for usefulness. No one can doubt that its faithful circulation in every community would immensely accelerate the day of successful general prohibition. No one could propose a substitute with promise of equal results.

The publication of the RESCUE has been authorized by the assembled wisdom of our Order, at our annual sessions of the Grand Lodge, and every year the policy has been reaffirmed. Therefore the Grand Lodge has a right to expect the cordial cooperation of every subordinate Lodge of its jurisdiction, new and old, in this important missionary service.

Since last session of the Grand Lodge, the RESCUE has been published in a more expensive style, and a more convenient and attractive form than heretofore, but still at a constant and greater loss to the publisher, and at greater expense to the Grand Lodge, simply because of the failure of our lodges and membership to exert themselves to make it a success, as they might easily have done without prejudice, and with great benefit to themselves and to our common great interest. We cannot expect to continue this much longer. It is too much to expect a competent editor and publisher to pay out his own money for the privilege of working gratuitously for those who indicate no appreciation of his labors, nor any desire to make them useful.

During the last three months, a few of the lodges have moved in the circulation of the RESCUE, but the movement has not been as general as is necessary. This is a discouraging outlook, for our most vigorous, useful, active and successful lodges have always been liberal readers and circulators of our paper. We can by no means let it die, but we may have to pay more for a less able and less useful journal than it is now.

There is no reason but apathy or thoughtlessness on the part of our membership that we do not have 15,000 subscribers to our Organ, as we ought to have, to be consistent with our record in other respects.

It has been recommended that each Lodge provide itself with a sufficient number of copies of the RESCUE to present one to each member of the Lodge, with a few extra copies to be placed at the disposal of the W. S. for presentation to each newly initiated member. The W. V. T. of the Lodge should make a canvass for subscribers, both within and without the Lodge. At each open or public meeting, a number of copies should be provided for judicious distribution to the audience, that they may go to the homes of your people as silent yet potent messengers for the Good of the Order and cause. There are many ways that ingenuity and interest will devise to help increase and circulate the paper, if you will but exert yourselves in its behalf. Will you not, therefore, in new and old Lodges, initiate without delay some plan for a vigorous canvass for subscribers among your members, but more especially among those who are not members of a temperance society? Will you not try, for one year at least, this policy, which universal experience has declared to be a most effective aid to our cause, and one, without which no reform has ever succeeded and no prohibition has ever been carried?

In connection with the RESCUE there will soon be published a series of useful tracts upon the Wine Interest of this State, which we hope will be largely circulated. It is hoped that a ready and cheerful response will be made by every Lodge of our State; that not one of them will demur to avail itself of the services of our paper in its community. We want to see the victory over Alcohol achieved in our own day.

All correspondence touching the RESCUE, and remittances for subscriptions, etc., should be addressed and forwarded directly to the Editor and Publisher, Capt. Albert D. Wood, Room 123, Montgomery Block, San Francisco. Fraternally Yours,

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. S.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding and George Bramall.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

F. J. CULVER.

Left Willets', Monday the 18th; reached Blocksbury Wednesday noon; horse lame; changed, got another; passed through Bridgeville and Hiden ville; reached Rohnerville Thursday night; Friday morning borrowed horse died; with single horse pushed on to Eureka; here took boat for Arcata, where we were billed for Friday evening; shall now make canvass of the county; returning, lecturing at the above named places on our way back. Temperance cause alive in these parts. We advise no one to attempt a like trip in their own conveyance, for lame and dead horses, dust, mountains, etc, especially when one is in a hurry and must make a place to fill an appointment.

Col. C. N. Goulding has postponed his trip to Oregon for the present and will lecture in Capay on the 28 and 29th, Winters 30th and Madison Sunday afternoon and evening 31st, State Deputy Bro, B. H. Hoag will be present at the Madison meeting and a Lodge will be organized at that time.

Mrs. Stevens is at work near home, goes to Gilroy to-day. Bro. Crowhurst is in Shasta county. That is about all the news from the lecture field these two weeks.

LECTURER'S APPOINTMENTS.

REV. F. J. CULVER.

Will speak at Ferndale 30, 31; Port Kenyon Aug. 1, Petrolia 3, Upper Mattole 4, Rohnerville 6, 7; Hidesville'8, 9; Bridgeville 10, Blocksburg 11, 12; Cahto 16, Willets 17.

THE CAMP MEETING.

THE CLOSE.

The last session of the temperance camp meeting was held Tuesday evening, July 5th, the G. W. C. T. presiding. After leading off in his usual pleasant and vigorous manner, he called for speeches from brothers and sisters present. Among those who responded were Sisters Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Mrs. Judge Thompson, Mrs. M. E. Congdon, Mrs. Fowler of Valley Ford and Mrs. Alsip of Sacramento. The brothers who spoke were Dr. Merrick, Rev. J. F. Culver, Judge Russel, H. H. Peckinpah and the writer.

Motions were passed thanking the Executive Com. of Enterprise Lodge and the people of Guerneville for the efficient and satisfactory manner in which they had planned and conducted the meeting etc. One of the committee said they had certainly done all they could to make the meeting a success, but if they deserved a vote of thanks there were others perhaps more entitled to praise. He referred to the kindly interest taken by the G. W. C. T. and Ex. Com. of G. L., and the hearty cooperation given by them. The people of the county had done well, but the interest manifested in the presence of visitors from San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, Red Bluff, Calistoga, Clear Lake and other parts of the state had done much to make the meeting a success. So a vote of thanks was moved and carried to all those outside of the county who had assisted to make the meeting as pleasing and enjoyable as we have found it to be. Carried by a rising vote.

During this meeting the necessity of a prohibition party was spoken of by one good sister; her own personal sympathies were in that direction, and in the future she was going to use her influence to induce others to support that party, and thus vote as they pray. This led to a short tho spirited discussion. All were in favor of prohibition, but some thot it could be obtained without a third party by pledging candidates nominated by other parties to such legislation as the temperance people demand. The majority of those who spoke were in favor of the National Prohibition party movement.

Among those who advocated this side were Judge Russel, G. W. C., Bro. H. H. Peckinpah and the writer who, after briefly stating his opinion that we could never succeed in gaining anything worth having except thru a prohibition party, said that any man who would pledge himself to support the platform of the Republican or Democratic parties and at the same time pledge himself to legislation in favor of prohibition must be a dishonorable man, and did not deserve to be supported by the votes of any one. After the meeting adjourned this matter was further discussed in groups, let us hope to the advantage of the principles of prohibition. Many of the campers did not retire until one or two o'clock in the morning. The mirth, wit, jolification and general good feeling proving conclusively that intoxicants are not neccessary to that end.

JOHN ROBINSON.

OROVILLE, Cal, July 24, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—I have the pleasure of announcing thru your paper that every store and saloon and bar is closed in Oroville to-day in accordance with the requirements of the Sunday law. Only three complaints were sworn out and the parties plead guilty in each case without a trial and paid the fine.

POLIICAL NECESSITIES

To hang every professional office seeker forthwith, might deliver us from danger of undue martyrdom in store for any one standing in the way of their aspirations and pursuit of happiness. Only, it would not fill the bill. Other theologians, philosophers and moralists, might arrive at conclusions relative to "political (or religious) necessities, alike unhealthy to every prospect of individual security and peace. In fact, the possibilities of "political necessities," were never governed nor circumvented by extermination measures directed against ought else than crime in the abstract. If Jones murders Smith, it would not be exactly the thing to hang all those bearing the name of Jones, even tho it be proven that every Jones sought office, professed religion, published moral pamphlets, lectured to Young men's Christian Associations, or was seen praying and reading the Bible continually.

Yea a man may do all this and be innocent. Political assassinations are indeed, justifiable in the spirit of the elder testament. We have "Judith," We would pardon the slayer of an usurper or tyrant in the land of the free. But we unite in the cry of vengeance when one is murdered for despicable private or party interests. We feel it is better one half the nation should perish in defence of a great moral principle, than a single man die at the hand of an assassin to make room for the attainment of a contemptible object.

This is the spirit of Christ. Ever blessed are the martyrs for truth and right. Many may compassionate and be eager to avenge such. Few are able to envy their lot.

Nevertheless, the ultimatum of His kingdom is not to save political interests. The true Christian faith ignores the claims of all and every political necessity. It has the example of its author. It hopes to conquer not by evil means or deeds, but by divine power of the cross. Tho it gives unto Casar that which is Casars—pays tribute unto earthly government—it expects not to aid thereby those higher claims and hopes of our race without the realization of which we shall remain servants of sin, be our form of government what it may.

Surely it requires no prophetic endowment to foresee the utter hopelessness of political measures to cast out devils and keep such out, if not a better spirit than that of political egotism governs the earth.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc.. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

LIFE INSURANCE.

The young people, those over 12 or 13 years of age, might as well learn something of life insurance. The time that any one of us may live is very uncertain; the most healthy of us may die to-morrow; but the average life of a hundred or a thousand people or more, may be foretold very accurately. One occupation is more dangerous or unwholesome than another, so are some modes of living, and some localities are hazardous to life.

From tables that have been kept very carefully we can tell just how many of 1000 carpenters or 1,000 lawyers or 1000 farmers, or 1000 saloon keepers, of a certain age will die this year and next, and so on. A visitation of cholera or yellow fever, or a serious railroad accident might spoil the calculation one year, but otherwise the number of deaths would differ very little if any from the calculation.

For instance, of 1000 average farmers of 35 years of age, about 10 will die this year. But if they are all sober wholesome people, not more than 5 would be likely to die. On the other hand, if they were a very intemperate set of people the deaths would be 40 or more.

Again, of 1000 people who are engaged in the sale of beer and wine and whisky of 35 years of age, about 24 will die in the first year, because so many of them drink. In other respects they ought to be long lived, because their work is easy, and they are not exposed to cold and hunger. Draymen who are employed by the brewers are generally intemperate, and they die 39 to the thousand every year of that age; that is six or seven times as many per thousand as would die of sober, healthy farmer, who are Good Templars.

Now we know pretty accurately how many of each thousand persons will die every year of all ages, but we never can tell who or which of them are going to lose their lives. Therefore insurance societies have been created, into which thousands of people pay a certain sum every year according to their age; and it is paid on condition that whenever one dies, a large sum will be paid to his family or friends; the amount having been agreed upon when the party began to pay. When a party agrees to pay this annual sum, he is said to have his life insured, which is an improper expression. His life is not a particle surer than before, but he has a sum of money insured to be paid to his heirs at his death. The agreement which he and the insurance company sign is called a policy of insurance; and the sum paid every year for it is called the premium of his life insurance.

Sometimes people have taken out a policy on which they made a first payment of twenty to one hundred dollars, and altho they were likely to live 20 30 or 40 years, they have died soon after, sometimes in a week or in a few months. In that case their survivors have received from the insurance companies a large sum of money, $1000 to $10000 or more; and the act of getting insured was a very fortunate one. Others have lived to a ripe old age, and have paid in nearly as much as the sum to be received at their death. But even then the money has been saved up, that would probably have been wasted or lost. So it is always a wise precaution to have a life policy.

The system of life insurance, as it is called, is a very excellent one, because it makes a provision for the widow and orphans of those who die unexpectedly, and who have no large means on hand. But greedy and wicked men have abused this good thing and have formed societies which in place of making a moderate profit and being the honest guardians of the widow and orphan, have robbed them of many millions, and stolen and squandered their sacred trusts.

To prevent these abominable frauds, societies have been formed on the plan of our "mutual aid." In these there is no money paid beforehand, or stored up for people to steal, but all who belong to our Mutual Aid agree on the death of any member to pay his heirs a certain sum each, which is not to exceed $1000 in all or $2000, or whatever is agreed on at the time of joining. This is the most economical plan of life insurance and the least liable to loss or fraud.

The societies which deal in life insurance on the old plan meet with a large loss when a person dies soon after insuring, but they make a large profit on those who live to be old. When any one is insured they calculate how long he ought to live and deal with him on that basis; tho some die soon, the average live to the time they have set down in their tables.

Now they have found out that a person who is 20 years of age, and lives temperately and properly, is expected to live 44 years more, that is to 64 years of age; but if he is intemperate and remains so, he will be expected to die in 15¼ years. A temperate person who is 30 years of age is expected to live to the age of 66⅓; if intemperate to 44 years. A temperate person at 40 is expected to live to be 69, but if intemperate, 51½ years only. That means some will live much less, some much longer than the times named, but their average lives will be as stated. Thus it will be seen that the intemperate, those who use tobacco and vile drinks, shorten their lives about 29 years on the average; and many who are intemperate die at 20 or 25, when they might have lived 50 years longer; and besides the intemperate live very unhappily too.

There are some life insurance matters in another part of this paper from which a good deal may be learned When you are at the proper age the Good Templars will give you the best and safest and most honest insurance in the world.

ABOUT THE DOCTORS.

Some of the young and more of the old readers of the RESCUE will perhaps say, how and why does the editor presume to criticize the acts and words of Doctors, who have enjoyed the advantage of a college education and instruction, specially adapted to making them experts in all matters relating to the combating of disease and the preservation of health.

There are several answers to be made to that. The RESCUE does not presume to give a personal dictation; as to what is a proper treatment of disease, what is or is not a proper remedy or wholesome usage. Whenever it condems the use of alcoholic beverages in sickness or in health as opposed to medical science, it merely asserts what the highest and truest and most perfect medical science of the world has emphatically declared, after the most patient and capable investigation.

If the temperance people had set up an opinion that all kinds of liquor are useless and harmful as medicines under all circumstances; and if medical science and experience had unanimously declared the contrary, the chances would be very largely in favor of the doctors being right and the temperance people fools upon that subject; but still the doctors might be wrong, for the whole world has many a time been mistaken and is yet in some matters. But our authority is that of the most excellent, skilful, scientific, respectable and successful of the doctors themselves. They have given the most patient study to this question of alcoholic drinks and medicines, and they have proved by actual experience the value of the truths they have discovered. The doctors who prescribe wine and beer and whisky, do so just because somebody taught them to do so, and they have never given that matter the least personal study, but are profoundly ignorant upon that department of their profession, tho in other respects they may be finely educated, some of them.

Dr. B. W. Richardson of London is the best qualified of all living physicians to be an authority upon this question, because he possesses the most eminent qualifications and has studied it more thoroly than any other man living. Many hundreds of physicians adopt his principles and follow his practice. But they do not all. For instance one of our lecturers lately speaking of Dr. Richardson's books, and of his declarations as to the impropriety and folly of using liquors medicinally, was criticized by a regular M. D. as follows; "Who is this Dr. Richardson"? Who ever heard of him? I'll warrant he is one of those San Francisco homeopathic quacks: what does he know about medicine"? Now if that doctor knew all he ought to and was a fit man to be intrusted with a sick patient, he would know who the great Dr. Richardson is.

In 1628 William Harvey published a treatise on "the motion of the heart and blood," asserting the circulation of the blood in the animal system, a theory which he said he had been teaching his college pupils for nine years, but which till then no other man had ever suspected. Now all the doctors of his time had been educated without that article of belief: had never heard of such a thing; and they were highly indignant at Dr. Harvey, scouted him as a fanatic and an ass. Some of them fought him very bitterly and spitefully. Some of the young men soon learned that he was right; but it has been said that not one doctor, who was over forty years of age at the time of this discovery, ever accepted it: it was said that every one of them to his latest day cursed the new thing as a most impudent and wicked folly.

Perhaps that was a slight exaggeration, but no doubt most of them did. And the doctors of to-day are acting in a similar manner, They mostly stick to the prejudices of their early education. One is an allopathist, one a homeopathist, one a catholic, one a protestant, one a democrat, one a republican; most of them prescribe liquors and most of those who do so drink them; and the Bible and all human experience has agreed that the opinion of any one who demoralizes, weakens and destroys his reasoning faculties with alcohol is not on any subject of more value than the explosion of a chinese fire cracker.

Every body else has a better chance of being right, of getting at the truth, of holding sensible opinions, than the man who drinks, be it a doctor, minister, editor, judge, poet, prophet or scholar. The human being that disorders his own Godgiven reason, can never expect to be right.

TEMPLAR VILLA.

The "Good Templar" published where our lamented brother Walker used to labor, in Glasgow, has a prettily written story of a family in Scotland who made their living by peddling crockery, which the family donkey toted from door to door. The whole family, except the donkey, had become so habituated to the seductions of the poisonous grogshop, that it was given up as a hopeless wreck by all the religious and moral people who knew them.

On one occasion the old folks were returning from a day's travel rather the worse for the poison they had imbibed. They called at a grogshop as such people always will, when they have too much of a load already. After a few glasses they quarreled as such people always do, and had a fight. During the fight the donkey, who was sober outside, was indulging in a pleasant dream, when some hoodlum boy gave him a thump with a club, and he was so alarmed at the sudden attack that he lost his mental balance, took to his heels and making too sudden a turn, the cart interviewed a stone wall and every piece of its cargo of crockery was broken. And when the family crockery broke, the family broke too, financially. Then the policeman took the old pugilistic couple off to jail and they repented there for some time at the expense of the taxpayers.

When they were liberated, neither the old folks nor their four sons and daughters had any property left, except a very damaged character apiece. They were wondering what to do next, when a Good Templar of a lodge recently started in the vicinity came that way; knowing their circumstances he proposed that they should try the chances of a reform from the drink. To tell it briefly, he was successful and the whole family except the donkey, joined the lodge together.

Good people were glad: but some people said "that's news for you." Who would have thot it? said Miss 2. One comfort, said Sandy 3, they wont keep it long. They wont keep it a week, said Tom 4. Them thieving, good for-nothing, lazy, stingy, drink behind the door, scurvy faced Templars wont last much longer either, that is another comfort said old Mrs. Five.

But they did last and so did the lodge. The family, when no longer soaked and poisoned by drink, turned out to be fine, large hearted, energetic, worthy people. They went to work in the old biz: soon sold the donkey and bot two fine horses and sold crockery far and near, but they did not call any more at the grogshop. In good time they were entertaining worthy and respectable company in their own house and grounds which they called "Templar Villa," and they soon were members of the church as well as of the lodge and the Wilisons became honored and useful people. The author of the story signs his name Robert Semple, but these are not the words in which he tells it.

Now some of us have seen quite a number of such changes and reforms as that. And some we have seen try to reform for a while and fall again, because the grogshop snared them and took their lives and sucked their blood, just as a spider kills a fly.

Many a forlorn tramp and wreck that you see today might and would be a grand and good and useful member of society, but for the grogshop, to which we want you young folks to vow eternal enmity, as Hannibal did to the Romans. And dont ever let up a moment in your war against it.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 8.

OBJECT LESSONS,

BY JULIA COLMAN.

A very small "object" will sometimes suffice to make a lesson attractive. You are talking about cider-making and you bring the best looking apple you can lay your hands on. You describe its gradual growth, and ask the scholars now and then, where the alcohol comes in. They will not be able to tell you; on the contrary you will build up in their minds the feeling that it has not come in anywhere; and the crowning proof will be that they, (the boys at least,) have eaten a dozen apples sometimes in a day without getting tipsy.

Since the alcohol is not in the apple how does it get into the cider?

There is some sugar in the apples and we know that alcohol is made by the decay of sugar in sweet liquids; cider is apple juice, so there is sugar in that, and if this stands and decays that will make alcohol. That is how the alcohol gets there. It is not in the apple, nor in the apple juice, till it is formed there by the decay of the sugar. Perhaps you never thought cider was decayed, but what is to prevent it, if it stands, like any other fruit. The pomace decays; we can see that (show it if you can,) and we can see that the cider decays, if we watch it. (Teach them how to put it in a jar in a warm place, and watch the fermentation and the formation of the alcohol.)

Many seem to think it quite safe to drink the apple juice when it is fresh, only they do not know when to stop. It was good and fresh yesterday and it is only one day older to-day. The fact is that everywhere people practice drinking cider when it is new they go on and on until they make cider drunkards, and I think temperance people can be in a great deal better business than seeing how near they can come to drinking the drunkards drink without quite stepping over the line. And when they set the example of drinking new cider there will be plenty of other people to follow and to keep it up all the year around, beside that there is no knowing where to draw the line, for in warm weather the alcohol begins to form the very first day.

Well, yes, there is one way of safety. I have studied it out carefully, I have a little old-fashioned cider-mill with two rows of clean white stones, and a press to squeeze the juice out and a tube to take it away before it has a chance to ferment. And it is very convenient too, for you can take this sort of mill with you and use it wherever you find the apples . I have brought mine with me here today for I thought you would like to see it. Here it is; here are the rows of white stones (shows the teeth) and the press is just inside, and the tube close at hand to swallow the cider quickly before it ferments. If you drink the cider from no other mill you will be perfectly safe from becoming tipsy on cider, and also from setting a bad example in cider drinking.

All this can easily be enlarged to a twenty minutes' talk; perhaps it may add to the interest if you announce beforehand that you will display an old fashioned cider mill, it can really be seen how much more effective this sort of talk is than it would be with the objects" left out, although they are of the simplest; even an apple blossom will be far better than nothing. By a little tact and study, you can press the commonest things into service.

One of the most difficult things for the children to understand is, how if there is no alcohol in the fruit and the grain we can yet make it out of them, The older children should get it by some idea of chemical action as already described in "our experiments." Soap making is the experiment used in the Manual, but for the smaller folks an object lesson answers better. Show them a piece of muslin. "This is not an apron is it? But I can make an apron out of it. So I can make alcohol out of fruit juice."

Any one who takes the lessons of the Manual, as a model merely, not following them blindly, but studying out illustrations and objects for himself, will soon acquire facility in their use, and, so impart greater vivacity to the lesson.

A LITTLE TALK TO BOYS.

When I meet you everywhere, boys.——on the street, in the cars, on the boat, at your own homes, or at school.—I see a great many things in you to admire. You are in earnest, you are merry, you are full of happy life, you are quick at your lessons, you are patriotic, you are brave, and you are ready to study out all the great and curious things in this wonderful world of ours But very often I find one great thing lacking in you. You are not quite gentlemanly enough. There are so many little actions which help to make a true gentleman, and which I do not see in you. Sometimes when mother or sister comes into the room where you are sitting in the most comfortable chair, you do not jump up and say, "Take this seat, mother," or "Sit here, Annie," but you sit still and enjoy yourself. Sometimes you push past your mother or sister, in the doorway from one room to another instead of stepping aside politely for them to pass first. Sometimes when mother has been shopping, and passes you on the corner, carrying a parcel, you do not step up and say "Let me carry that for you mother," but keep on playing with the other boys. Sometimes when mother or sister is doing something for you, you call out, "Come hurry, up !' just as if you were speaking to one of your boy companions. Sometimes when you are rushing out to play, and meet a lady friend of mother's just coming in at the door, you do not lift your cap from your head nor wait a moment till she has passed in.

Such little things, do you say? Yes to be sure; but it is these very little acts—these gentle acts—which make gentlemen. I think the word gentleman is a beautiful word. First, man—and that means everything brave, and strong, and noble; and then gentle—and that means full of all these little kind thoughtful acts, of which I have been speaking. A gentle man ! Every boy may be one if he will. Whenever I see a gentlemanly boy, I feel so glad and proud ! I met one the other day, and I have been happier ever since.—Selected.

A RUMSELLER'S STORY.

A man named Stacy, the owner of a splendid drinking saloon in New York, signed the pledge lately and closed his house. Hearing that a party of lads had formed themselves into a temperance society, he went to them and gave them his experience as a rumseller. We repeat some of his recolections for our larger audience:

"I sold liquor," said Mr. Stacy, "for eleven years—long enough for me to see the beginning and end of its effects. I have seen a man take his first glass of liquor in my place, and afterwards fill the grave of a suicide. I have seen man after man, wealthy and educated, come into my saloon, who now cannot buy his dinner. I can recall twenty customers worth one hundred thousand to five hundred thousand dollars, who are now without money, place or friends."

He warned boys against entering saloons on any pretext. He stated that he had seen many a young fellow, member of a temperance society, come in with a friend and wait while he drank. "No, no," he would say, "I never touch it Thanks all the same." Presently, rather than seem churlish, he would take a glass of cider or harmless lemonade. "The lemonade was nothing," said the rumseller, "but I knew how it would end. The only safety, boys, for any man, no matter how strong his resolution, is outside the door of a saloon."—Sel.

WESLEY ON LIQUOR-SELLING.

It will be seen by the following extract from a sermon of John Wesley on the "Use of Money," that temperance, both in its personal and public aspects, is no newly discovered branch of gospel teaching or church work:

"We may not gain by hurting our neighbor in his body; therefore we may not sell anything which tends to impair health. Such, is eminently, all that liquid fire, commonly called drams or spirituous liquors. It is true these may have a place in medicine; they may be of use in some bodily disorders, although there would be rarely any occasion for them were it not for the unskilfulness of the practicioner; therefore, such as prepare and sell them only for this end, may keep their conscience clear; but who are they who prepare them only for this end? Do you know ten such distillers in England? Then excuse these. But all who sell them in the common way to any that will buy, are poisoners-general. They murder his majesty's subjects by wholesale; neither does their eye pity or spare. They drive them to hell like sheep. What is their gain? Is it not the blood of these men? Who, then would envy their large estates and sumptuous palaces? A curse is in the midst of them. The curse of God cleaves to the stones, the timber, the furniture of them! The curse of God is in their gardens, their walks and their groves—a fire that burns to the nethermost hell! Blood, blood is there. The foundation, the floor, the walks, the roof, are stained with blood. And canst thou hope, O man of blood, tho thou art clothed in scarlet and fine linen, and farest sumptuously every day, canst thou hope to deliver down thy fields of blood to the third generation? Not so, for there is a God in heaven; therefore thy name shall soon be rooted out. Like to those whom thou hast destroyed, body and soul, 'thy memorial shall perish with thee!"

SMOKERS.

People are fond of saying that every boy that is born in the country has an equal chance of being president of the United States. That is getting to be a great mistake. It is the veriest nonsense to suppose that a boy who uses tobacco can ever have the least chance of being another Garfield or Lincoln.

About the highest official position to which a tobacco boy can aspire, is to be president of a donkey cart. In that case the donkey might earn a kind of hand to mouth, or rather cigaret to mouth living for the two. But it would be a humiliating position to place a moderately well-disposed donkey in, to oblige him to see the results of his labor go to maintain a human biped, whose highest use on earth is to make himself and everything he approaches smell bad. But a donkey is not stuck up or a stickler on dignity, and they have been known to survive for years the degradation of having their fate linked with a malodorous tobacco soak. But the donkey has always been an ill used slave.

THE AGENTS' HERALD.

A monthly journal, 16 page, 12x16 inches, well and handsomely printed, 50 cents a year, comes to this office. Its object is the publication and exposure of frauds and thieving advertisers, of whom it furnishes a long list; a sort of rogue's gallery. Lots of people in California are gulled into sending money—twenty-five cents up to ten dollars—to advertising scoundrels, who never send them anything in return. If they would send fifty cents a year to the Agents' Herald, Philadelphia, they would never get bit in that way any more. Beside, it is a cheap paper as interesting reading. Send for it, or send ten cents for a sample copy. Such a publication deserves the highest commendation, and everybody ought to pay fifty cents whether they want the paper or not, to encourage such a useful enterprise as a war upon the many gangs of professional thieves which so swarm the country. Send for it, and down with frauds. The paper is now in its fifth year:

WILL YOU HELP US?

PHILADELPHIA, June 15th, 1881.

"We mail you this specimen copy of our publication, with the hope that you will carefully examine and appreciate our effort to protect the public, which we do in exposing city advertising frauds—scoundrels who, in spite of the laudable efforts of the Post Office Department to prevent it, continue their swindling schemes, corrupting the morals of innocent youth, and annually defrauding country people to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars. We propose to watch these scoundrels with an eagle eye, and sound the alarm through the columns of this paper as soon as we discover them advertising, and that the public may be kept thoroughly posted, we pesire to scatter the Herald broadcast throughout the entire country.

It is our intention, after we have gained the confidence and support of the public, to employ at our own expense the services of an eminent attorney, whose duty it will be to prosecute and cause the imprisonment of all advertisers detected in conducting fraudulent schemes. Such a course will have a wholesome effect in driving others out of the business.

We are almost daily in receipt of letters of congratulation from which we select the following as fair samples:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15th, 1881.

L. LUM SMITH, ESQ:—I commend your enterprise to the attention of all Postmasters, and of the public in general. The press is doing much towards putting the unsuspecting on their guard against frauds, but your plan will do more than all the newspapers together in exposing this species of rascality.

HORATIO KING,
Ex-Postmaster General.

NEW YORK, April 19th, 1881.

L. LUM SMITH, ESQ:—Postmasters will no doubt interest themselves in your enterprise; it will save thousands of dollars, and prevent hundreds of people from being swindled through the U. S Mails. I consider you a public benefactor.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK,
Sec. New York Society for the Prever[illegible] of Vice.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

☞The Rescue is the Special Friend and Advocate of the Viticultural Interests of California, and is the Only Paper west of the Rocky Mountains that presents reliable facts and figures and information relating to that highly important and most excellent and laudable branch of industry.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE DOCTORS AND THE PRESIDENT.

It does not seem in the best of taste to make the President's illness a bulletin board, upon which to advertise rum and tokay and port wine as medical remedies. But "the trade" never hesitates to proclaim itself on every occasion that can present itself to us in our long journey from the cradle to the tomb.

The Catholic church asserts its own infallibility, but all the other churches, to whom exactly the same sources of information are wide open, stoutly deny the assumption. A sect of medical faith and practice claims an authority which is at least very arbitrary; but there are a great many other medical sects which assail and defy that authority, and the argument returned is nothing but a charge of quackery.

It would indicate ignorance and impertinence of an aggravated type to deny or belittle or ignore the patient industry, the persistent energy, the untiring study, the heroic devotion with which the medical professions have always sought the improvement of the means of relieving human suffering and preserving human life. No class of men have deserved greaser credit than the medicos for the successful results which have followed their skilful and scholarly and ingenious researches. But intelligent people will not attempt to clothe them with infallibility, nor invest with a sacred character their adherence to some antiquated practices and superstitions, when their own most advanced, most scholarly, most scientific, most experienced heroes and generals in their own camp, proclaim those ancient heresies to be mistakes, and clearly and conclusively prove them so. Quite a number of the common practices of physicians in vogue thirty years ago, are now known to have been mistakes. There is a medico now in Barbacoas, S. A. who studied in Paris about 40 years ago. He claims to be a "medico cientifico," and uses two remedies in almost every case; at least one of them if not both—viz. tartar emetic and the lancet. Chills, consumption, typhoid, worms, etc., all get the same treatment, and No. 3 remedy is calomel. Among the old cure-alls, rum and all its relatives were prominently used: this has survived all its fellow fossilisms and Dr. Edmunds of London says no medical man can give an intelligent explanation of the manner in which it can operate to the advantage of the sick or the sane.

Dr. B. W. Richardson, than whom there is no more competent authority, and who has given this matter more study and experiment than any other man, tells us the effect of alcohol upon the blood, the heart and the system so that all may understand it. And it is safe to say that no physician can give a satisfactory showing of how one ounce and a half of villainous, poisonous rum, which must have accelerated the action of the President's heart when his pulse was over 100, and gave it ever so much more work to do in his weak condition, could benefit him: nor how anything that vitiated and inflamed and poisoned his blood, could be a help to his recovery. The experiments of five years of a temperance hospital in London, and of many hundreds of the most skilful and successful practitioners in the world, have proved that the abandonment of all alcoholic treatment of disease produces the least percentage of fatal results. The prediction is ventured that in a dozen years from this, if President Garfield's physicians are reminded of this rum and port and tokay treatment, they will be very much ashamed of it.

BY THEIR FRUITS, &C.

SOME FRUITS.

The temperance reform in its entirety, as well as in the various branches and organizations, in and by which its operations have been conducted and its successes achieved, has had a thoro attestation of its heaven-inspired origin, in the persecution, obloquy and enmity, which has been directed against it and its advocates; by the world and by agencies as well, from which the warmest sympathy and readiest aid, might have been expected by those who have not studied the history of the reforms of this world.

Temperance agencies and societies have been met and fought at every inch of their progress, by open war fare, by secret underhanded enemies, but have suffered most from the general indifference of humanity to anything but its own immediate, present convenience, and its cruel disregard of the sufferings and misfortunes of its own brethren. Accusations of radicalism, unscripturalism, unsoundness in history and in medical science, imperfection and weakness in everything, has been constantly hurled against us. Mistakes of temperance measures, failures of our theories, errors of our opinions, have been the staple conversation of our opponents whenever they deigned to stoop to notice us.

And what has been the result of all these denials of our doctrines and charges of mistakes &c? No one side or party in any conflict of opinion has ever emerged from a prolonged contest so triumphantly and honorably as the temperance reformers. In all their history they have never proclaimed a doctrine from which they have been obliged to retreat one inch. They have never taken a position from which they have either been dislodged or have seen fit to retire: never had one single item of any charge made by their enemies substantiated. Never been proved guilty of any exaggerated assertion either of the evils of the drink system or of the blessings of genuine temperance.

Now our enemies have fought us out of the bible, and they find they have not one single passage asserted or implied from Genesis first to Revelation last, that in the least favors them or in the slightest degree condemns us. They have made the most grave charges of falsehood, ignorance, folly, fanaticism and hypocrisy and have utterly and ignominiously failed to establish the truth of one single word they have uttered in that direction.

Now what have been the fruits of this temperance agitation of 50 years. Victories right along, continuous, against the mightiest odds. And victories blessed of Heaven every time: sinners have been converted and reformed; homes that were desolate have been restored; the membership of the churches multiplied, how much only infinite knowledge can ascertain: and for every case of moderate or immoderate drinker reformed, perhaps 50 or 100 have been preserved from temptation. For every depraved sinner restored to the bosom of the church, who knows how many have been by the saving christian influences that have grown out of this blessed temperance work from its inception until now—prevented from ever setting out in the open way of the transgressor—and these blessings of prevention have come doubtless to millions who never thot once in their lives of tracing them to the real instrumentality which God called into action and honored with the charge of their guidance and preservation from the pitfalls of evil.

The trophies and blessings which are visibly due to the persistent energy and activity of the temperance army under the divine leadership are many—among them are Maine and Kansas ready for the coming of the kingdom of God, the only obstacle being the remnant outlaws of the beer and whisky thugs and the dregs of the harlot cup, which still poison the land to some extent. Vermont and portions of many other states more or less redeemed from the open and declared public worship of Satan. A dozen states ready to follow Kansas immediately, and two dozen more ready to follow them. Millions of sober reputable men and millions of virtuous noble women, good citizens who would not have been so or would have had no existence at all, but for the temperance gospel of the last 50 years. Society entirely reformed and converted from the fatal error that drunkenness was harmless and respectable. Every bar and den driven behind screens and obscured windows. The brand of Cain on the brow of every liquor seller in the land. Better churches, better preachers, better schools, better teachers; for the preachers and Christians and teachers were all to be reformed like all other people in that respect: and they all equally furnished their quota of reformers to the general muster roll; and they furnished their quota too of material to be convinced, and their quota to the ranks of opposition.

The women of America have advanced about 92 percent of the march from a condition of serfdom and slavery to their rightful perfect equality as citizens of the United States, and they owe about nine-tenths of the advance made to the place that has been given them among the temperance reformers, and the advocacy of their rightful claims by the reasonable and reasoning class of men and women engaged in that reform. The 92 per cent above dont mean that they possess 92 percent of their full equal rights, but that that or more per cent of the warfare is ended and the work done which was needed to achieve their complete enfranchisement. They are quite close to the daylight.

Again, in England, Ireland, Scotland, Australia, California and other states, we have the principle of prohibition established and vindicated in the success of temperance colonies, which are uniformly prosperous and happy and wealthy and of a high moral and religious tone.

Scotland, Wales, Ireland have closed the grogshop on Sunday and England will do so very soon. That is, the temperance reformers have taken down the image of Satan as the God of the sabbath, and will be in a position to do so very soon on the other days of the week. The temperance reform is closing the grogshop of California on Sunday as a preliminary to doing so on six other days of the week. Nothing is surer than if Satan is dethroned Sunday, all ground of objection to his removal altogether has vanished.

"By their fruits ye shall know them" It is about time now that the cunning instigation of Satan that temperance societies are ungodly or objectionable because they are secret societies and for other frivolous reasons was no longer listened to. They are in no wise secret societies in the sense of the really secret associations. But if they were so, or if the Masons or Knights of Pythias or the Sublime Elephants of the Mysterious Mausoleum of Mesopotamia shall ever bring forward such fruits, such trophies, such stars in their crown of rejoicing as the temperance reform can lay at the feet of the Master, in whose service and in whose name every first and last step and march and conflict of this warfare has been enacted—then the more millions we have of just such secret or otherwise assailable societies flooding the world, the better for the world and for all who love God and their fellow men.

THE CHURCH AND THE SERPENT,

The Delaware Signal has an excellent article from Wm. Bonar, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, on the causes of the decline of church revivals, from which the following extracts are gleaned.

The Rev. James Bland, Congregational pastor at Oberlin, has given some statistics, showing that since 1876, altho the number of churches and ministers had increased in that denomination, conversions had fallen off nearly 4,000 a year. In Ohio their converts had diminished regularly from 1531 in 1877, to 960 in 1880, and the decrease was similar in other denominations.

He quotes from the N. Y. Witness, a statement of Dr. Cuyler that the Presbyterian church was gaining about one a year for each congregation, and the state of Pennsylvania shows a net gain of 818 in 814 congregations. The Witness recommends to remedy the alarming state of things, by unremitting prayer among all Christians for the presence and power of the Holy Ghost among us!!!

Mr. Bonar continues:

Why is this phenomenon in the history of American churches so alarmingly apparent? Is it because the Lord's arm is shortened that He cannot save? or His ear dull that He cannot hear? Surely not. But is it not rather that we are, as a nation, cherishing and clasping to our embrace an abomination with which the Holy Spirit cannot co-exist? In Luke 1, 15, Eph. 5, 18, and similar passages, we learn that abstinence from wine and strong drink is a condition in the individual if he would be filled by the Holy spirit. What is true of an individual, is true of a community of individuals, is true of a State, is true of a nation. Can we reasonably expect the dove to brood in the heart of the Nation while we cherish the serpent there? What folly for the Weekly Witness in view of "this alarming state of things," to call upon all Christians for unremitting prayer for the presence and power of the Holy Ghost among us, while the great majority of those called upon to pray, sustain by their action as citizens, the serpent in his usurpation of the place which they pray the Holy Ghost to occupy? Why not rather call upon all Christian voters to put on Christian manhood and use the power God has put into their hands, and put away the abominable thing which God hates? That Christians should pray for the removal of the great obstacle, that all Christians acknowledge to stand in the way of the progress of the Gospel I can readily understand; but how the Christian, who thus prays, can hope for an answer to his prayer while he suffers himself to be led by the demagog to perpetuate that obstacle, is not obvious.

We read in the 18th of Rev. that one of the items of traffic of the doomed city of Babylon was "the souls of men." We shudder at the thought of such a traffic. But is our practice essentially anything different? We allow 250,000 liquor dealers to kill by their business 60,000 of our fellow countrymen annually, and consign their souls to perdition on the easy terms that they pay us sixty millions, or one thousand dollars per soul. Now if these things are so, and if it is true that the great majority of professed Christians lend their influence as citizens to perpetuate this state of things, then it is not hard to see a reason why the Holy Spirit seems to be taking his flight. In view of the fact that the church has been a partner in the crime of the State in this matter, it behooves her to repent in dust and ashes and bring forth fruits meet for repentance. Let us not be content to be children of that good old party that saved the country. God is able to raise up from the stones of the street those that will lay down their lives for their country. Is not the axe even now laid at the root of our liberty tree? Let us remember that every tree that beareth not good fruit is hewn down. I cannot but be anxious for my country when I reflect that the voice of the blood of the thousands slain by rum, mingled with the wails of ten thousand times ten thousand heart-sick women and famished children, are going up to the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, crying, how long, O most merciful Father, before the party scales shall be removed from the eyes of thy children, that they may see that they are quenching thy spirit by upholding the despoiler.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' AID SOCIETY.

The seventh annual report of this most noble and excellent charity has just been published. The Home of the Society is at 68 Clementina St. It has lodging accommodations, baths, gymnasium, reading-room, a savings-bank, a supper, and good kind loving counsel and ready help for the homeless and helpless boys and girls of this city, or who come here from abroad. During the year homes have been found for 101 homeless and foodless children. 368 lodgings and 1123 meals have been given to helpless waifs, and 1424 pieces of clothing distributed. 95 children have been taught to take care of their spare money and have deposited $495 of savings in their little bank.

Not only have the children been directed to homes, but the homes have been directed to find good, grateful children, among those rescued from perdition, and the return of their thankful love will be a daily bonanza of joyous blessings to those homes that have shielded, and housed, and fed, and clothed these little ones, and blessings from a richer and loftier source will come to the kind hearts who, in receiving the helpless, have lovingly entertained the great Friend of the fatherless.

This generous charity is sustained by private subscriptions and donations, but there is every reason to believe that an investment in the stock will pay better dividends than gov't bonds; for he that giveth to the poor, especially the child-poor, whose poverty is not their own faults lendeth to the Lord, and there is no fear of repudiation in that quarter.

To-morrow there will doubtless be $50,000 wasted in the grogshops of this city, to encourage their business, which is solely the creation of crime, pauperism, misery and war against the homes and the children of the city; a conspiracy of 5,000 houses and their occupants to wreck and blast the helpless children. Our citizens employ $50,000 a day to help fill our jails and streets with starving, suffering people, and the Childrens' Aid Society has to depend upon the charitable and the poor to help a few of those poor plundered children to a shelter. And they want to erect a building. Five dollars a year constitutes a member. Won't you, reader, be one of 1,000 to go in this week with your $5. You can take the pledge too, in their Band of Hope, which Mr. Baker has thoughtfully kept in operation, and on whose roll 1,232 members have inscribed their names. Take a membership, friend, and add your little help; you can buy a partnership in a wondrously rich mine of precious things for a moderate deposit. There is a prize for every body and no blank for any one.

Address J. H. Baker, 68 Clementina St., S. F., or go and see the institution yourself and own a shingle in the roof.

BOURNVILLE.

ANOTHER TROPHY OF TEMPERANCE.

The Alliance News describes a new enterprise established a few miles from Birmingham by the Cadbury Bros., the sons of a veteran English temperance reformer, Mr. John Cadbury, who is still living. Twenty years ago the "Cocoa Essence" factory of this firm employed 30 hands; of late its business demands the labor of 300 men, boys and girls. A tract of 15 acres has been secured, a model factory built, model cook houses and dining rooms, model residences for the workers, model playgrounds and every provision for their comfort and welfare, and the grogshop and all its crimebreeding appliances strictly excluded.

The girl's workroom is 240 by 60 feet; all the young women employed are dressed in a brown Holland costume, a very neat uniform, while at work: this dress is the factory property and is very cleanly for workers at confectionary; The women come at 9 and leave at 6. While every thotful precaution for the physical comfort of the workers has been taken, the temperance proprietors have remembered that their people have a moral nature as well as a mechanical force. So every morning from 9:5 to 9:30 all hands are assembled in a room designed for that purpose, and a simple religious service is gone thru. One of the principals reads a portion of Scripture, and the union of all in a hymn of praise makes this daily incident one of priceless importance, in the opinion of all concerned therein.

The men who do these things, the Cadburys, the Richardsons, the Titus Salts, the Landises are the veritable princes and prophets of our day: the Abraham, Moses, Joshua, Gideon and Daniel of our race. And the Creator so contrived the mechanism of this world and all its inter-adaptations, that the men who do these noble and magnanimous acts, considering the welfare of their own dependents as well as their own, take the most certain and effective method of insuring their own success in a financial direction. That safeguard from the grogshop, that model arrangement of a factory, the model hours adopted, the humane provisions for the welfare of the workers, and especially the 25 minutes of the first morning hour devoted to a service of adoration and thanks to the Giver of all good—if faithfully copied in California, would ensure the success of any manufacturing industry that could be undertaken (with any reasonable ground of success to start with) from Siskiyou to San Diego. Whereas establishing a factory of any kind among a nest of leprous beer halls and murderous grogshops, has, under any and all circumstances of favorable market etc. about 99 chances of failure to one of success. The grogshop brands all its surroundings and vicinities, and all their interests with the broad arrow which symbolizes God's wrath.

Ex Surgeon General Hammond openly denounces the treatmeut of President Garfield by the Surgeons intrusted with his case. There have been some untoward symptoms of late, but there seems to be a well founded hope that the patient will weather them all. There have been fears of blood poisoning and Dr. Hammond thinks it may be present, but he holds the chances of recovery more than equal. They dont tell of administering any more rum poison now a days; perhaps that has been discontinued. Several more pieces of broken rib have been removed thru an incision made in the back to draw off the discharge from the depth of the wound. It is about time Guitteau was hung or roasted. He ought to have a fair trial, but the trial need not occupy over five minutes and should precede the execution of sentence by about 5 minutes more.

The Alliance News among other "fruits of the traffic" copies from the London Lancet an account of a shocking suicide of a miner of 45 years of age in Australia. He had been an occasional drunk: having a burst for a week or two, and then keeping sober for months. He was found a few days after the conclusion of a burst lying outside of his cabin, dead. He had chopped his left arm with a hatchet, making over twenty wounds and severing the arm entirely at the wrist, and then he had cut his throat. It is too horrible to repeat. but it is only one of a vast number of horrible cases occuring every day all over the Christian civilizations of the world, but not in Pagan Countries. These things occur in every case from the use of the drink that a good many people try to assert was one of the divinely appointed emblems of the holy communion.

In England owing to the pressure of the Irish land bill on the time of the parliament, it is feared that action upon the Sunday closing bills and other matters of intense importance to the public welfare, will have to be postponed to another session. The Irish question, how to take care of the paupers made by the distillers and the landlord robbers, has always been an important one; but the Sunday closing bill and the local option bill are of infinitely greater importance to England and the world.

The Police Judge of San Luis Obispo says that Mrs. Emily Pitt Stevens has "busted the business of this court," and he threatens to retreat to some hermitage where temperance booms do not penetrate,—Monterey Californian.

Unfermented Wine. Attention is requested to the advertizement of Mr Winters who supplies the fruit of the vine for communion purposes.

THE WINE INTEREST.

NO. FIVE.

The question, does it pay or will it pay, to make this a wine and brandy country, is one of immense importance to Californians, but most of all, to the people who raise grapes. They, above all men, should look this question of finance square in the face, without prejudice or avarice or hate; they should weigh the matter intelligently, calmly, wisely. At the start they should drop forever, one gross mistake many of them labor under, which is that those who object to wine making are hostile to the welfare of the vineyard men. Look at the matter fairly, and see who is most likely to tell you the truth and be your friend. The one who has no axe to grind, no trade to make, does not ask a cent from you for any purpose whatever; or the party who is going to levy a commission and a profit and a shave on the wine and brandy you are coaxed to make, and the grapes you are to sell at his distillery?

Look at this matter squarely and you will see that two parties make each a separate proposition. The wine and brandy trader who expects to live and grow rich upon your toil, advises you to make wine and holds out the promise that a ton of your grapes shall be worth as much as a ton of Bodega potatoes, when there is a big crop of the latter, say $10 to $15 per ton.

We, the other party, who have not one cent of monied interest in the matter either way, propose to you to make a ton of your grapes, worth three or four tons of potatoes, as they really are and ought to be, three or four cents a pound at the vineyard. The wine maker's offer puts you and others too in deadly peril; our offer promises or threatens no harm to anybody. Can you refuse then to listen calmly and intelligently to a reasonable discussion of this matter? In the last article we were not quite done with

FRANCE.

Mr. Arpad Haraszthy tells you that you can always find a market in Bourdeaux for one hundred million gallons a year of California wine at 35 cents a gallon. Now if this is true, or if France would buy fifty million gallons even a year of our wine or any other wine, it forever gives the lie to the assertion made by the wine advocates, that wine and brandy-making, or either, is a profitable business for France. In the preceding number it was proved clearly that France owed nothing but loss and poverty to that business, but Mr Haraszthy confirms it when he says that France, after making 1,000 to 1,500 million gallons of wine, has to buy an enormous quantity in addition, for the use of her own drunkards.

And he supposes that to send this wine to France, the grapes from which it is made will be sold by the growers at $8 per ton (half the value of potatoes) which he thinks will pay a return to the millionaire capitalists, who he very properly supposes will have come to own all the vineyards by the time this State makes 100 gallons of wine for export. He is right in implying that the wine making vineyards will change hands, as so many of them have done under mortgages and the bad management of those who use wine.

A recent article in the Chronicle (July 3rd) proclaims the fact too, that in the last 30 years the consumption of beer in France has been multiplied 43 times: has grown to be 43 times as much as it used to be. The increase of strong spirits we know is increasing in France and has been for 50 years at a terribly alarming rate; and it looks as if the wine business, which has pauperized every country that ever experimented with it is fast having the same effect in France. The universal drunkenness which has ever followed wine in all countries is even too much for the frugal and ever economizing Frenchman, of whom it used to be said that 39 out of 40 were always hoarding a portion of their earnings, against one in five of the English.

About two years ago the wine advocates gave the following as the wine production of the world

Countries.	Gallons.
France	1,505,000,000
Spain	528,000,000
Portugal	130,750,000
Italy	810,650,000
Austro-Hungary	575,300,000
Germany	156,900,000
Switzerland	10,460,000
Russia and Turkey	52,300,000
Greece and Cypress	26,150,000
Roumania	15,690,000
Total	3,806,200,000

Please look at it and decide if you please, which of those old wine producing countries you would desire California to resemble or copy, and in what respect if any.

Take from these countries the good and sober element that exists in France and Germany, and then the sober State of Maine, or the sober and christian portion of Massachusetts or the grand State of Kansas, three States but a few days old in comparison with those countries—and the people of any one of them are of more importance to the world and exert a greater influence for good upon it and will continue to do so, than the whole of the others united. One vigorous young State of sober Christian American civilization is worth more than a dozen of these wine debauched. wine pauperized, wine benighted and wine brutalized nations.

And California has a future of wealth and power within her grasp, which can only be attained by a careful avoidance of the manifest pauperizing and barbarizing agencies to which is mainly due the present abject degraded condition of the miserable, despicable. bankrupted and decayed nation who have prostituted their vineyards into a scathing curse to mankind.

GRAPES.

State aid and private aid, much individual enterprise and effort have been employed in originating and developing a wine and brandy system—under the mistaken idea that it was to become a paying business. But not a particle of effort, comparatively speaking, has ever been made to develop the grape business, the real business of the grape grower; the business God planned for us and gave us. Wine making is simply and only using the sugar in the grape, which can be had just as good and as useful and as cheap in the sugar cane, the cactus and the potato.

No society has ever attempted to create a market or instigate a supply or develope a trade in canned grapes, in fresh pure wholesome grape juice, in grape jelly. Almost no energy has been put forth to stimulate a production of raisins and to secure a demand for our raisins and increase and advertize their excellence.

Not one intelligent effort has been made to secure a transport at honest figures for fresh grapes to the East, where there is a market for at least 1000 tons of fresh California grapes every day at 8 to 10 cents a pound, which ought to be divided in this way: freight 2½ cents; Eastern commission and expenses 2½ cents, and to the grape growers here, delivered at the cars, 3 cents per pound or more.

No effort has been made to abate the monstrous extortion of 6 or 7 cents a pound charged by the railroad companies where 2 cents would be an excessive rate to satisfy the most grasping monopolist on the Eastern side of the mountains. Not a protest has been made against the charge of seven cents freight on a pound of grapes which yields its grower one cent.

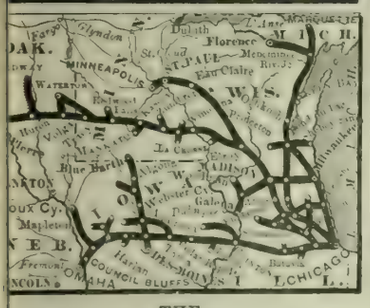
The success of the temperance cause in this State is beyond comparison the most important condition which can affect the present and future welfare of its whole people. It would seem therefore a desirable and judicious movement to select now a proper, honest and acceptable gentleman as our temperance candidate for governor.

If an unexceptionable selection can be agreed upon and put forward now, it might be a necessity of any political party that means to elect, to endorse the temperance candidate. It will never help the temperance cause for us to endorse the nominee of either of the old parties, who may give us some double meaning assurances of his personal regard for our principles. That man is nominated to do anything else than favor onr movement or promote the public welfare. No one can fail to understand at this day that the welfare of the country is a consideration which never enters into the plans and schemes of either of the trained bands of politicians. The success of their party in the securing of official position and the distribution of the spoil, is the objective point for which the professional politician must aim. And altho in the old parties there may be intensely patriotic men, all they possess of genuine patriotism must be kept out of sight and hearing of their political friends, in any effort they put forth towards taking a part in public affairs.

The recent proceedings of legislative bodies in this and other States and of our national congress, have given a more than usually emphatic proclamation of the fact that the interests of the people and of the country are entirely subordinated to the interests of party, and in many instances to the interests of the most unworthy individuals of the party; whose venality and corruption and successful political villainy are the only qualities thru which they have attained their powerful vantage ground.



This condition of affairs has grown up because no united and intelligent effort has been made to resist its growth. The public heart is not half so rotten as its interpreters assert and believe. It has been beguiled by bonfire and torchlight procession patriotism and whisky inspired oratory into a tolerance of the present political rottenness, and now wants a Moses to lead it into a better land and a purer atmosphere.

The people of Kansas fixed upon Governor St. John to be their candidate, and the Republican party was obliged to endorse him and adopt the temperance platform: altho that party was largely in the majority anyway, they were obliged to take this course of action. If the temperance people of this State desire the success of our principles and the redemption of the State from the all-pauperizing and all-poisoning and all-destroying influences of the grogshop vampire conspiracy, they are now in a position to make a successful movement, but they must begin now and must begin to act wisely and so continue thruout.

WOMANS HERALD OF INDUSTRY.—A new eight page monthly paper of very neat appearance and interesting contents, Mrs. J. W. Stow, Editor and proprietor, 304 Stockton St. Devoted to the promotion of industrial pursuits, and opportunities for women and girls: advocating the development of those industries which are adapted to women's tastes and physical capacities, and at the same time important and useful helps to the public welfare. The opening number gives promise of a most readable, able, spicy and very useful journal.

DO YOU KNOW that during the past week about 1500 of your fellow citizens have been slain by the grogshops? 1500 more are being slain this week: and they are hoping to keep up this butchery every week and involve the whole country in vice, crime and pauperism beside. What are you going to do about it?, you personally are responsible for your share in all this work of death, worse and more of it every way than the war of the rebellion.

The Cyclopaedia War.

The month of July, 1881, witnesses the completion of the largest and most important literary work this country and the century have seen. It is the Library of Universal Knowledge, large type edition, in 15 large octavo volumes, containing 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's Cyclopædia, at less than one-fifth its cost, and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopædia, at a little more than one-fourth its cost.

Chambers's Encyclopædia, which forms the basis of the Library of Universal Knowledge (the last London edition of 1880 being reprinted verbatim as a portion of its contents), is the laborious product of the ripest British and European scholarship. It has developed through a century of Cyclopædia making; its various editions having been many times revised, in successive years, till it has come to be universally recognized, by those competent to judge, as standing at the very front of great aggregations of knowledge, and better adapted than any other Cyclopædia for popular use. It contains such full and important information as the ordinary reader, or the careful student, is likely to seek, upon about 25,000 subjects in every department of human knowledge. Chambers's Encyclopædia, however, is a foreign production, edited and published for a foreign market, and could not be expected to give as much prominence to American topics as American readers might desire. To supply these and other deficiencies a large corps of American editors and writers have added important articles upon about 15,000 topics, covering the entire field of human knowledge, bringing the whole number of titles under one alphabetical arrangement to about 40,000. Thus the work is thoroughly Americanized, and the Library of Universal Knowledge becomes at once the latest and most complete Encyclopædia in the field, at a mere fraction of the cost of any similar work which has preceded it.

Victory

For The

Price

Revolution

$10,000 Reward

To Club Agents.

Price of the 15 volumes, complete, in extra cloth binding, $15.00. In half Russia, sprinkled edges, $20.00. In half Russia, gilt top, $22.50. In full library sheep, marbled edges, $25.00.

The superlative value and importance of this great Encyclopædia lies especially in the fact that it is brought within the reach of every one who aspires after knowledge and culture. It is really a library of universal knowledge. It brings a liberal education easily within the reach even of every plowboy of the country and apprentice boy of the city. Every farmer and every mechanic in the land owes it to himself and to his children that such a Cyclopædia shall henceforward form a part of the outfit of his home. To the professional man, and every person of intelligence in every walk of life, a Cyclopædia is a necessity.

Of course the old and wealthy publishers who have grown rich (it is said that the Appletons have made a profit of nearly two million dollars on their Cyclopædia) from the sale of their high-priced publications are not pleased that their monopolies are broken and their power overthrown. Of course the book agents and booksellers who have been used to getting from 40 to 60 per cent commission for selling these high-priced books are not so well pleased to sell the Library of Universal Knowledge on 15 per cent commission, though those who are not short-sighted discover that their own interests, after all, are identical with the interests of the people, and their real profits, in the end, are increased, by the immense sales which result from meeting the people's wants. The majority of booksellers, however, are better pleased to slander than to sell this and our numerous other standard and incomparably low-priced publications. But the Literary Revolution has always looked to the people, in whose interests it is, for its patronage, and it has never looked in vain, as our more than one million volumes printed last year (this year being increased to probably more than two millions) abundantly prove. You can order the Cyclopædia directly from us, and by uniting with your neighbors and friends you can secure club rates as follows:

A discount of 10 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering at one time three or more sets of the Cyclopædia; and a discount of 15 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering five or more sets at one time.

As a special inducement to our friends and patrons to go to work promptly and vigorously, each doing what he can for the dissemination of universal knowledge, we propose to distribute $10,000 in special premiums as follows, in addition to the regular discount to clubs:

$5,000 Reward to be distributed equally among the first 500 club agents who send us clubs of not less than five subscribers, after June 15th and before September 1st.

$5,000 Reward In addition to the first $5,000 to be distributed among the 100 club agents who, during the same time, send us the largest number of subscribers, not less than twenty in number, the amount to be distributed proportionately to the whole number of subscribers which each of the 100 club agents may send us.

The names of the subscribers must in every case be forwarded to us. The first $5,000 named will be distributed as specified as rapidly as the orders are received, and the remaining $5,000 will be distributed promptly on Sept. 1st. The names of the persons receiving these rewards will be printed, with the amounts received by each, and the list sent to all the club agents entering into competition for them. Subscribers must be actual purchasers for individual use, to entitle the club agent to the rewards under this offer, and not booksellers or agents who buy to sell again.

Persons desiring to raise clubs may send to us at once for sample volumes, if they desire, in the various styles of binding, paying us 75 cents for the volume in cloth, $1.00 for the volume in half Russia, sprinkled edges, and $1.25 for the volume in library sheep. Orders for the full sets will be filled by us with the utmost promptness, within our ability to manufacture, beginning not later than July 10th, orders being filled in the order of their receipt by us.

Specimen pages of the "Library of Universal Knowledge" will be sent free upon request. Descriptive catalogue of our large list of standard publications, with terms to clubs, and illustrated pamphlet describing book-making and type-setting by steam, will be sent upon application. Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by express. Fractions of $1.00 may be sent in postage-stamps.

On the Temperance Plan.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL PRICE LIST.

[Corrected weekly for the Readers of The Rescue.]

Market Changes.

Teas have advanced during the past fortnight. Japan of good quality is from 3c to 5c higher per pound; black teas are firm, but the advance is slight. Canned goods, especially fruits and vegetables are lower, the present market is certainly a favorable opportunity for buyers to place their orders for fall or winter supplies. Eastern hams and lard are firm in price and higher. The market is active and the supply limited.

The wheat and flour market remains firm; good milling wheat, $1.40; shipping do., $1.35@1.37½.

Butter and eggs have been remarkably firm for several days past strictly choice eggs bring 30c per dozen readily, and butter of the first quality 28c to 30c per pound. We have a steady demand from our regular customers for good butter and eggs at full rates, and are always willing to remit for them at full rates. Eastern and inferior Calafornia eggs are offering much lower.

Baking powder—We manufacture the Rocky Mountain baking powder, warranted equal to anything in use—1-lb. per doz., $3.75; ¼-lb., $1.

Sugar—We quote cube or crushed in bbls., 13c; dry granulated, 12¾c; moist do., 12¼c; golden C, 11¼c; mariposa C. 11c; less quantities, ¼c higher.

Coal oil—Starlight per case of 10 gals., $2.90; continental, $2.75; peerless, $2.15; elaine, $3.50.

☞ A large addition to our store-room, made during the last few weeks, will give us much greater facilities for doing business, enable us to fill orders more promptly, and also to buy goods in larger quantities at lower figures, all of which advantages shall be shared by our patrons. If you hesitate to send your remittance direct, send it to the Rescue or any paper in which you see our advertisement, or to any bank or friend here to be delivered on presentation of shipping receipt. We wish to give you all the security possible, but do not include losses sure to be made by credit sales in arranging our prices.

National Freeman,

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,

First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy, or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

To increase the membership of your Lodge, get up a list of subscribers for the RESCUE.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St. San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix. Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

The business is so easy to learn, and our instructions are so simple and plain that anyone can make great profits from the very start. No one can fail who is willing to work. Women are as successful as men. Boys and girls can earn large sums. Many have made at the business over one hundred dollars in a single week. Nothing like it ever known before. All who engage are surprised at the ease and rapidity with which they are able to make money. You can engage in this business during your spare time at great profit. You do not have to invest capital in it. We take all the risk. Those who need ready money should write to us at once. All furnished free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

A Game fellow at Yuba City came home from his saloonkeepers evening school on Wednesday of last week at 9 o'clock, gave his mother who is 80 years of age, a terrible beating and kicking, and ended by throwing her and her bedding out of doors where she passed the night. The Sutter Farmer in relating the incident asks "where is the whipping post?" Yes indeed, it is time that keeping a poison den and inciting boys to kick and kill their parents, was punished at the whipping post. There never was any other crime to which that punishment is so appropriate.

New Lodges.—Eureka at Anderson, J. W. Spann L. D. and Mc Donald Lodge at Millville, Shasta Co, both by W. Crowhurst. Among the charter members of the former are Mr. Edward Frisbie and family formerly of Vallejo, and every one of them a thoro good templar by birth, education, nationality and principle.

One of the best missions to engage in nowadays is a temperance mission to the children right at home, to teach them lessons of temperance.

The prohibition movement must be somewhat lively in Iowa. At a recent Democratic convention the candidate for school superintendent, made a prohibition speech. He evidently wants to get elected.

No good citizen can properly vote for a candi date for any position who is not sincerely pledged to uproot the infernal drink leprosy which is destroying the life of this beautiful State and doing its best to make it a den of thieves.

His nose looked like it had been thrown "onto" him when it was hot and had never cooled off. He was well versed in bar-room etiquette. He was a saloonatic libertine, gambler and drunkard, and said: "Prohibition is an (hic) outrage on chris-(hic) tianity, as it robs christians of com(hic)munion wine.' He then fell into a hog pen and went to sleep. Iu a short time he became about half awake and rubbing his head on a pig's back, said: "Say, (hic) friend, you ain't shaved (hic) lately is you? I think prohibition is a (hic) failure, don't (hic) you?"

The appointment made by President Garfield of Charles Kahlo, of Indiana, to be Consul General at Berlin, has caused great dissatisfaction among the Hoosier Germans, because Kahlo is a strong Temperance member of the Indiana Legislature, and supported the Constitutional Amendment. A protest from the Germans was sent to the President, and the appointment of Kahlo is withdrawn. Great is the Beer Congress, and potent with the Republican leaders is the German vote. The ruling cry is "Down with the Temperancists? Death to Prohibition?" All candidates for office who favor Prohibition must be opposed. "Prohibition must be prohibited." says the Chicago Tribune and the Indianopolis Germans, and "amen" says President Garfield.—Ex.

The British ship Oriflamme, a first class iron ship bound from London to San Francisco took fire on the 12th of June in latitude 18 south and longitude 93 west (about 1200 miles west of Arica, Peru; took fire suddenly and next day an explosion took place, and the vessel sunk. The crew had just been taken off by an Italian vessel now at Wilmington, Cal. Cargo, iron, bags and liquors. Fire unaccountable, as are a great many things where liquor is part of the cargo. Some 15 years ago a ship was ready for sea in Liverpool with liquor and powder, etc for Africa. The steward went with a lantern to get some whisky: whisky and lamp got into company, and in twenty minutes the ship and the landing stage near by and many of the plate glass windows up town were demolished with a first class explosion. It is about time whisky was declared an outlaw all over the world.

The French are an industrtous and economica people. They make and they save. If they make but little they save some. The people have faith in the stability of their government, and during these difficult periods, thru which there has been an able management of the finances: Still the answer to the continued prosperity of the French is the fact that they are an industrious and saving people, who generally spend less than they earn. Not many years since, an eminent statesman stated that in 1841 Sir Robert Peel in discussing the comparative wealth of England and France said, "In England one person in five spends all his earnings. In France there is scarcely one in forty who does the same; the other thirty-nine make savings. A saving people will be a contented people. Poverty will bring a train of evils with it. It is easier for a sack to stand when full of wheat than when empty. More people can stand prosperity than can stand pinching poverty.—Ex.

In a saloon (of course) William Hart fired three bullets into the body of his father at Merced on the 27th July. Parks Saloon. That is what saloons are for. Go on and vote for saloons to flourish, till your own boy shoots his father.

It has never occurred to a lazy. careless, idle man to unite in earnest prayer to the Lord to cut his fire wood for him, but people are often urged to unite in unremitting prayer to the Lord to undo what they themselves do at the ballot box every year, and intend to continue doing.

One of New York's most famous physicians, Dr. Willard Parker, makes the astounding statement that one-third of the deaths in New York City are the result, directly or indirectly, of the use of alcohol, and that in the last thirty-eight years 190.000 persons have died of its use in the city.—Lifeboat.

Correction.—In the article on the Wine Interest last week, page 618, first column, 14th line from bottom, "by the time this state makes 100 gallons of wine for export," should read 100 million gallons. And in an article in this issue which says nothing ever worked such miracles as the Bible, there might have been a partial exception made for the miraculous conversion of the Bulletin and Call from a five years rabid hostility to the railroad company, to a condition of the most motherly affection for their ancient "anaconda" enemy. That conversion was as sudden as a thunder clap, and it is believed the Bible had nothing whatever to do with it.

National Temperance Convention.—The proceedings of this grand assemblage of God's chosen apostles at Saratoga, June 21, and 22, are now published and for sale in a large pamphlet of 228 pages of the best reading matter in the world, the Bible alone excepted. Every body ought to have it. It is safe to say that no more lofty, noble and holy purpose, nor any object of such transcendant importance to the welfare of this country, ever called a convention together. No assembly was ever graced with a higher order of talent or honored with a grander array of noble men and heroic women consecrated to the service of God and humanity. The book contains a bonanza of good things and is only 25 cents. Send to J. N. Stearns 58 Reade St. N. Y. Every lodge should send for a dollar or two dollars worth.

Competition.—If all the powers of darkness had combined to invent a scheme to antagonize mankind, to arouse selfishness and destroy virtue and honesty in the world, they could not have accomplished more than has been done by our competitive system of labor and trade. This infernal system develops all the innate depravity of the human heart; it stifles generosity, crushes out kindly feeling, destroys human brotherhood and forces men back into a state of moral barbarism.—Greenbacker.

That is very true if the competitive system of setting up ten grogshops for every one honest business is meant. Four or five thousand grogshops in San Francisco to debauch and pauperize the working classes, to destroy and kill every honest trade and industry and to make Chinese labor a necessity, is too much of a competition against the white laborer. But there never has been in California any obstacle of the slightest importance to its being the paradise and Utopia of the working man, except the grogshop and the pauperizing agencies due solely to it.

And if greenbacks and gold twenties and diamonds were to be rained down upon this State a foot deep next week, the condition of the workingman and the poor would not be a particle improved a month later. Nor could any conceivable movement or miracle be of the slightest benefit to them, while the grogshop owns and runs and skins and votes and robs and kills the white labor of the State and shuts up every avenue of individual or general prosperity.

WHERE THERE'S DRINK THERES DANGER.

Write it on the liquor store,
Write it on the prison door,
Write it on the gin-shop fine,
Write, aye write this truthful line:
"Where there's drink there's danger."

Write it on the workhouse gate,
Write it on the schoolboy's slate,
Write it in the copy book,
That the young may at it look:
"Where there's drink there's danger."

Write it on the churchyard mound,
Where the drink-slain dead are found.
Write it on the gallows high,
Write it for all passers by;
"Where there's drink there's danger."

Write it underneath your feet,
Up and down the busy street;
Write it for the great and small,
In the mansion, cot, and hall;
"Where there's drink there's danger."

Write it on our ships which sail,
Borne along by steam and gale;
Write it in large letters —plain,
O'er our land, and past the main;
"Where there's drink there's danger."

Write it in the Christian's home:
Sixty thousand drunkards roam,
Year by year, from God and right,
Proving with resistless might,
"Where there's drink there's danger."

[For the RESCUE.]

WINE AND THE BIBLE.

Tipplers in self defence often quote the miracle at the marriage supper and Paul's advice to Timothy. They urge that as wine was used in bible times by teachers and exemplars of the most rigid piety, among whom was our Savior himself, its use now ought not to be prohibited. But society has so changed in all conditions that this conclusion is incorrect.

Before the invention of gun powder, when battles were won by hand to hand encounters, health was a necessity both to individuals and nations; people boasted of their Samsons and Goliahs. To be weak was disgraceful, and habits that tend to ruin physical health were either forbidden by custom or law itself.

In the present mode of warfare, physical strength is of little avail, and as one result there is a great disregard of all laws of health. The ancients built gymnasiums, and instituted public games at the expense of the state: we endow hospitals and build insane assylums and homes for the inebriate.

Our business habits have a greater tendency to prematurely exhaust the nervous system, and hence there is greater danger now than anciently of attempting to force artificial displays of mental activity by the use of alcoholic stimulants. Over anxiety and over doing are the physical and mental curses of our people.

The ancients lived slowly. They had no large monied corporations, no stock exchange, no railroads, steamboats or even stage coaches. They had no telegraph, no communication by mail no daily papers or other periodicals, no printing presses and scarcely any books. They had no mariners compass, no large ships no machines for harvesting and threshing grain, and no manufactories to utilize the forces of nature or of steam. They had no shifting, flitting bustling fashions. They had nothing that we had; we retain nothing that they had. Our habits are as different from theirs as tho we lived in another world. They talked slowly, worked slowly, lived so as to make a minimum rather than a maximum drain upon the nervous forces. Hence there was less need of artificial strength, so called, and greater physical stamina to overcome the evil effects of the bowl if it were brought into occasional social use.

Our food has a great tendency to inflame the blood, and renders the use of alcohol particularly blameful. The ancients subsisted chiefly upon fruits and grains. The Jews used no fine flour, no flesh of the swine, no lard, no sugar, no syrup, no soda, no tea no coffee, and their children were not fed on soothing syrup; that is, not upon the patent kind. There were but few doctors, there were no patent medicines used, and more wonderful still, no tobacco.

Tobacco is the most fruitful of all the causes of drunkenness. The Indians are a nation of tobacco users, and they go down before the fire water like a forest before the flames. Show me a confirmed drunkard who did not first use tobacco, and I will show you grapes from thorns and figs from thistles. The deadly tobacco box so inflames and shakes the nerves that its votaries take to alcohol as does a match to gun powder. The ancients were cursed with but one Pandora's box, we have them in every household. If tobacco is burned upon the marriage altar it is a sacrilege to pour out libations of wine.

The wines of the east were doubtless weak in alcohol. But the danger is not so much from wine as from its creating an appetite which will not be satisfied with wine if beverages containing more alcohol can be obtained. Here was the efficient safeguard of the ancients. They had nothing but wine, no stronger beverages were known. We have all sorts of stimulating drinks, from benzine straight to endless compounds of strychnine, fusil oil and aquafortis. They had no brandy, no whisky, no gin, no rum, no hub punch, no distilled spirits of any kind. We have them all on every street of every village and every city in California and thruout the land.

Drunkards do not willingly become so. They are men. Gain the confidence of one and he will tell you his chains are galling; he will tell of hard struggles of withered hopes and all about despair. It requires something more than light wine, figs and brown bread to make a drunkard, They do not so disease the body and weaken and demoralize the nerves that the appetites are no longer held in subjection by the will.

What was meat for the ancients has become poison for us.

When tipplers can no longer find fire arms, fashions, swine flesh, tea, coffee, drugs, tobacco, brandy rum, whisky, gin nor any distilled spirits we will grant them as much genuine fruit of the vine as they want when they are sick for their stomach's sake, and for a luxury as often as they are married.

C. N. M.

Our friend falls into a common error in supposing that the wine of the ancients was weak and comparatively harmless. It made people filthily and nastily and murderously drunk all the way from Noah down. It utterly destroyed many nations and reduced others to the veriest insignificance. If the Bible and other history is to be at all relied on, wine produced exactly the same effects, and drunken people acted in the same manner of old as now. There is one difference which makes the use more general now: the ancients had no philosophers, priests or poets who used a bible to defend wine drinking and no politicians who bought preferment and power thru the grogshop.

"EXCLUSIVENESS"

If there is any place in the universe where the tippler, moderate drinker and confirmed drunkard can make themselves more obnoxious than in a railway car, passenger depot, or omnibus, we would like to know where it is?

In such close crowded precincts the atmosphere soon becomes nauseating to temperate people and with deep disgust and loathing we seek a temporary relief in hoisting car windows and indulge our minds in problematical conjectures relative to final prohibition and the ultimate overthrow of King Alcohol.

Railway cars are not exclusive in the class of human freight they transport.

To the eye of the observant traveler many opportunities are offered of judging how large a percentage of mankind are addicted to strong drink, and we find a large preponderance of the masculine portion of the traveling public are numbered with this class; and the question arises "Is all being done to arrest this evil that can be done?" "Are all the agencies employed that should be to subjugate the foe?"

Since first we became a Good Templar and identified ourselves with temperance reforms, we have felt that as a band the Good Templars weakened their own labors and defeated their own arms by exclusiveness alone.

Twice have we labored and been co-workers in this organization and each time the spirit that bids exclude the low, debased and drunken from our circle, was the desire paramount to all others.

Now how shall we reach, reclaim and save the inebriate who loiters around saloon steps for the want of a better place to go? Shall it be by assembling ourselves together in conclave, and discussing his faults and weaknesses and probable ruin, or in legislating on the most feasible method of closing saloons, which if closed will be reopened again, or in reading choice temperance articles for the diversion of a choice crowd of Good Templars? No! tho he might stand beneath the very walls that echo the clarion notes of temperance, yet he is not less lost or farther from perdition than he ever was if no kindly hand is outstretched to save.

Go to him in the name of a Good Templar and as an exponent of temperance, and say to him "Come join our band, give up strong drink, and give us instead your labor and aid to stay the tide of drunkenness that curses our land, come with us and we will help you to reform and sustain you with brotherly kindness and care, and in newer, better, higher enjoyments you will forget the cup and the serpent that coils therein." If he refuses be not daunted or dismayed but essay again and yet again his salvation.

The "still small voice" may be awakened and self respect testing the vantage ground with a sinful appetite.

Such a work as this was once done by a resolute undaunted force, when they faithfully, fearlessly, sought after and rescued from the gutter, and finally sobered and reclaimed and gave to the world the brilliant talents of John B. Gough, the great temperance reformer.

The vision of this one instance should arise before the mind of every Good Templar as a conclusiveproof of great possibilities.

If those that surrounded that fallen man had said "I am afraid I shall sink myself to his level in the opinion of the world if I am seen in his society or come in contact with him, I will let him maudle on in the gutter and not jeopardize my standing by interfering with him" he might to-day be filling a drunkards grave instead of sounding the tocsin of temperance abroad thru the length and breadth of our land, thrilling thousands by his burning eloquence, giving forth a great power of good in the world, stooping to take the hand of a fallen enslaved brother and striving to raise him to his own level.

As Good Templars we surely misapprehend the duties of our Order when we venture on the exclusion of any. We do not speak of any particular lodge, but of all as a unit for we have convened with members of different organizations in California and elsewhere, and it seems to be the stumbling block in the path of all. If we cannot annihilate the saloons we can cripple their resources by striving to allure their supporters within our Templar halls, and when once there, give them to feel they are respected and as worthy members as any, and our fraternal interests will help keep and sustain them, and we shall feel they are indeed "brands plucked from the burning." "BEULAH"

RIVERSIDE, Cal.

The exclusive spirit alluded to is surely not prevalent in our Order. It is supposed our doors are open to all without exception whom the grogshop has dragged down and who at all desire to reform.

ROSEVILLE, July 14, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—We are having quite a lively time here in our little town to-day over the so-called Sunday law. By direction of the lodge of I. O. G. T. notices were served upon saloon keepers and all business men to close their places of business on Sunday after July 17th. It stirred up a bee's nest. All take sides in the fray, the lovers of law and order quietly, the saloonists and their victims noisily, with loud curses and maledictions upon the "idiots" and "busybodies who take it upon themselves to dictate to people what they shall or shall not do.

The stores are closed, but the saloons and cesspools of degradation where liquid damnation is sold for ten cents a glass are open and doing a thriving business,

Of course there will be several arrests made, and as the gin slingers threaten to carry it up and make a test case of it, the interest manifested in the fight is very marked.

We are determined to close the saloons in Roseville on Sunday if there is any law to do it. Our lodge is doing some good work in behalf of temperance, yet there is a great deal more to be done; but if we can only show to other towns that the Sunday law is not a dead letter, and that the Good Templars mean business in suppressing crime, in fact if we succeed in permanently closing the drinking hells on Sundays we may feel justly proud. In F. H. & C. TEMPLAR.

THERE is probably but one Marquis in England who is a Good Templar. And he, Lord Townsend, has just been fined $2,500 for an assault on Lord Thynne. If the circumstances which produced that assault are rightly remembered, the assailant was thoroly justifiable.

TULARE Lodge rings out a cheerful message in another column. Twenty-six copies of the RESCUE go to Tulare City. They evidently mean to see results from their labors.

THE R. H. MCDONALD PRIZE ESSAYS.

Dr. R. H. McDonald, President of the Pacific Bank, has placed at the disposal of this Society the sum of one thousand dollars. Eight hundred dollars will be distributed among the public schools of San Francisco for prizes awarded for the best essays on the evil effects of intemperance and tobacco, in accordance with the conditions named below. The remaining two hundred dollars will be awarded to the High Schools of the State, as State prizes, as follows: The first prize $100, the second $50, the third and fourth $25 each.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union send the following instructions to Principals and Teachers concerning the prize-essays on the subject—

"TWIN EVILS, INTEMPERANCE AND TOBACCO."

I. The High School prizes are, for each Senior Department ten dollars ($10), and for each Middle Department, and each Junior Department eight dollars ($8). In the Grammar Schools the prizes open to the scholars of the First and Second Grades are eight dollars ($8), open to those of the Third and Fourth Grades five dollars ($5), and the Fifth and Sixth Grades four dollars ($4). In each primary school containing the fifth or sixth grades or both the prize is four dollars (4). The prizes for the seventh and eighth grades of the Grammar and Primary schools is two dollars (2) for each grade. Special provisions will be made for all Primary Schools containing scholars of Higher grade than the Fifth; also for the Evening and Ungraded Schools. After the prizes have been awarded in the different departments, a new committee will be appointed to compare these compositions, and the R. H. McDonald Twenty-Five Dollar ($25) Gold Medal will be awarded to the writer of the best composition, and Fifteen Dollars ($15) Gold Medal to the writer of the second best. The prizes in the Seventh and Eighth Grades will be awarded for the best speech upon the subject of "Twin evils, Intemperance and Tobacco,"

II. Teachers, parents and friends are requested to furnish all the facts possible, and to suggest sources from which the pupils may derive information. This instruction must be given before August 15th, and may form a part of the language instruction, and the essays be credited as a part of the monthly work.

III. Teachers and parents are encouraged to have the pupils write the essays in full AT LEAST TWICE, BUT NO MORE, previous to the day of final writing, and to CORRECT THEM; the pupils, if desired, assisting in the work of correction. This is requested in order that the pupils, may have an opportunity for properly arranging and expressing facts and ideas upon the subject, and for improving the manner of expression, through the suggestions of the teacher.

IV. The essays must all be written under the supervision of the class teacher on August 15th. No INSTRUCTION ON THE SUBJECT is to be given on that day, and NO PUPIL to be permitted to have in possession any previously written essay, notes or copy, or to receive any assistance from any source whatever. No manuscript, when handed to the teacher, shall in any way be changed or corrected, nor shall it exceed four pages of cap paper, nor contain less than one such page of written matter.

V. During the week following August 15th, all essays must be read in hearing of the class, and the pupils may by vote or otherwise, assist the teachers to determine the best essays—not exceeding one in ten—and those selected are to be marked as worthy of special notice. Those will be deemed the best which contain the most information regarding the evil effects of Liquor and Tobacco upon the brain and system. All manuscripts must be sent to the office of the City Superintendent, on August 22nd, and each one must be designated by number, grade, teacher and school, omitting the name of the pupil.

VI. All competing essays shall be the property of the "Union," and any of them may be published in such form as the "Union," may select.

VII. The "Union" will assist each teacher, as far as possible, in obtaining information upon the subject,

VIII. The following schedule of topics may be used, to which others may be added if desired.

"TWIN EVILS TOBACCO AND INTEMPERANCE."

1. Brief historical sketch of each evil.
2. How do they affect the wealth of individuals and of nations?
3. How are they enemies to health and cleanliness?
4. How do they affect the intellect?
5. How are they related to crime?
6. How do they affect home-life?
7. Illustrate the above as much as possible by facts from history and observation.

The above plan was presented to the Board of Education for modification or amendment. Permission has been granted by the Board to offer the prizes, and this plan adopted.

This will reach 32,000 children in the city.

The Temperance Union desire that a similar plan be adopted in every town in the State.

Very respectfully,
MRS. M. E. CONGDON Secretary.
MRS. P. D. BROWN, President.

THE AGENTS' HERALD.

A monthly journal, 16 page, 12x16 inches, well and handsomely printed, 50 cents a year, comes to this office. Its object is the publication and exposure of frauds and thieving advertisers, of whom it furnishes a long list; a sort of rogue's gallery. Lots of people in California are gulled into sending money—twenty-five cents up to ten dollars—to advertising scoundrels, who never send them anything in return. If they would send fifty cents a year to the Agents' Herald, Philadelphia, they would never get bit in that way any more. Beside, it is a cheap paper as interesting reading. Send for it, or send ten cents for a sample copy. Such a publication deserves the highest commendation, and everybody ought to pay fifty cents whether they want the paper or not, to encourage such a useful enterprise as a war upon the many gangs of professional thieves which so swarm the country. Send for it, and down with frauds. The paper is now in its fifth year:

WILL YOU HELP US?

PHILADELPHIA, June 15th, 1881.

"We mail you this specimen copy of our publication, with the hope that you will carefully examine and appreciate our effort to protect the public, which we do in exposing city advertising frauds—scoundrels who, in spite of the laudable efforts of the Post Office Department to prevent it, continue their swindling schemes, corrupting the morals of innocent youth, and annually defrauding country people to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars. We propose to watch these scoundrels with an eagle eye, and sound the alarm through the columns of this paper as soon as we discover them advertising, and that the public may be kept thoroughly posted, we pesire to scatter the Herald broadcast throughout the entire country.

It is our intention, after we have gained the confidence and support of the public, to employ at our own expense the services of an eminent attorney, whose duty it will be to prosecute and cause the imprisonment of all advertisers detected in conducting fraudulent schemes. Such a course will have a wholesome effect in driving others out of the business.

We are almost daily in receipt of letters of congratulation from which we select the following as fair samples:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15th, 1881.

L. LUM SMITH, ESQ:—I commend your enterprise to the attention of all Postmasters, and of the public in general. The press is doing much towards putting the unsuspecting on their guard against frauds, but your plan will do more than all the newspapers together in exposing this species of rascality. HORATIO KING,
Ex-Postmaster General.

NEW YORK, April 19th, 1881.

L. LUM SMITH, ESQ:—Postmasters will no doubt interest themselves in your enterprise; it will save thousands of dollars, and prevent hundreds of people from being swindled through the U. S Mails. I consider you a public benefactor.
ANTHONY COMSTOCK.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc,. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

Apply to WILL D. GOULD, Esq., Attorney.

COMMUNION WINE.

The undersigned takes this method to inform the churches that he has undertaken the manufacture of Unfermented Wine for Sacramental use. The article he offers for sale is Pure, Unadulterated Juice of the Grape, and is furnished to order in pint or quart cans, sealed and packed in boxes. Price $3 per gallon. SAMUEL WINTER,
Yountville, Napa county, Cal.

Keep in a cool place, When used, open and let stand a while; then pour off carefully.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

GOOD TEMPLAR'S PLATFORM.

ADOPTED BY THE R. W. G. L., SESSION OF 1859.

1. Total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors as a beverage.
2. No license in any form, under any circumstances, for the sale of liquors to be used as a beverage.
3. The absolute prohibition of the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquors for such purposes; prohibition by the will of the people, exercised in due form of law, with the penalties deserved by a crime of such enormity.
4. The creation of a healthy public opinion upon the subject by the active dissemination of truth in all the modes known to enlightened philanthropy.
5. The election of good, honest men, to administer the law.
6. Persistence in efforts to save individuals and communities from so dreadful a scourge, against all forms of opposition and difficulties, until our success is complete and universal.

Nos. 166 and 363, both of which were previously noted delinquent.

GRAND LODGE REPRESENTATIVES ETC.--The next and twenty-second annual session of the Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T. of the state of California, will convene in the city of Vallejo, at 10 o'clock, A. M. on Tuesday, October 4th, Representatives are to be elected by each lodge, in accordance with the following constitutional provisions.

Eligibility.—Only P. W, C. Templars, Acting W. C. Templars, Sister P. W. Vice Templars and Acting Sister W. Vice Templars are eligible to election as Representatives or Alternates.

Election.—The election of Representatives shall be held on the second meeting in August.

Representation.—Each lodge is entitled to one representative for its charter, and one for each twenty members, and one additional for a fraction of twenty members where such fraction exceeds ten. The basis of calculation is the whole number of members in good standing and so reported, at the close of the present quarter ending July 31st.

From this will be seen the necessity of promptly forwarding the quarterly returns from lodges to the G. W. S. office at the close of the current term, as, unless this is done the representation to which lodges are entitled cannot be calculated.

Blank forms of credentials have been sent in duplicate to the address of each lodge deputy. One of these forms must be properly filled and returned to the G. W. S. immediately after the election of representatives. The official roll call of the Grand Lodge will be made up and handed to the printer as early as September first; so that if representatives are to appear in the printed list, one copy of the credentials must be sent to the G. W. S. prior to the date mentioned. The duplicate copy of credentials is also to be filled, but must be retained and delivered to one of the representatives elect, who shall carry and present the same to the Grand Lodge.

At the same meeting on which is held the election of representatives it will be proper for the lodge to select by ballot some eligible member to be recommended to the next G. W. C. T. for appointment and commission as Lodge Deputy. A blank has also been furnished on which to certify the result of the selection. This recomendation should accompany the credentials to the G. W. S.

The next session of the Grand Lodge will, for many reasons be a very important one, and it is earnestly hoped and desired that a full representation may be had. Every lodge within the jurisdiction should arrange to send at least one representative if more cannot be sent to insure a full representative meeting. As the Grand Lodge will meet at Vallejo an opportunity will be afforded one and all of an extended and comprehensive examination of that noblest of all charities and grandest monument to the energy, zeal and enterprise of our Order, "The Good Templars Home for Orphans." The building has been enlarged and improved since last the Grand Lodge met at Vallejo. A new and handsome schoolhouse has recently been erected, is just completed and will probably be dedicated during the session of the Grand Lodge. The opportunity of a pilgrimage to this Mecca of our Order, the dedication, the increased interest in our work and continued growth of the Order should all conspire to make the forthcoming session of Grand Lodge the most interesting, earnest and largely attended session ever held. The business of the Grand Lodge is usually transacted while open in the third degree, so that all the members of the Order of that degree may be admitted as visitors. An opportunity is thus presented to all members who are interested and love the Order, to attend the sessions of the Grand Lodge. Therefore come one and all, whether representative or not, and catch some of the inspiration and enthusiasm of the temperance work which always attends a good session of the Grand Lodge of California.

THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE.—W. H. Barnes, G. M. W. of the Grand Lodge of California A. O. U. W. is to be commended as an earnest and steadfast friend of the temperance cause. He never loses an opportunity to make a point or say a word for temperance. He closes a recent circular to the A, O. U. W. of this state saying: "I again call to your notice the strong grounds taken by the Grand Lodge on the subject of intemperance. We are having deaths from this evil quite too often, and the habits of some of our members are not adding to the reputation of either the order or themselves. The holding of public gatherings in the name of the A. O. U. W. in halls, gardens or other places, where bars are specially opened because of such gathering under the auspices of the Order, is not only a violation of law, but detrimental to our membership and to our good standing before the world. I earnestly ask the aid of all true Workmen to free our institution from this evil," Would that all other con-fraternal orders had such Grand Masters.

INSTALLATIONS AND RETURNS This is installation week thruout the jurisdiction. All the newly elected officers will or should be installed this week. It is hoped that all installations will occur promptly; but whether this is the case or not the quarterly returns report should not be delayed. Upon the quarterly returns now due from every lodge, are the Grand officers dependent for the statistical portions of their reports. Whether the installation occurs this week, whether the Grand Lodge tax is forwarded or not, deputies are requested to be particularly prompt in forwarding their Quarterly Returns reports Nothing so seriously retards or hinders the labors of G. W. S. as the withholding of these reports. Send them along.

HEARD FROM.—Bro. J. F. Culver, Grand Lecturer; who was thot to have been captured, has been heard from at several points in Humboldt county, where he is hard at work for the good of the Order. His trip overland to Humboldt county from Sonoma was a difficult and perplexing one. His efforts are well spoken of and his arrival hailed with pleasure. He will work his way from point to point thru Humboldt and Mendocino counties, visiting places at which he has not previously called in the latter county toward the close of the current month.

GRAPES.—Bro. F. Perez, formerly of Washington Corners, Alameda county, but now of Florin, Sacramento county, called during the past week and left a package of grapes of his own raising, and among the first of the season, for which kind remembrance the G. W. S. office is duly thankful.

PLACER COUNTY.

A District Lodge took me to Auburn, Placer county, on the 18th of May. It had quite changed since my last visit prior to this. You may remark that it has had time to do so without hurrying, when I tell you that my former visit was thirty-two years since. I contrast a finely built mountain town with many very elegant houses, surrounded with oramental and fruit trees, with a place of two log stores and a few cloth tents. The year 1849 was brought close up to the present, by my return to Auburn. I regret that time would not allow me to visit the upper Oregon Bar, on the North Fork of the American River, to see where I made my bed in the sand with a tree for a shelter, during a Summer's work as an "honest miner," in 1849. You may perhaps smile now at the compliment to the miner of that early day, but, wait; may we not fairly call men honest when any one could leave one or two ounces of gold dust in a pan to dry by the trail and go off to work for a half day, even out of sight of their cabin and the dust? That I frequently saw along the North Fork in that honest summer, and yet no such thing as a theft was known in our neighborhood. But that summer has never duplicated itself in California. It was the last of its kind. One thing blessed that particular part of the the river at which I worked, and that was, there were no intoxicants used by the miners there. It was a sober, and, therefore, a peaceable lot of men.

About an ounce a day or a hundred dollars per week rewarded honest toil. Sunday was a day of rest to most; letter-writing and social chat occupied the day and, even now, bring pleasant recollections. But 1849 has gone, and so have most of those who toiled along that cool, clear stream, at that time. A few yet linger, but they are only those who did not fall into the fast habits that soon swept over our State and destroyed thousands of our most promising citizens

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding and George Bramall.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

WM. CROWHURST.

REDDING, Shasta Co., July 31, 1881.

The month is ended. Since last report, we have worked in Marysville M. E. Church and Sunday School, in Lodge and Band of Hope; also in Cordua, Harmony and Pleasant Grove. A few days sick in bed, during which time we missed the Woodward's Garden celebration, was followed by a trip to camp-meeting in the grand old Redwood grove near Guerneville, Sonoma county, where the part assigned us was an address upon "Our Juvenile Work." The whole forenoon of Saturday was devoted to the subject and everybody was delighted with the earnest, loving, christian sentiments uttered by the whole-souled christian temperance Secretary of the W. C. T. U. The afternoon was delightfully spent in listening to the exercises of the Guerneville Juvenile Temple and witnessing the distribution of prizes by Dr. McDonald of the Pacific Bank.

Then in Shasta county we worked in Shingletown, Klotz' Mill, Ball's Ferry, Anderson, Igo, Eagle Creek, Redding, Millville and Copper City.

At Igo, much good has been done by the lodge. Hard drinkers have been saved, homes made happy, and the name Good Templar has become a pet household word, enshrined in the hearts of parents and children. To the earnest and intelligent L. D., Bro. Batcheller, and his hearty, co-operating wife, belong much credit and honor. Sister Addie Ballou in her visit here, has been of excellent service.

At Ball's Ferry, Sister B. T. Gray, Secretary of Battle Creek Lodge, induced her husband to buy out a saloon and ground and close the whole affair; hence, no saloon exists in that place. A few such workers scattered over this State, will hasten the day when California shall be free.

At Klotz' Mill, Mountain Pride Lodge was organized, McDonald Lodge organized at Millville and Eureka Lodge at Anderson. All bid fair to do good work, and nobly uphold the banner of Good Templary.

Since last report to RESCUE, we have delivered 23 lectures, 7 lodge addresses, 2 public school addresses, 2 Sunday school addresses, and visited one Band of Hope and one Juvenile Temple. Besides this, much has been done that cannot be recorded on paper but which we hope may be registered by the angel of Abou Ben Adhem, and acknowledged by his God, the Father of all.

H. R. HUGHES.

PLACERVILLE, July 25, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—Lectured in the M. E. church at Plymouth; a small but very appreciative audience, an installation of the I. O. O. F. kept away some of our friends.

The 19th reached Placerville and had two conferences with the members of the White Ribbon and W. C. T, U. All were agreed as to organizing; but could not see it their duty to unite. Last evening the pastor of the M. E. church preached a temperance sermon, and invited me to speak and canvass for names. Got 15, and we meet this evening to organize. Mr. Dutcher and Mrs. Watson had a White ribbon boom in this county, and their present status has knocked all the life out of it.

The W. C. T. U, has done good work, but as yet do not see their way clear to become part of the organization that is doing the temperance work of California.

Outside of any questions regarding the character of eastern lecturers their policy of fostering so many organizations and dividing the temperance forces of our state must be met with solid opposition by those who desire to see our state redeemed.

C. N. GOULDING.

DAVISVILLE, Cal., August 2, 1881.

Lectured in Capay on the 29 and 30th of July, found the Lodge in good condition, and the prospects for the future very flattering; had intended to organize Lodge at Madison, on Sunday the 31st but postponed the matter until some future day, owing to the fact that the Christian Church had started a protracted meeting that would continue a week or more; went from Capay to Blacks, the Lodge at this place was organized June 5th and now numbers seventy members. Each night new candidates are being admitted; the growth of this Lodge is wonderful, and the amount of good being accomplished can not be estimated. It bids fair to become the banner Lodge of the county, and fully demonstrates what a few determined men and women, can accomplish Upon the whole the outlook in Yolo County is encouraging. As soon as the case now pending before the Superior Court (regarding the Sunday law) is disposed of and the question of jurisdiction settled, the Sunday law will doubtless be enforced thruout the county. The skies are bright, and friends of the cause may well take courage, and continue the fight, assured that victory will crown their efforts, GILROY.—Mrs. Stevens reports a good time at Gilroy, two well attended successful meetings. The lodge has been in existence seven years and has done an excellent work thruout: its average membership has been about 50 but lately it has gone up to nearly 90. There were 12 names given in during the visit of Mrs. Stevens. There have been ups and downs in other organizations but the lodge has always maintained its steady and even way. Bro. Pedlar and his other half have been among the first and foremost workers and there is other excellent material rendering earnest and usefnl help.

LECTURER'S APPOINTMENTS.

REV. F. J. CULVER.

Will speak at Rohnerville Aug. 6, 7; Hidesville, 8, 9; Bridgeville 10, Blocksburg 11, 12; Cahto 16, Willets 17.

WM. CROWHURST

Will lecture at Whiskeytown, Shasta county, August 5 and 6; Lewistown, Trinity county, 9 and 10; Weaverville 11; Junction city 12; Weaverville 14: Hay fork, 15 and 16; Trinity Center 19 and 20; thence into Siskiyou county.

A TEMPERANCE GOVERNOR.

EDITOR RESCUE,—I like the ring of your article on "A Temperance Governor." If the temperance people do not feel like doing more at present than this they most certainly can do this wisely and successfully. There are several whose names might meet with much favor. There is one and a well known one who if nominated would most iprobably,—in fact I think without doubt—by a wise use of means and suitable activity, be successful. As to whether the moment has yet come to name that individual I cannot say, but that the time has come to take some active measures in the premises I am sure. The temperance forces can be and will be successful, if they only work as earnestly and unitedly for temperance and its triumph as rummies and others do for their side.

I am, Yours Fraternally.

GEORGE MORRIS.

INTERNATIONAL DRINK STATISTICS.

In a sermon preached at Westminster on Sunday, March 10th by Bro. the Rev. J. T. Shrubsole on behalf of the "Firm of Purpose Lodge. the preacher quoted the following statistics.

Germany produced last year 23.811,117 barrels of beer, Great Britain. 22,375,010 barrels; the United States 9,425,252 bbls.; Austro Hungary 6,838,090 barrels; France 5,331,845 barrels; Belgium, 4,801,778 barrels; Russia 1,406,174; the Netherlands 978,208 bbls.: Denmark, 672,518 barrels; Sweden, 568,583: Italy, 531,000; Switzerland, 448,753; Norway, 376,000 barrels. The greatest production in proportion to the population is Belgium, where a little over 34½ gallons per head were manufactured, and the smallest proportion was in Russia, where the ratio is only a little more than 5½ pints for every inhabitant. Though Germany heads the list, we must remember that their beer is much lighter than the British and is their only drink. Whereas the English drink a great quantity of spirits in addition to beer. In 1866 the consumption of spirits was four and a half gallons per head; in 1876 it had reached over six gallons per head. Seventy-five million bushels of grain were consumed for manufacturing beer last year. One hundred and twenty thousand met a premature death during the past year. What a fearful thing to contemplate!—Alliance News.

"W. C. T. U."

" W stands for Women who leap into men's pants,
C for Christian—that is in teetotal parlance,
T for Temperance, liberty's standing menace,
U for a Union true women ne'er embrace."

The above graceful and sparkling little gem of poetic thot and scholarly diction is the product of the combined talent of the whisky league of the West and is dedicated to the women of America. In the first number of the Californian, Mr. C. A. Wetmore gave its readers the assurance that wine was a cultivator of poetic and esthetic taste. It is coming true. !!!

SARA AND HER PEACHES.

[From a touching poem in the Call]

Blue her eyes and gold her hair is,
Her form as graceful as a fairy's
And the glow upon her cheek is,
Like the crimson on her peaches.

A MISSING VERSE SUPPLIED.

Pink her nose is, like bloom of roses
And long it is, as law of Moses.
Her voice will thrill like Mudgoke-wis
If you should try to grab her peaches.

AT NEW BUFFALO Mich. a temperance man who had complained of rum outlaws was knocked down, beaten and thrown off the cars, and nearly if not quite killed. They are enforcing the law there and there is almost rebellion on the part of the rummies: they are rising a little earlier in the morning to curse the Methodists.

The Michigan W. C. T. U. is moving to end the barbarous and villainous system of renting or allowing beer and liquor dens to be opened on the State Fair grounds.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE GIN PALACE.

In many parts of the great city of London there are very extensively decorated, brilliantly lighted, roomy grogshops called gin palaces. The most costly and gaudy of these places are to be found invariably in the poorest, meanest, shabbiest parts of London. Where the dwellings bear the strongest evidence of wretched grinding poverty, where rickety doors and shaky broken stairs and vile unwholesome odors abound, there is the place to find a gorgeous gin palace in a most flourishing business. Thru the day it is visited by women and children and scarecrow images of men, nearly all of them the most tattered, bloated, bleareyed and distorted and forlorn objects ever seen; coming up to the bar for poison drink, drink, drink, and spending therefor the few cents they have just obtained from the pawn shop for some article of indispensible household use.

At night these hells are in a blaze of light and warmth, if it is winter, and present a striking contrast to the cold, reeking naked dens and slimy cellars from which their customers have crawled forth, and to which they will retire stupefied and brutalized a little more, as soon as their last pennies have gone down their parched throats in liquid lightning.

There are elegantly dressed, highly cultured, educated and fashionable people who own these buildings, rich men who get the license and men of ample means who run these gin palaces: every one concerned knows that their only purpose is to rob the wretched poor of their few pence which should buy them food, to train them and their children in vice, to school and graduate the boys and girls, innocent and defenceless themselves, into criminals, thieves, outlaws and outcasts.

There used to be, and probably is now a fancily fitted up gin palace near Euston Square station, where the passengers from Liverpool leave the cars and are set down in the great Babylon of London. About 14 years ago the writer arriving there late in the evening took lodgings for the night in one of the lodging houses close to the station, having to meet a friend there next morning by appointment. Oh, what a pandemonium was there. The gin palace about 200 yards away seemed to run nearly all night. The shouting and the laughter and the yellings and cursings could be heard distinctly all over the neighborhood, and it was like the sound of an extensive lunatic asylum with all hands in full play, doing their best in their several capacities to swell the fiendish din. At intervals of about 15 or 20 minutes, and perhaps more often, a row took place, and then the oaths and filthy language broke out into an access of furious hate and violence till the police, so kindly provided by the public to protect the business of these thief dens, interfered and quieted the din down to its usual tone and volume.

We wonder at such temples of Satan worship being tolerated, bnt we have to look at home and we see just the same thing as the gin palace everywhere, in every saloon and beer shop, only on a smaller scale. In San Francisco they have lots of immense large thief dens, called beer halls and beer gardens, to entice the working classes to come and drink and spend for worse than nothing the food and clothing of their children; so that the boys and girls in place of getting a good education at the schools and becoming virtuous and happy useful people, may be starved, and get their first schooling in the industrial school, and then after passing thru a course at the house of correction be promoted to the penitentiary. Children, the gin palace, the brewery, the winery the beer shop and groggery are every one of them depending for a future living on their chances of making drunkards and thieves and criminals and outlaws and outcasts of you: we are going to stop them.

QUACK SCIENCE.

The honest pursuit of science is in the highest degree respectable and praiseworthy. The fabrication of bogus scientific theories and their positive announcement by tyros in human knowledge, only incur the contempt of those who pause at times in the general rush for gold, to give attention and consideration to matters that do not affect the pocket and the bank account.

The scientist proper is modest and cautious like the truly skilful and learned physician. The quack scientist of the Denton and other types is like the quack doctor; ignorant, hasty, positive, and trusts much to the ignorance of his constituents.

It has been determined by careful experiment in deep mines, that the temperature of the earth increases about one degree of the fahrenheit thermometer, for every 50 to 55 feet of depth from the surface. From this and the fact of hot springs, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes etc. it is believed that the interior of the earth, all of it inside of a crust of 100 or 150 miles, or perhaps more or less in thickness is a mass of fire melted matter, like the liquid contents of a smelting furnace.

So much is reasonable and probable, and that is where the man of science stops until he can learn more; but the patent corn doctor of science steps in now with an interesting collection of scientific curiosities and novelties: "anything on this board, gentlemen, for two bits." The New York Star copies from Belgravia, a deep article on the interior heat of the earth; after alluding to the items above, it says that in the deepest mine in England (2445 ft. deep) the temperature is about 90 degrees; therefore, "if we may assume a uniform increase of heat in descending, at 50 miles deep there will be 4800 degrees of heat or 22 times the heat of boiling water at sea level," which is 212 degrees.

The brilliant arithmetician then proceeds to say that 50 miles is somewhat less than one-eighth of the distance from the circumference to the center of the earth: perhaps it was a misprint for the eightieth which would not be far wrong; here the heroic explorer calculates that for every 55 feet he must register another degree of the thermometer, and he gets to such an intense heat at the further depths that he throws away figures and asserts that here the most uninflammable substances known to us would not only be melted but instantly dissipated into gas.

There does not seem any necessity to suppose that the heat must increase at all after the body of fire or molten matter is reached. If there was any such heat in the interior of the earth as 4800 or 400 000 degrees of our measure, there would be nothing but a constant supernatural miracle to prevent the almost instantaneous melting of the 100 or 200 or more miles thickness of the outer crust of the earth, and its becoming a part of the melted mass or of the still more heated gas. But the adventurous scio has provided for that by fixing a gaseous zone between a molten center and a solid circumference, thus tendering a helping hint to the Creator in case this planet should ever become a little unmanageable.

It would seem as reasonable to infer a like theory as to cold, as we ascend into the firmament. We know that it is cooler every 100 feet that we ascend a mountain or in a balloon. By measuring the difference of temperature we can tell just how far up to go to reach a temperature 4800 miles, not degrees, below zero. Or if we measure the depth of the Pacific Ocean at one foot from the shore and find it to be one foot and at one mile from the shore 200 feet, therefore at 2000 miles from the shore it must be 400,000 or 76 miles deep.

Our juvenile templars it is hoped will be better scientists than to listen to such nonsense or to accept any new and wild theories that have impossibilities and quite unnecessary miracles in their train.

THE TEETOTAL CRIMINAL.—There are very few crimes and disorders that are committed by teetotalers. I once said to a friend of mine—"Did you ever hear of a teetotaler being in a police court?" He said, "oh, yes, the other day." I said, "What was he there for?" "Why he was there for being drunk and disorderly." (Loud laughter.)—Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

SAVING MOTHER.

The farmer sat in his easy chair
Between the fire and the lamplight's glare;
His face was ruddy and full and fair,
His three small boys in the chimney nook
Conned the lines of a picture book;
His wife, the joy of his home and heart,
Baked the biscuit and made the tart.
Laid the table and steeped the tea,
Deftly, swiftly, silently,
Tired and weary and weak and faint,
She bore her trials without complaint,
Like many another household saint—
Content, all selfish bliss above
In the patient ministry of love.

At last between the clouds of smoke
That wreathed his lips the husband spoke:
"There's taxes to raise, and int'rest to pay—
And if there should come a rainy day,
'Twould be mighty handy, I'm bound to say,
To have sumthin put by. For folks must die,
And there's funeral bills, and gravestones to buy--
Enough to swamp a man pretty nigh.
Beside there's Edward and Dick and Joe
To be provided for when we go.
So if I was you, I tell what I'd do;
I'd be saving of wood as ever I could—
Extra fires dont do any good—
I'd be saving of soap and saving of oil,
And run up some candles once in a while;
I'd be rather sparing of coffee and tea,
For sugar is high
And all to buy,
And cider is good enough drink for me,
I'd be kind of careful about my clothes
And look out sharp how the money goes—
Gewgaws are useless, nature knows
Extra trimmin'
'S the bane of women.

I'd sell off the best of the cheese and honey,
And eggs are as good nigh about's the money;
And as to the carpet you wanted new—
I guess we can make the old one do.
And as for the washer, and sewing machine,
Them smooth tongued agent's so pesky mean,
You'd better get rid of 'em slick and clean,
What do they know about women's work?
Do they calculate a woman was born to shirk?

Dick and Edward and little Joe
Sat in a corner in a row.
They saw the patient mother go
On ceaseless errands to and fro,
They saw that her form was bent and thin,
Her temples gray, her cheeks sunk in;
They saw the quiver of lip and chin—
And then with a wrath he could not smother,
Outspoke the youngest, frailest brother—
"You talk of saving wood and ile
And tea and sugar all the while,
But you never talk of saving mother!"

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

A report of the institution for the past year has just been filed. This is a matter which concerns the children of the State and it is presented to the young folks as more useful information for them than a story about some good little boy who went to bed without his supper to contribute to send tracts to the sober Mahomedans. On July 1, 1880 there were shut up in the institution 105 boys and 60 girls and 131 boys and 56 girls have been admitted since. Of these 17 have escaped, 89 boys and 37 girls were granted indefinite leave of absence; which means they could stay away if they behaved themselves well. 75 boys and 1 girl were committed for theft: 37 boys and 23 girls for drunkenness. The ages of the inmates run from 8 to 19.

Some boys have been allowed to leave and have done better and some have been sent back on new charges. The institution cost for the year nearly $33,000 and the Magdalen asylum $12,000. The farm raised about 65 tons of hay but the potato crop was a failure.

The reason such an institution is necessary in this beautiful country of grapes and pears and strawberries and fruits and flowers and plenty and comfort is that there are over 4000 places in San Francisco and 6000 or 8000 elsewhere in the State, where the people make their living by selling poison and robbing other people.

The grogshops and beershops and liquor groceries and saloons are all dens of thieves who rob the working men and the poor and every body else who can be enticed into their mantraps. And they make the women drunkards too; so when parents spend their money in drink and neglect their children, the boys and girls must either steal or die of starvation. And when they have money and can get beer of course they drink like their parents and become criminals and outcasts. Sixty children sent to the Industrial school in one year for drunkenness: think of it. If sixty were sent there we may be sure there were 600 or perhaps 6000 more who get drunk and were not sent up.

Will any of the Band of Hope children ever cast a vote that will tolerate or countenance the licensing of thief dens to turn our boys and girls into outlaws and outcasts and jailbirds?

BOY'S WANTED.

To be strictly truthful, becsuse a boy is of no use to his employer or any body else if his word cannot be believed.

To be entirely honest, because nobody wants to harbor or befriend or employ a boy whom he will have to hire a policeman to watch.

To avoid tobacco as he would any other poison. A boy who smokes advertizes his own folly and indicates clearly that he is destroying what little brain sense he had naturally. Every boy wants all his senses and when he deliberately throws any of faculties away he is giving every good boy a chance to rise above and ahead of him, and securing for himself a place among the "rag tag and bobtail" of the future.

To avoid ever entering a place where liquor is sold or used in any shape or form. The saloon, the the beershop, the bar and the wine sideboard, are avenues which lead to the jail, the poorhouse and the morgue.

To avoid all nasty literature and especially those pirate and buffalo Bill story books and police gazettes that scoundrels keep for sale to boys.

Boys wanted to fit themselves to be members of an honest Congress, sober, respectable governors and senators and preachers and editors and judges. No more drunkards and political Bedouins wanted for official position.

THIS is what Dr. Asay said of the Band of Hope at Tulare city at the I. O. G. T. anniversary.

This is the 30th anniversary of the Independent Order of Good Templars.

What it has accomplished in that time, how many it has saved from untimely death, how many it has lifted from degradation and dishonor, and restored as useful members to society and friends; how many cheerless homes have been made happy; how many husbands and fathers restored to their families; how much wasted industry has been reclaimed. How many young have been kept from taking their first lessons in infamy is a matter upon which we ask you to reflect.

In this little Band of Hope, I see children of fond and loving parents, now taking their first instruction in those virtues we should all strive to possess. In it we see a bud of promise. Let us take care of it, nurture and caress it, that it wither not.

To your Lodge belongs the duty of exercising a watchful care over it. Your Lodge is a foster mother. Do not fail in your duty. The good you may do is a beacon of hope.

May your Lodge ever live and flourish, goodly be your tabernacles, and its gateways pleasant to your feet, Rich and redolent and vocal its courts with joy and its atmosphere perfumed with the incense of praise, your altars ever stand consecrated to lofty purposes, and your charity to the fallen compel the blessing of all mankind, and may the Giver of all good and perfect gifts grant you years of usefulness, peace and plenty.

BITING AT THE BARE HOOK.

I was some time ago walking upon a wharf where a fishing-boat lay, and as I was passing and repassing, the master was uttering dreadful oaths. At length I turned to him, and standing beside his boat said:

"Sir, I am unacquainted with your business. What kind of fish are these?"

"They are codfish?" he replied.

"How long are you usually out in order to obtain your load?"

"Two or three weeks?" he answered.

"At what price do you sell them?"

"He informed me.

"Well! have you had hard work to obtain a living in this way?"

"Yes! hard work!" he said.

"With what do you bait these fish."

"With clams."

"Did you ever catch mackerel?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, did you ever catch a fish without bait?"

"Yes!" said he. "I was out here last year, and one day when I was fixin' my line the bare hook fell into the water, and the fool took hold of it and I drew him in."

"Now, sir!" said I "I have often thought that Satan was very much like a fisherman. He always baits his hook with that kind of bait which different sorts of sinners like best; but when he would catch a profane swearer, he does not take the trouble to put on bait at all, for he will bite at the bare hook."

He was silent. His countenance was solemn; and after a pause, as I turned to go away, I heard him say to one standing by him."

"I guess that's a minister!"—Sel.

A COLD WATER BOY.

"Why, Neddy, didn't you get the sugar?" asked a lady whose hands were in a pan of flour.

"No, ma, I couldn't" said Ned. "Little Sammy told me, 'Don't go in that near store, 'cause that man sells rum' and beer and cider, and all sorts of drunk things.' Sammy is a cold water boy, and so I'm going to be one all my life."

"What is a cold water boy?" asked his mother.

"Its a boy that won't go into a rum store to buy sugar; and wont taste wine nor cider; and shuts his lips tight—this way—when his grandma gives him mince pies with rum in 'em, and pudding with rum in the sauce, and won't touch 'em, for fear he'll grow into a drunk man."

"Oh, but I want that sugar in such a hurry, Neddy," said his mother.

"Well send Patty way off to some cold water store, but I don't want to go into a rum grocery, 'cause I'm a cold water boy, and we'll all be cold water folks in this house."

"So we will, dear." said his mother, "and never put wine in our sauce, nor rum in our pies.—Careful Builder.

NOTES FROM THE G. S. J. W.

HAYWARDS July 27, 1881.

I wish to say a word or two about the increase of the Bands of Hope, and the good news that comes to me from nearly all parts of the state, and I believe if such efforts are continued as have been put forth since January 1st of this year, there will soon be as many members enrolled in the Bands of Hope in California as there are members in our subordinate lodges of Good Templars, and already in many places the people are saying, why have we not looked to this work before. One lady writes this week, Mr. Bramall, we want more badges and rituals; I began our Band with a dozen members, and I told you then I thot that would be all I could get together; but we are increasing, and it looks now as tho we may have a good Band, and may God grant it, and the spirit of the Lord is surely moving upon the minds and hearts of our people everywhere to work in this direction. It rejoices me to see so much being done for the young by talented men and women who are using their pens in this juvenile work. To-day I read the following:

CHILDREN TO THE FRONT.

Twenty years ago, being engaged in a temperance movement for the young in Massachusetts, we secured the name of Henry Wilson to the prospectus, and then passed it to Charles Summer who was not a total abstainer. He carefully read the document, and remarked in his frank and kindly way. "That is just the thing to be done, educate the young in the principles of temperance and you have created a public sentiment for the future that will make the temperance cause triumphant. Pledge them to total abstinence, and follow up the act with proper and persistent instruction, and the men and women of the future will be total abstainers."

A writer has said, public opinion is formed not by influencing men but by forming men."

The character of nations depends on the public opinion which is made by influences upon the young. The remark applies to temperance equally with other subjects. A French statesman said to John Quincy Adams, France needs a Washington: the sage of Quincy replied, France needs a people, But Madam Campan was wiser for she said "France needs mothers.' Recognizing the absolute necessity of educating a generation of children correctly before France could become what she ought to be.

The only possible way of securing a sound public opinion on temperance is to drill the young systematically and thoroly in its principles, and I think our Bands of hope as now conducted offer one of the best mesns to accomplish the work.

CLUBS.

Attention is requested to the offer of premiums for clubs, found elsewhere in this paper. The Encyclopedia offered is a reprint of Chambers Encyclopedia complete, in nonpareil type, size 6¼by 5 inches, 15 volumes 830 pages each, bound in cloth. The Library of Universal Knowledge is also 15 Volumes 9¼by6¼ inches 900 pages each, in good clear brevier type, and is a handsome well printed book: contains all of the encyclopedia above and American additions, said to be altogether about 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's.

These works should be of inestimable value to every Lodge: give full information upon almost every subject or question that can be raised: they form a nucleus for a complete library, and will give the members a stimulus for the acquisition of useful information. Either of the two supplies the reading material that used to cost quite lately, $50 to $90 but the latter is the fullest and best printed and is recommended as the best choice.

In addition to the premiums offered elsewhere, for a club of 12 subscribers for one year at $2.00, an engraving of Mrs. Hayes portrait will be presented, and the same will be given for 6 subscribers for one year at 2.00 in addition to the clubs of 18 and 30.

For a club of six new subscribers for one year at $2.00, Julia Colmans excellent and useful works, the Juvenile Manual and Alcohol and Hygiene handsomely bound in cloth and six catechisms will be presented. It will be seen that these liberal premiums are offered for the purpose of extending the circulation of the RESCUE, not to make money for it. To put 52 copies in the post office prepaid costs a good deal more than $2.00. Renewals of former expiring subscriptions will be counted in new clubs.

WOMAN'S SOCIAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION meets every Saturday at 2:30 P. M. at the S. S. S., 304 Stockton street. near Post. A paper is read and discussed, and all questions pertaining to Law, and other matters of vital importance to women, are answered. Ladies interested in Social Science and industrial and educational co-operation are cordially invited to attend the meetings. Admittance free. Mrs. J. W. Stow, President; Mrs. J. H. Smyth, Vice President; Mrs. T. Tilden Moulton, Treasurer; Miss I. G. Prince, Cor. Sec'y, 218 Eddy street, San Francisco.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884.

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

ABOUT THE BIBLE.

A subscriber wants to argue in the Rescue against the authenticity of the Bible, but he starts in with the singular proposition that it declares, "this world was made in six days of the week out of nothing." The bible says "In thebeginning, God created the Heaven and the earth," If that is not as far back as the scholarly and scientific geologist puts it, the Bible or the geologist is wrong. The only way we can decide that question is to find out how many thousand or million or thousand million years ago "in the beginning" was. That is a point which argument will be found incompetent to settle. Too far before our time.

But there are some points upon which men ought to agree, with regard to the Bible, altho they may agree to differ on others. There are some historical and genealogical discrepancies and inaccuracies in the books as we have them, which indicate that they were not all written under the direct command or direct inspiration of God and it is not an important or necessary matter that they should have been. The sacred books were selected and collected and had their character passed upon by fallible men.

Whatever men may believe in these respects, it dont seem that any one can honestly believe that any part of them, even an occasional interpolation of a sentence, was written with an evil or deceptive purpose. And there can be no denial of the evident truth that, if men would cease argument and quibbling about the unimportant difficulties which they cannot reconcile, and would shape their whole conduct to conform exactly to the entirely unmistakable precepts and counsels contained in these ancient books,—we should all, every one of us, live healthier, richer, better, stronger, wiser, easier, brighter, longer, and happier than we could under any conceivable system that differs in any respect from the faith and teachings therein.

The one simple declaration that obedience to the command to "love God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself," was the fulfilling of the law and of the teaching of the Prophets, puts a stamp of all sufficiency and infallibility, if one desires to call it so, upon the sacred and Divine nature and authority of the religious system of the Holy Scriptures, that no testimony of 1000 generations of unbelievers or doubters can ever hope to disturb in the least.

And if it were possible to suppose that the whole of our "scriptures" are entirely the work of even ungodly men, without any inspiration at all; if it could be proved beyond a doubt that they were all the creation of the unaided brain of a Plato or a Socrates or a Shakspeare of ancient or modern times—they would still remain the best and loftiest and purest and noblest and holiest inspiration and guide and instructor and counsellor for every inhabitant of earth, in every calling or station and under every conceivable condition and circumstance, that it is possible to imagine. The Bible contains the germ and flower and seed and substance of every lofty thought, every noble aspiration, every sentiment of benevolence and kindness and charity and brotherly love and integrity and justice and virtue and true manliness, that has ever exerted a beneficent influence upon mankind, and lightened and brightened the dark pictures of this world's history with rose tints of beauty and sweetness, borrowed from the gardens and galleries of heaven.

Every inspiration that dries up tears, binds up wounds, alleviates sorrows, heals strifes, adopts the orphan, loves the poor, feeds the hungry, watches the sick, visits the prisoner, forgives injury, prays for enemies, can be traced right strait to that old Book of Books. About its miracles? let them all go overboard, if you want to; and you wont hurt it a particle. It has itself done miracles by the thousand thousand, is doing and will continue to do them, and such miracles as no other book or thing ever did. Every day of every year for centuries past, it has brought miracles of peace and joy and happiness and thankfulness and has sent out flowing rivers of loving thoughts and holy ambitions and kindly emotions to millions of human hearts. It has more blessed humanity and conferred more happiness upon men than all other books combined: a thousand times more. And all other books that exert a beneficent influence upon mankind do so, just in proportion as they reflect the light and thought and spirit of the Bible.

And with all this good, it never did or could serve one harmful end or exert one harmful influence. Men may pervert it, falsify it and pretend to make it an instrument of wrong or that it has been made so; but such charges are so pitiful as to deserve no notice. The Bible stands where it does to-day, in the hearts of good men and good women, purely on its merits; not because of its origin, but because of its worth: because the pure and virtuous and upright and those who love virtue and purity and mental excellence and poetry and imagery and the music of heaven—love and venerate and revere it with an affection that permit the entrance or harboring of no depreciative or disparaging doubt. Pile up, if you will do it, mountain upon mountain of what are doubts and imperfections, from your standpoint, and still the Bible will be and remain for ever the enduring foundation, upon which has been reared and will be maintained the grand structure of American liberty, temperance, justice, honor, truth, and the source and spring of every grace and virtue that adorn the good and the great of America's manhood and womanhood.

My friend, the man who is going to make "the Bible take a back seat," reminds one of the mosquito who threatened to arrest the revolution of the earth by sitting down on it.

TWO KINDS OF COMMUNION WINE?

It is observed with regret that the Rector of the Episcopal Church of Petaluma, who has been using the pure natural fruit of the vine in the celebration of the communion, has fallen under the disapproval of his Bishop, who claims that he has introduced an innovation, ignored Episcopal advice, violated law and precedent &c; the Bishop concludes thus a pastoral letter in the Pacific Churchman.

"Such intruding of individualism into the administration of the Holy Sacrament, is reprehensible in the extreme, full of fanatical intemperance, and fraught with evil. Any minister using a substitute for "wine which the law hath commanded to be received," and heretically administering the Lord's Supper in "but one kind," has in my humble judgment violated his solemn ordination vow, in that he does NOT "give his faithful diligence, by God's help, so to minister the Sacraments, as the Lord hath commanded, and as this Church hath received the same, according to the commandments of God, nor has taught" the people committed to his charge with all diligence to keep and observe the same."

Almost every body passes an arbitrary and infallible judgment upon any phase or question of the temperance reform and tells us exactly what we ought to do in all cases: whether the judge has ever given any attention to the question or not, he generally presumes to know all about it. But it is not at all sure that we have a right to act similarly, and pass any judgment upon a case of this kind, which is a matter involving the opinions and authorities and consciences of the members of a church organization, with whose laws and customs we the temperance people are not prepared nor authorized to deal.

The defendant in the case however will naturally have a very kindly sympathy accorded him in this difficult matter: to him it will appear that what the Lord hath commanded and what the church enjoins are two entirely opposite things. From his standpoint which is that of an immense number of the most intelligent, consciencious and eminently excellent christians of this day, it seems a most sinful sacrilege to knowingly pollute the communion cup with the substitution (initiated in past ages of darkest ignorance) of a liquid, abhorred and denounced and cursed and forbidden beyond all other abominations thruout the law and the prophets—for the fruit of the vine so carefully designated by the Savior and so completely guarded from any uncertain interpretation. On the other hand it will probably appear to the superior authority altogether differently, from the standpoint he has occupied. To him the recusant will appear no doubt obstinate, contumacious, rebellious, unreasonable &c &c while those whose understanding of the meaning of the term fruit of the vine corresponds with the latter's, will feel that he dare not do the things he is now commanded, tho the alternative were martyrdom. But no officious meddling with this matter is presumed upon. Simply it is hoped our brother will act in manly accord with the dictates of an honest conscience, obeying God rather than custom, and while tendering him our earnest sympathy, it is hoped that no rupture of peaceful and fraternal relations may occur between him and his fellow churchmen thru this dilemma.

A club of 10 by Mrs. S. O. Barker, W. V. T. of Orion Lodge, Davisville is the first response to the recent circular of the W. C. T.

ANTICHRIST.

The San Francisco Chronicle says the N. Y. Independent defends one Prof. Robertson Smith as "heartily evangelical" in his lectures, while his criticism is fearless. An example of his fearlessness is given in the distinctness with which he avers in the face of the strongest prejudices that the Mosaic law against leaven in sacrifice did not at all apply to fermented liquors."

It is impossible for any sane man to offer such a profoundly idiotic assertion as that, without a positive intention to deceive and delude. It is precisely parallel to declaring that none of the ten commandments were intended to apply to a man on Friday or when he has his shoes off. There is quite as much reason to suppose one as the other.

There are a great many theories and speculations as to the personality and nature of the Antichrist that was to come. The Christian Herald thinks that champion of sin must be a Napoleon, and others have centered on the same mark; but there is no principle represented by any Napoleon, and the absurd popular reverence that once clung to the name was extinguished by the pitiful villainy and imbecility of the wooden cesar, Napoleon the little.

It may be not unlikely that the name Antichrist does not indicate a person, but a system or a principle that binds a body of men together in hostility to the gospel; the body of false teachers who, in the Christian garb fight the last battles against Christianity in the last desperate struggles which are to precede the coming of the kingdom.

If so, the pseudo religious teachers who bring infamous and insolent blasphemies against the character, conduct and teachings of the Savior, who declare the Christian system is founded on rum, and is the fonnder and teacher of poison drinking, who are ingeniously striving to falsify the teachings of Moses, so as to make him too a propagandist of license to get drunk, who distort Scripture with rabid violence, who take every opportunity to covertly stab the cause of temperance and righteousness: who seal up the warnings of the Bible against wine from the children of the Sabbath School, and who lovingly applaud and greet with honied approval every lying exponent of depraved and distorted meanings of the Bible. These parties seem to furnish a remarkably faithful likeness to the foreshadowed Antichrist.

For many years there has been no obstacle at all serious in this country, in the way of a speedy preparation for the coming of the kingdom of God, except the grogshop and its accessories and backers. But that obstacle alone is as complete and as effective a barrier to the acceptance of heaven's ever offered truce, as all the other monstrous outrages combined, of rebellion against God, that have ever aided to keep mankind in the bondage of sin and misery.

It is time all such lying witnesses were met and unmasked, and their real character exposed. No wonder their hypocrisy has made infidelity rampant and converted unwlling hesitating doubters into positive despisers and enemies of Christianity.

A CHRISTIAN DRUNK FOR A ROYAL WELCOME.

Kalakaua, King of the Sandwich Islands is a godsend to the novelty hunters in London. The correspondent of the World says; "He is the fashionable lion and goes everywhere. He admires the English ladies, and is greatly taken with their style of evening dress. It puts him in mind of home. He behaves himself very well except at dinner, when he drinks more than is good for him. He wanted very much to kiss the Lord Mayor at a banquet at the Madison house the other evening, and was very much excited at the Italian opera last night. He is to dine with Mr. Gladstone next week.

It was a burning disgrace to the United States, now the shame of England, that the king of the Sandwich Islands when welcomed to both lands was made drunk at public banquets given in honor of Christian Civilization. Shame on such Christianity.—Delaware Signal.

It is no wonder we have Ingersolls and Partons etc., when such morality, such habits are labeled Christian. The Christian mayor of London lately gave a banquet to a venerable Christian missionary returned from a long foreign service, and ten or more toasts were drunk by those Christians in Satanic soul poison. It is time to give no longer quarter to this barbarous desecration of the name of Christianity.

ILLOGICAL.

Speaking of temperance people and Dr. Crosby's infidel lecture, the Pacific Churchman says "the professional reformer is about the most uncharitable and illogical man going, and thinks there must be something radically wrong about those who do not repeat his shibboleth, "and then it commendingly quotes Dr. Crosby's ridiculous assertion 'touching" as it remarks, a "matter of moment, the Holy Communion."

"The two wine theory, regarding the Scriptures, silly as it is, cannot help the tetotalers, for the wine drunk at the Lord's Supper by the Corinthians, intoxicated them, and yet the apostle never thinks of telling them they took the wrong kind of wine. So the command to the deacons and others not to be given to much wine, shows that the apostles had fermented wine in view."

Now Dr. Crosby knows very well that only by a well understood error of translation which renders "satiated or filled," drunken, is there the least allusion to intoxication among the Corinthians; and he knows too there is not in the Scriptures the most distant allusion to intoxicating wine or fermented wine ever having been used at communion in those days: and he knows that the command to the deacons and others not to be given to much wine had no reference whatever to communion occasions. If any temperance reformer descended to such miserable perversions of truth, he would be hounded and disowned by the temperance people themselves; but Dr. Crosby, who is not a temperance reformer nor a reformer of any kind, can be guilty of any amount of the most transparent sophistries in defence of dram-drinking and of the use of doctored potato whisky at communion in place of the fruit of the vine, and he is heartily commended.

The Churchman cannot name one illogical position ever assumed by a genuine or recognized temperance reformer, or a position ever taken by the temperance movement from which they have been dislodged or which their opponents dare assail, except in the manner of the late fiasco made by Dr. Crosby, which has made him a laughing stock and brought him the utter contempt of the intelligent manhood and womanhood of America.

Some Reading Again.—The temperance papers taken by Enterprise Lodge and its members were not quite properly stated last week. It should be N. T. Advocate, 1; National Freeman, 7; N. Y. Gem. 1; Our Union, (N. Y.) 7; Our Union, (Petaluma) 12; National Liberator Chicago. 10; Rescue, 33; in all 71 for a membership of about 90. And the Juvenile Temple takes 24 copies each of 3 monthly papers and 150 tracts each month. They also have secured a fine encyclopedia of 15 volumes, as a premium for their Rescue Club. Let us hear from the lodge that is ahead of that anywhere on this side of the planet Saturn. And, let us hear too, whenever Guerneville feels that any of the outlay above is wasted.

"RESCUE."

What an amount of work this word points to when applied to the cause for which this paper weekly issues its helpful warning; but I see a band of temperance folks reaching out their hands and encircling the earth; and right beside them, another circle of grog shops, bars and corner groceries, placed cornerwise, reaching away around the globe too. The one is for health and long life, and highest human civilization; tne other a smothered fire, that is sure to break out and consume building and builder; 'tis only a question of time.

I stand upon the crowded street and see a blind man, well-dressed and young, groping his way out of a car; and then a lady followed; one and another cried, "he'll be run over;" then, taking the arm of his mother, he was helplessly led to the sidewalk, reeling homewards—drunk! I felt like taking the other arm, and bravely helping that dear mother, that had hunted up, and was taking her son home, and staying with him until I had exacted a promise from him, for very shame of the position, to touch no more of the beastly intoxicating liquor; but they were strangers to me, and soon lost in the crowd, and I was a woman. I only wished that some temperance brother might have been there to rescue the boy.

Riding down town on the car one morning, I saw a well-dressed man stumbling homeward on the sidewalk, with a colored servant for escort; the lackey was grinning from ear to ear with the joke of the situation, while the men on the car seemed to enjoy the sight. One said, "He is overcome with heat;" another, "that he was too well-dressed to have been out all night;" another, "that 10 o'clock A. M. was too early to go back in that condition; that late at night was some excuse for cups, etc., etc.," until disgust on the faces of the decent ones silenced further observation.

Not long since a young man was kicked out of a saloon, so helplessly drunk that he could not walk straight. In that condition he was run over by the cars, and lost an arm; so, maimed he must go through life—but the loss of a limb is not as pitiful as the partial loss of intellect.

There are more insane and idiotic inebriates than all other mutilated human beings. It is surprising that any one should so waste their life, when they might live so nobly. Beth.

SOUND BUSINESS PRINCIPLES.

Concerning the new Sunday law, we say it is not fanaticism; it is sound business principle. The retail liquor dealer represents the business of a debaucher; a business which nurses and instigates crime, a business which is inimical to the welfare of society, and a business which bears heavily upon the pockets of the tax-payers. No one can deny that such is the exact nature of the business which insists upon a discrimination in its favor embodying the addition of another day to the week in which to inflict physical and moral injury upon men. On some election days all the liquor shops are required to be closed. Why? Because there are a large number of men not at work on those days, and who will supply themselves with liquor until they have no longer control of their wills. Then they are prepared to commit crime. For the same reason the liquor saloon should be hermetically sealed Sunday. There are fewer men at work Sunday than any other day, and if several hundred saloons are open for business they are likely to do business with a vengeance in their own peculiar and detrimental style. Liquor dealing is a very peculiar and confessedly dangerous businss; and it should de dealt with in a very peculiar way—just like gunpowder for instance, which is carefully stored and locked up at isolated points, for reasons of public safety. It has come to be a rule that the bloodiest crimes of the week are committed on Sunday, and almost every one of them has its origin in Sunday drinking, with resultant quarreling and violence either in the saloons or near them. There is certainly abundant reason why the amended Sunday law should be enfored. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Decorative Art. Quite a number of the exchanges of the Rescue are illustrated now with portraits of distinguished people. But why they should all center upon the one portrait of Mrs Lydia Pinkham, and that by no means an attractive one is a mystery. Give us a change; give us a rest.

Samples of a splendid encyclopedia to be seen in this office, to be had 15 volumes (a library of universal knowledge) to be had free gratis for only getting up a club for the Rescue.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXPERIENCES.

Barbacoas is rather a lonesome place for strangers, but there are, fortunately, some distractions in the shape of novelties for strangers to watch and notice. At the time of my first visit there, the pomps and circumstances of war, were the most prominent topics of public attention. In the endeavor to resist the School System adopted by a liberal government, which proposed to teach the children something more than prayers to Saints and hymns to the Virgin, the clerical party had fanned up a revolution, till it broke out in red flames of war. There was skirmishing and sometimes pretty serious fighting away 200 or 300 miles in Antioquia and elsewhere. Barbacoas was in arms; the city had a small anvil, two or three dozen rifles, several sword-belts, with large, bright buckles (calculated to inspire terror in an enemy), an assorted, miscellaneous band, comprising two drums, two bugles, one fife, one fiddle, and one large brass double-base groaner, with a bell mouth. All the able-bodied Africans were enrolled and called to order every morning and evening, and the bugle, about every half hour of the day, found something to scream about.

Barbacoas was determined to do something splendid if war should visit them. It was utterly impossible for an enemy's' force to get there, if they wanted to, but, like the people who fear a collision with a comet, there was a frequent alarm of an approaching foe. If a drunken sentinel's gun went off accidentally at 10 P. M., it was supposed the conservadores were coming sure, and there was a good deal of blowing and bravado as soon as it was positively known there was no danger. It did not seem that dicipline was very strict, for when the roll of the soldiers was called, night and morning, they generally answered with an unearthly yell, each one seeming to try to yell in a more egregiously unnatural, impudent and comical tone and accent, than his predecessor.

The next object of public interest was the Church. It commenced business before daylight. During the war it seemed to have some extra calls upon its devotional capacities and facilities. The military band opened fire in the church at about 5 A. M., and the drums and fiddle recited at frequent intervals until about 7 o'clock, sometimes breaking out into a volume of great emphasis. In the steeple were found bells, all of which sounded as if they had served for two or three generations as cow-bells in Massachusetts; every one of them had an aggravated wheeze, and a suspicion of imperfectly mended cracks. Each bell, when on duty, was battered by an African, whose great aim was to get in a greater number of licks at his bell than his comrades could at theirs.

The barracks occupied by the military were on one side of the plaza, on the next side was the church, and, on the opposite street corner from the church, stood the next dearest object of the Spanish American's affections, the cockpit. On another corner, facing both church and cockpit, was my room in the private hotel of Vicente Munoz. There were two of us lodged in that hotel. When either or both of us were in town, it was a hotel, at other times it was a private residence.

It was a favorite location for seeing and hearing the most of everything that was in progress. On one of my trips to the city, my first introduction to the terrible scourge of that region took place. The calentura or chills and fever is the portion of everybody there at some time. On this occasion, there were some ecclesiastical holidays of note, in honor of some body having been born about that time or at some other time of the year; it being war time as well, there was to be a large business done both at the cockpit and at the church. The resident priest in charge of the church was in good spirits, and his brother who presided over the cockpit felt equally happy as to the prospect.

It was near full moon too and a bright moon seemed always to infuse a martial as well as a musical spirit into the 3,000 cats, more or less which held nightly conference upon the roofs of the houses, on those favorable occasions. It musters up a rush of happy memories to recall that first experience of fever which lasted about three days. About 30 feet from my bed on the opposite side of the street was the cockpit, where probably 150 champion roosters had been deposited by their owners to be in readiness for the impending contests. In this country the roosters crow at stated hours till midnight and then at 3, 4 and 5 in the morning. Some of the folks say they keep better time than a watch, and that may be true, for a watch dont run there long, owing to the all searching dampness which rusts every thing that can be corroded.

As soon as the evening set in fairly, an opening chorus of cats on the roofs commenced the exercises of the nightly program. Naturally the dogs considered silence on their part under these circumstances might be interpreted into a lack of vigilance and they went in, commencing with a few disjointed solos but soon growing into a general melee and medley chorus of all the qualities and volumes of musical utterances, of which the canine mechanism is capable. The bugle would now and then squeal some discordant orders to the grim martial veterans of 16 and 17 who were discoursing or dreaming of the chances of a breakfast on the morrow, and the bugle would set the roosters in the cockpit to a general defiance of each other and the rest of the world; this would continue till near midnight when the cats and dogs had the field to themselves for an occasional chorus till about 5 A. M.

Then the bugle commenced again its daily rounds; the church bells described a fit of delirium tremens for about a quarter of an hour, to be repeated later; the cockpit went into a hysterical fantasia which spread among the chanticleers all over town; the dogs united in a despairing protesting howl, their fore paws extended and quivering, their noses turned up toward the zenith in an exact perpendicular, and their whole make up as true an expression of harassing agony, as their vocal utterances were. In the Veranda of the hotel Munoz was a menagerie of young parrots learning to chatter the fashionable titbits of parrot literature. They would look at each other and squirm when the church bells began their infernal din of discords; as the clangor proceeded and the bugle and the roosters got comfortably started with their parts, their uneasiness and alarm found expression in an occasional shriek of pain:—when the doghowl accompaniment struck in, they could stand it no longer, but broke out in a prolonged series of the most fiendish skrieks, yells, hoops and ear-splitting screams that parrot ever conceived—and they put their heads and bills close together during this penance, and their eyes protruded, as if the din which had thus driven them to frenzy, was painful to them in the extreme.

Three days and three nights of this kind of entertainment for a sick man made an impression not easily erased. It must be fresh to be appreciated. Frequent repetition takes all the gilding from the enjoyment.

CONVERTS.

Several of the strangers (Protestants) who have gone to that country have been converted. One American lady who was dying alone in her husband's absence, abjured Protestantism in her weakness, to avoid the shocking fate for her of being buried in a lonely field or swamp: but in other cases those who change creeds, either marry somebody very soon, or try to.

The most entirely satisfactory and genuine conversion that took place there was that of an elderly doctor from California. First time we met, he said he understood how to speak the Spanish language perfectly, but could write it rather better than he could speak it. A month or two later he came to me repeating just about the same identical words, but adding, "these people are so adjectively stupid and ignorant that I really believe they understand you better than they do me. I have a case in court and the judge is so stupid that I cant beat anything into his thick head, and you will oblige me very much if you will come and explain to him what I say." And then he assured me again that he spoke, read and wrote Spanish perfectly. After court was over he went to price a pair of spectacles for a friend in the country. He examined a few and gave it up, saying to the shopman in Spanish what would have been as properly said in English thus: "much difficultacious is I do know glasses by others." He wanted to say it is very difficult to select the proper spectacles for other people. He spoke Spanish perfectly! ! !

It is said it took him seven days to get all his sins confessed to a priest, but there never could be a doubt of the perfect genuineness of his conversion for it was so thoro and comprehensive that he had no need at all to make any change in his daily habits. He continued right along to make mincemeat of the ten commandments; particularly the third. About 10 to 50 percent of his words were swear words, his stories were as elastic as ever, and he would whale a poor helpless timid little Indian with a heavy club just the same as ever. His was something like a conversion, it would stand the wash and had no weak points. He was asked if he had regularly acquired the title of M. D. Me! said he, me an M. D!!! why there was more money spent on me to make me a doctor than on any other man in the world. How was Ben —— when you saw him to-night, Doctor? Well, he was no better; I felt his pulse, they was very irregular: wuss then they wus yesterday.

CALIFORNIA WINE.

OR ANY OTHER WINE.

The Montreal "Journal of Commerce" a commercial Journal and having no other interest to attend to, not at all a temperance paper, publishes the following recipes which are in use in the wine "trade."

"Receipt for claret: Five gallons of boiled cider, two gallons of spirits, five gallons of water, two ounces of powdered catechu, or two drops of sulphuric acid to the gallon, to suit the taste. Color with tincture of logwood. And, if you prefer sherry: Ten gallons of cider, four ounces of bitter almonds, one gallon of honey, two ounces of mustard. Boil for ten minutes, then add one-half pint of spirit of orris root, two ounces of essence of cassia, and three quarts of rum. But here is the recipe for port, prescribed so freely by physicians. Twenty gallons of cider, two gallons of honey, two ounces of carbonate of soda, one and one-half gallons of strong tincture grains of paradise, five ounces of powdered catechu. Color with logwood or burnt sugar. A small portion of spirits will improve it. In addition to these recipes, "published for the trade," are others for manufacturing seven kinds of brandy, besides the cognac, some of which are really frightening, seven kinds of whisky, two kinds of gin, five kinds of rum, and ten different kinds of wine,"

That is the competition the wine makers in Sonoma and Los Angeles Counties will have to rub against; and they will get rubbed out. Five quarts of alcohol, forty three quarts of water and ten cents or so of flavoring and stinging matter will make 12 gallons of the best wine that can be produced: nobody can tell it from choice Sonoma vintage, when the doctor has done his work. And it will cost 12 to 16 cents a gallon: it can be made in a cellar in San Francisco and ten gallons of it will be sold East for every one of the genuine. Can any of our grape growers get rich with such an opposition as that. The only effect the Phyloxera will have on the product of wine here or in France will be to necessitate a larger growth of potatoes and a larger import of molasses in either country.

WISDOM FROM A CLOWN.

From the New York Star's notice of a gospel temperance meeting of Franklin Division S. of T. Brooklyn the following items are cut out. The heading is the Star's:

After prayers and singing, Joseph P. English of Poughkeepsie read the first chapter of James. Before beginning it he said that James was a "radical of radicals" and a man who dared to speak the truth without fear or favor.

Mr. English began by saying that he was a converted clown. When he was a child in his mother's arms forty-four years ago, he said, he first took the temperance pledge from Father Matthew himself.

Father Matthew was a great man and performed a glorious work. but he had to leave his church before he could do any temperance work. Forty years ago, even in the Methodist church, the ministers went for the blood of our Lord to the dram shops.

"I am a Methodist, altho I was once a Roman Catholic, continued he, I know of what I speak. I was assisting a minister and was requested by him to distribute communion wine, but I smelt in it all that was hellish and wrong, and I answered: "No sir; I've come from the Barroom, I've sold it and I've drank it, but I'll have no more to do with it in any shape."

We have at last brot temperance into the churches but there is another movement we must forward and that is the prohibition question. Kansas has led out and we must follow. If all Christian men and women were to take a firm stand on this question for six months, at the end of that time the politicians would come to them on their knees and ask what was wanted. 'You want the sale of liquor stopped? Why certainly, gentlemen.' They would answer, we'll hang the rumsellers to the lampposts.

I predict that Christian men will yet have to save from hanging the rumsellers whom they are fighting today. Christians must be consistent.

The Cyclopaedia War.

The month of July, 1881, witnesses the completion of the largest and most important literary work this country and the century have seen. It is the Library of Universal Knowledge, large type edition, in 15 large octavo volumes, containing 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's Cyclopædia, at less than one-fifth its cost, and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopædia, at a little more than one-fourth its cost.

Victory

Chambers's Encyclopædia, which forms the basis of the Library of Universal Knowledge (the last London edition of 1880 being reprinted verbatim as a portion of its contents), is the laborious product of the ripest British and European scholarship. It has developed through a century of Cyclopædia making; its various editions having been many times revised, in successive years, till it has come to be universally recognized, by those competent to judge, as standing at the very front of great aggregations of knowledge, and better adapted than any other Cyclopædia for popular use. It contains such full and important information as the ordinary reader, or the careful student, is likely to seek, upon about 25,000 subjects in every department of human knowledge. Chambers's Encyclopædia, however, is a foreign production, edited and published for a foreign market, and could not be expected to give as much prominence to American topics as American readers might desire. To supply these and other deficiencies a large corps of American editors and writers have added important articles upon about 15,000 topics, covering the entire field of human knowledge, bringing the whole number of titles under one alphabetical arrangement to about 40,000. Thus the work is thoroughly Americanized, and the Library of Universal Knowledge becomes at once the latest and most complete Encyclopædia in the field, at a mere fraction of the cost of any similar work which has preceded it.

of the 15 volumes, complete, in extra cloth binding, $15.00. In half Russia, sprinkled edges, $20.00. In half Russia, gilt top, $22.50. In full library sheep, marbled edges, $25.00.

Revolution

The superlative value and importance of this great Encyclopædia lies especially in the fact that it is brought within the reach of every one who aspires after knowledge and culture. It is really a library of universal knowledge. It brings a liberal education easily within the reach even of every plowboy of the country and apprentice boy of the city. Every farmer and every mechanic in the land owes it to himself and to his children that such a Cyclopædia shall henceforward form a part of the outfit of his home. To the professional man, and every person of intelligence in every walk of life, a Cyclopædia is a necessity.

Of course the old and wealthy publishers who have grown rich (it is said that the Appletons have made a profit of nearly two million dollars on their Cyclopædia) from the sale of their high-priced publications are not pleased that their monopolies are broken and their power overthrown. Of course the book agents and booksellers who have been used to getting from 40 to 60 per cent commission for selling these high-priced books are not so well pleased to sell the Library of Universal Knowledge on 15 per cent commission, though those who are not short-sighted discover that their own interests, after all, are identical with the interests of the people, and their real profits, in the end, are increased, by the immense sales which result from meeting the people's wants. The majority of booksellers, however, are better pleased to slander than to sell this and our numerous other standard and incomparably low-priced publications. But the Literary Revolution has always looked to the people, in whose interests it is, for its patronage, and it has never looked in vain, as our more than one million volumes printed last year (this year being increased to probably more than two millions) abundantly prove. You can order the Cyclopædia directly from us, and by uniting with your neighbors and friends you can secure club rates as follows:

$10,000 Reward

To Club Agents.

A discount of 10 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering at one time three or more sets of the Cyclopædia; and a discount of 15 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering five or more sets at one time.

As a special inducement to our friends and patrons to go to work promptly and vigorously, each doing what he can for the dissemination of universal knowledge, we propose to distribute $10,000 in special premiums as follows, in addition to the regular discount to clubs:

$5,000 Reward to be distributed equally among the first 500 club agents who send us clubs of not less than five subscribers, after June 15th and before September 1st.

$5,000 Reward In addition to the first $5,000 to be distributed among the 100 club agents who, during the same time, send us the largest number of subscribers, not less than twenty in number, the amount to be distributed proportionately to the whole number of subscribers which each of the 100 club agents may send us.

The names of the subscribers must in every case be forwarded to us. The first $5,000 named will be distributed as specified as rapidly as the orders are received, and the remaining $5,000 will be distributed promptly on Sept. 1st. The names of the persons receiving these rewards will be printed, with the amounts received by each, and the list sent to all the club agents entering into competition for them. Subscribers must be actual purchasers for individual use, to entitle the club agent to the rewards under this offer, and not booksellers or agents who buy to sell again.

Persons desiring to raise clubs may send to us at once for sample volumes, if they desire, in the various styles of binding, paying us 75 cents for the volume in cloth, $1.00 for the volume in half Russia, sprinkled edges, and $1.25 for the volume in library sheep. Orders for the full sets will be filled by us with the utmost promptness, within our ability to manufacture, beginning not later than July 10th, orders being filled in the order of their receipt by us.

Specimen pages of the "Library of Universal Knowledge" will be sent free upon request. Descriptive catalogue of our large list of standard publications, with terms to clubs, and illustrated pamphlet describing book-making and type-setting by steam, will be sent upon application. Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by express. Fractions of $1.00 may be sent in postage stamps.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY AND PARTY POLICY.—No. 12.

REV. GEO. W. FITCH.

It cannot be doubted that the moral element in existing political parties if acting separately would condemn the liquor traffic, but this same moral element when acting in conventions or collectively, throws the whole weight of its influence in favor of the license system. The Radicals have been entreated time and again to remain in the Republican party because of the religious and moral element composing it, and for years they have done so. But how much respect has been paid to this temperance element? We want something more than good, capable men for office. We want such men backed by a party policy that means war against rum selling. We are not satisfied with a temperance candidate even backed by a party which does not dare in its platform, to denounce or even discountenance, the most damnable monopoly in the land.

When a man consents to represent his party, unless he is a fool or a traitor, he does not expect nor attempt to compel his party to represent him. Individual character and responsibility is always merged into party policy when the individual becomes a party leader, This is a law of all parties, the law of self-preservation.

This principle has forced upon the Radicals, the organization of the Prohibition party. They purpose to teach political conventions that moral principlo is the safest and best "party policy," and that the demands of an earnest minority cannot be safely ignored. Conscience, manhood, self-protection and a thousand appeals from the victims of intemperance demand independent political action, as the only solution of this legislative problem of the hour.

We wonder that any one can doubt the necessity of a "Prohibition Party."

We have however, heard many good men object to such a party, as follows: One inquires, "Where shall we obtain the material for such a party?"

We answer, anywhere or nowhere. We are not obliged to find material for political parties. It is for us to do right, to vote our principles, and God will take care of the rest. It is a mistake to suppose that we are responsible for the size of the church or party with which we are connected.

No one is responsible for more than himself. Each of us possesses capacity to stand alone if need be, in spite of men and devils. It is none of our business to inquire how big or how small our party will be; if it is right that is enough. God will find material for its growth. He will raise up voters to sustain the State in doing right. Again those who are so anxious about the size of the party, consider votes cast for a minority party, as wasted outright, thrown away. They call anything wasted that is diverted from their purpose of getting and keeping a numerical majority.

A vote cast for principle is never wasted, however small the party or however often defeated. Such votes will tell at last more powerfully than those which swell the popular tide. Votes given to such a party are power stored up for use in other days.

The food of the child is not wasted tho it cannot work. The soldier who falls in the skirmish which precedes the battle does not throw away his life; he merely lays it down a little sooner than his comrades who are to fall in the after struggle. These sacrifices are not waste but the highest kind of saving. This cry of "waste" is "dishonest," a trick of the politicians, one of the shams that still cluster about the polls.

But this third party movement will defeat the Republicans and give the State to the Democrats. Suppose it does. We must bear in mind that majorities will rule, and the minority is not responsible. It is all right for the temperance voters to fight one rum party, so long as we do it in the Republican party. If we are defeated we are not responsible.

But if we withdraw and vote with the Prohibition party and thus fight two rum parties and dont whip both, then we are responsible, especially if Democracy triumphs.

Away with such political nonsense! Better far will it be for the country for all parties that stand in the way of prohibition, to perish. It is patriotism that upholds this country irrespective of this or that party. Is a man less a patriot because he votes against the abominable liquor traffic? We need no party but the party of right. Prohibition is right, and we believe the Prohibition party of the future will be rejuvenated Republicanism, as all that is true and valuable in that organization will be instinctively drawn to this living issue.

Let us not then be longer fooled by this cry of "wasting votes," or that the country will go to the devil if the Republican party is destroyed.

It is a shameful spectacle, as we see the two great parties of this nation using the franchise, not to abate the gigantic evil of the rum traffic, but simply to determine whether John Doe or Richard Roe shall have the offices. O ye temperance and christian voters, will you consent longer to be used for such ignoble purposes, or will you rally to the prohibition standard and realizing your individual responsibility, vote with that party whose policy means relentless war upon the rum traffic?

WHAT AN M. D. SAYS.

The people of Tulare City are to be congratulated upon having a worthy Physician thoroly posted and thoroly consciencious on the question of the nature and uses of alcohol, and a sympathizer and helper of the moral movements of the day. At the Good Templar anniversary June 17, Dr, J. L. Asay delivered at Tulare City a splendid lecture which occupies 6¼ columns of the Tulare Times. It would afford much pleasure to give the whole lecture in the RESCUE but space only permits the following extracts taken from here and there.

It is an opinion among the uninformed and one derived from the misstatements of those professing to have some knowledge of science, that alcohol in all its various forms exists in nature, that it is an essential article of food and contains certain elements of nutrition and by its dietary use assists digestion, and induces longevity. That it is a valuable remedy in all classes of disease and that the daily use of wines and other liquors should be encouraged to ward off deleterious climatic influences. Many of our medical men have promulgated this false and monstrous idea without the shadow of a claim upon which to base such an hypothesis. They recommend it for invalids, they advocate its use for well men to keep from being sick, they advise you to take it for all the ills flesh is heir to, yet it is astonishing how little it cures; if any other remedy was but half as impotent in its beneficial effects in disease, they would have long since discarded its use as a nostrum, but custom, and pandering to depraved and vicious appetites have induced them to hug and caress this monstrous poison in their daily professional practice.

The grape, potato, grain and other vegetable substances contain elements of nutrition, but in their natural state do not contain alcohol, neither do any of their virtues as elements of food remain in the alcohol generated from them.

Alcohol is in no way associated with the vegetable kingdom during life. It is the result of death and decay.

When fermentation is established by the interference of art, it still requires the exertion of human ingenuity to secure the object sought. The sweet juice of the young grain is the natural precursor of flour in the ripe one. Nature aims to mature her fruits so as to adapt them to the wants and laws of her animated creatures, or when they cease to be thus used to reduce them again to their simple elements. It needs little reasoning to establish the position that neither immature or decaying fruits were ever designed to be the food of men. It is only after death and during the process of decay that alcohol is generated.

A dead horse lying out on the plains, a dead chicken in your garden, or a dead dog in the ditch exposed to the air and warmth of the sun are converted into carrion and throw out a terrible stench and do you not know that a vat of rotting corn, rye or ley or a cask of fermenting apple or grape juice, exposed to air and heat are all undergoing the same process of decay.

They all rot in the same manner that animal matter does, but the only difference is in the smell, this is owing to the animals containing nitrogen, the grains and vegetable juices do not. But in order to convert the juices and malt into carrion, all that is necessary is to add a little nitrogen. It will not make them decay any faster, nor diminish the amount of alcohol; it only changes the fragrance of the bouquet.

Since there is sugar in the animal body and by the process of decay sugar changes into alcohol, it follows that alcohol can be be derived from carrion, and were it not for the nitrogen present, no doubt distillers would avail themselves of the presence of such carcasses to utilize them into pure whiskey. The only thing is to get rid of the nitrogen, and science will accomplish this in due course of time.

Alcohol never did exist in nature. When the original creative act was accomplished, when the spirit of God brooded over the face of the waters, and chaos retired before the reign of order, when the sun was fixed, and the planets were appointed their courses in the heavens, when the fiat went forth, "let there be light," and there was light, when ardent heat cheered and quickened the fresh creation, and animated every living thing, when silence gave place to praise, and the songs of birds made vocal the bowers of Paradise, when from the rocks, fountains of living waters gushed forth and eastward the silvery stream rolled on; when "the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, at this fresh outburst of creative power, alcohol was not there."

It is a custom with some physicians to prescribe a mixture of quinine and whisky as a cure all. Now if you pin this Doctor down to an argument on his prescription and ask him how much alcohol that whisky contains, you will stump him on the first lay out of the argument. He cannot tell you whether it is good whisky or made in some of the dark cellars of Tulare county, perchance he never sees it, but orders it hap hazard. It may be a docoction of belladonna, strychnia, opium, tobacco with a little aqua fortis and alcohol thrown in for all he knows, and when ordering alcohol by the loose names of gin, brandy, rum and wine, he has no conception of what he is prescribing, nor of the effect of his prescription, and you may rest assured that when a physician prescribes quinine and whisky thus loosely, he is at his wits end and dont know what else to do, and has not the manhood to acknowledge it.

We come now to the question. is alcohol a curative agent?

Were we to answer this question in the affirmative, it would be an argument against its common use. Why take a cure when you have no complaint? Medicines are not for the healthy but the diseased, and that which makes them medicines at all is their peculiar power to produce extraordinary changes in the body.

Physic and food are contraries, related respectively to disease and health.

If alcoholics are ever useful as medicines, or even as adjuncts to medical treatment, certain conditions must be observed in their use which are generally overlooked

1.—The disease must be there and understood before the remedy or supposed remedy can be administered.

2.—It must be known that alcohol is the essential part of the remedy and not a mere accident. For example, when brandy and hot water are given for a spasm, the real remedy is the heat.

3.—The nature and strength of the liquor must be known, which it rarely is. Besides it is often adulterated by powerful drugs that may occasionally produce the benefit ascribed to the spirit.

4.—Above all, the exact condition of the patient and the time for the administration with all the proper tests, must be reduced to a system and science, otherwise the prescription is mere quackery, empirical and dishonest.

5.—Careful and comprehensive experiments must be made in regard to the administration of alcohol for certain classes of disease, showing the benefit of the practice by a lessened mortality.

It has been demonstrated time and again that the ratio of mortality is greatly increased where alcoholic remedies are prescribed in disease, and in the hospitals of Europe and America it has been considerably decreased where these liquors have not been employed.

If you will investigate the claims of total abstinence, you will find it not, as has been said, "the theory of fanatics," but facts based upon great scientific truths, immutable and unalterable.

FLING.

Some of our Good Templar friends and organs, east of the mountains, are amusing the enemy with an internal rumpus about dissatisfaction with the proceedings of the R. W. G. L. There is just now a very hot dispute between the advocates of temperance and the rum fiends: the latter are slautering every day over 200 of our friends and countrymen and women and children, with the same cool indifference displayed by a butcher, who kills that many sheep and calves for sale. That fight is enough on our hands, let us stop that, brethren, first and then we shall have time to discuss those paragraphs which we did not like the look of." Meantime if any body of our party party makes a fling or a "dirty fling" at another, let us keep the discreditable fact as close as possible, and say nothing about it.

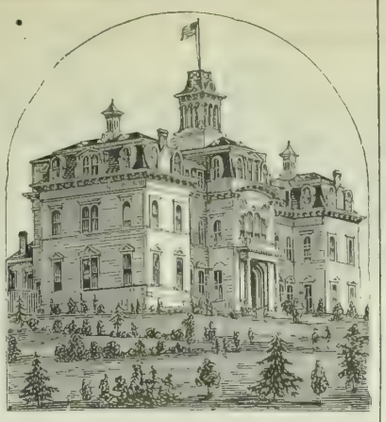
National Freeman,

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,

First No. Jan., 1881.



Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. IN MEMORIAM.

Rosy Crown Lodge No. 136 at Iowa Hill, passed at last meeting resolutions of respect and affectionate reverence for the memory of their late brother Charles S. Batchelder, an earnest and faithful member of the Order and a true and noble citizen.

Mt. Vernon Lodge No. 254 of Stockton on August 5th passed resolutions of respect for the memory of Oscar Pock a member of that lodge, recently deceased.

NEW READING ROOM.

On Tuesday evening August 16th the Reading Room of the W. C. T. U. at 631 Sacramento St, will be formally opened and a pleasant time is anticipated. The fact that the speeches to be made are limited to five minutes each is an excellent feature of the program and there can be no doubt that the ladies who have the arrangements in charge, have provided that the affair shall be a success.

ANOTHER revenue officer in South Carolina shot by a distiller: it is well understood that the government of the United States, under a Republican administration, dare not punish a distiller or brewer for any crime, for fear of offending the German whisky vote.

PHOENIX Lodge at Benicia met for the first time in their hall August the 4th. Public installation. Bro. John Arnoup of Oakland gave the address of the occasion, which tho brief owing to the lateness of the hour was received with much favor: so reports the Sec. H. Durner.

BRO WEBB has sold out his interest in the Lompoc Record. And Seaside Lodge of Santa Barbara sends a resolution of extreme pleasure at the appointment of this able, earnest and able worker as Grand Lecturer for Southern California, and thanks the G. W. C. T. for making the selection.

THE National Division Sons of T. unlike our R. W. G. L, believes in encouraging a good movement. In place of killing the mutual aid movement it resolutely commends that institution of the S. of T. and reports that it has already secured 700 members. And now it will rnn to a grand success very rapidly.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, has a mob of business men who are trying to resist the liquor law. There was a mob assault upon a temperance advocate. Indignation meetings are held elsewhere: one H. H. Williams of Osawatomie a hardware merchant, writes to the Great Western Stove Co. at Leavenworth, sayfng he will buy no more stoves there till the temperance laws are enforced; which is good logic.

AUGUST 5th was set apart for a day of prayer for the blessing of God to rest upon the Ecumenical Conference of Methodism which is to convene Sept. 5th in London. It is not too late yet for all good people to pray for that. The question of temperance is to come before that body and no doubt their voice will be heard by the world on that question, leaving no doubt as to where they stand as usual.

BERKLEY. Mrs. Stevens has had two successful meetings in Berkley, one in the Presbyterian Church and one in Clapps Hall. The latter was crowded and the audience very much interested. Twenty two names of responsible citizens were given as applicants for membership and a decidedly favorable impression awakened in favor of enforcing the law which was designed to protect the students from being ruined and slautered at their outset in life.

PROFESSED ministers of the Gospel of Christ who see the flood of intemperance that is sweeping over our fair land—corrupting the youth, the middle aged and bringing the hoary heads down to the grave in shame—the corrupting influences upon our whole social system, our government and the churches, and fail to warn the people, are like the hireling shepherd that "seeth the wolf coming and fleeth because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep."—Tidal Wave.

HANFOBD JOUBNAL. That is the name of a new semi-weekly paper pudlished at Hanford, Tulare Co, by Milton McWhorter $2.50 a year. It has a neat appearance, and what is much more commendable a glance over the contents of No 4 gives one the impression that it is and is to be a paper of good morals and intends to be on the honest side, the right side and the clean side of every moral question. The people of Tulare County are now-a-days reaching out for a better and higher civilization and they ought to take good care that the Journal dont fail for want of a hearty patronage. The question of adverse politics should never prejudice a good citizen against patronizing a clean honest respectable paper. A good many more such are needed in this State.

THE suit about the G. L. Charter in England has had one hearing and is postponed until October. No doubt great glory to the Good Templars, and a telling benefit to the cause of temperance will (?) result. The details are about as interesting as those of a dogfight or a walking-match, and are of equal importance probably, to those who have time and patience to invest in them.

AT Topeka Kansas, Ex Gov. Robison the grogshop champion and some other rowdies addressed a public meeting July 18th; resolutions were adopted hostile to the further enforcement of the Kansas law. On the 20th a meeting of respectable citzens unanimously adopted resolutions pledging "our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor" to the thoro enforcement of the law. It is to be hoped the honest people of Kansas will stand no nonsense: all failure to execute prohibitory laws have been attributable to cowardice only.

THE details of the prison investigation only reveal what every body knew before, the utter folly and wickedness of making the offices in the prison rewards of political rottenness. The old adage, set a rogue to catch a rogue cannot be properly amended into set thieves to reform thieves. The penitentiary is and has been a grogshop and a nursery of crime in order that a gang of political appointees might enrich themselves; it is only just, however, to allow that it seems to have been conducted on quite as honest and respectable and economical principles as any other concern which the taxpayers support for the purpose of making soft places for the successful dealers of the political faro game.

A GREAT ENCYCLOPEDIA. The completion of the great "Library of Universal Knowledge" the first of July, marks an epoch in the lives of thousands of ambitious young men and women, as it places a liberal education easily within the reach of every one who chooses to aspire to it. Every department of human knowledge is in a large measure here laid open to the understanding of the intelligent reader. Heretofore such a valuable and magnificent compendium of knowledge has been inaccesible to ordinary people on account of extremely high cost. This the largest encyclopædia ever published in this country, in large type, excellently printed and bound, can be secured at the trifling cost of $15, and even beyond this, liberal discounts are allowed to clubs of three, five, ten or more persons, and during the months of July and August $10.000 special reward is offered to club agents. It is wel worth while sending at once to the publishers for specimen pages and particulars. See also their advertisement elsewhere. American Book Exchange, Publishers, New York.

OHIO.—The Prohibitionists of Ohio have nominated A. R. Ludlow for governor, a wealthy manufactnrer and a member of the M. E. Church. He has been a sturdy Republican but is so no longer, when to be so is simply to enlist in the service of the foreign banditti who are at open war with the women and children of America and war to the death too. That is what it means to be a Republican in Ohio and in some other States to-day. The Republicans have re-nominated governor Foster chiefly it is said because of his active prominence in the defeat of the local option law.

The M. E. Church of Ohio promises to go strong for the Prohibitory ticket and some of the party organ-grinders are exhausting the fish-wife vocabulary in their abuse. Some people (patriots) are advising to give no more patronage to the Methodist preachers, a game in which the latter would not probably come off second best. It is to be earnestly hoped that Gov. Ludlow may be elected. The Foster organs have made the battle cry, down with the Methodists: the Methodists must be snubbed. In this case that word only means the temperance voters.

FAITH.

Of the thousand creeds that trouble,
Understanding mine and thine.
Which, oh, tell me, is unfailing—
Which of all is truth divine?

Neither here nor there salvation;
Seek it not outside of faith
In the teachings, in the warnings,
In the promise true and great.

Of the One, which from beginning
Was and is, and yet must be Crucified in spirit daily.
Bearing sin for me and thee.

Not to us is hidden duty.
Unto neighbor, unto God;
Let us strive to follow meekly
Way thus given us for naught.

J. C. K

ABOUT THE GOSPELS.

The S. F. Chronicle lately pronounced a very positive judgment upon the authorship of the four gospels, asserting that it was a fact upon which the scholarship of the world, after due research and examination, had agreed beyond a doubt, that none of them were written by their supposed authors, nor by any who had seen Jesus, nor sooner than fifty years after his death.

In view of the accurate scholarship displayed by the Chronicle from week to week in science, history, statesmanship and in every department of financial and social economy, including the brandy interest, it would be severe perhaps to suggest that it could be mistaken in an opinion as to who did or did not do anything 1800 years ago.

In the case of any one outside of the Chronicle, it would be presumptuous to render a positive decision as to the authorship of the gospels and epistles, unless one has the requisite scholarship and then the opportunity to examine all the authorities and records which have been used to bear witness in the case. It is known that some few infidel scholars have declared against the genuineness of any of what we call the sacred writings, but we know that an immensely large number of scholars with equal opportunities and of equal ability, have satisfied themselves in a contrary opinion.

But it comes within the lawful province of everyone to examine the circumstantial evidences. It is endeavored to make a strong point of the fact of so little mention being made in the secular history of the day, of the all important occurrences which are the subject of so much interest in the gospels and epistles. But there is probably not a word of the temperance reform of the past 55 years nor of the Good Templars of 30 years standing, in any history which has been written of America or England, or which would be compiled by a Morley or Bancroft to-day, altho that movement has been of vastly more importance to the two countries and to every interest of the two nations, than any other matter of the history of many past centuries.

After a similar irruption of barbarism and overturning of nations to that which succeeded the founding of christianity, it might be found in the future a hard matter to prove that such men as Neal Dow, Lyman Beecher or J. B. Gough had ever lived, or that their reputed writings were extant before the year 2000. It is very easy to understand that the existence and acts of Christ and his apostles and followers were looked upon by the great statesmen and writers of that day, as utterly unworthy of the least notice and doubtless few of them ever heard anything at all of the matter. The Gen. Grants and Bismarks, the Gambettas and Dr. Crosbys and Bayard Taylors of that day, thot no more of these things than the modern ones do of the formation of a Band of Hope last week in a little village of Siskiyou county.

As to the act of forgery, there might be some foundation for such a suspicion had its time been located 300 years after the crucifixion, when the new religion had become that of the State, and was not only protected but fashionable. If there was such a person as Jesus at all and he had any followers during his life; and if his teachings were like those described in the gospels; it would have been a thing without precedent in all the history of the world, if some of these followers, in a country where they could read and write, had not written or induced somebody to write an account of the occurrences, which to them were of such vast import, and which they believed of such wondrous import to the world. The chances that they did write their history of these things seem at least 1000 to 1. And the fact that they did not in writing them, agree in all the minuteness of detail, seems a strong argument against any collusion between the authors, to do a wrong or practice a deception.

But what motive could an impostor or four impostors have had in scribbling a manuscript falsehood which they could not sell for a week's board, at any time between 50 years after the crucifixion and the conversion of Constantine which occurred about 300 years after it. The author or authors would have been, if discovered, pretty certainly handed over without ceremony to the executioners or to the lions at once. The chances that impostors (who must be rascals every time) should place their lives in such imminent danger in the execution of a task in which no impostor could hope to gain anything and in an interest not at all in the line of a rascal's natural taste—are about one in ten million.

That impostors or liars should have concocted such a system of unexampled wisdom and beauty, should have conceived or invented or copied from others a new gospel of love, of incomparable loftiness and loveliness, unlike anything ever before conceived by man, and so at variance with all the existing habits, beliefs and prejudices of the human heart into which no spark of fire from the altar of God's love had ever entered, ought to be infinitely more difficult to believe or to account for than anything detailed in those writings. As to their genuineness fhere seems to be no reason for doubting it save a prejudice similar to that blind bigotry, which delights in repeating the falsehood, that prohibition is an utter failure in Maine—against all that is valuable in human evidence, against all probability and on no conceivable theory of possibility.

But suppose that nobody ever wrote a word of them till 1250 and that every word of them is fiction: then the best possible thing for the whole human race collectively and individually to do, to sesure their happiness in this world, and the best chances in the next, would be to make believe their reality and truth, adopt them as our guide and model and govern ourselves in strict accordance with their injunctions. For there and there only can perfect happines and perfect peace be discovered.

MOTHERS AND NURSES.

Dr. J. L. Asay of Tnlare City said in his lecture of 17th June;

The practice of mothers drinking beer, ale, porter and other liquors during the period of nursing is extremely pernicious.

Dr. Ed Smith of London, says: Alcohols are largely used by many persons in the belief that they support the system and maintain a supply of milk for the infant, but this is a serious error, and is not an unfrequent cause of fits and emaciation in the child.

Sir A. Carlisle, the celebrated surgeon of Great Britain, said years ago: The next in order of mischief is their employment by nurses, a common occasion of dropsy in the brain of infants. I doubt much whether the future moral habits, temper and intellectual propensities are not greatly influenced by the early effects of fermented liquors upon the brain and sensorial organs.

Dr, Munroe of England says the use of beer and other liquors is the real cause of so many ill-balanced minds, neither insane nor sensible, and in its freer use it is the teeming fount of the sad idiocy which depresses and disgraces our boasted civilization.

And he might have said the daily use of beer by eminent men like Gladstone and other statesmen who probably never have been "inebriated" in their whole lives, accounts for the monstrous legislation which is perpetrated with regard to the traffic in human life in England. It blinds a great statesman like Gladstone to say that beer is the best drink in the world and to try to enact a law licensing whisky bars on every railway passenger car. It blinded patriots like Wellington, Brougham, Palmerston &c to pass the Beer Act 50 years ago, which has cost England as many lives and dollars as a continuous war with France or Russia for all these years would have done. It slauters battalions right before their eyes and they can see nothing of it; blind.

That law in Oregon. All the temperance papers are quoting a beautiful law they have in Oregon, by which every drinker is obliged to have a license before he can buy a glass of liquor. And the Oregon people have never once heard of such a thing. If any body in the eastern states has found that Oregon law in his cellar or woodpile, the Oregon people would gladly pay the postage on it to have it sent to some body there. But that proposition is unofficial.

CONTINUE THE BRANDY.

A few years ago while waiting at Sacramento for the train to start for Woodland, a gentleman came into the car and asked a doctor who was a passenger for some directions regarding a patient. The M. D. concluded his instructions; let him continue the medicine and the brandy while the medicine lasts, and then continue with the brandy. Now Dr. Asay of Tulare says (and he is in accord with the most eminent medical science of the day);

In the U. S. Dispensatory, alcohol is defined to be "the intoxicating ingredients in all spirituous liquors, including under this term, wine, porter, ale, beer and cider and every other liquid which has undergone vinous fermentation.

"As an article of daily use alcoholic liquors produce the most deplorable consequences, beside the moral degradation which they cause, their habitual use gives rise to dyspepsia, hypochondriasis, viscerial obstruction, dropsy, paralysis and not unfrequently mania."

Such is the quotation from this eminent authority. You will find this book in all the respectable drug stores of the land; it is the ground work and perfection of the materia medica, and all the doctors will tell you it is the most reliable authority they possess. Dr. Geo. B. Wood of Philadelphia, the author of it, has been at the head of the medical façulty of that city for more than fifty years, and during that time he has added to this book and taken from it as science and the discovery of new truths have directed, but he has never altered the paragraph I have just quoted. It has stood the test of advancing science for half a century and no medical writer has ever undertaken to gainsay it."

AN ENGLISH VIEW.

Drinking baffles us, confounds us, and mocks us at every point. It outwits alike the teacher, the man of business, the patriot, and the legislator. Every other institution flounders in hopeless difficulties; the public house holds its triumphant course. The administrators of public and private charity are told that alms and oblations go, with rates, doles and pensions, to the all-absorbing bar of the public house. Not a year passes in either town or village without some unexpected and hideous scandal, the outcome of habitual indulgence, often small and innocent in its origin. Some poor creature, long and deservedly high in the respect, perhaps reverence, of the neigborhood, makes a sudden shipwreck of character. Under the accumulating influence of alcohol, aggravated, perhaps, by other still more powerful, still more treacherous agencies, the honest man turns knave, the respectable man suddenly loses principle and self-respect, the wise man is utterly foolish, the rigidly moral man forgets his mask and his code and takes a plunge into libertinism. It then turns out, what possibly some have suspected, that drink is at the bottom of it, and that some poor wife or other friend has long been doing the best that could be done to check, to cure, and at all events to hide, till the truth would be out. Do something to stay the huge mischief which in one way or another—confounds us all, and may—for we cannot be sure—crush and ruin any of us.—London Times.

The Career of Twenty Rum-sellers and their families is sketched by a writer in a Southern journal, who says: "During a period of twenty-five years, from 1830 1855. I remember twenty individuals who were at one time or another engaged in the business of selling liquor at or near a little village in Southern Carolina. Of that number fifteen failed in business, either while selling or afterwards. Five have died from the excessive use of ardent spirits. Ten of their sons fell early victims to the appetite, and fill drunkards' graves, while nine others have at different times been addicted to drunken sprees and are in the utmost danger of falling before the same dreadful habit. Ten of their daughters are or have been married to drunkards. Three of their sons are idiots or imbeciles, and there are other indications which to a close observer call to mind the denunciations of Holy Writ, Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink, and maketh him drunken also, '''—Ex.

The city of Vallejo could furnish a list of a good deal more than 20 saloon keepers who have there during the last 25 years met with a violent and shocking death.

TEMPERANCE SONG.

BY MRS. P. D. BROWNE.

TUNE, —ARMOUR BEARER.

Well dressed boy with tall hat asks:

"What is this army that's marching to day,
Bearing its banners so gallant and gay?"

Army, with banners, replies:

"We are the army to conquer or die,
Look at the drunkard, and he will tell why
Whiskey and brandy and even the beer,
Are making homes wretched; the sobbing we hear
Of wives that are weeping and children who cry.
Yes, we are the army to conquer or die."

"We are the children, the hope of the land,
True to our country and God we will stand,
Proudly we join with the brave and the great,
Onward we send through our own Golden State
Victory's banner, From sea unto sea,
The traffic must perish, no drunkard shall be
In the land that we love, Will you join us and sing
Cold water forever, cold water's our king."

A drunkard tottering toward the army, in tattered garments with quivering voice sings;

"None ever taught me to sing such a song,
My poor wife is dying, she cannot live long.
My children are starving. Men said never fear,
T'is manly to drink of the bright foaming beer.
Then brandy and whisky and gin tasted good,
Then little by little we went without food.
Oh Father have mercy! Oh children beware!
Touch not the first glass, "moderation's" a snare,"

The highest officer steps out and sings:

We're saving the children. We're marching to day
In th' front of the army that's clearing the way
For the thousands to follow, whose motto shall be Cold water, pure water forever for me,

All together:

Then down in the gutter the bottle must fly,
With God for our leader we'll conquer or die.
Then boldly we march, and marching we sing
Cold water forever, cold water our king.

TOO MANY TEMPERANCE ORGANIZATIONS.

The I. O. G. T. and the W. C. T. U. can each occupy a separate field of usefulness in this and all the other states, without the least danger of the one at all impeding the other's success, occupying its territory or reaping its harvest. There cannot be a legitimate ground of jealousy or rivalry between the two. Where there is only one of these organizations in a community, that one ought to give its ready and willing aid and co-operation in establishing the other, if the material is to be had, and where there are both, a genuine attachment to the principles and purposes which are equally the motive power of each, should ensure their mutual co-operation, and each should be ready to second and assist the other, and rejoice in its success.

Again, if Catholics or Germans, or the members of any sect cannot be induced to join with other people in either of these societies, their uniting in one of their own ought to be welcomed, and no obstacle thrown in their way. And if there are still some who think they can do better service in the grand old order of Sons, which has fallen behind in this state so much, they can plead the existence of a legitimate and orthodox society at their back. And altho the templars may think their services would count for more if united with ours, our best policy would seem to be to present to them the most fraternal recognition, and there are probably very few of us who cannot do so with utmost sincerity and candor.

But if the Sons had no existence in this state, it dont seem that their establishment here would be of any benefit whatever, that a division could be formed anywhere whose usefulness would not be much better and greater if exerted as a lodge or union, in fellowship with those already existing.

As to organizing new orders of Sublime Mastodons, Celestial Tadpoles Calypsian, Califs and such sublime humbugs in the interest of temperance or for any other purpose, a little intelligent consideration should assure us that the main moving purpose and principle of them all is charter fees, a snug subsistence for somebody on the fool's pence and the chances of being promoted to be chief executioner of the funds. While there should be no obstacle placed in the way of anything that sincerely aims to promote temperance, it may be well to watch closely against all efforts to cut up and divide and distract into objectless and useless factions, the force which ought to be centralized and utilized and unitedly organized to rout the common enemy. No fact has been more clearly demonstrated by oft repeated experiment than this: lone, separate, independent, isolated temperance societies have always been of limited usefulness and ephemeral existence, and they must of necessity be so. Union of effort can alone carry any object of general interest to success. A lodge which isolates itself from all outside sources of information and interest fares little better than the other societies who try going it all alone.

Lodges and unions can always find a field for common usefulness in holding open meetings, in having the pledge always in circulation both in and out of meeting. And they should unite heartily in organizing and instructing the young in the Bands of Hope, Temple and Sunday-school; right here is a work which no one can do too much of. And members of our organizations who desire the success of our all important mission should remember with particular distinctness that whenever anyone of us is tempted to be afraid the other will get a little ahead of our society, will get a little more credit than we do, will occupy a better field than ours or whenever we feel at all a pang of jealousy or envy, one of the other, it is a suggestion of the devil or of our own meaner side of human nature, and its purpose is to mar our usefulness. The very best of people we are told are not so good as to live above the sphere of temptation to evil.

"A HARMLESS TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE."

BY JOSH BILLINGS.

Yes, I have finally come to the conclusion that lager beer is a harmless temperance beverage, and at least is not intoxicating. In proof of this, I have been told by a German who said he drank it all nite long, just to try the experiment, and was after all obliged to go to bed entirely sober in the morning. I have seen this same man drink eighteen or twenty glasses, and if he was drunk, it was in German, and nobody could understand it.

It is proper enuff to state that this man kept a lager beer saloon, and so he could have no object in stating what was not strictly true. I believe him to the full extent of my ability.

I never drank but three glasses of lager in my life, and that made my head untwist as tho it was hung on the end of a string, but I was told it was owing to my bile being out of place; and I guess that was so, for I never biled over wus than I did when I got home that nite. My wife thot I was goin to die, and I was afraid I shouldn't, for it seemed as tho everything I had eaten in my life was coming to the surface; and if my wife hadn't pulled off my boots just as she did, I believe that they would have come tinkering up too. That was 14 years ago.

O, how sick I was! I can taste it now.

I never had so much experience in so short a time in all my life.

If any man shuld tell me that lager beer is not intoxicating I might believe him; but if he shuld tell me that my stummick was not out of order, I shuld ask him to state over a few words just how a man felt and acted when it was.

I warn't drunk that nite, but I had some of the most natural symptoms that a man ever had and kept sober.

In the first place it was about 80 rods from where I drank the beer to my house, and I was over two hours on the road home, and a hole busted thru each one of my pantaloon neez, and I didn't have on any hat, and tried to open the door by the bell-pull and hiccupped awfully and saw everything in the room trying to get round on the backside of me, and sitting down on a chair I didn't wait long enuff for it to get exactly under me when it wuz going round, and I sat down a leetle tu soon and so missed the chair about twelve inches, and couldn't get up soon enuff to take the next one that came along. My wife said I wuz as drunk as a beast awl that nite, and, as I said before, I began to spin up things pretty freely until I finally got on one of the beds as it came 'round and slept it off. If lager beer is not intoxicating, it used me mighty mean, that I know. Still I hardly think that lager beer is intoxicating, for I have been told so; and I am probably the only man living who ever drank eny when his liver was not plumb.

I don't want to say anything against a harmless temperance beverage, but if ever I drink eny more it will be with my hands tied behind me and my mouth pried open.

KIND WORDS FROM AFAR.

The "Good Templar" published in Glasgow, Scotland, in its July number has a very kind and complimentary word for the RESCUE, which is appreciated, and the feelings which prompted it are heartily reciprocated. To do so calls for no change of heart in this quarter. Had our brethren across the water betrayed the cause of temperance it might have been otherwise: but every reason lo ks too shadowy and unsubstantial, that can present itself as an excuse for the honest friends of temperance cherishing unfriendly feelings toward each other, while engaged in the same pursuit, but differing in measures or leaderships. It seems as if all those who have been on either side shouldering a load of thorns all these years might as well have a general bonfire and throw into the consuming pile all their thistles and thorns and sores and corns, and if they like, each one sturdily maintain to the end of life the proud thot "I was right all thru and the others were wrong." The RESCUE has not a particle of stock to contribute to that bonfire; never had any. But it would be a very pleasant task to write up a final obituary notice of all the disagreements and jealousies that the devil has ever contrived to manufacture, between any parties or individuals who are friends of humanity. We have enemies enough and gall enough surely on the outside.

TU PLEZE MY WIFE.

A fu weeks ago a Jerman sitizen, wun ov the worthi klass, in konversashon with an advokate ov temperance sed he hated drinking and saloons, bekauz tha only kreated pauperizm and krime. "I never tuch a drop myself onli wunse a da; in the morning I take wun smal glas ov klaret with sum shugar etc and mi wife iz terribly down on it tu; she dont want me tu du that; it distresses her; but yu no that litel drop dont hurt me a partikel and thare iz no danger ov mi ever liking it." The uther replide. "Iz it possibel yu wud not drop that little habit tu, pleze your wife," and here the konversashun ended. The temperans man intended next time to remind the Jerman ov the matter and tu ask him if hiz wife waz in the habit ov duing anithing every da hwich he did not like; but it waz not nesesary. Tu daze ago the Jerman sed. "du u remember that time u asked me if I wud not stop that habit tu pleze my wife? "Yes I du." "Wel them wurdz kept singing in my ear, and I kud not forget them. Next morning hwen I went tu take my littel glass ov klaret, I herd "not tu pleze your wife?" plain in my ear and I kud not tuch it. Agen I thot ov it and tu pleze your wife began to buz agen, and I hav not tuched it sinse and I never wil az long az I liv tuch anuther drop, tu pleze mi wife.

Many a person inkonsiderately kauzez hiz wife a daly sorro or distress hwich he wud no longer du if he thot it over seriusly. And a kind word spoken at a fitting moment often makes peple better and happier.

A recent Massachusetts school report contains the following: "As the office involves neither honor nor profit. there seems to be no reason why it should not be filled by a woman." Perhaps it was inserted as a waggish joke. If it was serious the author ought to be elected and obliged to serve as the deputy census taker of the cats of Boston.

SUNSTRUCK.—The deaths for the last week of July in Cincinnati from sunstroke are reported as 414. Probably 413 of those should have been reported as beer-struck or whisky-blighted.

Also forfeiting initiation fee of candidates who do not appear for initiation within four weeks after their election, and requiring propositions to be accompanied by the initiation fee, or to be vouched for by the person presenting the same.

June 15th. Approved amendment to bylaws of Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 254 providing that the initiation fee shall accompany propositions and be refunded in case of rejection.

June 27th. Approved amendment to by laws of Samaritan Lodge, No. 177 setting aside the second meeting of each month for the conferring of degrees and such other business as may properly come before a degree temple.

June 27th. Approved bylaws of Sonoma District Lodge.

July 12th. Approved amendment to bylaws of Cattheys valley lodge No.157, 1,allowing the privilege of voting to be exercised by all members irrespective of age; 2. fixing dues of adult males at $1.50 per quarter, minor members over 16 years of age at fifty cents per quarter, females and miuor males under 16 years of age, 10cts per quarter.

July 22d. Approved uniform code of bylaws adopted by Cambria Lodge No. 445 with the change fixing dues of males over 14 years at $1.50 per quarter and for females and males under 14 years of age at 50 cts per quarter.

July 22d. Approved amendments to bylaws of Amador Lodge, No. 152 included in a new code submitted for approval. 1. Requiring written or personal notice to be given each member when a special meeting is called. 2. Elections. At all elections for officers the W. S. shall provide blank ballots to be distributed by the W. M. or his deputy. The W. C. T. shall appoint two tellers who shall assist in conducting the election in a fair and impartial manner. The W. S. shall keep a register of all votes polled, and should it appear that there have been more votes polled than there are legally qualified voters present, the W. C. T. shall declare the ballot illegal and void, and direct another ballot to be taken immediately. The W. F. S. shall at all elections for officers have a carefully prepared list of the legally qualified voters which he shall read to the lodge at each balloting, and each voter present shall advance and deposit his ballot as his name is called, unless excused by the W. C. T., and any candidate to be elected must receive a majority of all the votes cast—blanks being counted in all cases as votes. If there be no choice on the first ballot the ballotting shall continue until an election be effected; dropping at each balloting the name of the candidate receiving the lowest number of votes at the last balloting. All votes cast for other than the regular nominees shall be counted as blanks and against the nominee, and when there is but one member in nomination and he does not receive a majority of all the votes cast, the lodge may proceed to nominate other candidates and ballot for such officer immediately. 3. Debarring members who are three months in arrears for dues from voting upon any question before the lodge or in the election of officers.

July 25th. Approved by law of Constancy Lodge No. 209 Art. xiii: There shall be a fund known as the building fund. All money paid into this fund shall be kept for that purpose. The Treasurer shall keep a separate account of this fund, and no money shall be taken from this fund for other purposes, unless by a resolution to that effect offered at a stated meeting, when if two-thirds of all the members present concur therein it shall be adopted provided the lodge may by vote order the transfer of said funds from the Treasurer to the trustees for deposit in bank or for investment.

NEW LODGES.

Since last report thirty-nine new lodges have been organized, as the following list comprising the location, date of organization, number of charter members and the organizer will show.

San Gregorio, May 4; 32, M. D. Merrick.

Cayucos, July 1, 35; Mrs E P Stevens.
Elizabeth dist. 9, 34; G B Katzenstein.
Klotz Mill, 10, 28; Wm Crowhurst.
Dunnigans, 24, 16; J A Black.
Milville, 25, 11; Wm Crowhurst.
Anderson, 26, 35; Wm Crowhurst.

From the foregoing list it will be seen that 17 lodges were organized in May, 17 in June and 5 in July. Of the number Sister Stevens organized 12; Bros. Crowhurst and Merrick 7 each: Bro. Culver 3 Bro. Black 2, and one each by Bros. Brooke, Brown Graves, Hoag, Katzenstein, Masters, Turner and Whitmore.

The total number of lodges organized since the last session of the Grand Lodge—October 1st to date is 103.

The largest membership ever reported and the largest number of quarterly returns filed in this jurisdiction were those recorded for the term ending April 30th, for which term there have been filed 294 returns showing a membersdip of 15,154.

Our losses of lodges since the last session of Grand Lodge by surrender and forfeiture of charters aggregates 21 as follows: Nos. 143, 145, 147, I54, 202, 205, 252, 272, 278, 290, 294, 305, 308, 312, 315, 322, 332, 385, 417, 450, and Mil No. 3.

The following lodges have not filed quarterly returns for either of the three quarters of the present fiscal year viz: Nos. 187, 232, 310, 311, 355, 374 and At. T. No. 2. in all 7. Their charters should be declared forfeited.

The following lodges have failed to file quarterly returns for the last two quarters ending Jan. 31 and April 30th, viz. Nos. 118, 142, 213, 250, 275 and 333, in all 6.

The following lodges are delinquent in not having filed quarterly returns for the last quarter ending April 30th. Nos. 103, 168, 175, 229, 234, 240, 249, 252, 308, 347, 349, 352, 353, 432 and Mil. No. 2.

Leaving out all of the delinquent lodges I estimate the number of lodges in good standing including the new lodges organized during the past term at 333 and their membership as 16,000.

During the past quarter we have had eight Grand Lecturers in the field at different times, viz. Sister Mrs E. P. Stevens; and Bros. Arnoup, Bramall, Crowhurst, Culver ,Goulding, Hughes and Merrick.

Bro. Arnoup was appointed to fill a half month's appointments of Bro Culver while the latter gave his attention to the temperance camp meeting at Guerneville.

Bro. Goulding labored for two months in Yolo, Colusa and Lake counties under special employment.

The lecturers have all labored efficiently and filed regular monthly reports, of which the following is a synopsis: the first column of figures indicating the number of lectures and addresses delivered, second miles traveled; third and fourth number of children and adults respectively comprising the audiences addressed; fifth, collections received; sixth, charter fees; seventh, expenses incurred.

JOHN ARNOUP.

June	12	194	191	875	$30 15	——	$38 00

As directed at the last meeting of the Executive Committee I procured a special edition of 2,500 copies of Chases Manual, and distributed copies to every minister of the gospel whose address I could obtain as well as to all D. G. W. C. T's and have yet a number of copies on hand for free distribution This distribution will undoubtedly prove beneficial to the Order in familiarizing persons with the objects, aims and plans of our work.

As directed also at the last meeting of the Executive Committee I mailed a special circular to each lodge containing an appeal to the membership for a special effort in behalf of the RESCUE, and I trust good results will flow from it. With our increasing membership our official organ should receive increased patronage. The RESCUE is our most efficient helper and deserves a much better support than it is receiving.

The report was considered, approved and adopted.

The Committee heretofore appointed relative to the enforcement of the law prohibiting the sale of liquors within two miles of the State University reported that prosecutions had been continued, and the question as to the constitutionality of the law had been presented to the superior eourt of Alameda county; and that Judge Green of said court sustained the law and upheld its constitutionality.

The G. S. J. W. Bro. Geo. Bramall of Haywards presented his quarterly report showing a general distribution of 1914 badges and 2221 rituals of the Band of Hope. Also that he had held 16 public meetings, addressed 770 people and traveled 600 miles. He had received collections amounting to $11.20 and had expended in traveling $24.70. The total receipts of his department were $12.95, incidental expenses $41.05. The G. S. J. W. was not able to give any statistical information concerning membership etc. owing to the neglect of superintendents of the Bands of Hope to fill reports. Upon motion the report was received and ordered on file.

The G. W. C. T. reported having employed Bro. Jno. Arnoup of Oakland as special Grand Lecturer to fill the appointments of Bro. F. J. Culver from June 13th to 27th who was withdrawn between those dates in behalf of the temperance camp meeting.

Upon motion duly made and carried the action of the G. W. C. T. was approved. as was also the report of Bro. Arnoup showing 12 lectures delivered, 194 miles traveled and audiences addressed composed of 191 children and 875 adults, Collections received $30.15; expenses incurred $33.

Upon motion duly made and carried an allowance of $37. 50 was made Bro. Arnoup for his services.

The G. W. S. reported having placed Bro. Col. C. N. Goulding in the field for two months to fill appointments in Colusa, Yolo and Lake counties.

Upon motion duly made and carried the action of the G. W. S. was approved together with the reports of Col Goulding showing 62 lectures delivered, 589 miles traveled and 8247 persons addressed viz. 672 children and 7575 adults, expenses incurred $168.10: collections received $193.15. Surplus of collections over expenses $25,05.

The matter of continuing to furnish copies of the RESCUE to grand lecturers for free distribution at their public meetings was discussed, and upon motion it was ordered that the publisher continue to furnish the regular Grand Lecturers with 100 copies per week when required by them for free distribution at the expense of the Grand Lodge.

A communication was received from Bros. Dr. R. H. McDonald and A. K. Stevens suggesting that Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

GOSPEL AND ANTI-GOSPEL.

There are a few people in the world whom it offends to hear the truth told to themselves and others. There are crimes and wrongs and sins and cheats and lies in this world which I hope our young folks who read the RESCUE, will in an eighty or a hundred years pilgrimage never hear of, or suspect they have existed. But they ought to have the rotten things as well as the noble things in our customs and institutions, openly and squarely pointed out to them, the former to abhor and avoid, the latter to love and cherish.

Under the system of Christianity into which you have been born, a great number of excellent and charitable institutions have been introduced to the world, that never existed or were dreamed of under heathen and barbarous and savage systems. The origin of these has been the kindly emotions enkindled in the human heart by the teachings of the Christian religion as they are found in the sacred Scriptures. Not an immediate miraculous effect of reading those writings. but a gradual growth and education in the principles of love to each other, that brotherly and sisterly and family and friendly and neighborly love which is the mainspring and central shaft of every good and noble trait and impulse of humanity, and the motive power which gives life and activity to every scheme and purpose that plans to increase the happiness of the human race.

The refining and ennobling influences of Christianity have led us to the liberties and blessings of a good and just and free system of government; have inspired the founding of missions to preach the gospel of peace and love both to the foreign and the native heathen; every orphanage and hospital and asylum for the poor, blind, lame, insane, old, sick or helpless, every helpful and benevolent society, every library and fountain and free gift to the poor, the temperance institutions, the pledge, the Sunday-school, the juvenile temple and every movement on foot to make the people better and happier, has its foundation and its inspiration in the doctrines and principles of Christianity.

But just as kind and worthy and truly Christian people have tried to confer any blessing upon their fellow men and lead them up to happiness, just so some others, actuated by a spirit nowhere taught or found in Christianity, have sought to resist and oppose and destroy and pull down whatever the others did. When one class of men sought to establish liberty, another fought as stubbornly to make men slaves or serfs, whether white or black; when one class sought to raise humanity another has always sought to debase and corrupt it. One effort to give some aid to the poor or ignorant has inevitably aroused another to rob and degrade them. One set of men have sent missionaries and Bibles and the gospel to the Chinese and Japanese, Hindoos, Kanakas, Alaskans, but every time and much oftener the other set of men have sent to the same places another gang of missionaries to sell them rum, opium and guns and knives, and to teach them to rob and murder and lie and curse God and die like dogs, and make their condition a thousand times worse than if they had never heard of Christianity.

Whatever may be the evil spirit that prompts men to do these vicious, devilish deeds, we know the agency by which it acts is the devil of alcohol in wine, beer and strong drink.

This evil spirit has firmly attached itself with hooks of iron to the Christian religion; either it did not think it worth while to corrupt anything else, or it could not form alliances with pagan and Mahomedan systems. It has not for many centuries been able to enter them, till it has of late years ridden in among them on the shoulders of the Christian missionaries, and has fairly entered upon its work of slaughter, and is making the condition of these peoples infinitely worse than their heathenism could.

It is a sad and solemn fact that right where the gospel of love and peace has had the widest field and the fairest chance to make men perfect, there exist more poverty, misery, squalor, vice, sin, violence, theft, outrage, suicide, murder and viler iniquities than anywhere among peoples who have never heard of Christianity.

Now some weak reasoners attribute that to Christianity and say it is a failure etc, but you can see that no part of it is due to Christianity, but all of it is due to wine and beer and rum, and to the awful crime of people who profess Christianity and religion, and still permit this evil spirit to flourish right under the shadow of the church: who tolerate saloons and schools of blasphemy while they so easily could remove them.

I desire to point out to you that Christianity pure and honest can lead the human race to the highest perfection of human happiness, but that a form of Christianity which permits the grogshop which is the pure essence of devil worship to exist —or rather Christianity with the grogshop—produces the worst system of crime, vice, slavery and misery that the world has ever seen. You will have a chance soon to vote the devil and his alcoholic viceroy out of any partnership in our institutions.

A WORD TO OUR GIRLS.

Girls, dont marry a man who drinks. Better still never receive any attention from a young gentleman or give him the least encouragement if you know that intoxicating liquors ever sully his lips. If you have unfortunately already become attached to such an one, and find out even at the eleventh hour that he is a devotee of Bacchus, leave him even then rather than marry one who will bring you nothing but disgrace, poverty, misery and heartaches untold.

You will suffer in doing this; but the day will come when you will thank God that you had the courage to make this sacrifice.

Dont marry a man hoping to reform him. If you do, your hopes will be blasted and your merrily begun journey will end in weariness and tears.

"But, you say, "he only drinks occasionally—on the fourth of July, election, Christmas, New Year's and now and then with an old friend. Surely you would not have me give him up for this."

Yes, even for this. The man who will take one glass is not safe nor to be trusted. Go to him; tell him kindly and pleasantly but firmly, how sorry you are that he is becoming a slave to the cup; ask him for your sake, for the sake of his own manliness and self-respect to never again let one drop of liquor pass his lips, If he is worthy of a woman's love he will try to conquer his appetite. Give him a fair trial; take time to see how he carries himself; allow years to give strength to his good resolution before you dare to think of him as other than a friend.

Go to the millions of drunkards' wives whose attenuated frames, hollow eyes and looks of anxious dread tell only too plainly that poverty and heart pain have done their appointed work; ask them if they would advise you to take as your life companion, as the father of your children, one whose feet are snared in the net of sure destruction? The answer will be "No, ten thousand times no. Far better would you hang yourself higher than Haman or seek the lower depths of the ocean for your resting-place than do this thing."

Girls, dont drink yourselves. I blush that I am obliged to say it. But alas! the use of intoxicants is not entirely confined to the sterner sex, and the number of exceptions is yearly increasing. If you have ever taken the wineglass or used stimulants because you or your physician considered them necessary to your health, stop at once. You are on the brink of a precipice and nothing but instant action can save you. Let your example show to all that total abstinence is your motto. Be quiet, unobtrusive and ladylike about it. Do it modestly, but let all see that your sympathies are on the side of temperance reform."

That is good, honest, sound advice from the Monterey Californian. The lesson is recommended to "our girls"; those who disregard it will be sure to find bitter herbs in the cup of their future. And the Californian deserves credit for talking outspoken truth in a manner that very few journals in California are manly enough to dare. It is a good paper.

YOUNG VANDALS.

EIGHT HOODLUMS ARRESTED FOR BREAKING INTO A SALOON.

Elizabeth Murtha, a "moonshiner" in a small way, was arrested in her saloon at the corner of Third and Townsend street by Officer O'Gorman yesterday afternoon for selling liquor without a license. Not having the requisite amount of bail the saloon was locked up, and she was incarcerated in the southern district station. Two hours after her arrest Officers Kihn and O'Gorman passed the saloon, and heard sounds of revelry within which caused them to make an investigation, when they found the lock of the door burst off and a half dozen young male and female, hoodlums inside holding high revelry. Each had imbibed as much as he could conveniently carry, while made-up packages of liquors, cigars and cigarrettes gave token of the intention of the party to gut the place. All were taken into custody and were booked on charges of burglary in the second degree at the southern station, where they gave the following names; James Murray, Ben Joiner, Michael Williams, John Foley, Kittie Ryan and Kittie Smith. While the officers were en route to the prison with their captives, two other young fellows named A. F. Pico and L. M. Aldrich undid the hasty fastening put on the door by Kihn, and began to enjoy themselves in a similar manner to their predecessors. Making an unnecessary amount of noise, Officer Manning discovered and arrested them on charge of burglary. The amount of liquor which the young vandals drank and spilled will amount to $40 or 50 in value.—Chronicle.

These children have just learned the lessons which this civilized community has employed 4000 school teachers in the city to teach them night and day the whole seven days of the week. Mrs. Murtha it seems did not pay the city's share of blood money of these childrens souls, so that was what led to the trouble. But temperance people who dont believe in licensing 4000 schools to teach children to steal and become murderers—are fanatics you know.

THREE GOOD LESSONS.

Jonathan Sturgis was a boy who tended a flock of sheep for his grandfather in 1813. He had a companion of whose negligence he complained, but grandpa said, "never mind, my boy; if you watch the sheep you shall have the sheep." He could not exactly understand it at first, but remembering what he had heard in his Sunday lesson; "thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things," he was satisfied.

Afterward he was clerk in a drygoods store in New York. An Ohio merchant noticed him and said, "make yourself so useful in this store that they cannot do without you.

In due time he had become so useful that he was made a partner, and an old tea merchant congratulated him saying, "you are all right now, but I have one word of advice: "be careful with whom you are seen walking in the street." Mr. Sturgis became a man of eminence and opulence, and he said these three lessons had been exceedingly valuable to him; here they are again, be faithful in all things; be faithful and do your best for your employers: be faithful to yourself and your mother and friends in keeping away from all evil company. Three very good lessons for our juveniles.

These things which you find in the RESCUE are no fictions but facts; there are enough truths in the world to talk about without inventing fictions. With regard to the matter of evil company, let me tell you of what occurred in my hearing in the office of a Liverpool merchant to whom I had carried a cargo: A party came in and said, Mr. A,. I understand you want a captain for your ship S——," "Yes," said the merchant, "I do." "Well I can recommend my friend Capt, P., who bears an excellent reputation, etc., etc.." I have heard of him before," said Mr. A., "and might have employed him, but two days ago I saw him in Parliament St. walking arm in arm with that Capt. Johnson, and I will have nothing to do with any one who is an associate of Capt. Johnson.

Perhaps that was the only time Capt. P. had seen this Johnson, but being seen once in his company was enough to prevent his getting a good billet with an excellent employer.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 9.

CHARTS AND BLACKBOARD EXERCISES.

BY JULIA COLMAN.

Sewall's charts of the drunkard's stomach in its various stages of injury proved to us an invaluable help. Our superintendent sent for them on her own responsibility, advancing the money and planning at the same time how she would get it back again. When they arrived she made a careful study of them with the aid of the key, stories, alcohol and a work on physiology which she had previously studied. She then explained the charts to the scholars in connection with their lessons, and at last she ventured taking them before the public, in connection with an exhibition of our work closing the season. This exhibition was strictly in harmony with our entire plan of work. After the opening prayer and the music, of which we had a liberal allowance, we had our ladders built, each text of Scripture on a long card being brought out and placed as a round on the uprights, somewhat after the fashion of the concert exercise "the two ways," each bearer of a card making a little explanation as he put his card in place. We had some of the best readings and recitations that we could find. Two exercises arranged from the catechism, illustrating our method of teaching, including some simple experiments, and then the explanation of Sewall's charts which were hung on the walls. As the program had been given in the village paper, and the announcement had been made from the pulpits the preceding Sabbath, and the children had been selling tickets at ten cents each, we had a fair audience and cleared more than money enough to pay for the charts.

Beside this the facts elicited from the charts made a decided impression upon the community.

This being able to look right into the drinker's stomach as it were, and to see what the effect of moderate drinking, tippling, hard drinking and a debauch had upon the stomach, were things they could not easily get out of their minds, and they formed an important part of the education of that community.

Our superintendent like many other teachers was not skilled in the use of the blackboard. She could not draw wonderful pictures in all the colors of the rainbow, and she had too much good sense to spend her time in tying up sentences in knotty and curious convolutions for the sake of raveling them out to the wondering children. She was not one of the few artists who could by a few strokes produce striking effects, and so she wasted no time in trying. But she found the blackboard a great help when used in some of those simple ways suggested in the Manual. For example, in contrasting the different kinds of people who use alcoholic drinks with those who do not in chapter 13. It can be made much more effective by the use of the blackboard. And the effect of this can be increased again by getting the children to name the different classes, and as they name them put them on the board.

It strikes a child very forcibly to see his own ideas thus made to stand right out on the board. Any short sentence or forcible truth that is to be committed to memory will make a much stronger impression if presented to the eye as well as the ear. But this should not be done too often. Once or twice in each lesson is quite enough. We believe the best blackboardists now follow this method, excepting a few artists who can literally make chalk talk.

It need not usually be difficult to get the use of a blackboard, or even to get one made. Very often some carpenter can be enlisted to make it, and some painter to paint it. These men who can help us in no other way will often show their genuine sympathy with our work in behalf of the children if we only ask them.

CLEAR THROUGH.

A certain little boy in Kansas, only seven years old, who was trying hard to be a Christian, was watching the servant Maggie as she pared the potatoes for dinner. Soon she pared an extra large one, which was very white and nice on the outside, but when cut into pieces, it showed itself to be hollow and black inside with dry rot. Instantly Willie exclaimed, "Why Maggie! that potato isn't a Christian."

"What do you mean?" asked Maggie.

"Don't you see it has a bad heart?" said he.

However fair the outside may be, it will never do to have the heart black. We must be sound and right clear thru.—Well-Spring.

JAMIE, THE GENTLEMAN.

MABLE. C. DOWD.

There's a dear little ten-year old down the street,
With eyes so merry and smile so sweet,
I love to stay with him whenever we meet;
And I call him Jamie, the gentleman.

His home is of poverty, gloomy and bare.
His mother is old with want and care—
There's little to eat and little to wear
In the home of Jamie, the gentleman.

He never complains though his clothes be old,
No dismal whinings at hunger or cold;
For a cheerful heart that is better than gold
Has brave little Jamie, the gentleman.

His standing at school is always ten—
"For dilligent boys make wise, great men,
And I'm bound to be famous one day, and then
Proud says Jamie, the gentleman.

"My mother shall rest on her cushions of down,
The finest lady in all the town,
And wear a velvet and satin gown"—
Thus dreams Jamie, the gentleman.

"Trust ever in God," and "Be brave and true,"
Jamie has chosen these precepts two,
Glorious mottos for me and for you;
May God bless Jamie, the gentleman,

DO YOUR BEST.

"When I was a little boy," said a gentleman, one evening. "I paid a visit to my grandfather, a venerable old man, whose black velvet cap and tassel, blue breeches and huge silver knee-buckles filled me with great awe. When I went to bid him good-by, he drew me between his knees, and placing his hand on my head, said, 'Grandchild, I have one thing to say to you; will you remember it?' I stared into his face and nodded, for I was afraid to promise aloud; 'well,' he continued, 'whatever you do, do the best you can.'

"This, in fact, was my grandfather's legacy to me, and it has proved better than gold. I never forgot his words, and I believe I have tried to act upon them. After reaching home my uncle gave Marcus and me some weeding to do in the garden. It was Wednesday afternoon, and we had laid our plans for something else. Marcus, fretted and ill-humored at his disappointment, did not more than half do his work, and I began pretty much like him, until grandfather's advice came into my mind, and I determined to follow it. In a word, I 'did my best.' And, when my uncle came out, I shall never forget his look of approbation as his eyes glanced over my beds, or the fourpence he slipped into my hands afterward as he said my work was well done. Ah! I was a glad and thankful boy, and poor Marcus was left to drudge over his beds all the afternoon.

"At 15 I was sent to the academy, where I had partly to earn my own way through the course. The lessons came hard at first, for I was not fond of study; but grandfather's advice was my motto, and I tried to do my best. As a consequence of this, though I was small of my age, and not very strong, my mother had three offers for me before the year was out, and one from the best merchant of the village, 'a place' in whose store was considered very desirable. When I joined the church, I tried to do the Lord's work as well as I did my own, and often, when I have been tempted to leave the Sunday-school, or let a hinderance keep me from my prayer meeting, or get discouraged in any good thing, my grandfather's last words, 'Do the best you can,' have given me fresh courage, and I would again try."

Here, then, was the key to this man's character. He is considered one of the best business men, one of the best officers of the church, one of the best neighbors, fathers, husbands, friends; in a word he is universally beloved and respected. And what is the secret of it all? He always tried to do the best he could. Let every boy and girl take this for their motto. Acted upon, it will do wonders for you. It will bring out powers and capabilities which will surprise and delight yourselves and friends.—Ripon Free Press

A HOLIDAY at the Crystal Palace was celebrated on July 12th by the National Temperance League, the U. K. Band of Hope Union and the I. O. G. T. of England (seceders). Proceeds go to the Temperance Hospital and the I. O. G. T. Orphanage. The same bodies have agreed to unite in a similar holiday every year: all reports of such unions of the friends of temperance is good news.

A MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.

A mother on the green hills of Vermont, was holding by the right hand a son, sixteen years old, mad with love of the sea. And as she stood by the garden gate one morning, she said to the young man;

"Edward, they tell me,—for I never saw the ocean— that the great temptation of a seaman's life is drink. Promise me, before you quit your mother's hands that you will never drink liquor."

"And," he said, for he told the story, "I gave the promise, and I went the globe over, to the East and West, the North and South, for forty years, and I never saw a glass filled with sparkling liquor that my mother's form at the gate did not rise up before my eyes, and to-day I am innocent of the taste of liquor."

Was not that sweet evidence of the power of a single word? Yet that is not half. "For said he, "yesterday there came to my counting room a man forty years old."

"Do you know me?

"No."

"Well," said he, "I was brought drunk into your presence on ship board; you were a passenger; they kicked me aside; you took me to your berth, and kept me there until I slept off my intoxication. You then asked me if I had a mother; I said I had never heard a word from her lips; you told me of yours at the garden gate; and to-day I am the master of one of the finest ships in New York harbor, and came to ask you to come and see me."

How far the little candle throws its beams! The mother's voice on the green hills of Vermont! God be thanked for the mighty power of a single word!—Exchange

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

☞ The Rescue is the Special Friend and Advocate of the Viticultural Interests of California, and is the Only Paper west of the Rocky Mountains that presents reliable facts and figures and information relating to that highly important and most excellent and laudable branch of industry.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE WINE INTEREST.

NO SIX.

GLUCOSE. A DISCOVERY ! ! !

The Santa Rosa Republican of Aug 4th 1881 has the following.

"It has leaked out that some dishonorable wine manufacturers in Napa Valley have imported Glucose for the purpose of adulterating wines. The Calistogian says:

"It is to be regretted that there are manufacturers of wine who are so grasping that they are not satisfied with the large profits already obtainable from pursuing their business in a legitimate manner—that there are men who will not hestitate to greatly injure an important business in this section of country, now being so prominently brought before the world, such prominence being due more to the purity of our wines than anything else."

The St Helena Vinicultural Society met and discussed the fradulent undertakiug, and denounced in a series of resolutions that mean business. One reads:

Resolved—That we, the St. Helena Vinicultural Association, condemn in the strongest terms any attempt by any party to adulterate our wine and brandy by the addition of any substance of whatever kind, and more particularly by the use of glucose, and that we will expose all parties importing or receiving the same, by publishing their names in the papers of this and the Eastern States, and that all wine dealers purchasing wine or brandies from winemakers using glucose shall also be published in like manner, etc."

Now what is Glocose ? some horrible, poisonous, villainous compound ? Not at all. It is simply grape sugar, precisely the kind of sugar found in grapes, figs and various sweet fruits. It is the only material in all those fruits that is of any use in the manufacture of wine or brandy: the pure water of the juice of course excepted. Most of the other varieties of sugar can be easily changed into Glu cose; it exists naturally also in milk and eggs. and largely in honey. It can be chemically produced by the ton from starch and gum and other vegetable matters. Starch boiled in water that contains one per cent of sulphuric acid is in a very short time converted into glucose or grape sugar and only requires cleansing to be just the same. Diastase may be used also to convert starch into glucose: starch is an important per cent of the substance of potato, wheat, beans; various vegetables and all the cereals. Glucose may be made too from rags and some other material when treated with sulphuric acid.

NO ADULTERATION.

It does not seem proper to call the use of glucose, in the manufacture of wine or brandy, an adulteration, for it is exactly the material from which grape wine is made. One man gets his glucose from rice, milk, honey, corn or potatoes; ferments it in water and produces alcohol and water, and a little flavoring extract being added, he has wine. The other man in Napa Valley subjects his grapes to exactly the same process of rotten putrefaction, which the decomposed body of a dead dog or cat has undergone when it is at its most intensely offensive and poisonous condition. The starch and nutriment and sugar and every good wholesome decent property of the grape, except the water, has been destroyed. Putrefaction has taken the glucose to pieces, separated its elements and put them together in a new form, in which they have become alcohol. Sugar, starch, gum, alcohol, and vinegar are composed of exactly the same elements, but in slightly varying proportions, and from starch or gum all the rest can be made, but no alcoholic liquor can be produced in any other manner than by the putrifaction of glucose; and glucose is always itself and the same, no matter how it is procured.

COMPETITION.

A great outcry is made by many persons and by some temperance people too against adulteration of liquors. Poisoning them with lead, strychnine or vitriol is perhaps a little more wicked than poisoning them with alcohol. But the use of glucose is only a competition of the potato and wheat-grower with the vineyard men, and if the latter will look at this matter rationally and practically, they will see that at the start they are wofully beaten and will be worse so every year.

The men who are importing glucose into Napa Valley are proving that it is cheaper, imported here, than grape sugar is raised in Napa Valley. If that is so, how is it in England, Germany &c but more especially in the States east ol the Rocky Mountains, where it is manufactured at a trifling cost compared with its cost here. Will they ever buy a dollars worth ef grape glucose from Napa Valley and pay freight on it, when they can produce at probably one third the price a precisely similar article in their own cellars.

For many years one has seen "California Wine Depot" on the doors and windows and signs of cellars and stores and shops in any of the towns and cities all the way from the Missouri river to the shores of the Atlantic. Is there a single grape grower in California who is weak enough to believe that the wholesalers who have been for years supplying these honest Depots, have ever been silly enough to sell them a gallon of wine made in a California vineyard , when that would have cost them probably fifty cents or more a gallon, while they could make with their own glucose and "fixins" a superior article right on the spot at about 15 cents a gallon; possessing all the qualities of the genuine, just as good and as wholesome and so like, that the Californian himself, after turning round twice could not tell which of the two was his own.

The grape growers of California are never going to believe that the men who put up wineries and distilleries, are going to have the least regard for anything but their own pockets. No one will pretend that liqnor dealers and makers can ever have the faintest scruples as to the manner in which they make money. They ought to know that every report made by them to our vineyard men about the prosperity of wine making countries and the condition of the wine making peasantry therein, have been utterly deceptive: they ought to know that these wineries and brandy makers hope to enrich themselves at the expense of the ruin of the properties and bodies and souls of the vineyard men: that they openly talk of peopling this State with a class of foreigners whose only recommendation is that they swill a swinish quantity of poisonous drink, which qualifies them to be stupid slaves of the winery monopolist: that Chinese labor is to do the vineyard and winery work and let the American children grow up hoodlums.

All this you grape growers know, and now when every kind of the best wine and brandy can not only be fabricated in the cellars of San Francisco, but can be made of the same quality in every respect from glucose &c, at about 15 cents or possibly 20 cents a gallon at the outside, do you suppose these saintly dealers in drunkenness are going to forfeit their chances of making the most they can out of the folly of their customers, for the sake of making your business profitable?

The competition is too much altogether for our folks to stand. In France, Holland, Belgium, Germany, England, Jersey, Guernsey, Canada, and all the States east of Kansas, in San Francisco, Stockton, Napa, Sacramento,, in every one of these places they can make your wine and your brandy out of cheaper material than you can raise from the grape, and at prices that (if that was your only resource) would soon put you in the same condition of beggary and serfdom and brutishness that prevails among the winemaking populations of Europe, where a peasant's wages are at the highest 20 cents a day, one half payable in wine that has to him no value whatever.

But there is not the least necessity for the grape growers of California to become the plundered victims of their would be masters. With their energies directed aright, the grape devoted to its legitimate honest uses, there is such a prospective wealth in the vineyards of California, as never came to any agricultural system in the history of the world. The grape used for wine purposes has never profited anybody except an occasional "bloated capitalist:" it has blasted millions after millions. But the grape always had and has now all the qualities to make it the most enriching as it is the most beneficent and precious of all the food gifts of the Creator to man.

As a parallel to the glucose fraud, for it is a fraud when its product is sold for more than 20 or 25 cents a gallon, the following is cut from the Wine Dealers Gazette of July 1881.

THE ——— WHISKY IN PARIS.

"We hope we are not intruding upon or into the privacies of domestic life when we note the fact that the agent of ——— the bonanza king, called on Messrs ——— & Co., the agents of the ——— whisky and ordered shipped to Paris, one barrel and ten cases of the "private stock," ——— brand, and at prices that seem almost fabulous.

"No pent up Utica contracts our powers
For the whole boundless continent is ours,"

Thus it seems that Americans visiting Europe are spreading the glad tidings of the superior quality of the ——— whisky in foreign lands."

Now everyone who is posted on the subject knows that that "private stock" of "fancy brand" and "fabulous prices" is nothing more than common alcohol and water which costs per gallon, duty (perhaps) 90 cents—the alcohol itself 20 cents, flavoring extracts 2 cents. And nothing else in the world can be done to it to make it more valuable except to keep it a little while; and every appearance of age can be given it in 48 hours by a smart doctor. No doubt the millionaire of fabulous price and the Patrick Flanagan who wants the "cheapest and the wan that has the besht grip in it" have their wants supplied thru the same faucet and there are instances reported of a private stock of a "half barrel" of prime stuff just for our particular private friends, which has sent forth a continuous stream for the last 20 years and there are no symptons of it getting dry yet.

But the fancy prices for first quality whisky, brandy, and California wine dont go past the wholesalers who have cellars and buy glucose. But the wine grape growers will have to be satisfied to get $10 a ton for their grapes and rejoice at the luck of the people who get fabulous prices for the produce of their down cellar glucose vineyard.

Next thing to consider is how to make the grape profitable.

CHAUTAUQUA TO THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

At the recent meeting of the Chautauqua Assembly, held at Pacific Grove, a wish was expressed by the State Committee, to introduce the Chautauqua course of reading more generally, especially to join hands with the Good Templars who exercise such a beneficent influence over the morals of young people, and try with them, to cultivate intellectual tastes, by inducing an interest, in this extensive literary society. As a member both of the Good Templars and the Chautauqua Committee, I was appointed to extend the olive branch, and express the kindly interest of the C. L. S. C. for this Order, so we will state our aims and a little of our history. In Western New York is a lake Webster spells' Chataugue. meaning "Foggy place" but usage spells it Chautauqua, and local tradition says that it means "Bag tied in the middle" because this beautiful sheet of water is in two ovals, narrow in the middle. Well, for years after the Indians ceased to fish and make baskets on its shores, Sunday school conventions were held on its banks, and finally it occurred to somebody, that the organization might be made more profitable, by introducing a literary department, calculated to furnish entertaining and instructive reading, founded on a Christian basis. Three years ago such a society, the C. L. S. Chautauqua Literary Society was organized and two years since when Joseph Cook and Dr. Vincent were on this Coast, a branch society, the C. L. S. C. was formed at Monterey. This organization has proved a real boon to many an isolated worker, who knew not how to direct his intellectual gropings or what subjects to study, The Assembly just closed proved to its members an intellectual uplift and a glad reunion. When the Good Templars understand our aim, we trust that they too will catch the flame, and if they do not consume the midnight oil, at least, cooperate with us, in encouraging young people, to devote some small portion of time to literary culture.

GILROY.

SARAH M. SEVERANCE.

CHAUTAUQUA. Please read the letter of Miss Severance in the number. Glad we should all be to enter into friendly and mutually helpful relations with any worthy society which aims at education and improvement. We have thousands of young people and older people of both sexes who could derive much benefit. and render at the same time much assistance to others, from a union with the C. L. S. C. Would that every Good Templar was a member of that society and every one of its members an earnest and active Good Templar like the lady who introduces the subject in this number. Those who desire to avail themselves of the refining and bettering influence derived from association and fellowship with people of good taste, cultured excellence and pure and holy aspiration for the attainment of the highest intellectual enjoyment, should put themselves in communication with our friend who holds out the olive branch. There are great possibilities in the establishment of the C. L. S. C.

COST OF PAUPERS AND CRIMINALS..

The California Legislature not long ago published a report prepared by Chancellor Hartson, of Napa, Chairman of the Committee on Prisons, which contains some startling statistics. The cost of maintaining criminals and paupers is shown as follows:

1850—Population of the United States, 23,191,876. Cost of Criminals and paupers annually, $2, 955,806. 1860—Population of United States, 31.443,321. Criminals and paupers annually $4,445,143. 1870—Population of the United States, 38,558,374, Criminals and paupers annually $10,930,423.

It is calculated that the census for 1881, when completed, will show an outlay of over $20,000.000 per annum for the cost of maintaining criminals and infirm people. This does not include the enormous outlay incurred by the arrest and trial of criminals, but simply to theirmainte nance in prison.—Folsom Telegraph

At the opening of the Garfield Campaign, Mr. Hartson stated in Vallejo his impression, that the increase of crime and insanity in California, was due to the disastrous effect of Chinese competition upon the laboring white men, causing them disappointment and misfortune and leading them to drink and crime. Most men who have given patient study to that question believe that the grogshop is the cause of ninetenths of all crime and pauperism and that it is the main cause why it is necessary to have Chinese labor where sobriety and reliability are required. If it is not the grogshop, what is it that causes, except in Maine and Kansas an increase of crime and pauperism and insanity all over the United States, where there are no Chinamen ?

ROSEVILLE, Cal. July 30, 1881.

ED RESCUE:—Mrs. L. M. Byrne, W. C. T. of Roseville Lodge, No. 261 on behalf of the lodge filed complaints against three saloon keepers in this village last Wednesday. These three were the only ones who persisted in violating the Sunday law after receiving a notice to close. The defendants plead not guilty and called for a jury trial. They afterwards filed affidavits for a change of venue and their cases are set for trial at Rocklin next Wednesday A. M. at 10 o'clock.

Their defense will be not that they have not violated the law, but that because the law is not enforced nor any attempt is being made to enforce it in the cities of San Francisco and Sacramento it should not be enforced in the small towns. It will be strange indeed if there cannot be found one man among the twelve who will sit as a jury, who will be swayed by this argument. Roseville Lodge to meet this subterfuge has passed resolutions calling upon the G. W. C, T. and G. W. S. to do their duty in the premises and to at once endeavor to enforce the law in the metropolis and the capital of the state.

Yours Respectfully,
T. R. JONES.

Whereas there has been for nearly ten years in the penal code of the state of California the following law, Sec. 300, Every person who keeps open on Sunday, any store, workshop, bar, saloon, banking house or other place of business for the purpose of transacting business therein, is punishable by fine not less than five nor more than fifty dollars. And whereas the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of the state of California are appealing to the subordinate lodges thruout the state to enforce the said Sunday law, therefore be it

Resolved:— by Roseville Lodge. No. 261, I. O. G. T., that we are heartily in favor of the enforcement of said Sunday law thruout the whole state, and that we will do all in our power to enforce the same.

Resolved:—that we deem it expedient to attack the enemy in his stronghold. To cripple him where he is most potent for evil, to suppress him where he is most conspicuous, we deem to be the way to make the work most effective and practical.

Resolved.—That we consider it to be the bounden duty of the officers of the Grand Lodge of the state of California to set an example and show that all prohibitory legislation is speedily and thoroly enforced.

Resolved.—That we call upon the G. W. C. T., Bro. R. Thompson to enforce the provisions of the said Sunday law in the city of San Francisco, and upon the G. W. S. Bro. Geo. B. Katzenstein to enforce the provisions of the said Sunday law in the city of Sacramento immediately, or give to the Good Templars of California a satisfactory reason for their inaction.

Resolved.—That the time for talk has gone, and a day for action has come, and we now look for some practical effort on the part of our leaders during the present crisis rather than words of encouragement for others to persevere in the direction they willingly point out, but do not lead.

Resolved.—That a copy hereof be sent to the G. W. C. T., G. W. S., the RESCUE and each subordinate lodge in Placer Co.

T. R. JONES, Chairman.

The foregoing preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted by Roseville Lodge, No. 261 this 30th day of July A. D. 1881, and the chairman of the committee on resolutions instructed to forward copies of the same as directed therein.

T. R. JONES.

IN West Virginia the Freeman says there are 39 counties where no license can be had to sell rat poison to men.

LYING reports about the failure of prohibition are doing as well as can be expected. How much a dozen is paid for them is not stated.

THE Pacific Censor is as lively as ever, and as it advertises Mr. Banks to preach on Sunday he must have about recovered from the assassin's bullet.

The W. W. Statesman hopes the scoundrels who sell rum to Indians may be caught and punished. It does not suppose surely that any one who sells rum at all declines or hesitates to sell it to Indians. They all know that it is no greater sin to sell to Indians than Whites; and they have no scruples of any kind against crime.

THE Pacific Business College is still preparing young men for a commercial life with great success. But there are over a thousand boys in the city and State that ought to be there now while they can go just as well as not, but it has never occurred to them to do so. Better go in next week, not over 50 at a time tho. Moderate charges and good teaching.

SOMETHING TO COPY. The item in this number entitled "An English View" is a good one to copy. If the London Times or N. Y. Herald had an item hostile to prohibition or temperance, it would be reproduced in a thousand papers with all avidity, and when the Times has a sound square business article whose eminent truthfulness every one must admit, why not give it a place as well ?

RHODE ISLAND has a liquor law prohibiting the sale of liquor within 400 feet of a school house. That is a monstrously iniquitous and criminal farce. Every man who voted for such a burlesque as that ought to be re-elected to stay at home in future. That law recognizes rumselling as a crime too infamous to be perpetrated within 400 feet of a school house and patronizes it everywhere else. It is the meanest politician trick we have had.

WINE AT COMMUNION.—The following is the full text of the resolution passed at the National Convention on wine at the Lord's Supper:

Resolved. That the blood of the grape is the true symbol of the blood of a sinless, perfect Savior; that alcoholic wines cannot represent His blood of the new covenant, and we therefore most earnestly beseech the church to procure for use in the Lord's churches the pure fruit of the vine, since this will remove a chief support of the pretended divine sanction for and a strong plea for the morality of the intoxicating wine traffic.

THE SUNDAY LAW.—The Rocklin jnry to whom the constitutionality or rather the propriety of section 300 of the Penal Code was referred, have decided adversely "because the law is a dead letter." The Bee says the justice in place of fining them for contempt of court, made them "retire and bring in a legal verdict" which it is presumed was to the same effect. That is well: another proof added to the many that whisky license is as incompatible with law as water is with fire.

SUNDAY LAW.—Quite a number of the better class of secular interior papers declare openly in favor of the enforcement of the Sunday law. The great papers are silent of course, It is presumed the religious journals of the coast feel favorably disposed toward the project of closing the grogshops on Sunday and there seems no reason why the friends of morality should not make a united effort everywhere in the State to restore the day of rest from its present slavery to the dens of vice. The Sabbath was designed for a day of rest: it is now a day of busy industry in which men are more actively than on any other day engaged in building up the temples of Satan.

Roseville Lodge of Good Templars calls for the enforcement of the law in San Francisco and Sacramento. And they do well to desire that a vigorous and earnest attempt be made to shut the infernal sinks of debauchery which curse our country, defile the Sabbath and debauch everything within reach of their poison breath.

REAL ESTATE DEPRECIATION.

The Post of August 1st has an editorial upon this subject which is as mistaken and misleading as the answers given by a consulting spirit medium. It charges the depreciation altogether upon the presence of the chinese,for which there is not a particle of authority or any probability pointing in that direction.

The favorite and most convenient places of business in San Francisco, the natural centres of business have been blasted by the mildew of the grogshop and its train of vice and beggary. From about Vallejo St wharf to the custom house vicinity, and so up to California street was where the most costly and valuable stores and offices and favorite business resorts would have been to-day, but for the patent fact that the grogshop drove respectable honest business away up to Kearney and Market Streets &c, where it has followed and infested the new localities with its various dens of vice and infamy.

The Post tells of small stores and offices being deserted because the Chinese do not patronize them. As well attribute their closing to the comet. The Chinese whose presence is by no means desired nor advocated nor commended by this journal, have assisted the value of real estate by the number of shops and stores and houses they have rented and occupied and they have always paid good rents, altho generally they have located where the grogshop and its accompanying brothelry, had reduced the value of the property and rendered it untenantable by respectable white people.

For one white man rendered by Chinese competition unable to patronize shops and stores, there are probably 20 or more completely pauperized and depraved by the grogshop and beer dive, the mantraps set by the city to pauperize, and deprave its own people, and transform them into hoodlums and jailbirds.

The mantraps rob an amazingly large proportion of the workingmen of the city of nearly all their earnings: and because these working men, so many of them, are always unable to buy anything beyond their beer and cigars, the shoemakers, tailors, carpenters booksellers, shopkeepers, and about all the honest industries have very few customers, except the sober Chinese who of course buy but little of them: they are therefore constantly being driven away inch by inch by the grogshop next door, and when they are gone a few days, their old quarters open up as another beer dive or another brothel or a combination of both, and thus the next honest business in that street has to get ready for a move. Every one who has eyes must recognize this as a truth a thousand times exemplified in this city and everywhere.

Vallejo up to about 1871 could never have suffered from the half dozen Chinamen located there. There were about 1000 white men employed on the Navy yard. Property was up and always in demand at regularly advancing rates; There was a grand set of sober, intelligent, worthy men employed on the yard and in the city. There was a lodge of 425 Good Templars, another of about 100. Four or five churches were well filled and there was as worthy a community as could be found in California.

About then a new congressman J. M. Coghlan and a new U. S. Senator A. A. Sargent came into the patronage of the Navy Yard and the commandant was pretty nearly deprived of all power in the appointment or retention of employees. Almost every member of a temperance society was immediately discharged from the yard, almost every sober man of family, nearly every man who had economized and provided himself a home was driven from Government employ and from the city like a dog, and the saloon keepers nominated for years the men who should draw government pay and deposit it in their tills.

The bottom fell out of all values in the town, homes were for sale by the score, rents went to zero. The saloon keeper's men patronized no trade but theirs; the baker, storekeeper, clothier, milliner, shoemaker and honest trades saw their business ruined, the city was depopulated of the largest proportion of its best and most valuable citizens who had to scatter everywhere in search of a living. Another set was imported to vote and support saloons. A new jail was built, police force organized and the rummills flourished and the Chinamen came in force. Property can be sold for little more than one fifth to one tenth of its former value, altho of course some few people who dont care to sell, would not now dispose of their property at a great reduction from former rates.

The chinamen have not depreciated anything one cent: the grogshop has done it all in Vallejo and everywhere else in California: and the grogshop has planted the chinamen in force everywhere. A sober moral white citizen who has his home and family, is infinitely better property every way than the chinaman under any circumstances: the sober chinaman is a much more valuable citizen every way than the drunken white man: and chinamen, locusts, smallpox, mining debris, land monopoly, railroad tyranny, stock thieving, all these combined evils under their widest opportunities for mischief, are but an insignificant drawback, when contrasted with the all-corrupting, all-blasting, all-pauperizing, all-destroying curse of the grogshop, the only obstacle of any moment that has ever stood in the way of a universal prosperity and universal happiness in California.

INTEMPERATE TEMPERANCE.

Under this heading the S. F. Chronicle gives a glad and cheerful endorsement to an article which it says appeared in the Pacific, accusiug the RESCUE of "manifesting a spirit of slander and abuse toward those "friends of temperance" !!!! who believe the moderate use of wine innocent &c &c. Not having seen the article in question and not deeming it worth perusal anyway, it is presumed it was a success in currying favor with the rummies, drammies and wine dealers whose favor is considered of paramount importance by a certain class of journas. No doubt it carried joy and comfort into their camp and was applauded.

There is a proportion (happily decreasing) of professing christians, among whom it seems fair to include the redoubtable contributor of the Pacific and his sympathizing backers, who, year after year, see an endless procession of 100.000 or 60.000 or more or less many thousand of their neighbors, marching strait (as they profess to believe) into the yawning gulf of an eternal hell, thru the portals of the grogshop: but they never ask once that those gates be shut: they help to prop them open by perversions of scripture. If they have no sentiment of compassion, no christian sympathy for all these slain and to be slain, no mercy or pity for the many millions of innocent women and children whose lives are one long continuous hopeless groan of misery and agony because of the tyranny of satan and his winecup—if they can look on calmly at the operations of 12.000 grogshops in this State, blasting its manhood, corrupting its youth, ensnaring its children, blaspheming and defying the most high God in their every act during the seven days and nights of the week—if they care or dare to utter no audible word that objects to this cruel and bloody revelry of fiends—and then boil over with virtuous wrath over the sins of the RESCUE, when it repels the charge made by hypocritical self-deluded winebibbers and dram-drinkers, that the Savior of the world was addicted to their habits and was by implication the patron founder of the dram-shop—then the fact that the RESCUE is as far as possible from meeting their approbation is a source of the balmiest and most consoling sweetness.

A letter received last week from a veteran christian minister who has been an advocate of temperance for forty years, encourages the war against the leprosy of the wine cup and counsels "sharpen up your pen." It is that class of people to whom the RESCUE looks for approval and advice.

THE assumption of the title "friends of temperance" by individuals who were never known to do anything in the temperance field, but defend moderate drinking, libel the Savior and embrace every opportunity of putting their knife into the advocates and principles of temperanec—is amusing. If they will insist on being counted "friends of temperance,"there is only one place for them.

A BURLY native of Cork whose old coat would no longer hang together was selecting material for a new one. After buying the requisites for sleeve s, back, collar, pockets &c he still rubbed his head and was reaching round for something else. When asked what more he wanted, he replied, "Sure I've got nothing yet to make the holes out of." When the garment of christianity and temperance shall be modeled on the plan of a Kinsale fisherman's tattered coat, the "friends" who insist on having a rum plank in the christian platform and who are agonized about the RESCUE, will be appropriate material "to make the holes out of."

A NEW PARTY AND ITS NEW WORK.

Indications point unmistakably in the direction of a disruption of the old political parties. The solid South is soon to be a thing of the past, and without a solid South the Democratic party cannot survive. The wide divergence between the two wings of the Republican party as evinced by the contest between Mr. Conkling and the President, makes it evident that the moment the Republican party of the north is relieved from the fear that the election of any other than a Republican will peril the results of the war, that party will go to pieces.

What new political parties will arise in the contingency of a general break up of the old parties? We hear some saying the new parties will be Monopoly and Antimonopoly. But this is impossible. A cry of anti-monopoly is a good cry, to aid in breaking up the old parties, but no party can arise which will become the champion of monopolies. Such a party could hardly carry a county, certainly not a single state in the Union. No statesman can be found who, however willing he may be to profit by the money and influence of fhe great corporations, would undertake to build a political party on such a platform. Monopoly and anti monopoly are real issues, but they are not issues which can front the light of day in their conflict. Every politician will claim to be anti-monopolist, and the great corporations will get their work done under pretense of the public welfare. Messrs. Vanderbilt and Gould have more confidence in ways that are dark, and in tricks that unfortunately are not vain, than in any square fight for their privileges as monopolists.

But there is one issue which is rising in a national prominence, which has the element of moral convictions, which divides the public sentiment, and which must be decided by the vote of the people, that issue is—temperance. The people from Maine to Kansas, from Michigan to Florida are anxious to find some way by which the police power of the State can take the liquor traffic by the throat and choke it out of existence. The people do not expect to make men temperate by law, but they do feel that the open bold shameless licensed sale of intoxicating drinks ought to be stopped. The law cannot do everything but it can have its whole weight put on the side of the right. Prohibition would not stop old soakers from getting liquor in underhand ways;but it would prevent the open solicitation, the splendid inducements which are now publicly provided to seduce men to drink. Large numbers of Republicans are ready to cut loose from the Republican party and aid any party that will make a vigorous effort to extirpate the liquor traffic. The signs of the times indicate that this question is coming to the front as an issue upon which parties north and south can agree to fight, bury and forget the dead issues which have separated the sections into North and South. The South and the North can form parties on this question along new lines and divide for this struggle with no reference to state right and secession theories which were settled by the war. Perhaps the best interest of society will be furthered if both the old parties disband and the people address themselves to the statement of this great moral issue by the potent decision of the ballot box. Let Mr. Garfield and Mr. Conkling proceed in the work of disintegration; let Mr. Mahone and his allies in the South pulverize the solid front of Democratic supremacy in that section and let all good people stand ready to organize a great national party with an issue as sharply defined and an end to be accomplished as morally grand as that which Republicanism took in 1860, and effected by the emancipation proclamation and the surrender at Appomattox.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

The Cyclopaedia War.

The month of July, 1881, witnesses the completion of the largest and most important literary work this country and the century have seen. It is the Library of Universal Knowledge, large type edition, in 15 large octavo volumes, containing 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's Cyclopædia, at less than one-fifth its cost, and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopædia, at a little more than one-fourth its cost.

Victory

Chambers's Encyclopædia, which forms the basis of the Library of Universal Knowledge (the last London edition of 1880 being reprinted verbatim as a portion of its contents), is the laborious product of the ripest British and European scholarship. It has developed through a century of Cyclopædia making; its various editions having been many times revised, in successive years, till it has come to be universally recognized, by those competent to judge, as standing at the very front of great aggregations of knowledge, and better adapted than any other Cyclopædia for popular use. It contains such full and important information as the ordinary reader, or the careful student, is likely to seek, upon about 25,000 subjects in every department of human knowledge. Chambers's Encyclopædia, however, is a foreign production, edited and published for a foreign market, and could not be expected to give as much prominence to American topics as American readers might desire. To supply these and other deficiencies a large corps of American editors and writers have added important articles upon about 15,000 topics, covering the entire field of human knowledge, bringing the whole number of titles under one alphabetical arrangement to about 40,000. Thus the work is thoroughly Americanized, and the Library of Universal Knowledge becomes at once the latest and most complete Encyclopædia in the field, at a mere fraction of the cost of any similar work which has preceded it.

For The

Price of the 15 volumes, complete, in extra cloth binding, $15.00. In half Russia, sprinkled edges, $20.00. In half Russia, gilt top, $22.50. In full library sheep, marbled edges, $25.00.

The superlative value and importance of this great Encyclopædia lies especially in the fact that it is brought within the reach of every one who aspires after knowledge and culture. It is really a library of universal knowledge. It brings a liberal education easily within the reach even of every plowboy of the country and apprentice boy of the city. Every farmer and every mechanic in the land owes it to himself and to his children that such a Cyclopædia shall henceforward form a part of the outfit of his home. To the professional man, and every person of intelligence in every walk of life, a Cyclopædia is a necessity.

Revolution

Of course the old and wealthy publishers who have grown rich (it is said that the Appletons have made a profit of nearly two million dollars on their Cyclopædia) from the sale of their high-priced publications are not pleased that their monopolies are broken and their power overthrown. Of course the book agents and booksellers who have been used to getting from 40 to 60 per cent commission for selling these high-priced books are not so well pleased to sell the Library of Universal Knowledge on 15 per cent commission, though those who are not short-sighted discover that their own interests, after all, are identical with the interests of the people, and their real profits, in the end, are increased, by the immense sales which result from meeting the people's wants. The majority of booksellers, however, are better pleased to slander than to sell this and our numerous other standard and incomparably low-priced publications. But the Literary Revolution has always looked to the people, in whose interests it is, for its patronage, and it has never looked in vain, as our more than one million volumes printed last year (this year being increased to probably more than two millions) abundantly prove. You can order the Cyclopædia directly from us, and by uniting with your neighbors and friends you can secure club rates as follows:

$10,000 Reward

To Club Agents.

A discount of 10 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering at one time three or more sets of the Cyclopædia; and a discount of 15 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering five or more sets at one time.

As a special inducement to our friends and patrons to go to work promptly and vigorously, each doing what he can for the dissemination of universal knowledge, we propose to distribute $10,000 in special premiums as follows, in addition to the regular discount to clubs:

$5,000 Reward to be distributed equally among the first 500 club agents who send us clubs of not less than five subscribers, after June 15th and before September 1st.

$5,000 Reward in addition to the first $5,000 to be distributed among the 100 club agents who, during the same time, send us the largest number of subscribers, not less than twenty in number, the amount to be distributed proportionately to the whole number of subscribers which each of the 100 club agents may send us.

The names of the subscribers must in every case be forwarded to us. The first $5,000 named will be distributed as specified as rapidly as the orders are received, and the remaining $5,000 will be distributed promptly on Sept. 1st. The names of the persons receiving these rewards will be printed, with the amounts received by each, and the list sent to all the club agents entering into competition for them. Subscribers must be actual purchasers for individual use, to entitle the club agent to the rewards under this offer, and not booksellers or agents who buy to sell again.

Persons desiring to raise clubs may send to us at once for sample volumes, if they desire, in the various styles of binding, paying us 75 cents for the volume in cloth, $1.00 for the volume in half Russia, sprinkled edges, and $1.25 for the volume in library sheep. Orders for the full sets will be filled by us with the utmost promptness, within our ability to manufacture, beginning not later than July 10th, orders being filled in the order of their receipt by us.

Specimen pages of the "Library of Universal Knowledge" will be sent free upon request. Descriptive catalogue of our large list of standard publications, with terms to clubs, and illustrated pamphlet describing book-making and type-setting by steam, will be sent upon application. Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by express. Fractions of $1.00 may be sent in postage-stamps.

the Executive Committee issue a letter to each lodge recommending that prizes be offered to the pupils of public schools for the best essays and speeches on the "Twin evils, intemperance and tobacco. etc., etc.

The communication was discussed fully and the plan was generally approved; but as the matter involved a new feature of work differing from any methods previously employed, the near approach of the Grand Lodge session suggested that the matter be referred to the Grand Lodge itself which was finally done upon motion duly made and carried.

A communication was received from the W. C. T. U. of California suggesting a distribution by the Grand Lecturers and within the lodges of our Order of the W. C. T. U, leaflets on alcohol and tobacco. which they proposed to furnish at 25cts a hundred or $2 per thousand.

After deliberation it was decided not to adopt the suggestion, and the G. W. S. was directed to reply to the communication.

Upon motion duly made and carried it was voted to employ Bro. J. W. Webb for two months in Southern California, W.C. King (of Wisconsin) for two months in Southern Central California; and Col. C. N. Goulding in Northern Central California, the G. W. S. being instructed to employ and state terms.

Upon motion duly made and carried, it was Resolved that Dr. Merrick be assigned to work in Yuba and Solano counties to complete there the term of his engagement for special work as Grand Lecturer up to Aug. 31st.

The G. W. S. was directed to procure for use in his office one of Warren Holts large wall maps of the state of California.

Bills were presented, audited, allowed and warrants were ordered drawn in payment as follows:

To Captain Albert D. Wood to three months' appropriation for the publication of the Rescue, $500; to 761 copies furnished ministers, Judges and Bands of Hope for 3 months, $253.30 to 5,400 copies furnished Grand Lecturers $129,60. Total $882.90.

To Geo W. Bramall, G. S. J. W., to salary and cash advanced to pay expenses over receipts 3 months $113.10

To G. W. C. T. incidental and traveling expenses $163 15.

To G. W. S. exchange, telegraphing, expressage, gas and clerical assistance six months $98.50.

Upon motion duly made and carried the G. W. S. was directed to make all necessary arrangements for the approaching session of the Grand Lodge, and was given full authority to do whatever he deemed necessary.

At one oclock A. M. the committee adjourned.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding and George Bramall.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the Rescue, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

F. J. CULVER.

Lectured again at Arcata Saturday night. Here the enemy rejoice in the division of the temperance workers but we look for better things in the future. Sunday Bro. Deming of the Champions kindly offered to take us up to Trinidad, which offer we accepted. Found Bro. Neely on the lookout for us. Lectured early in the evening in G. T. hall to a good audience, after which attended lodge. This lodge "holds the fort" at the north of Humbolt. Gathering by the half dozen the hard drinkers as well as ever on the alert to guard the young and warn the stranger who comes within their bounds, like the harbor of refuge made by nature at this point for vessels on the stormy sea. This lodge is indeed a refuge to many a human vessel wrecked on the ocean of intemperance.

Monday night we again lectured. Tuesday we bid good by. Returned to Arcata where in the afternoon we organized a Band of Hope of 23 members, with Bro. the Rev. J. B. Chisholm Supt. Left here for Eureka, visited the lodge in the evening, found it well up in the work with a good strong membership of over one hundred mostly young people. Lectured Wednesday and Thursday evening. Thursday met with and helped to organize fully Northern District Lodge of Humbolt county. Six lodges of the county were well represented, the days work we feel will aid the cause very materially in Eureka and thruout the county, it was a day of hard work made light by enthusiasm and many pleasantries. Eureka has the banner lodge of the county, but she must work if she holds it, judging from the reports of other lodges in the county. We look for a great growth in the cause in this county the coming year.

H. R. HUGHES.

After several days' work in Georgetown I got 17 names and organized Georgetown Lodge, Brother S. Watson, L. D. Lectured at Spanish Dry Diggings; quite a little temperance camp, with a blue ribbon club and a Band of Hope. It is the first mining camp I ever found without a saloon. Was very kindly treated by the Walker and Wythington families.

Lectured also at Bear Creek. S. H. The young people have a club here also, composed and run entirely by the young folks. There is hope for Eldorado when her young people will organize and run temperance clubs.

At Greenwood, a place large enough to have a lodge, I could do nothing with the President of the club. On August 2nd I organized Placerville Lodge with 34 charter members, Rev. B. F. Taylor, L. D. So a beginning has been made in this county, and I expect this county, after starting, will sustain lodges and carry on the work as well as those counties north and south. This evening I lecture in the old town of Mud Springs.

Placerville, August 4, 1881.

FROM THE SOUTHERN LECTURE FIELD.

Lompoc August 3rd 1881.

Ed Rescue.—By orders from Head Quarters, I am again in the Lecture field being instructed to follow up Sister Stevens' glorious work and endeavor to "clinch" the nails she so well drove. Have conferred degrees, preparatory to installation, in three Lodges where much needed; glad to see growing interest in degree work. Also visited and strengthened some Bands of Hope, spoke to public meetings and commenced a canvass for the Rescue, nearly everybody takes so many papers "More than I can read," so that is an uphill work. However I send you a few names, I now go to Ventura for public installation and speaking and Lodge instruction; then at Hueneme and Nordhoff; then to Dist Lodge at Carpinteria, to Goleta, Stewart, Los Alamos, Santa Maria and Guadalupe and up into San Luis Obispo County. After that, to Los Angeles and San Diego counties, which will keep me busy till Grand Lodge. Fraternally.

J. W. Webb.

C. N. GOLDING.

The powers "that be" decided that I should do some work in the counties of Sierra and Plumas, and that it would be desirable to have the work done as soon as possible. I am therefore on the move: Lectured in Sheridan, Sunday 7th, and in Wheatland Monday and Tuesday evenings; large audiences and some additional names secured for the order. Sheridan Lodge holds its own. The burning of property belonging to temperance men only increases their devotion to the cause, and demonstrates what the enemy are capable of doing. I shall lecture next in Smartsville on the 10th and 11th; Rough and Ready, 12th and 13th. I am unable to give you my exact route, but will do so as soon as accertained; but you may consider that I am working my way up and "through the mountains," trying to hold the banner aloft.

Wheatland, August 9, 1881.

MUSEUM AT THE HOME.

Bro. Leland sending his weekly club of subscribers for the Rescue, desires to remind the members of the Order who come to Vallejo or San Francisco or Sacramento to bring a little contribution of mineral specimens, pressed flowers, Indian relics, stuffed birds, shells, pebbles or other curiosities, which he thinks Bro. Smith could assort and label with the donors name etc., and work up into quite a cabinet of curisoities and mementoes in some upper room of the Home or the new school house. And he suggests that a few skeletons of animals etc, might be wired up to assist the children in the study of anatomy.

It is very kindly and thotful in Bro. Leland to remember our Home and the Rescue and the Order here with so much interest, and it is hoped the idea suggested may be carried out. In a very few years a collection could be had very valuable indeed, and of much utility.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

Sonoma county District Lodge will meet at Santa Rosa September 8th; Butte county D. L. at Dayton September 17th.

The following from a venerable minister of the gospel is published as an offset to the charges made by some self-styled "friends of temperance" who are sorely distressed by the attitude of the Rescue toward wine drinking professors:

Downey, Cal. Aug. 4th 1881.

I have often purposed in my mind I would address you a note of thanks for your most excellent paper. I heartily approve of the Rescue. I can say, in every respect I am heartily and prayerfully with you the year in and out, and always until the Hydra's last head is off and cauterized. I joined the first total pledge I ever saw in Nov. of 1834, I have clung to it ever since. The good cause is gloriously progressing. God speed it a hundred fold more rapidly. I say friends to humanity to the conflict. The battle cry' Down with the Demon.

Wm. Moores.

Attention Sonoma county.—The annual session of the Sonoma District Lodge will be held at Santa Rosa, commencing on Thursday Sept. 8, 1881 at 10.30 A. M. and continuing two days. Delegates and visitors are requested to take lunch with them. The session will be an important one, as it is imperative that steps be immediately taken to build up our weaker lodges. I shall send a communication to the Rescue on "District Work" and it is my earnest request that that communication be read in every lodge in the county. Will each L. D. see that it is done ?

H. H. Peckinpah, Dist. Sect.

It is time that every one who writes an article for a newspaper should know that communications from parties who are afraid to confide their name and address to the editor, can only be contributions to the waste basket. That is perhaps the millionth time that information has been given in the various journals of the world.

The Lodge Directory has been corrected this week, but unfortunately the corrections did not reach the office in time for the first side printed. Consequently page 653 only of this number is corrected: next week it will be all right.

Subscribers this week—Ventura 1. Bro. Leland, club of 9: Enterprise 1: Bridgeport lodge Sycamore 10: Bro. J. W. Webb, club of 8: Winters 1: Port Gamble 1: Sailor I; Pescadero 1.

Bro. Hughes has organized a lodge at El Dorado and another at Grizzly Flat, It is hoped the last one was not called after either the Grizzly or the Flat.

Quite enough matter on hand left over for all of next weeks paper.

DIRECTORY OF LODGES

THE

National Freeman,

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,

First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....Rev. JOHN RUSSELL.
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

IF YOU WANT.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

If there is a bran new editor of a temperance paper somewhere, who has just buckled on his spurs and mistakes the mission of a temperance journal to be a war upon other temperance people or papers, it is a much greater mistake to suppose that the Rescue can be called out into an arena where the proprieties of the barroom or rat pit are in activity. It is the business of this paper to war against the whisky traffic and it looks as if there was employment enough for us all in that direction.

There is always a chance of communications being a day later than they are expected. Lecturers might as well mail their reports &c so as to be in San Francisco Monday night; then they are in good time. When any articles get here on Tuesday night they are late, especially if they are written in such a wretched style of penmanship that it takes a council of ten printers to tell Saturday from Satan and Presbyterian church from Patrick Burns crutches.

The Beer Assassin.—The Washington dispatches state that Guiteau, who fired on President Garfield, has been for months a dead beat about Washington hunting the beer saloons, and going to the White House and departments begging for an office. He and Booth took their alcohol in different forms, one in beer and the other in biandy, from the saloons which have thus paid tribute to the National Treasury in the blood money of two Presidents. When will the nation awake and see its deadly enemy in the now licensed "Crime of Crimes."—Delaware Signal.

Bishop Kip. The Chronicle of last Sunday says the Rescue arraigns Bishop Kip for having censured a pastor &c and charges the Bishop with seeking to pollute the communion cup &c. Those who do not read the Rescue and who believe what the Chronicle says, will suppose the former has impertinently meddled with matters outside of its province. But those who read the Rescue know that it did not mention Bishop Kip, did not arraign or charge him or any other Bishop with anything, nor use or imply one word in the slightest degree discourteous to Bishop or Pastor. The statement of the Chronicle is not only untrue but it is particularly unjust.

In the south.—Bro. Webb is advocating and pushing temperance literature and the Rescue manfully in the South. The people want above all things to be set to reading on the subject. Hearing a lecture once or twice a year however good it may be, dont make people call for a prohibitory law in a great hurry. The idea of District Lodges electing fraternal delegates to neighboring district meetings is a very excellent one, it is hoped it will be included in Bro. Peckinpah's reforms. Let us improve all the time whenever we hit upon anything which we are sure is an improvement. Bro. Webb thanks Dr. McDonald for a supply of his temperance tracts which will do good service and are eminently appropriate to the use of our lecturers for distribution.

Santa Barbara County Dist. Lodge. — Much good was done at our meeting. The Sec. will furnish detailed report. I will note a few things worthy of imitation by other district lodges. Each subordinate lodge was recommended to contribute at least $1 to a fund to furnish me as lecturer with tracts and other cheap literature to distribute to children and adults in my meetings here and elsewhere. District lodge set the example by voting $5 for the purpose. Dist. Deputy Fisk, who fills the office admirably and self were appointed to represent Dist. Lodge in the approaching Methodist conference and Baptist association, thanking them for past work done for temperance, and to urge still further work. Had a good report and efficient aid from Sr. Walbridge, fraternal delegate from Ventura Dist Lodge, and appointed Bro. Caldwell delegate to Ventura Dist Lodge. I canvassed successfully for Rescue.

A FLINTY HEARTED JUDGE.

A gentleman of Hibernian nativity desired in the latter part of July to be naturalized in the Superior court in Oakland. Two witnesses proved his five years residence in this country, but because in reply to the questions of the presiding judge, he said England was a republic and our President was elected by the people and he had never yet had time to read much of the constitution of the U. S., the poor would-be patriot was cruelly refused his certificate of sovereignty.

The monstrously heartless nature of this high-handed and unusual proceeding may not be apparent at first sight. That applicant for the voting power would very probably be worth $150 to $300 a year to the saloon keeper who furnishes him with beer, provided he has a vote. But with no vote his boss cannot give him an order for constant work or any work at all on the navy yard, on the street repairs, or any public work, nor in lots of private employments controlled by his fraternity.

Still further, the work which might be done by this man were he a voter, and the 50 cents to $1.00 a day of his wages would have helped to sustain the business of the saloon keeper and place him in independent circumstances, are being gobbled up by some fellow who uselessly squanders all his wages on the support of a whining wife and a set of gluttonous children that dont work for their own living, but become an unnecessary and irritating burden upon the business of the beershops: workingmen's families are of no possible advantage anyway, either to the saloons or the politicians and the propriety of countenancing them is very questionable, unless just so far as they can live on beer.

The manufacturing industries and other sources of employment of California could support a good many more saloons than we have, were it not for the practice of employing men who have families and who spend their wages on them. This limiting the number of saloon keepers limits the smoothness of the running of the political machinery and is a burden upon the political engineers.

But the idea of his honor, that it is necessary for a voter to know anything about the government, strikes one with its special freshness and originality. No one but a thoroly honest and ingenuous man would have harbored such an idea, and he well deserves to be honored for that, no matter how much we deplore his cruelty to the poor saloon keepers. These "business gentlemen," as the Tehama county District attorney calls them, always furnish their voting machines with a ballot and it is not in the least necessary for the voter or any one else but the saloon keeper, who is the real voice of the people, to know what is on the ballot the beer drinker casts.

A few more cruelties like these may overload the saloon interest and impair its political rule. If we need any further condemnation of the hardship practiced upon our foreign acquisition and the foreign owner who disposes of his wages and has a right to his vote, it is to be found in the fact that the heartlessly wicked Argonaut actually glories in the conduct of that judge. That paper always was opposed to Irish liberty.

Delirium tremens. A story is going the rounds, of a Worthy Patriarch of the S. of T. who, having become subject to horrible visions and convulsive writhings, was pronounced by his physician to be a victim of delirium tremens from the use of tobacco. The Doctor said, if you dont drop tobacco it will drop you. The patient took his advice and his disease has returned no more. This "delirium tremens" from tobacco is a well established fact, but the "effluvium tremendus" of the tobacco user is a much more general and offensive disease, and it attacks and nauseates every body who comes within smelling distance of the human tobacco smoke hospitals.

THE BLOODY BALLOT

BY REV. C. W. DENISON.

"Father in Heaven! Thy Kingdom come!"
This is the prayer we Christians pray.
And yet we vote the demon Rum
Shall o'er Thy Kingdom hold its sway.

"No drunkard ever enters here?"
Sounds forth from Heaven with fearful knell,
And yet we vote from year to year,
To plunge our neighbors down to hell!

By votes we run the Devil's still!
By votes we kill God's living grain!
By votes the drunkards cup we fill
And doom him to eternal pain.

Who casts these votes? Thou, voter, thou!
Thy ballot sells these drunken souls!
Thy brother's blood is on it now
Dropped, red and reeking at the polls!

APPEAL TO THE VOTERS OF CALIFORNIA.

REV. G. W. FITCH.

We ask all Christian citizens, all men of intelligence and moral wealth, to seriously consider the following propositions:

1. The Liquor traffic is a stupendous immorality; a crime against the State; against every man, woman and child, and its legal sanction is a wicked barbarism.

2. The power to punish this heaven-daring crime is in the hands of the legal voters of the State. An appeal to the ballot-box is our only hope for its suppression.

3. No patriotic citizen can absolve himself from his obligation, as such to cast his vote against this traffic.

4. This cannot be done while acting with existing political parties.

The dramshop system is the life of both. They dare not speak one word in favor of prohibitory legislation. On the other hand, they are pledged to support and perpetuate the License System.

5. Hence, as a necessary sequence of these acknowledged truths, it is obligatory on all good citizens, to withdraw their support from rum and license parties, and, by uniting in separate, independent political action, seek the overthrow of the rum power.

It is perfect folly to prosecute reform measures by those who are opposed to reform. Prohibition in any shape can never be carried to a successful issue except by a prohibition party.

It must have a party pledged to back it, as well as to vote for it.

This is not theory, but experience. We have tried for years to obtain temperance legislation in existing parties, and tried in vain. Do we not know that there is no hope from a divided party, one wing representing license, and the other prohibition, and hence it cannot decide for either? It can neither pronounce for the life nor for the death of the dramshop system. Its opposing forces neutralize each other so that it can adopt no policy, execute no laws, nor make any issue on this question. Have we not learned that any party, not openly opposed to this traffic, will compete for the liquor vote, court the favor of the criminal classes, barter the public morals, the purity of the ballot, and every object of good government for party success?

This corrupt competition must be co-existent with the life and political power of the traffic. Hence, an issue with it is the only remedy, and no such issue can be made without independent political action.

Hence the organization of an independent political party is an inevitable necessity, whose object is the extinction of the entire dramshop system, both National and State. God and humanity calls us to follow no longer the dicta of political demagogs, issued from the abodes of rum and blasphemy.

In the name of bleeding virtue, and rum-blighted character, and in the sight of heaven, let us declare our emancipation from rum-party despots, and henceforth know no master but Jesus Christ, no political creed but universal right, no aim but justice.

Let every Christian, every true patriot, every philanthropist, casting aside all political bankrupts, organize speedy victory for total prohibition. Let the work of organization begin immediately, and to this end let the following pledge be circulated and names secured as fast as possible, and send them in to the office of the RESCUE.

VOTING PLEDGE.

We, the undersigned, desiring to free our State from the demoralizing influence of the dramshop, do hereby unite with our fellow-citizens for the purpose of electing candidates to office, who are opposed to the dram-shop, and to political corruption and bribery at elections. And we hereby pledge ourselves to vote only for such candidates.

Let us have votes, and send our petitions to the Legislature on boots instead of on paper, and victory is ours.

The formation of this new party need not consume much time, nor require much skill. It can be done at once, and done by any body. There needs only the will and the courage.

Let every township band together by the above pledge. Let a few resolute men issue a call for a county convention, and at said convention, whether attended by more or less, proceed to nominate county officers, members of the legislature, and make such other arrangements by way of procuring tickets and canvassing the field as any other party would make.

In this way a Prohibition party and ticket comes into existence with sufficient formality, and in season to answer all purposes. It can be done in one week. Where the people are ripe for action they can and will act, both instantaneously and simultaneously.

Let us agitate! agitate! organize! organize! and fight it out on this line till we win the day.

TEMPERANCE PAPERS.

A great many temperance people when asked to take a temperance paper appear surprised and ask "what use can it be to me, I never drink; others who are not teetotalers say, "why, I never get drunk or I only take a little occasionally," And there are respectable and well balanced excellent people in all other respects who are so silly as to resent the offer of a temperance paper either gratituitously or as a subscriber, thinking such an offer implies a hint that they are drunkards or in great danger of becoming so.

It is somewhat singular that this idea is peculiar to the taking of a temperance paper and no other. If a republican is asked to take a paper in the interest of his party, he never gets mad and asks if you take him to be a Democrat. If a Methodist is asked to take the organ of his church, it never occurs to him to deny all allegiance to the Pope and tell you he gets all the reading he wants in the N. Y. Tribune and the Police Gazette. No, he is not insulted at all. And people are not afraid of approaching a well known Democrat with a copy of the Examiner and a receipt book in the other hand. It is a wonder too, is it not? that he should not get his back up, and tell you to carry the Examiner to the employees of the Mint who need it more than he does.

Yes, the Adventists, the Catholics, the Jews, the Greenbackers, the Spiritualists, the Infidels, the politicians the doctors and the dentists all think somehow that a paper devoted to their special interest is about what they want; but when the same classes and the same people take an interest in the temperance cause, even a very active interest, most of them wonder what use a temperance paper can be to them. Yet those numerous exceptions who do take a temperance paper for one year, as a general thing continue to do so right along and they alone render the life of a temperance paper beyond two months possible.

Nothing however is strange in the range of all that pertains to the temperance reform, except its success in spite of all the obstacles placed in its way and the smallness of its force. But like Gideon's little army of only three hundred, it has always had a very powerful auxiliary, the "sword of the Lord" has always been with it.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM. A vote of thanks and respectful appreciation should be tendered to the Officers who have issued the following circular Orders. The employees of our respected and generous government should be obliged to observe a strictly decorous behavior. Now it would be in order for gentlemen on the outside not to smoke or misbehave when they go into the custom house and postoffice.

(Issued January 6, 1881.)

To the Surveyor of the Port:

"The Regulations of the Treasury Department require that officers of the Customs conduct themselves while on duty with decorum and in a manner which will not reflect discredit on the service.

I have been informed that sometimes Inspectors and others connected with the customs service, are in the habit of visiting saloons and tippling-houses during the hours they are on duty.

Such practice is certainly not in accord with the spirit and interest of the Treasury Regulations and is calculated to reflect discredit on the service. I have therefore to request that you issue an order to the effect that Customs Officers are required while on duty to demean themselves with proper decorum and to refrain from visiting saloons and tippling-houses, and that violation of said order will be considered cause of removal."

(Signed) E. L. SULLIVAN, Collector.

CUSTOM HOUSE, San Francisco, Cal.
Surveyors Office, June 25, 1881.

"All officers under the direction and superintendence of this office are hereby prohibited from smoking while engaged in the examination of passengers baggage, or in any of the work incident to the landing of immigrants and passengers from foreign ports."

"Day Inspectors are prohibited from smoking while directly engaged in the work of discharging cargoes. Attention is especially called to the fact that the Pacific Mail Company does not allow smoking on its dock at any time. Officers must strictly observe this regulation of the Company."

(Signed) J. M. MORTON, Surveyor.

CUSTOM HOUSE, San Francisco, Cal.
Collectors Office June 25, 1881

PROHIBITION OF SMOKING DURING OFFICE HOURS.

The practice of smoking by Customs employees during office hours and while on duty at their respective desks being contrary to the general tenor of the Treasury Regulations and unbusiness-like will be discontinued.

Heads of Divisions will see to it that this order is complied with in their respective divisions.

(Signed) E. L. SULLIVAN, Collector.

A PATHETIC scene was witnessed in Brooklyn in a tenement house, on July 19th. A policeman entered the rooms of a family and found six ragged children there, while the father and mother lay on the floor in a state of intoxication. The eldest boy was walking about the room with a baby in his arms. He said that it was asleep, but the policeman found, on taking it up, that it was dead. "'Tain't dead," said the boy. "I know it's 'sleep 'cause I sung it to sleep." When the lad discovered that the child was really dead, he sat down in one corner and wept. The father and mother recovered slowly from their stupor, and seemed unaffected when told that their child was dead. Facts such as these, and they are numerous, should convince all Christians that their place is in the ranks of those who are laboring to resist this soul-destroying traffic—"Christian Herald."

That seems reasonable, but some people in California think they can do more service, barking the temperance people down and calling them slanderers and fanatics.

The Bulletin says that French statistics show that there are over 100,000 insane people in France against 94,000 in 1869, making now one of every 400 of the population. It should be remembered that in 1869 France had Alsace and Loraine, and her insane were then one of every 404. Now they are one of every 370, allowing the population to be 37 millions against 38 millions in 1869. Which is a very alarming increase of insanity for a country that possesses every possible element of prosperity, but which is going to the dogs with its wine, which makes an annual increase in the use of whisky, brandy, absinth, beer, opium, etc., and which is fast reducing a splendid nation to beggary and depravity.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE. There is an excellent chance now to obtain a great variety of most useful and excellent literature from the American Book Exchange at prices a mere fraction of the old fashioned standards. A young lady of San Francisco has earned her premium of a Library of Universal Knowledge a splendid work of 15 volumes in good print and shape every way. That is one of the most useful books a Lodge could get to start a library, for it is a library of itself and every Lodge, and Society of whatever name should have one. Our Order should be an educator, but first thing we must educate ourselves if we would be useful.

THE Monitor proposes to twist the nose of the Cal. Christian Advocate. Serve him right; what business has an American and a Methodist at that, to open his head in this free country? Pity there is no inquisition to take care of such fellows.

TOBACCO.

In a recent visit to the country I heard a young lady exclaim, "why, it is the dullest place I ever saw; no young gentlemen at all, I have not even smelt a cigar in the locality!" What a delightful place it must be, I answered; I mean, with the absence of cigars, not young gentlemen,—I wonder if it is proper to call cigar smokers gentlemen?

Let us stay right here where there are no cigars, and let our nerves recover for we believe that most nervous troubles are occasioned directly or indirectly thru tobacco; boys and girls break down and the physician says it is too much study; but take away tobacco from all the students—first hand or second hand—the same, smokers or smellers, and there would not be half the complaint of headaches and over study.

And while I am on the pathological side of this question let me add that I believe that most neuralgia and rheumatism is occasioned by the fumes of tobacco that everybody is obliged to inhale from its universal use; its indulgence ought to be proscribed by law, for pure people should be permitted the use of pure air.

I heard a woman say not long since that she really enjoyed to sit on the front seat of the car dummy with her husband smoking; he enjoyed it so; and I thot of the delicate women, children and clean men to windward, suffering from the effects; such remarks do not indicate to me love or tenderness, but indecorous sensuality that will overlook wrong even in a husband.

A friend suggests that the young ladies form a society not accepting the attentions of any man who smokes—God-speed to such a society; it would do more good than all the other fraternities that have existed since the days of Solomon.

BETH.

CHRISTIANITY.

It is a fact that christianity thus far has been an utter failure in producing a virtuous or respectable condition of society—except in a few scattered localities where it has been a success.

A few churches and other improving organizations meeting together, and doing mission and charitable work, training good people and planting seeds of virtue and goodness here and there; a good school system; a large number of benevolent and protective associations; a Y. M. C. A.; a boys and girls Aid Society; organizations for the protection of animals, for the prevention of cruelty to the children of the victims of the grogshops; all these grandly excellent institutions and all the other good things which we have, with all the virtuous and happy homes and families and individuals—do not by any means constitute a virtuous or respectable condition of society—so long as over against them stand four or five thousand temples of satan, chartered by the votes of ministers, christians, temperance professors and all other classes of citizens equally, and invested with full power to violate all the commandments of Divine and of human law, to blaspheme God, to keep aloft the black flag of satan, to train the children of the Sabbath and week-day school in lessons of villainy and crime—and then a system of burlesque reformatories, penal tortures, jails, police courts, prisons, penitentiaries, asylums and hospitals to cure the wounds, guard the victims and bury the slain of the devil's grogshop, which we license and protect and support at the ballot box.

In the christian civilizations everywhere, there is a worse condition of crime and bloody cruelty than anywhere else in the world: but in no case is it in the least degree the effect of christianity or of any defect in the christian system. It is altogether due to the criminal recklessness of the people who are trained under the shadow of the church steeple, in our public schools and in our homes, and to their ignorance or blindness to the fact that the wine cup and the beer keg, everywhere and under all circumstances, are the insignia of the most depraved and most criminal and most soul-destroying worship of satan.

Possibly some people who dont like to hear the truth spoken, dont want to hear these things more than once in a series of years, and then very secretly: but the RESCUE shall for some time to come, try to drive home this nail into the consciences of its readers, that he or she who tolerates the beer or wine cup under any conceivable circumstances, may no longer do so in ignorance or innocence of the enormity of the evil influences which their pernicious example exerts upon society.

In Vineland, N. J., in many districts of Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, and in other states; in Bessbrook, Ireland, in Saltaire, and in some hundreds of other places in England and America, where the grogshop has not been permitted to enter or has been stamped out;—in all these places altho they are surrounded by the neighboring evil influences of the leprosy of rum and in their intercourse with strangers and neighbors are constantly subjected to their contaminating tendencies—the christian system is good enough, and produces a moral, social and religious condition eminently satisfactory: crime, rowdyism, hoodlumism, violence, pauperism, debauchery and moral filthiness of every description disappears entirely from sight: the church and school and library hold a first place in the affections of the people and the moral and religious element controls and directs public opinion and the management of public affairs.

The finances of the whole population of these places are, as God intended them to be, in a prosperous condition at all times, and peace and happiness reign there undisturbed. Pitcairn's Island is said to have the most completely religious population to be found anywhere; their first and foremost law has always been an absolute prohibition of the use of liquor for any purpose.

The evidences seem to be very clear that the liquor traffic is the cause of all the crime, wrong, poverty, misery of all christian countries. If we had no evidence at all of its doings, and had never seen any of them, a moment's consideration of what it is, what it does, what it tries to do, what is its purpose, ought to convince everyone that it is a fully adequate cause to produce the results attributed to it. We should therefore be up and doing, everyone of us, taking an active part in stripping this monster of its defences and exhibiting it every day in all its hideous and murderous nastiness and merciless cruelty.

This evil tolerated by a people is far more than a match for christianity. It laughs to scorn and with good reason the puny work of churches and all their efforts—puny in the past, puny and feeble in the present, but puny only because of the tolerated exaltation of the image of satan over the worship of the true God, in the national license of the grogshop, the church of satan and the seat of the Beast. The church will be feeble or puny no longer if it will stamp out this monstrous antichrist.

The devil teaches some men to say, "well, if there were no more liquor to be had in the world, there would still be sin left." Yes, we all expect there will and there will be just exactly as much as we and all honest people want, without rum and jail and gallows and madhouse and family hells; probably more than we want by a good deal. Those who would mourn the absence of these sin and misery factories are to be pitied. Perhaps such people have their uses in the world. But it is not a saving or wholesome use.

CAPACITY OF CATHEDRALS AND CHURCES.

In Forbes' "Tourists" the capacity of the larger European churches and cathedrals is given as below; St. Peter's Church, Rome, holds 54,000 people, St. Paul's London, 35,000; St. Sophia's Constantinople, 33,000; the Florence Cathedral, 24,300, St. Petronius, Bologna, 24,000; St. Paul's, Rome, 32,000; St. John Lateran, 22,900; Notre Dame, Paris, 20,000; the Pisa Cathedral, 13,000; St. Stephens's Vienna, 12,400; St Dominico's, Bologna, 11,500; the Cathedral of Vienna, 11,000; St. Mark, Venice, 7,000; the Milan Cathedral, 7,000. These figures, it will be remembered, do not refer to seating capacity.

That is an interesting and useful item to put in your scrapbook.

BEER and Sunstroke.—Cincinnatti where 414 deaths from sunstroke occurred in the last week in July is the headquarters of the brewing interest of the United States: and where of course more deadly polson is used in making beer than in any other place in the world.

THE OTHER SIDE.

"The words are good." "I cannot doubt;"
I took my scissors then to cut them out;
But Mary seized my hand: "Take care," she cried.
"There is a picture on the other side."

I fell to musing. We are too intent
On gaining that to which our minds are bent;
We choose, then fling the fragments far and wide.
But spoil the picture on the other side!

A prize is offered; others seek it too;
But on we press with only self in view;
We gain our point, and pause well satisfied,
But, ah! the picture on the other side.

On this a sound of revelry we hear;
On that, a wail of mourning strikes the ear;
On this, a carriage stands with groom and bride,
A hearse is waiting on the other side.

We call it trash—we tread it roughly down,
The thing which others might have deemed a crown;
An infant's eyes, anointed see the gold
Where we, world-blinded, only brass behold.

We pluck a weed and fling it to the breeze;
A flower of fairest beauty another sees.
We strike a chord with careless smile and jest,
And break a heart string in anothers breast.

Tread soft and softer still as on you go,
With eyes washed clear in love's anointing glow:
Life's page, well finished, turn it, satisfied,
And lo! heaven's picture on the other side.

MEMORIAL NOTICES.—The RESCUE should contain a memorial record of the deaths of members of our order and a fitting memorial notice of the faithful and true who pass away from among us. The news of the death of a well known Good Templar sometimes accidentally reaches this office weeks or months after its occurrence. A set of resolutions on the death of a member of our order, clothed in the same words that have been used a thousand times—without the date or place or cause of death, the name perhaps given as T. P. Smith, affording no clue to the sex, age or standing in the order of the deceased, looks too much like a careless mockery, to appear any longer in the RESCUE. Lodges still continue to send such however, and there is no time to write them a separate letter of explanation everytime as to why they dont appear in the paper. But it is desired that in the event of every death, a memorial notice should be sent giving date and place and cause (if known) of death, age and particulars that are of interest to be preserved, especially the term and manner of service in the lodge or order. These matters should be attended to decently and in good order; it is not fitting to pay our tribute to a beloved sister or brother in a form and words, as it were, cut out of an old newspaper.

THE RESCUE.

We have just read thru that excellent temperance paper, the RESCUE, organ of the Cal. Good Templars and the advocate of morality and religion in general. We are more than ever struck with its excellence, and its common sense, and outspoken utterance. Its present editor, does not forget the young and old, and that variety which is the spice of life. It is convenient in form, printed on first-class paper, and with clear, bold type. It is doubly worth the $2 a year; and we wish that every Lodge and Temperance Organization would energetically work to enlarge its subscription list.

Lompoc Record.

That is almost too complimentary to repeat in the RESCUE, without placing one's modesty at hazard. But it is a pleasure to know that Bro. Webb is not one of those who feels himself personally insulted when the RESCUE condemns the moderate? love of wine.

THE Grand Lodge of Central South Africa sends a complimentary address to Mrs. Hayes "with a suitable rough diamond as a memento." This kindly token of affectionate reverence from that far distance, will surely be prized by Mrs. Hayes as one of the most gratifying compliments ever paid her. It reminds one of the incident of a Scottish farmer who went all the way to London expressly to see and speak to the Duke of Wellington, who said that was the greatest honor he had ever received from any one but his sovereign.

POSTAL CARDS.—You can paste anything you like on a postal card and send it thru the mail: but you ought to paste on a two cent stamp as well on the other side. If you dont the P. M. does and the receiver has to pay for it.

SACRAMENTO DISTRICT LODGE. The Sacramento County District Lodge met in Sacramento on Friday last. The Daily Bee of the 12th and 13th, published the proceedings of the body, from which the following extracts are made:

The Sacramento District Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars met in regular quarterly session at Fireman's Hall at 10 o'clock this morning. There were some fifty delegates present, a majority being ladies. * * *

On taking a recess at 1 P. M., the members of the Lodge marched in a body to H. Fisher's dining rooms, where a splendid collation was partaken of. At 3 P. M. the Lodge again resumed business

During the afternoon session the officers elect were installed by Geo. B Katzenstein. R. W. G. T.

Reports of lodges were had and all found to be in a prosperous and increasing condition. Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Resolved, That we rejoice in the success in other parts of the State of the euforcement of the so-called "Sunday law" (Section 300 of Penal Code). That we recommend each lodge in the jurisdiction of this district to call upon the District Attorney to announce and enforce the law, as he is in duty bound, thruout the county. That the District Secretary be instructed to communicate with the District Attorney and present the action of this District Lodge.

Resolved, That we recognize in the press a powerful auxiliary in our work of reclaiming the fallen and saving others from falling, and that we urge a freer use of this agent by our lodges, and that the lodges within the District be urged to renewed exertions in behalf of our official organ, the RESCUE, and especially W. V. T.'s to canvass their lodges and vicinity for subscribers.

Resolved, That our subordinate lodges be urged to employ, as fully as may be, the circulation of temperance literature as an important adjunct to the work of our order. That any surplus funds in the District Lodge treasury be used in the purchase and distribution of temperance literature thruout the county.

Resolved, That with a view of increasing the efficiency of our Lodges, that the D. D. G. W. C. T. be required to visit each Lodge within the District at least once, in his official capacity, during his term of office.

Resolved, That the District Lodge recommend its subordinates to hold open meetings at least once each month.

Resolved, That we recommend country Lodges to establish free watering places on all our thoroughfares.

It was decided to hold the next District meeting at Folsom during the month of November, the date to be arranged by the Lodge at Folsom.

A resolution of thanks to the local Lodges for the bountiful entertainment given the several representatives while in attendance at the District Lodge meetings was adopted.

After transacting private work of the Order, the Lodge adjourned at 6 P. M.

ENTERTAINMENT LAST EVENING.

Under the auspices of Sacramento District Lodge of Good Templars a free public entertainment was given at the Presbyterian Church last evening. There was an excellent attendance and the proceedings were quite interesting. By request George B. Katzenstein presided. After the opening exercises, an original poem was recited by Rev. A. K. Crawford, of Elk Grove, his reading being marked for distinctness of enunciation, forcibleness and pathos. A musical program followed and a lecture on "Temperance." by Rev. W. C. King, of Wisconsin. At the conclusion of his remarks the audience sang the closing ode and the proceedings terminated. During the evening W. D. Crowe officiated as organist.

STATISTICAL.—There were received and filed in the G. W. S.'s office during one week, ending Saturday last, 115 quarterly returns; 86 lodge deputies' annual reports; 37 recommendations for lodge deputies, and 26 credentials of representatives. There were also received and receipted for, 107 remittances of money, aggregating $1,652.05. There were also made up, and forwarded by mail and express, 73 packages of lodge supplies. These, with the institution returns of six new lodges, and their wants attended to, the general supervision of the grand lecturers, the issuance of D. G. W. C. T.'s commissions, and the usual correspondence and routine work of the office, served to fill up the week and exempt the G. W. S. from ennui.

GRAND LECTURERS.—The Grand Lodge of California has now an unequaled lecture force in the field. During the current month there are eight salaried Grand Lecturers in the employ of the Grand Lodge, viz., Mrs. Emily P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Dr. M. D. Merrick, Col. C. N. Goulding, Hugh R. Hughes, Rev. F. J. Culver, Rev. W. C. King and George Bramall; an array of talent and workers seldom equaled, and never excelled, in any one jurisdiction. The effect of the stirring up by these is quite perceptible at headquarters.

REV. W. C. KING.—This brother, who has just arrived from the State of Wisconsin, from whence he comes highly recommended by the most reliable members of our Order in that State, such as P. R. W. G. T.s Kanouse and Hastings, has accepted employment in the lecture field, and has fired his first gun by the institution of a lodge at Birds Landing, Solano county, with twenty-eight charter members. He is now filling a line of engagements in Stanislaus Co. Give him a cordial welcome.

ABOUT FILLING CREDENTIALS.—Several copies of credentials of Representatives elect to the Grand Lodge were returned by the G. W. S., during the past week, for correction and on account of incompleteness. The W. S. and L. D. should see to it that the initials of Representatives are given and plainly written. Also, in the case of sisters elected they should have the distinguishing prefix of "Miss" or "Mrs.," as the case may be, attached.

PERSONALS.—Bro. Daniel K. Zumwalt, of Visalia, Chairman of the Grand Lodge Finance Committee, called at the G. W. S.'s office this week, as did also Bro. H. S. Graves, D. D. G. W. C. T. for Sutter and Yuba counties.

G. W. C. T. Department.

FERMENTED WINE AT COMMUNION—IS IT DANGEROUS?

Considerable discussion clusters around the question of using fermented wines at the communion table. It seems to me a question of much importance, and hence this article.

The discussion seems to hinge on the question, as what Christ and his disciples did some two thousand years ago. That is, some who discuss it seem to think it all turns upon that question. The question as to two kinds of wine, the one the native juice of the grape, and the other the fermented juice, is involved.

I am not a theologian, and do not undertake to decide the question as to what they really did do in those early days of Christianity. I look at that as really immaterial, so far as we are concerned. I think that we may, indirectly, get at an argument worth considering, and which bears strongly in my mind to support Moses Stewart, and others, who hold that the wine used by Christ and his disciples was unfermented wine; yet if fermented or not, there is an important question for the Christian of to-day to answer, which determines his duty and the duty of the Church of Christ, independently of that.

Does any danger arise to anybody by the use of fermented wine at the communion table? This question settled in the affirmative, determines the duty of the Church, at least in my opinion, in reference to that question. The Church of Christ ought to be the safest place on earth to which to retreat. No one will contend for the right, in the Church, to put a stumbling-block in the way of any human soul. The Church is to save, not to destroy. The sinner turns from his evil ways, and Christians welcome him to the fold of Christ, and advise him to be constant upon the Church and its ordinances, for the purpose of keeping him from returning to his sinful ways. Take a drunkard, who as such, cannot enter the kingdom of heaven. The Christian heart yearns for his reformation and salvation. He is reclaimed from his cups, thru a terrible struggle; still, he has lingering that old appetite, which if aroused is liable to overcome him and cause him to fall. Let him smell or taste intoxicating liquors and he is liable to fall. He must be tenderly guarded, encouraged and kept from danger, until he has gained in bodily health and obtained some growth in grace, to ensure his safety. Is not every word of this true? Can any one of any experience in life doubt it? Now, should we not, as Christians, love that immortal soul and try to save it from ruin? Would Christ, if now on earth, tempt that brother to return to the gutter and go to perdition? Should the Church do less than its Master would do if here? How can a human being who has any of the spirit of our Redeemer, tempt that poor, frail brother back to ruin? Can we, for a moment, suppose that our Master commands us to do what would be dangerous to that new convert? Should the Church defend an ordinance that would destroy that individual, or that would endanger his safety? We must conclude that it should not, for if it should, it would be the duty of Christians to warn that reformed and converted one to stay out of the Church and go into some other organization where he would not be tempted to fall. Now, then, the argument turns on the other question, to wit: Is there any danger to a reformed drunkard in inhaling the fumes of alcohol and tasting it from the wine cup? If we can gather any evidence from the past, it certainly is dangerous. Experience tell us in thunder tones and so plainly that there is no room for doubt. To doubt would show either want of information or poor judgment. Let us leave this just here, and go on to that judgment day of which our Bible tells us.

There comes up to view certain ones burdened with their sins. They stand in judgment, before a just God. They acknowledge all. Tell the whole truth plainly and unreservedly and it runs thus:

"I was born in a land of Bibles, and Sunday-schools and Christian churches. I was there taut my duty to you, my father, and my fellow-man. My mother took me in early life, to the church, and impressed upon my tender mind that I should love it, connect myself with it for in it I would be safe. Years rolled by, and I mixed with the world and fell into the customs of my day. Before I was aware, I had become a drunkard. I bethot myself of my mother's instructions, and went to my Savior in prayer. It was a terrible struggle. I, however, gained sobriety and felt my load of sin slide from my shoulders thru forgiveness. I at once fled to the church as my refuge from the temptations of society and a sinful world. I loved the church—I had faith in it, and all I found there. I had high hopes of life and a future happiness. To be sure I was weak in body and mind, for I was only a few weeks from the gutter. Yet the future looked so bright and I was welcomed so cordially that it seemed really a fore taste of heaven itself. I thot it the gate-way at least. Communion day came and I looked forward to it as a day on which my heart would go out in gratitude to him, who bot my redemption with a great price. It was my first communion-Sabbath. Flowers decked the church, and solemn prayers were said and hymns were sung by sweet voices. It was the first time since my reform, that I had tasted, or even come within the smell of intoxicating liquors, for I realized my weakness and had kept away from drinking places. I took the cup—its fumes were inhaled—my brain whirled; and with convulsive grasp I emptied its contents into a stomach that had become my master. I never saw a sober day thereafter. Here I am. I stumbled into this torment over that church ordinance."

To whom will a just God charge that fall? Please pray over it my good Christian brothers and then judge you. For Christ and his diciples I enter a plea of "not guilty."

TEMPERANCE READING ROOM.

The W. C. T. U. had a dedicatory opening of their new reading room at 631 Sacramento St. on Tuesday evening. Rev. Dr. Noble presided. After the opening prayer by Rev. M. C. Briggs, the president made a very brief statement of the methods by which the reading room had been set in operation, and returned thanks to all who had contributed to its success, including the Chronicle, Examiner, Bulletin, Call, Occident, Advocate and Pacific, who had furnished their papers gratuitously.

Rev. Mr. Fisk stated and highly commended the objects and purposes of the new enterprise. He believed that a young stranger, coming to live in San Francisco would find the reading room and the temperance restaurant in the adjoining apartment, an inestimable blessing and a shield against the glaring temptations of the city. Paid a deserved compliment to the ladies who had made the undertaking a success, and declared that the women of the Christian gospel are the pioneers and teachers in leading humanity upward and heavenward.

Rev. Mr. Ijams was called, but had left. The editor of the RESCUE being next invited, referred to reasons why so many people, intelligent on most other subjects, persisted in being hopelessly ignorant on all matters relating to the temperance reform, and to the nature and effects of wine and its companion poisons. The new addition to the benevolent, uplifting and Christianizing agencies of this city, proposing to dispense the information so much needed and of such vital importance to our people, was entitled to the Godspeed of all the friends of humanity; and the ministering angels, to whose devotion to the Master's service and example this enterprise is due, were entitled to our reverent regard.

Judge Thompson gave prominence to the fact of the importance of this movement, as its purpose is to combat an evil which causes the great majority of the sin, sorrow, misery and untimely death that afflict the earth, and called upon the ladies to be more urgent in preventing than in reforming the erring; but earnestly besought them if there are any ministers within their ken who are not setting an example of temperance to the young, to organize a praying band and visit them once a month till they are converted. He deemed however that but a very few of the ministers of the city would need any such interest in their behalf.

Dr. Briggs spoke of the remarkable carelessness of so many business and literary men in failing to acquire any intelligent comprehension of the wine interest and the questions involved in the temperance reform. He said that the men who gave the aid and countenance of the state to the wine and brandy business would never have done so, had they not neglected to acquire accurate information upon the subject. They had made a mistake which will lead to loss and disaster, just in proportion to the extent their action promotes the desecration of the vineyard. The Rev. speaker endorsed and approved very highly the movement to furnish information of the nature proposed by the W. C. T. U., and heartily eulogized also the movement in progress to make the children of all the public schools compete for prizes for essays, whose preparation will teach them valuable temperance lessons and make them more intelligent upon these matters than the present generation.

After the closing song and benediction by the President, the assembly adjourned to the coffee room, and were there regaled with good things, the best of which was the song, "Sleeper, awake," most sweetly and artistically and delightfully rendered by Mr. W. H. Tobey and family. They are frequently present at such gatherings, and they always cheerfully and obligingly furnish the intellectual "strawberries and cream and choice sweets" of the occasion. It is hoped that the unspoken kindly wishes and blessings which silently go forth to them contrive some way to yield them a return of the happy feeling which they have the faculty of distributing among the multitude.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

NO GROGSHOP.

Franklin, Delaware county, N. Y. is a beautiful village of clean, white, lovely dwellings, situated in one of the valleys of the Susquehana, five miles from its railway.

A few years ago the town of Franklyn had three distilleries in full blast, and almost every man was in the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors, more or less moderately drunkards were abundant. Each year the town sent from ten to fifteen paupers to the county poor house, and many of the houses were left in a dilapidated condition. Now, however, there is not a distillery or dram shop in the town, nor a pauper to be supported, and only four drunkards yet to be disposed of. The people are happy, the dwellings are patterns of neatness—not a dilapidated one in the village of Franklyn—and the entire tax of town, county and state is only 75 cents on $100, while the taxes of other towns in the county range from 99 to 150 cents on $100.

Do you ask what has wrought this great change? I answer: For eight years they have elected "No License" commissioners, and the town is free from the curse of the infernal drink, Truly yours.

ELI JOHNSON. Brooklyn.

Eli Johnson is an eminent temperance worker in Brooklyn who devotes a good deal of his time to the cause. His wife is also a very earnest and useful advocate of temperance, one of the noble women of the land.

No grogshop tells the same story everywhere; no ragged, shoeless, starving children; no sorrowing, weeping, trembling, suffering mothers in constant terror of the father of her children coming home, maddened into a brutal fiend by the saloonkeeper's poison which the grogshop has enticed him to swallow.

But wherever the grogshop is allowed to send forth its pestiferous poison breath, crime, sorrow, miseries, tears, agonies, woes, plague and death is the sure consequence. And the innocent and helpless who never go near the accursed slimepit of filth which is called saloon or bar or sampleroom or whisky grocery, are by far the greatest sufferers.

There must surely be a terrible future in store for the cruel, hard-hearted monsters who, in place of working honestly for a living prefer to rob every other person's family if they can, of the children's bread and milk and clothes and schoolbooks, whose business keeps about five thousand people constantly in jail in this state and murders nearly if not quite as many as that every year. And all the evil is caused by people not having the courage and principle to vote it down.

WHAT ONE GLASS OF WINE DID.

The last Duke of Orleans, heir to the throne of France, setting out from Paris one morning, had taken just one glass of wine more than he could master, fell from his carriage, and his head striking the pavement, he was carried into a beershop and died there. He was not a drunkard, nor a fast man, but that glass of wine murdered him. A well dressed and respectable young lady took one glass of wine more than she could master lately at the depot in Gilroy or somewhere near it where the train passengers took dinner. Coming out she found she had one glass too much. She made a lurch, her baby fell from her arms one way and she fell the other and cut a gash in her face. The train went and the hackmen left her, not caring to have anything to do with a woman in that condition. Fortunately a Good Templar was at hand, who had her cared for at a hotel and saved her from robbery or illtreatment. That was probably a very good woman, but that abominable poison which she drank placed her in great danger, and made her a sad spectacle.

Many a thousand crimes and accidents have been caused by one glass of wine; the first one is the one that does all the mischief every time.

WHAT IT COSTS.

A gentleman was walking in Regent's Park, in London, and he met a man whose only home was in the poor-house. He had come out to take the air and excited the gentleman's interested attention.

"Well, my friend," said the gentleman, getting into conversation, "It is a pity that a man like you should be situated just as you are. Now, may I ask how old you are?"

The man said that he was eighty years of age.

"Had you a trade before you became penniless?"

"Yes, I was a carpenter."

"Did you use intoxicating drink?"

"No, oh! no; I only took my beer; never anything stronger; nothing but my beer."

"How much did your beer come to a day?"

"Oh! a sixpence a day, I suppose."

"For how long a time?"

"Well, I suppose for sixty years."

The gentleman had taken out his note-book, and he continued figuring with his pencil while he went on talking with the man.

"Now, let me tell you," said he as he finished his calculations, "how much that beer cost you, my man. You can go over the figures yourself." And the gentleman demonstrated that the money, a sixpence a day for sixty years, expended in beer, would, if it had been saved and placed at interest, have yielded him nearly eight hundred dollars a year, or an income of fifteen dollars a week for self-support.

"Let me tell you how much one gallon of whisky cost," said a judge after telling a case: "One gallon of whisky made two men murderers; it made two wives widows; and it made eight childrens orphans.'

TIM'S KIT.

It surprised the shiners and news-boys around the Merchant's Exchange the other day to see "Limpy Tim" come among them in a quiet way, and to hear him say:

"Boys, I want to sell my kit, Here's two brushes, a hull box of blacking, a good stout box, and the outfit goes for two bits?"

"Goin' away, Tim?" queried one.

"Not zactly, boys, but I want a quarter the awfullest kind, just now."

"Goin on a 'scursion?" asked another.

"Not to-day, but I must have a quarter," he answered.

One of the lads passed over the change and took the kit, and Tim walked strait to the counting-room of a daily paper, put down his money and said:

"Iguess I kin write it if you give me a pencil."

With slow moving fingers he wrote a death notice. It went into the paper almost as he wrote it, but you might not have seen it. He wrote:

Died Litul Ted- of scarlet fever; aiged three yeres. Funeral to-morrow; goin up to Hevin. Left one bruther.

"Was it your brother?" asked the cashier.

Tim tried to brace up, but he couldn't. The big tears came up, his chin quivered, and he pointed to the notice on the counter and gasped:

"I—I had to sell my kit to do it, b—but he had his arms aroun' my neck when he died!"

He hurried away home, but the news went to the boys, and they gathered in a group and talked. Tim had not been home an hour before a bare-footed boy left the kit on the door-step, and in the box was a boquet of flowers, which had been purchased in the market with money contributed by the crowd of ragged but big-hearted urchins. Did God ever make heart which would not respond if the right chord was touched?—Sel.

BRO. D. O, Raynor is reelected W. C. T. of Crystal Lodge South San Francisco, which is a promise of a successful quarter.

TO MY DOG "BLANCO."

BY J. G. HOLLAND.

My dear, dumb friend, low lying there
A willing vassal at my feet,
Glad partner of my home and fare,
My shadow in the street,

I look into your great brown eyes,
Where love and loyal homage shine,
And wonder where the difference lies
Between your soul and mine!

For all of good that I have found
Within myself of human kind
Hath royally informed and crowned
Your gentle heart and mind.

I scan the whole broad earth around
For that one heart which, leal and true,
Bears friendship without end or bound,
And find the prize in you.

I trust you as I trust the stars;
Nor cruel loss, nor scoff of pride,
Nor beggary, nor dungeon-bars,
Can move you from my side!

As patient under injury
As any Christian saint of old,
As gentle as a lamb with me,
But with your brothers bold:

More playful than a frolic boy,
More watchful than a sentinel,
By day and night your constant joy
To guard and please me well.

I clasp your head upon my breast—
The while you whine and lick my hand
And thus our friendship is confessed,
And thus we understand.

Ah, Blanco! did I worship God
As truly as you worship me, w where my Master trod
our humility;

Did I sit fondly at his feet,
As you, dear Blanco, sit at mine,
And watch him with a love as sweet,
My life would grow divine.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 10.

TEACHERS' HELPS.

BY JULIA COLMAN.

All the books, cards, papers etc, used in the school may bo called "helps" to the teacher. If any one doubts the propriety of this classification, let him imagine the Arabic teacher writing with his finger in the sand, and he will conclude that even the children's lesson books are helps to the teacher.

The lesson book used in our school was the "catechism on alcohol." There is no reason why this should not have been called the "temperance catechism" only that the name had already been appropriated by a work previously published. This previous work not proving sufficiently simple and explicit, another was prepared at the request of the publisher which was christened "the catechism on alcohol." It has been very successful, meeting with large sales, and it is to day the catechism most in use in our temperance schools, because it explains, what the people most need to know, the nature and effects of alcohol. It contains also some scripture responsive exercises which greatly aid its usefulness. It is published by the National Temperance Society at five cents each or 60 cents per doz.

But the need for other books was so keenly felt that notes on our lessons were preserved which when enlarged made what is now known as the Juvenile Temperance Manual. This divides the sections in the catechism into lessons, thirty-one in all, and gives explanations, comments, stories, experiments, facts, blackboard exercises and object lessons, suitable for each, with a variety of facts and illustrations from which the teacher can choose in his exposition of the lesson. Many a superintendent has found it an indispensible help in the midst of a life too busy to study all these things out for himself. Many a man and many a woman seeing the help he could get out of this book has started a temperance school and succeeded with it. It is also used for its illustrations by speakers, writers and other temperance students. (price cloth 60 cents, paper 25 cents.)

Of conrse good superintendents want all the help they can get from other sources, and one of the best is "Alcohol, its Nature and Effects by Dr. Charles Story. "The style is that of the lecture, and the facts are of sterling value, perfectly reliable. It is invaluable to the temperance worker in every department. (price 90 cents.)

Two other works more recently prepared as Text Books Dr, Richardson's "Temperance Lesson-book" (50 cents,) and "Alcohol and Hygiene" (60 cents,) might also be used as helps by the superintendent, but he can find better use for them by putting them into the hands of his older scholars in advanced classes, corresponding to the Sunday-school bible classes. He will find them a very great help in winning and retaining the boys and girls who are beginning to feel the dignity of growth. Most teachers recognize the ticklish time when young people begin to resent being called "children', and expect that some notice will be taken of their altitude. It has a particularly soothing effect just at this period to put them into a class by themselves with a text book that is not a catechism. It is well worth while to take special pains with young people at this period, for they will soon come to be specially tempted socially. At this period too the Sunday-school is apt to lose its hold upon them, and it is worth the efforts of the best teacher that can be found to go into such a class, and build it up. Rightly taught and trained just now, they may make splendid temperance workers. Neglected they may be lost, not only to the cause but to society.

The smallest ones are too young to understand the catechism: though it is perhaps even more understandable than the church catechism which they learn; we prefer to give them stories. We will suppose these little people arranged in the infant class room: just as they are in Sunday-school with a teacher who loves little children, and is willing to take pains for them. The blackboard can be used for them to good advantage, if the teacher can handle the blackboard, but there is another thing she can most certainly do, she can use tracts. We will suppose that she is supplied with a file case set of the childrens tracts, 100 numbers, one of each in the little folio with a rubber ring in which she carefully preserves them, (price 25 cents.)

These she looks over carefully until she has found one from which she can teach a good moral, a story being preferable usually. She has procured enough of that number to give one to eaeh child; she reads a little to get the children interested, and then gives them each a copy to take home, telling them to read it or get some one to read it to them, for she expects them to tell her all about it at the next meeting. This not only teaches the child but gets temperance reading into the family, and gives a good illustration of systematic tract distribution. Tracts may also be distributed to all the school as indicated at the close of each chapter in the Manual.

San Diego, Aug. 6th, 1881.

The Band of Hope of this city is under the charge of Sister H B Rice of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 263, and a very efficient manager she is. A very brilliant entertainment was given a few evenings since, at Hortons hall in this city by this Band, which netted over $50 to its treasury: so you can see it was a success. I give the cast so that due credit may be given to all these valiant young workers in the cause.

A Brewers' convention was held at Versailles last month with a view of improving the native production and contending successfully with English and german brewers. It was decided to petition the Government to reduce the duties on malt and hops. There are now about 40,000 brewers in Europe who produce annually 2,244,000,000 gallons of which 785,000,000 are made in Great Britain, 319,000,000 in Prussia, 262,000,000 in Bavaria, 246,000,000 in Austria, 155,000,000 in Erance and 26,000,000, in Russia. The largest consumption of beer is in Bavaria, where the annual average is 71 gallons, in Belgium 39, in England 37, in Prussia 25, in Scotland 12, in Ireland 11, in Holland 10, in Austria 8, in France 5½ and in Russia ½ gallon per head.

Correspondence.

POLITICAL.

Cambria Cal, Aug, 1st 1881.

The people of the State—the politicians more particularly are waking up to the prospect of an election this fall, and are asking "What shall we fight about!" What issue can we make? how can we hoodwink the people. Time and again have the people been told that "these are perilous times;" that "The most important issue ever before the people was involved in this campaign," and that to neglect to vote for our party would bring ruin to the state or nation." This oft repeated proclamation it is hoped has grown stale and lost its force, so that the temperance people may have an opportunity to look at their own interests and the cause of temperance. This cause which involves so much of good to man has uniformly been lost sight of in the clamor of politicians.

The greatest evil should take precedence as a matter of paramount issue, with the voters: if the liquor license policy of the state is not the greatest evil, and its suppression or repeal of the most momentous consequence, let temperance people hold their peace,

But we believe that the people are tired of maintaining this great evil and would like a change, and could a prohibition Party convention be held, which would receive half the attention it deserved, it would be recognized for its merits—or rather for the merits of its cause. This is not so much the question of "heaviest battalions" as a question of right: the right will prevail."

Let a three or four days convention be held at a suitable time with a suitable program and the liquor licensing policy of the state be presented to the people in its true light, and perhaps a prepared bill for its repeal and a bill for its prohibition be set forth and the merits of the bills be the merit of the party. The people should be made to see their own guilt in their silence—their political silence in this greatest sin against humanity, and against their covenant obligations as Good Templars, as christians and good citizens and tax payers.

Let the banners be "Down with the liquor curse"—"Repeal of Liquor License Laws"—and legal suppression of the liquor traffic. Let us march under these awhile and give the devil a rest; let his banners go in for repairs: they are old and have done much service.

It is the prerogative of the people to overrule this evil, and the duty of the individual voter to make his own record on this most important of all questions, just as he would have it, either for or against liquor license.

If the drunkard shall be urged to immediate reform—to individual, personal reform, without any "tapering-off" policy, why should not the drunkard—making voter reform his bad habit of giving his political power persistently to the licensing policy of the State. and "cease immediately to do evil and learn to do well?" Can any voter excuse himself for his persistent and headstrong habit and practice of giving his silent acquiescence and support to this ruinous state policy? It matters not to any one who else shall or shall not be a supporter of license, no individual can justify himself in his practical advocacy of this heinous evil; it is a personal question and stamps immorality on the very character of the voter, when it should be "Holiness unto the Lord." If thou doest well shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well sin lieth at thy door."

The moral crime—the huge moral crime now rests with "Wethepeopleofthestateetc." The silence of the ballot is just as effective support as any active support, and the traffic asks for just that kind of aid: it asks to be let alone; and its great labor is to enforce silence upon Good Templars. The Prohibition Party has a wonderful moral revolution before it, and

> "Humanity with all its fears
> With all its hopes of future years
> Is hanging breathless on its fate."

John Woods.

San Diego, Aug, 7, 1881.

The temperance standard here holds its own well, as the town grows, however, the rum influence seeks to extend. New men come in, adventurers who desire to make money without work: several new liquor establishments have started. National city, where it was believed a temperance citadel would have been held, has now several saloons. The saloons here have not heeded the warning given them by Golden Rule Lodge recently as to Sunday traffic, and a committee of three has been appointed to see the district attorney and make the necessary complaints against the offenders. I learn that the liquor men have combined to make a fight, but we have no fears of the result; the law is settled and must be obeyed.

It seems to us here that the squabbles and smash-ups in which parties in San Francisco and other parts of the state are indulging and likely to indulge are all propitious to the temperance cause: that we can carry this state and elect our candidate for governor at the next election.

I like the way Bro. G W Fitch talks in the Rescue Our temperance folks must be practical. They should go in to win something substantial for our cause, such as the election of a temperance governor, that will strengthen our cause amazingly and make it a permanent and popular idea. From the record made by the late legislature the Democrats think they have a sure thing on the state for the next election. The consequence will be they will be over sanguine and greedy, and will fall to pieces in quarrels over the division of the spoils before they get them. We have something else in view than spoils; we have living issues to present to the people. Our campaign is made in the direct interest of the people, of happy homes. Let us handle our forces wisely and our column will be invincible.

H.

SALINAS.

The Rev. J. C. Simmons of San Francisco delivered a very able temperance lecture in Salinas on the 7th which is to be published very shortly, The Pacific Methodist has a short notice of it by the Rev. W. M. Winters of Salinas which closes thus.

"Temperance is looked upon as an old hackneyed theme, but the speaker on this occasion, treated the subject in a new and interesting style. The first part of his lecture was in the form of allegory, in which our brother saw our government investing men with authority to sell whisky; authorizing them to go forth working untold evils; filling the land wfth crime and bloodshed; while standing behind them with mighty armies, armed with all the implements of war—bristling bayonets, flashing swords and deep-mouthed canons, to defend and protect them in their work of death; and still worse, he saw, and correctly too, in his waking dream, the thousands of Christian men going to the polls, and voting for men to make laws that would uphold these whisky men in their diabolical work. We feel that the lecture should be published, and in the hands of every voter in our State."

W. M. Winters.

It is well to keep this question of voting uppermost; and it is pleasant to notice that the audience is always in cheerful sympathy with the proper treatment of that subject. The people want to have a chance to vote right, but the machine politicians wont let them if they can help it.

Grand Lecturers and Other Temperance Speakers.—Grand Lodge approaches. At R. W. G. Lodge the Grand Secretaries hold a meeting each year, and confer with a view to make themselves more efficient workers for the Order and the cause. I suggest that the Grand Lecturers, P. G. Lecturers and all other public speakers in our Order meet for conference and compare notes and exchange opinions and suggestions. And as preachers would do well to ask their hearers for practical and pointed suggestions as to how to reach the hearts, consciences and pockets of the public. I further suggest that we invite all the members of the Order who take an interest in the subject, (and does not that mean everybody) from the G. W. C. T. to the youngest brother and sister to be present and join in the conference. There may be some few matters that could be best talked over by the speakers by themselves, and an hour could be taken for that purpose. Respectfully submitted in F. H. and C. J. W. Webb,

The People.—A remarkably favorite text with the politician is, I am not afraid to trust the people, I have faith in the people, or the people will do the right thing. Now it is in order to hear from the people who are not afraid to trust the politician, who have faith in the politician, or believe the modern politician will ever do the right thing—if he knows it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE WINE INTEREST.

NO. SEVEN.

There is one charge which can never be truthfully made against the advocates of temperance, They have never been known to destroy any mans business without making a better, more honorable and more profitable one open up before him. The destruction of the business of every individual who sold or made liquor in Maine or Kansas, made a better business possible for four or five men in place of it. And any one of those new possibilities was open to the saloonkeeper who wanted to reform and embrace an honorable means of livelihood.

It is so with the argument against wine and brandy making: we warn the vineyard men against making themselves helpless slaves of the glucose wineries and distilleries; against wasting their grapes for $10 a ton as they will soon have to, if no resource is open to them but the wine vat: but all the damage and wrong we propose to do them is to point them to $50 or $60 or more a ton, and that too, in a business as reputable and honorable and happy and healthful and pleasant as the world can show elsewhere.

But to do this requires something more than paper talk, or expressions of opinion. A very great activity has been put forth in the past by a few interested individuals who were anxious to rope in the vineyard men to raise wine grapes, to enrich the big wineries and distilleries and glucose dealers, at the expense of the pauperization and ruin and damnation of the vinegrowers who could be induced to become their dupes. A similar activity exercised by the vinegrowers in a legitimate direction will produce beneficent results, in place of the disasters planned by the speculating operators who have engineered the Viniculturist schemes.

THE C. P. R. R.

We hear of California pears and peaches selling in the East at such fabulous prices as indicate that the great bulk of the people there, are prohibited from ever purchasing more than a rare taste of them. A few years ago the people of Vineland were complaining bitterly that they could not at times get over five cents a pound for their grapes, during the most plenteous state of the market and they were afraid it would get worse. At the same time people here were selling them at $8 to $15 a ton for wine.

If there were only a half dozen carloads a month or year, the R. R. Co, would be justified in charging an extra freight for the extra trouble incurred in their management. But when they can afford to bring certain classes of freight from New York to San Francisco at $25 per ton—when they talk of carrying the wheat crop of this State to Galveston and Liverpool for something like $15 a ton, when we know that freight is customarily $3 a ton from Chicago to New York, nearly one third the distance from here to New York,—we know that the R. R. Co can make large money by carrying 1000 tons of grapes and other fruit a day at 2 or 2½ cents a pound quick freight, and that there would be a ready sale for that amount every day at price which would leave 3 or 4 cents a pound to our grape and fruit growers and for choice qualities much more.

It is of no advantage to the California fruit grower to know that 3 Cal. peaches or pears sell for 25 cents in New York, for all it amounts to is, that the railroad millionaries have made a net profit of nearly $1000 a car load, the speculator who took the risk has made $200 or $300 if he had good luck in preserving his fruit. And one or two fruit growers have got a cent or two a pound for small lots, in place of 500 of them selling one or two tons a piece at good rates every morning of the season.

Of course the railroad managers would much prefer to carry 100 tons of merchandize in a given time for $20,000 net profit, than to carry 500 tons in the same time for the same amount of net profit, even if at the latter rate they were realizing a return of 25 per cent a year upon their capital. It is less trouble for them and they consult the interest of no one else. A reduction in freight upon grapes may foreshadow to them a general reduction upon other merchandize, therefore they are not likely to propose it.

In a very short time, were any reasonable rate of freight offered for fruit hence to the East, we should doubtless arrive at a method of packing and preparing it, so as to insure its arrival in prime condition always: in that case the demand for our grapes in the Eastern market would for a long series of years, keep ahead of our capacity to supply, and thus highly remunerative prices would be maintained.

An important consideration just here is that our fruit sent East will never in the least reduce the capacity of our customers there to purchase from us next year and for twenty or fifty years to come. On the contrary the generous use of our wholesome fruit will be an assurance of their continued health and ability to continue good, paying customers. Not so with the brandy and wine; a large proportion of our present customers or rather consumers of these things, will in a short time be in the poor house, in the gutter, in the penitentiary and our future sales must depend upon the ensnaring of fresh victims to their ruin. There is no denial that can be truthfully made to this: but we do not deny either that some of the customers and consumers of wine and brandy and some of the makers too, will get along pretty soberly, live to a good age and maintain a well deserved reputation thruout for being good hearted, generous, kindly, honest, obliging characters. First rate fellows in every thing but one: one fault or misfortune they certainly have in the matter of drink.

MORE RAILROADS.

A business of transportation which would improve very largely the annual revenues and the actual capital value of every farm and property of this State is of many millions times the importance that the gabble about greenbacks and the cooperation of drunken working men, and the Chinese and communist questionsare, all of which could be settled by the instant prosperity that a prohibitory law would gives us. And a railroad project that would reduce to one third of their present amount the fares and freights paid by the people of the State and thus enormously increase the business and wealth of the people, is a subject well worthy of the most elaborate consideration and discussion.

Evidently the easiest and best solution of all the complicated questions, between the railroads and the people would be the building by our general government of a trunk line from Atlantic to Pacific, We should never want any other regulation of freights and fares, nor any more railroad commissions paid by the people to sell out the people. There can never be a valid objection offered to such a project, that does not apply with equal force to a government postal service, which is an inestimable public advantage and has no objectionable drawbacks.

Our farmers and fruitraisers and our citizenship should actively set this project in motion with a determination to win. And in the meantime every aid and encouragement should be tendered by the State to the pushing of rival lines from Eastern connections to the Pacific. These would help to break down the present enslaving and grinding monopoly, which not only exacts such a merciless tribute from the industries of the State, but which notwithstanding many advantages afforded by it, has kept in force a stringent tyrannical ukase which paralyzes a vast agricultural interest with a 7 cent freight on a 1 cent product. The freight of a ton of paper worth $220 here is $25 from New York. The freight of 1 ton of grapes worth here $20 to $25 is $140 to New York.

The most important financial question that ever came before the fruit raisers of the State is, how can we get our product shipped to the East and be permitted to participate in the profits of its sale.

The President.—The news is very disheartening as regards the President. The physicians have done all which they believed to be the best, but the chances of recovery seem almost hopeless. The christianity of the nation have prayed very earnestly that the life of the President might be spared. There was a national prayer, but no national repentance which proceded or accompanied the prayer. The murder was done by a bullet from the nation's chartered grogshops; a President of the U. S. one of the most honored, beloved and trusted has been stricken down the second time in a few years by the arm of a rum-crazed and depraved and crime-trained desperado of the grogshop. The nation prays but it dont pull down one beer sign, arrest one license, shut up one temple of satan, even on Sunday; and if the life which is trembling in the balance is spared, the last thing on earth to attribute it to, is the prayer of an utterly unrepentant nation whose lips are still full of blasphemy and rebellion and mockery.

These items do not seem to indicate that the M. E. Church has been in a very vigorous decline of late. It has exhibited several symptoms the reverse consumptive. For instance, it has expended $4,413 a day in building over 12 churches every week. It has increased its membership 118 and gained one and a half preachers every day; has added daily 12 Sunday-school teachers and 145 scholars to its already numerous list. It has dropped $2,600 every day into the contribution box for benevolent purposes, and nearly $2,800 for its educational institutions, besides footing a bill every night of $27,794 for regular support of pastors, churches, Sunday-schools and paying off church debts. And then we must imagine a large margin of charitable assistance rendered by the richer to the poorer members, and perhaps fifty times as much to the poor that were not of their flock—of which no record is made on earth; add to this the sums that dead-beats and frauds have swindled them out of, and their full share of all the ordinary taxes and burdens of citizenship; and then, if there was not another Christian Church or organization in the world but the M. E. Church of America, with their capital invested, their numerous army of active workers, their temperance principles and their aggressive, open, positive, declared warfare against every form of sin and wrong and satan, the prospect of Christianity fading out in the world for a long time to come, would be anything but cheering for its enemies.

The experiment of Temperance Hospitals has been given a fair and faithful trial, and the result has been a wondrous decrease in doctors, druggists and undertaker's bills and a great saving of life and health.

Temperance Insurance associations have had a fair, full, impartial trial: the result has proved that temperance prolongs the life of the abstainer in striking contrast with the shortened days of the strictly moderate drinker; and here the doctor's, druggist's, undertaker's and insurance bills are all reduced and health and happiness promoted.

A colony of men build a city over a mine of exhaustless stores of gold and silver: after having brought to the surface enough wealth to enrich a powerful nation, they find that their worship of the winecup has made and kept them paupers all along: and they are rotting in poverty, vice and crime. At the same time a colony of much poorer men went into the wilderness, set up the altar of God and temperance, built the church and school, planted the garden and beautified their homes and their city, and to-day are the best and most prosperous and happy community in the world. Their gold mine was a poor and comparatively sterile soil and a prohibitory law. The business of the doctor, druggist, undertaker, jailor, lawyer, policemen and judge could about all be done by one man there for 11,500 people: And these two opposite experiments have been repeated many times with similar results.

And the law that under the providence of God, produces certain results in the secular affairs of men, doubtless governs the success or failure, the life or death of a church. The M. E. Church has always been a declared foe of the drink antichrist. In the days of universal ignorance of the properties and effects of alcohol, when all men believed it a necessary article of daily food, it declared war against dram-selling and dram-drinking: and as the light of advancing science stripped the mask from the deceiver and exposed its hideous wickedness, the ministers and professors of the M. E. Church have been more numerous and more active and more radical than those of any other church. Be it understood that does not mean that some men of other churches have not been the peers of the brightest and best of them.

And as for the past 4000 years the protecting love of the God of heaven and earth has specially sought out and dwelt with, and visited with choicest blessing those of His servants who have been the pure, undefiled abstainers from the cup that symbols allegiance to satan—as those who drink neither wine nor strong drink have been great in the sight of the Lord—as the rigid temperance of the Rechabites has been visited with such peculiar distinction—so it is fair to believe that the fidelity to the Master exhibited by the M. E. Church, tho lacking in perfect obedience it may have been, in this most important duty of a christian church, has been rewarded with the evidences of God's peculiar favor, and that "it shall not want a man to stand before God forever," will be one of the least of the ample catalog of blessings that are in store for its future.

SHERIDAN, Aug. 9, 1881.

We have 3 saloons or mantraps in our little town of 70 voters: 2 are closed on Sunday, the other runs a rum shop 6 days of the week, and on the seventh puts out a bone, hires a chinaman, starts a smoke in an old cookiug stove and calls his den a restaurant, thus dropping the rum blossom from his own face one day and resuming it the next. This is done to evade the law.

Our Lodge prospers and we are determined to thrust out the tyrant rum that makes our hearthstone cold, our table bare, our children shoeless, our people paupers, criminals and tramps, our wives and mothers brokenhearted. Can it be possible that our great American people have become cowards to see with calmness our laws daily violated by a gang of outlaws who are two lazy to work at any other business than that of sending their fellow men to the ditch and to the drunkards perdition. TEMPLAR.

MARYSVILLE, Aug., 8, 1881.

ED. "RESCUE,"—Enclosed is $16 for a selection of tracts and cheap temperance literature to be sent to our sixteen lodges in this district as samples, and for distribution. Send on also enough circulars and advertisements to go around. We are going to try and interest our Good Templars in this matter, if possible. A free "reading room" and the "Sunday Law," are draining our spare cash now, but I am satisfied that we will be able to supply ourselves with literature and pay our pledge of $50 to the Orphans' Home promptly. District Lodge will meet at Brownsville, Yuba county, on September 30th. Temperance Literature will be agitated as also the "Sunday Law." Our District, since last Grand Lodge has gained three lodges and nearly 400 members. Dr. Merrick is with us and everybody is pleased with him. He will carry our town by storm if it can be done. A very fair audience listened to him last night; to-night the attendance will be better, and by Wednesday night there will not be standing room in the Marysville theater. Marysville Lodge initiated its one hundredth member at its last meeting. Two other lodges of nearly a hundred members in the District.

Why don't San Francisco and Sacramento enforce the "Sunday Law"? everybody asks. Marysville is doing nobly. Deny that the "Sunday Law" is not being enforced here! We have never failed to arrest for a violation of the law, altho justice has sometimes been slow. No case has yet got to a jury. For four months there have been but four open violations, and side door business has been very light. God helping us, we'll "hold the fort." C. COVILLAUD, D. S.

W. C. KING.

Although a stranger to yourself and readers, yet I ask a place among the band of workers for our cause and Order in California, trusting in divine aid to enable me to vindicate my right to the position. The first appointment made by brother Katzenstein for us was at Rio Vista, Solano county and vicinity, commencing August 8th. A good audience greeted us on both evenings of work there, and at Isleton the same on Tuesday evening. On Wednesday we assumed to change his plan, and held a meeting at Birds Landing instead of Isleton. This is a small country place, a couple of shops, one store, and four saloons. At the close of our talk twenty-eight persons gave their names for a lodge, and twenty-two signified their readiness to proceed at once with the work, which was done.

On Tuesday evening fifteen names were secured at Egbert's school-house for a lodge, but local matters made it seem best to postpone organization a few days. They are in earnest, and will soon be at work. On Friday we were permitted to meet with the County Lodge in Sacramento and take part in the exercises of the evening. On Saturday we turned our face toward Stanislaus county, and met the people of Modesto on Saturday evening, and three times on the Sabbath. The cause here has been injured by temperance tramps beyond all calculation. How sad that so righteous a cause must suffer so sadly at the hands of professed friends. Hoping to have more to report anon. Fraternally and truly,

W. C. KING.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

Sonoma county District Lodge will meet at Santa Rosa September 8th; Butte county D. L. at Dayton September 17th.

Colusa D, L. meets in Colusa city Sept. 2 and 3. Tuolumne D. L. in Columbia Sept. 10th.

BRO. WEBB, writing from Hueneme says, "I am glad to say another noble worker in the good cause is coming out. Sister Mary Guthrie. She volunteered a public address at this place last Saturday night, had a good audience and did well. There is a great need of labor in this field; it is very gratifying to find so willing and promising a local speaker, and that she is so well received. The lodge is doing well."

THE NEW HOUSE AND ITS BATTLEMENTS.—This is the title of the address by Joseph Cook before the British Temperance League. It was republished in the RESCUE of June 9th and 16th. It is now issued in a handsome pamphlet of 23 pages by the National Temperance Society and for sale at ten cents per copy. Anything written by Joseph Cook may be trusted; and this is one of his best helps to the cause of virtue and morality. It should be circulated everywhere.

Subscribers this week:—Geyserville, 1; Tulare city, (Mrs Moore 9; Live Oak 3. Oregon (Bro Leland) 3; Victoria, B. C. 1; El Monte Lodge, 2; Ventura Co. (Bro. Webb club) 10.

A REMARKABLE REVOLUTION.

The success of the Literary Revolution in producing a Cyclopedia, the largest ever published in this country, in large type, well printed and bound, at the nominal cost of $15, seemed to the majority of book buyers so remarkable that the second Literary Revolution, which reduces the cost of this most excellent work to $10, seems almost incredible. The facts of the case are, however, made so evident and so reasonable, that there can be no questioning them. We have in this office some of the volumes which demonstrate their superior character in every way, and the facts and figures which are published in detail in an article to appear next week in this paper, under the title of "A Second Literary Revolution," show very clearly, through very surprisingly, how it is possible to make such an extremely valuable and costly Cyclopedia accessible to the masses at such trifling cost.

To remove any possible incredulity which might exist in the minds of some that this is only a plausible scheme for getting a large amount of money in small sums from a great many individuals, in return for books which might never be delivered, the publishers do not require any payment whatever in advance. You may, if you please, simply send your order by postal card, and make no payment except upon the delivery of the goods themselves, and after you have examined them and found them satisfactory. Orders should be sent to the publishers at once, in order to secure the special terms given during the month of August.

SERMON TOPICS.

The Rev. M. C. Briggs gave a Sunday evening lecture in the Howard St M. E. Church Aug 7th on the twin evils, tobacco and alcoholic drink. A German citizen who is not a member of any church, remarked when he heard of it, "Dat is shoost as good a ding to breach aboud as aboud de good dings somebody did 4000 years ago. It is de dings vot ve should do now, dey ought do breach aboud."

A Rev. M, Shields of the M. E. Church in Geauga Ohio, (the paper dont tell how to pronounce Geauga) is reported by the Leader as saying recently in his sermon:

The liquor traffic is the foe of life liberty and happiness, and why should we tolerate the abomination? The worst thing he ever heard said of the Devil was that he tempted men to sin, and then punished them for sinning. We license men all over the land to tempt men to drink liquid death and distilled damnation, destroying reason, conscience, manhood, and setting them to the commission of all crime and atrocity, and then we cram jails and penitentiaries and the gallows with these liquor-made criminals. How much the start of the Devil have we in the matter of morals and manners! The men who make and sell the poison are the active partners, and those who permit the evil to go on are the silent partners in this commerce of death and destruction. There is no sure hope for the drunkard, except in the washing of regeneration and the renewal of the Holy Spirit. There is no hope for us as a nation unless we cease to do evil and learn to do well. Prohibition has become a necessity. We must have it or we will have national shipwreck. Foreigners are pouring in upon us, and they demand the abolition of our Sabbath, and boast that they can buy and bribe Congress and the Legislature. The safety of the party is the vital question with the politician, but the patriot and the Christian thinks more of the Nation than of party, and the main hope of this Nation is in her Christian patriots, whose united efforts with God's blessing will give us the victory.

Between Mr Moody and all the other modern revivalists, it seems to have been pretty definitely settled that "there is no hope for the drunkard except in the washing of regeneration and the renewal of the Holy Spirit," But according to Mr, Shields the question may be raised if the people who are not drunkards can have a sure hope as long as they are silent partners in this commerce of death, and if a regeneration can be trusted as genuine, which leads a convert to rest perfectly satisfied with his own safety, and gives the cold shoulder to every temperance association and effort that is trying to open a road to heaven for the drunkard, and to prevent the drunkard being made in future. A genuine regeneration ought to be one that operates in one's every day walk, and asserts itself at the ballot box: one that permits no silent partnership in the commerce of death.

OAKLAND.—The Chronicle says a clergyman at the Y. M. C. A. made serious charges against the immorality of Oakland, "He had always felt that San Francisco was the most Sabbath-breaking, God-defying city on this coast, and on this account had been almost ashamed, when abroad, to acknowledge that he lived here. But last Sunday he had occasion to be in Oakland, and there he saw Sabbath desecration so much worse than he had ever seen in San Francisco that he was glad his home was here and not there. He found that the churches were nearly empty and that the cars, saloons and pleasure seeking resorts were crowded. Half the stores on Broadway, including many of the first class were open for business as usual, the streets being watered and much of the business was going on as on other days. He had never seen anything like it before anywhere, and hoped he never should again. It was a great disgrace to its citizens that the law of God requiring the Sabbath to be kept holy should be so generally and so ruthlessly trodden under foot there.

A gentleman from Oakland replied to Mr Williams He thought the city was not so bad as had been represented. If the brother had come around to the Young Men's Christian Association rooms, there he would have found that the Association was in a prosperous condition, and that there were many who were devoting the day to the service of God."

Offering no opinion as to the relative merits of the two cities in the treatment of the Sabbath, it is suggested that if the brother had come round to the Y. M. C. A. rooms, he would have gone where, above all other places in the city, he would have had the poorest opportunity to judge of the morality of tne community and its observance of the Sabbath. Everybody knows that there are a great many excellent men and women in Oakland whose personal conduct is beyond reproach; but it is a most singularly absurd proposition to offer that fact or that the Y. M. C. A. is in a prosperous condition, as an offset against the infernal barbarism of the subversion of the American Sabbath and American civilization and the blasphemy of the open dens of vice and idolatry tolerated in the cities of California by the votes of our people and open not only on Sunday, but on the other days of the week. It may be consistent with the strictest reverence for the Sabbath to say that one grogshop open in Oakland all day Wednesday is a greater crime against God, and ought to be a greater shock to a Christian observer, than all the honest business stores being open on Sunday.

VALLEJO, Aug 2, 1881.

The fourth Quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Good Templars Home for Orphans. The Board met at the Home building at 11 o'clock, A M, and was called to order by Vice President A G Clark, At roll call the following responded, A G Clark, Vice President, C H Haile, Sec., I S Halsey. Special Committee Bro Thompson reported he had procured a loan for the Grand Lodge in two sums; one of one thousand and one of two thousand at the rate of interest of 9 per cent per annum: report referred to the Executive Committee.

At noon the Board took a recess to view the improvements. At 2 P. M. the board of Trustees and the Board of Lady Managers met in joint session for consultation. Various matters regarding the welfare of the Home were brought up and disposed of: at 3;30 the joint board adjourned.

At 3:35 the Board called to order; after some discussion in regard to the shade trees in front of the building, the matter of removing some of them was referred to the Ex. Com. with power to act, and at 4:15 P. M. the Board adjourned.

TEMPERANCE GROCERIES.—It affords much pleasure to direct attention to the advertisement of Lincoln & Co., grocers, 1801 Polk street (not Post, as the printer had it last week). Mr. Geo. S. Lincoln is a standard Good Templar of long standing, and his numerous customers testify unanimously to his well-established reputation for upright and generous dealing, and for his good citizenship in every direction. There is no excuse, nowadays, for temperance people building up the grocery-grogshops by giving them their patronage.

The people of Sacramento, Vallejo, and other places which have no temperance groceries would, no doubt, effect a large saving by ordering their supplies from reputable dealers in San Francisco in place of patronizing the pauper factories,

ALCOHOLIC LIQUORS IN THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE.

The National Temperance Society has just published in pamphlet form the very able and valuable paper upon the use of "Alcoholic Liquors in Medical Practice," by N. S. Davis, M. D., L L. D., of Chicago, prepared for the late National Temperance Convention. It is shown that immense harm is produced by the indiscriminate prescription of alcoholic liquors, and that the skilful physician can accomplish the same useful purpose in all cases by other and less dangerous agents without recourse to alcohol. It should be read and thoughtfully considered by everybody, and especially should it be placed in the hands of every physician, and of all medical students in the land. Price five cents. Address J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river. 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc., Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise, "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

The Cyclopaedia War.

The month of July, 1881, witnesses the completion of the largest and most important literary work this country and the century have seen. It is the Library of Universal Knowledge, large type edition, in 15 large octavo volumes, containing 10 per cent more matter than Appleton's Cyclopædia, at less than one-fifth its cost, and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopædia, at a little more than one-fourth its cost.

Chambers's Encyclopædia, which forms the basis of the Library of Universal Knowledge (the last London edition of 1880 being reprinted verbatim as a portion of its contents), is the laborious product of the ripest British and European scholarship. It has developed through a century of Cyclopædia making; its various editions having been many times revised, in successive years, till it has come to be universally recognized, by those competent to judge, as standing at the very front of great aggregations of knowledge, and better adapted than any other Cyclopædia for popular use. It contains such full and important information as the ordinary reader, or the careful student, is likely to seek, upon about 25,000 subjects in every department of human knowledge. Chambers's Encyclopædia, however, is a foreign production, edited and published for a foreign market, and could not be expected to give as much prominence to American topics as American readers might desire. To supply these and other deficiencies a large corps of American editors and writers have added important articles upon about 15,000 topics, covering the entire field of human knowledge, bringing the whole number of titles under one alphabetical arrangement to about 40,000. Thus the work is thoroughly Americanized, and the Library of Universal Knowledge becomes at once the latest and most complete Encyclopædia in the field, at a mere fraction of the cost of any similar work which has preceded it.

Victory

Price of the 15 volumes, complete, in extra cloth binding, $15.00. In half Russia, sprinkled edges, $20.00. In half Russia, gilt top, $22.50. In full library sheep, marbled edges, $25.00.

The superlative value and importance of this great Encyclopædia lies especially in the fact that it is brought within the reach of every one who aspires after knowledge and culture. It is really a library of universal knowledge. It brings a liberal education easily within the reach even of every plowboy of the country and apprentice boy of the city. Every farmer and every mechanic in the land owes it to himself and to his children that such a Cyclopædia shall henceforward form a part of the outfit of his home. To the professional man, and every person of intelligence in every walk of life, a Cyclopædia is a necessity.

Revolution

Of course the old and wealthy publishers who have grown rich (it is said that the Appletons have made a profit of nearly two million dollars on their Cyclopædia) from the sale of their high-priced publications are not pleased that their monopolies are broken and their power overthrown. Of course the book agents and booksellers who have been used to getting from 40 to 60 per cent commission for selling these high-priced books are not so well pleased to sell the Library of Universal Knowledge on 15 per cent commission, though those who are not short-sighted discover that their own interests, after all, are identical with the interests of the people, and their real profits, in the end, are increased, by the immense sales which result from meeting the people's wants. The majority of booksellers, however, are better pleased to slander than to sell this and our numerous other standard and incomparably low-priced publications. But the Literary Revolution has always looked to the people, in whose interests it is, for its patronage, and it has never looked in vain, as our more than one million volumes printed last year (this year being increased to probably more than two millions) abundantly prove. You can order the Cyclopædia directly from us, and by uniting with your neighbors and friends you can secure club rates as follows:

$10,000 Reward

To Club Agents.

A discount of 10 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering at one time three or more sets of the Cyclopædia; and a discount of 15 per cent will be allowed to any one ordering five or more sets at one time.

As a special inducement to our friends and patrons to go to work promptly and vigorously, each doing what he can for the dissemination of universal knowledge, we propose to distribute $10,000 in special premiums as follows, in addition to the regular discount to clubs:

$5,000 Reward to be distributed equally among the first 500 club agents who send us clubs of not less than five subscribers, after June 15th and before September 1st.

$5,000 Reward in addition to the first $5,000 to be distributed among the 100 club agents who, during the same time, send us the largest number of subscribers, not less than twenty in number, the amount to be distributed proportionately to the whole number of subscribers which each of the 100 club agents may send us.

The names of the subscribers must in every case be forwarded to us. The first $5,000 named will be distributed as specified as rapidly as the orders are received, and the remaining $5,000 will be distributed promptly on Sept. 1st. The names of the persons receiving these rewards will be printed, with the amounts received by each, and the list sent to all the club agents entering into competition for them. Subscribers must be actual purchasers for individual use, to entitle the club agent to the rewards under this offer, and not booksellers or agents who buy to sell again.

Persons desiring to raise clubs may send to us at once for sample volumes, if they desire, in the various styles of binding, paying us 75 cents for the volume in cloth, $1.00 for the volume in half Russia, sprinkled edges, and $1.25 for the volume in library sheep. Orders for the full sets will be filled by us with the utmost promptness, within our ability to manufacture, beginning not later than July 10th, orders being filled in the order of their receipt by us.

Specimen pages of the "Library of Universal Knowledge" will be sent free upon request. Descriptive catalogue of our large list of standard publications, with terms to clubs, and illustrated pamphlet describing book making and type setting by steam, will be sent upon application. Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by express. Fractions of $1.00 may be sent in postage stamps.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick. F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

J. W. WEBB.

The good work revived by Sister Stevens in Ventura county goes bravely on. At the county seat lodge meets in fine Masonic hall. I publicly installed officers; not nearly room enough for all present. Good music, addresses by Revs. Knighton and Peters and self. Coffee house a grand success, lady managers incessantly working; considerably more than pays expenses. District and subordinate lodges moved in matter of Sunday closing and are patiently trying moral suasion, but will invoke the law if they must.

Well attended union service in Presbyterian church Sunday night, three preachers besides self. Addressed Band of Hope which is over 100 strong in afternoon. Address every school I reach on temperance, disuse of tobacco and in favor of morals etc.

At Saticoy lectured, preached and organized a good Band of Hope; the teacher Sr. Seward, Supt. If all will work earnestly and harmoniously there is a good prospect here. All lodges near were to pay it a fraternal visit at installation last Thursday.

At Hueneme the large and influential lodge does well. A crowded house turned out to lecture. Over $2,000 subscribed for new town hall. Thos. R. Bard and other influential temperance men putting in most liberally. As Good Templars started the project lodge is to have rent free all the time for their meetings. Sunday closing being preached here successfully. Obtained several names for RESCUE.

At Nordhoff found Rev. Mr. Taylor, Bro. Barrows, L. D. and the earnest hopeful workers with whom I conferred privately. A marriage of Sr. Mayne and Mr. Morrison took away what would have been a large and intelligent audience. Any person traveling hereabout should not fail to go to this lovely valley called the Ojai. Bro. Barrows and Mr. McKee keep good hotels. Know I shall get good meetings when I can go again. District Lodge at Carpinteria well attended. It and public meetings did much good. Obtained more subscribers for RESCUE.

H. R. HUGHES.

Aug; 4th, lectured to a few at El Dorado, got ten names and the charter fee, and arranged to go back and organize on the 10th. 5th went to Pleasant valley: place small, population scattering, no hope to organize now. Pushed on to Grizzly Flat, 16 miles further up the mountains; lectured to a full house on the 6, got 12 names and organized with 18 on the afternoon of the 7th.

The schoolhouse being occupied by the Rev. Gualco of the Catholic church in the evening to deliver a lecture on "The inspiration of the Scriptures and the divinity of Christ." The Rev. Father is in full sympathy with temperance work, recently addressed the Blue ribbon club of this place.

The 8th went to Fairplay, population too scattered to do anything on short notice. Left some RESCUES and arranged for a meeting in the future. The 9th installed the remainder of the officers of Placerville lodge and closed the charter with 37 names.

The 10th at ElDorado Lodge completed the organization. This ends my work of three weeks in this county at present. I have made 20 addresses, traveled only 200 miles in my own conveyance, organized 4 lodges. Prepared the way for several others in the near future, and started a general discussion of the temperance question thru the county. "It is but little, I wish it were more.

MRS. STEVENS.

Has had successful meetings during the past week in various localities. On Monday at Pleasant Valley Lodge open meeting; a number of names were proposed for membership and a distribution of temperance literature made. Tuesday at San Leandro 22 names offered for the Lodge; at Haywards on the two following evenings good audiences were addressed and Laurel Lodge reorganized with 46 charter members. At West Oakland spoke for Prohibition Lodge in the Cong. Church; full meeting and effective additions promised to the Lodge. This new Lodge gives evidence of considerable life and earnestness. Mrs. Stevens uses a number of copies of the RESCUE and other temperance literature at the close of her meetings, and has faith in the good results of that policy.

Saturday evening at Athens Lodge, Oakland, gave an address in open meeting: a strong prohibition document read by a visiting member from San Francisco was received with applause.

On Sunday evening another good meeting at Haywards and 19 additional members for proposition in the Lodge.

C. N. GOLDING.

GRASS VALLEY, Aug. 15, 1881.

Lectured in Rough and Ready on the 11th and 12, and here on the evenings of the 14th and 15th to large audiences: am in Nevada city 16th, North San Juan, 17th and 18th; Camptonville, 19th and 20th will write at length from the latter place.

DISTRICT WORK.

BY H. H. PECKINPAH.

An earnest desire to benefit the Order in general, and the lodges in Sonoma county in particular, induces me to pen an article on District Work, and to try to convey some idea of its vast importance, when properly conducted, as an auxiliary of our Grand Lodge work.

In my treatment of the subject, it is intended to point out what I conceive to be errors, previous to suggesting remedies. I have taken some pains to study our system for organizing and sustaining Subordinate Lodges, and that it is by no means perfect I shall try to convince you.

The Grand Lodge of California has established an enviable reputation for the earnestness, energy and perseverance with which it prosecutes its life-work. Its course has ever been onward and upward, and the growth in numbers within this jurisdiction has been sure, if slow. Yet every step onward in this direction has been, to a greater or less extent, counteracted by corresponding reverses.

An examination of the reports of the G. W. S., for the six years ending July 31, 1879, shows that for every four lodges organized and resuscitated, three became extinct; the average annual increase falling below eight per cent. Furthermore, an approximate estimate of the lifetime of extinct lodges gave the following results:

Of 227 extinct lodges, more than fifty per cent. did not live to see their second anniversary; and considerably more than half of these expired ere the close of the first year.

Although the extraordinary efforts put forth by the Grand Lodge thru its lecturers during the last Grand Lodge year resulted in the organization of a much greater number of lodges than in former years, yet there was no decrease in the number of extinct lodges, but, on the contrary, an increase of more than twelve per cent. above the average. These facts but demonstrate that the system of Grand Lecturing, however great its success in the organization of lodges, is not adapted to the work of sustainitg them and keeping them in good working condition. Difficulties beset a newly organized lodge from the very beginning; composed, it may be, of persons never before members of the Order, and with all their surroundings both new and strange.

With no lack of earnest hearts and willing hands, many of them struggle on for a brief season, then sink beneath the waves, overcome by the obstacles they know not how to surmount.

They need but a certain degree of fostering care and instruction to enable them to become successfully working lodges. That care the Grand Lecturer cannot give; he has not the time. Nor was it intended that he should. To travel fast and far, lecturing often, organize lodges and collect money for the Orphans' Home, are the qualities which constitute the successful Grand Lecturer. This seems to have been at least partly understood years ago; and to meet the difficulty plans were adopted for organizing District Lodges, which were gradually formed thruout the state.

They convened at stated times, opened with due ceremony, transacted a considerable amount of business in the way of appointing committees, who seldom did anything and still more seldom reported what they had done, adopting "stirring resolutions," which never got any farther than the columns of the RESCUE, laying plans for work which they asked the Subordinate Lodges to carry out, having no power to do so themselves; and in fact, spending much and valuable time to little purpose.

At the very first District Lodge which I attended, I saw that the whole system of District work was as a house built upon the sand. Without the sinews of war, though engaged in battle with the demon of intemperance, the time was mostly spent in promulgating paper blockades. To a worthy brother I expressed a desire that the District Lodge be induced to engage in some aggressive work for the cause, and was met by the remark that it was not organized for that purpose, but simply as a kind of "social reunion."

Well, it seemed as tho he was right; for many times have I read in the RESCUE, accounts of the meetings of various District Lodges, and they could be generally summed up as a series of "stirring resolutions," a social time and something good to eat.

Yet, what more could have been expected; organized as they were, without a money basis? I am surprised that our Grand Lodge, knowing the immense power wielded by a full treasury, should have made such a mistake.

We are fighting an oligarchy whose very foundation is built upon an unscrupulous love for gold, and we can never succeed unless we use money both freely and judiciously; use it in ways that will educate the people, and create in our Subordinate Lodges that firm self-reliance without which there can be no true prosperity; and this must be done by means additional to the work of the Grand Lecturer.

The lodge which entirely depends upon extraneons assistance will not be likely to present always an unbroken front. The eloquence of Mrs. Stevens, Dr. Merrick or others may create a "boom" in the temperance stream, but when their influence is withdrawn there will be nothing to prevent the waters from again becoming sluggish. Such lodges are alternately "up and down;" and while in the latter condition, if the wished-for aid is not forthcoming, oftimes give up the ghost without farther struggle. Afterward a Grand Lecturer, passing that way, stirs up the temperance element by his eloquence, and lo, a new lodge rises, Phœnix like, from the ashes of the old; and unless different plans are adopted, enjoys a fitful existence for a few months, then follows its precedecessor into the grave of dead lodges.

Thus, history repeats itself. Upon the tombstone of almost every dead lodge might appropriately be written the following epitaph:

"Here lies a victim of a mistaken temperance policy."

But, it may be asked, where is the remedy? It lies in earnest, persevering District work; work that seeks not only to organize new lodges, but to perpetuate the existence of the old; work that aims to so instruct lodges that they may become self-reliant, and as far as possible, self-sustaining; work that seeks to build up the cause mainly by trying to induce lodges to take an active interest in promoting their own welfare, work that tries to put a temperance library in every lodge-room, and temperance papers and tracts into the hands of each member and of the community; work that tries to draw lodges, and each individual member thereof, into the front ranks, and, placing in their hands the weapons of truth, justice and humanity, bids them to strike and spare not.

This cannot be done without an expenditure of money; for there are but few who can afford to engage in the work without remuneration. At the last session of the Grand Lodge, the Constitution of District Lodges was so amended as to permit them to levy a per capita tax upon subordinate lodges of not more than an aggregate of twenty cents a year.

'Tis true that that is but a paltry sum with which to undertake such a work as I advocate; yet some good may be accomplished with even so small an amount. Viewed solely from a business stand-poinl, it seems to be a sound financial policy; for the amount expended ought to be trebly returned in the shape of fees and dues resulting from an increased membership.

True, District Lodges have done some good: yet but little compared with what, with proper effort, they can be enabled to accomplish.

The fostering care which they should exercise over the subordinates in their respective jurisdictions would, in fact, be the complement of the organizing part of the Grand Lodge work.

Thus, the work will be taken up just where the organizer lays it down, and the two systems—the one laying the foundation and the other rearing the super-structure—work on successfully and harmoniously to the glorious end.

MUTUAL BENEFIT.

In Kansas a Temperance Mutnal Benefit Society is booming; that is, it is booming in securing members, but the death notices are of very rare occurrence. The Chief Justice approves of it highly, and says that other societies of the kind have succeeded grandly, and this, from its total abstinence principles, ought to be one-third or a half cheaper. It is time our Mutual Benefit system, which is probably the best in the world, was having its classes all full. Our members ought to give up paying tribute to the whisky traffic, which causes so very large a proportion of the assessments in the other insurance systems.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

$10 Outfit furnished free, with full instructions for conducting the most profitable business that anyone can engage in. The business is so easy to learn, and our instructions are so simple and plain that anyone can make great profits from the very start. No one can fail who is willing to work. Women are as successful as men. Boys and girls can earn large sums. Many have made at the business over one hundred dollars in a single week. Nothing like it ever known before. All who engage are surprised at the ease and rapidity with which they are able to make money. You can engage in this business during your spare time at great profit. You do not have to invest capital in it. We take all the risk. Those who need ready money should write to us at once. All furnished free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

MARRIED.

At Nevada city, Aug .11, 1881, by Rev. A. L. Mann, Chas. Mosher to Annie Jewell, both of Grass Valley.

Bro. Mosher has been a member of Sylvania Lodge I. O. G. T. for 21 years, has filled the several offices therein, and ranks P. W. C. T.

We wish him and his fair wife health, wealth and prosperity, and trust that their future may be one of happiness.

WANTED.

WANTED — Employment, as bookkeeper, shipping clerk, salesman, or other similar occupation. Address "GOOD TEMPLAR," office of the RESCUE.

A FEW copies of the Proceedings of the recent National Temperance Convention at Saratoga, for sale at this office, 25 cents each; sent free by mail. Every Good Templar ought to have one.

THE West Va. Freeman which is only 25 numbers old has a stirring breezy air, is full of good and interesting things and but for the figures on the title heading might be supposed to have had a war record and experience of years. One of the best things it told last week is that its State has 42 of its 54 counties redeemed from the infamy of a licensed liquor traffic. If there has been a slaughter of temperance papers in the past, the blood of the martyrs has been exceedingly prolific in fresh, vigorous and healthy young shoots. Perhaps the martyr period has passed.

CRUELTY.—The Chronicle reports the case of a boy of 9 years in Oakland who is insane in consequence of injuries to his head received from a teacher in the Durant school, named Brodt, who is reported to be in the habit of violent punishment of his pupils. Sometimes such reports have proved to be utterly baseless and men have suffered from hasty and false accusations circulated by enemies.

This matter should be thoroly investigated and the teacher exonerated if not guilty: but on the other hand if there is a brutal, cowardly savage employed as a teacher who beats a boy of 9 years or a boy of any years on the head, he ought not only to be kicked out of school but driven out from among men to live with the coyotes. There is no language too strong to condemn the nasty cowards who vent their malice upon the helpless and in such a fiendishly cruel shape.

DOMESTIC HYGIENE.—A most excellent and comprehensive volume called the Home Handbook of Domestic Hygiene and Rational Medicine, has been published by Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Michigan. Its pages give evidence of its being the most thoro and intelligent medical adviser that has ever been offered to the people. One of its best features is its preventive counsels against exposing ourselves to the necessity of medical advice or treatment. Every family should endeavor to secure this book. How much better and cheaper to have a chaste, virtuous, wise and ever faithful medical and moral counselor on your book shelf than to be at the mercy of the chance practitioner who prescribes so often a nostrum that creates a worse disease than the one he vainly attempts to remedy. It is time our people knew a good deal about themselves which they do not, but which can be learned with inestimable advantage from Mr. Kellogg's book. It can be ordered from the Pacific Press, Oakland, or Mr. Boyd 527 Commercial St. S. F.

In THORNLEY, England, the funeral of a Good Templar took place on a Sunday of last month. The rector of the Episcopal church who is also a magistrate, consented to have the funeral on the Sabbath, contrary to custom, that the Good Templars might all be able to attend. The Good Templars service was conducted at the house and at the grave by a member, and at the church by the Rector. The Rev. gentleman remarked at the close of the service that he was glad to see so many present in the regalia of the Order. He hoped they would all ever feel a pleasure and a pride in wearing it. Some men of narrow views would sneer at that regalia. His advice was to let them sneer on." The fact that they are striving to ameliorate their own condition and that of their class, and to stop the ravages of drunkenness will be more than a compensation for any light expressions made about them. He wished the temperance movement all success and recognized in it a grand means of bettering men's condition temporally, making life worth living, and being prepared for the future to which all are going."

The Watchword, from which these items are taken does not say whether the rector is a total abstainer or not: but how honest, manly and Christian like was that address of his, as compared with the sniveling dishwater we hear sometimes from distinguished men, condemning the awful tendencies of secret societies—provided they are anti-rum societies.

CIRCULAR LETTER OF THE R. W. G. T.

THE MRS. HAYES PICTURE.

DEAR BRETHREN OF THE I. O. G. T.:—With the fortunate tact which has so often distinguished the movements of our most excellent and worthy sister organization, the National W. C. T. Union, its leaders were quick to discern in the incident of the introduction of the Mrs. Hayes policy into the Presidential mansion, an opportunity of emphasizing by a graceful act, the public appreciation of that beneficent policy—giving the widest publicity to its testimony for temperance—and at the same time making it the foundation of a revenue for the very important purpose of circulating a National temperance literature.

The history of the presentation of the picture of Mrs Hayes to the White House to be there a permanent guardian angel witness of temperance and purity and godliness is familiar to all. So probably is the fact that the ladies have in preparation a beautiful first class engraving of that picture from the sale of which they hope to realize a handsome literature fund for the purpose of aiding and hastening the triumph of the great cause of humanity, in which every one of us is equally interested with every one of them.

The victory achieved by the gentle influences of Mrs. Hayes has gained for the great army of temperance an advanced post of much importance, and it should be the duty of every member of the army to make that victory as fruitful in good results as possible.

It occurs to me, therefore to invite every lodge of our beloved order to consider seriously and wisely the proposition to provide itself with one of these beautiful engravings, to be an honoring memento of the "dare to do right" policy, so faithfully carried out by one of the noblest of American women, to serve as a fitting and graceful ornament of the lodge room, to assist the beneficent objects of the literature fund, and to mark our appreciation of the grandly useful services of our sister Society, and our common interest in the success of all their efforts and enterprises.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, R. W, G. T.

P. S.—As a beginning the Secretary, Miss Pugh, 53 Bible House N. Y. will please put me down for two copies of the engraving. G. B. K.

Will the temperance papers exchanging with the RESCUE please copy the above?

ATTENTION! SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY.

All persons receiving this paper in San Joaquin county, who are not subscribers are indebted for it to the Good Templars of the county.

At the last session of the San Joaquin county Dist. Lodge, I. O. G. T., $10 was appropriated for the free distribution of the RESCUE in the county for three months, and the subordinate lodges were asked to appropriate such sum as they felt able to for the same purpose.

This was considered the best mode of circulating temperance literature, and at the same time calling the attention of the public to the work our Order is doing thruout the state.

Any information desired concerning the Order may be obtained by calling on or writing to

WM. JONES, Dist. Sec., care of C. V. Thompson, 190 Levee St. Stockton. P. O. Box 386.

Bro. Wm Jones is agent for the RESCUE in San Joaquin county; parties in Stockton, visiting there or having business relations there can subscribe or renew conveniently thru Bro, Jones who has been an active worker and mover in extending the circulation of this paper.

QUITE a number of letters came too late. Wednesday morning is too late for anything.

THE FREE ICE-WATER FOUNTAIN.

O blessed fountain in the fervid street,
O draught of life in hot and toiling ways,
Unto thy plashing coolness what tired feet
Come wearily through sick and fainting days!

From stifling tenements the mother bears
In fevered arms the fevered, wailing child,
And as it drinks and smiles she almost dares
To hope for life, and is from grief beguiled.

The children, with unchildish labor sick,
Lift hot, flushed faces to the dripping brink;
The eager worker from the very thick
Of toil and strife stops gladly for a drink,

And says, "God bless the crystal water cold!"
The summer's water, cooled with winter's ice,
For sick and thirsty lips, for young and old,
And free to all—a gift beyond a price.

Some healing angel standeth there, I think.
And cries, "Come here!" from out life's hot turmoil,
Stoops lovingly and gives the children drink,
And cools the lips of fever and of toil.

It was a blessed thought. Then freely take
The cooling cup that has no taint of sin.
"Tis given for humanity's sweet sake;
"Tis one step onward in the march we take.
And for return shall "thanks and usage" win.

Harpers Weekly.

A SECOND LITERARY REVOLUTION.

The first literary revolution consisted in the publication of standard books in every department of literature at from one-third to one-tenth of their former cost.

The second literary revolution consists in a still further very great reduction (conditional) even from the revolution prices, while, at the same time, the average quality of the books will continue to be materially improved.

HOW CAN THESE THINGS BE?

To attempt an impossibility could of course only result in failure, and it would be useless, in our own interest, or in that of many thousand customers who have shown us such earnest favor, and have given us such great patronage, to announce or promise what could not be performed. We have dealt frankly with our customers in giving facts concerning costs and profits in the past, and we do it now, by giving facts and figures illustrating how we can afford to still further reduce prices.

FACTS AND FIGURES,

Please note at the start our apology for not having done heretofore what we now propose to do, and consider—

1st—We published our first book only so long ago as January 1879. Previous to that time we were entirely without experience in book publishing. What knowledge we had of business was gained in newspaper publishing and in book selling.

2d—We were also at that time almost entirely without capital, and until so late as February, 1881 we labored under the difficulty of being without capital even approximately adequate for the magnitude of the enterprise we were undertaking.

3d—Our entire scheme was in opposition to all previous methods of publishing and bookselling. And from the beginning to the present, we have had the combined bitter opposition of almost the entire book publishing and book selling classes of the United States.

4th—Starting thus with a minimum of knowledge, and less capital, and with such immense opposition, we thought it best in the interest of both the reading public and ourselves, that we undertake too little rather than too much; partial success would be better than total failure.

5th—In spite of our want of resources and of experience, and in spite of the opposition, and with the necessity of organizing and training our new forces and necessarily trying many experiments all of which no one could expect would be uniformly successful, we have from January 1st 1880 to June 30, 1881, manufactured and sold nearly 2,000,000 volumes of standard books for which we have received the considerable sum of $709,521.32

6th—In a circular issued in January of the present year we made the following statement: "The public have so long been taught to believe books to be expensive luxuries and low prices impossible, that incredulity has from the first been the greatest obstacle to the progress of the literary Revolution. It was easier to make good books cheap than it was to make people believe it could be done. We could readily have made prices even lower than they have been, but for the terrible tax we have been compelled to pay to this incredulity.

We have during this period from January 1, 1880, to June 30, 1881 paid for advertising, the large sum of $140,878.93, This immense item necessarily has to come out of the profits we made on the books sold.

7th—Altho our scheme originally embodied the principle of selling directly to the consumer, and doing away with the exorbitant cost of middlemen, we have not undertaken to put aside the book seller and the book agent altogether, because a large portion of the bookbuyers of the country have got into the habit of looking to them for their supplies, and if we were to supply the wants of such customers at all we were compelled to do it thru these ordinary channels. But we have endeavored to induce or compel these middlemen to work as we have been doing, on a more reasonably small percentage of profit (the immensely increased sales at the reduced prices even with the smaller commissions really give the book-seller a larger net profit than he formerly had). Accordingly we have during this period from January 1, 1880 to June 30, 1881 allowed to the book-sellers and book agents commissions averaging about 25 per cent of our total receipts. In other words, in addition to the $709,521.32 we have received from the public for our books, the public has also paid to the middlemen the large sum of $177,380.33 simply for handling these books, making the total cost of the books to the consumer $886,701.65.

8th—From these statements you can readily see that if

From the total amount which the public has paid for our books...		$886,901.65
We deduct the amount we have paid for advertising these books.	$140,878,93
And the amount paid to middlemen for handling the books.	177,380.33
We have a total deduction of.....		318,259.26
And a remainder of.....		$568,642.39

Thus it is evident that if the public had bought these books directly from us, the unnecessary expense of advertising, and of paying middlemen for handling them being avoided, the books would have cost them only $568,642.39, being almost 45 percent less than the $886,901.65 which would have paid for them, and our net proceeds would have been none the less.

A BETTER ILLUSTRATION.

The above figures show clearly the possibility of a great reduction from our prices as heretofore given without diminishing our net income, but they do not necessarily show that it is possible for us to manufacture and sell books at such low prices without loss to us. As we have never made pretense of publishing books from charitable or philanthropic motives, and do not wish our friends to think we are doing business at a loss, we will give a conclusive and interesting illustration of how we can afford these low prices.

LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE.

After a labor of nearly two years by an able corps of American editors and writers, for whose services we have paid nearly $30,000, we have within the brief period of less than ten months made electrotype plates for the Library of Universal knowledge at a further cost of nearly $30,000, making a total investment on this work of about $60,000. This labor all being done and paid for, the 15 large octavo volumes, making the largest Cyclopedia ever published in this country, can be manufactured at a cost per set of 15 volumes of—

For paper.....	$2 52
For printing...	96
For binding.....	2 48

These electrotype plates which we have manufactured will readily print 100,000 copies, and then by slight repairing will print from 50,000 to 100,000 additional copies, but to make our estimate absolutely safe we will assume that it will be necessary to manufacture a new set of electrotype plates after 60,000 copies have been printed. Thus we must add to the above cost of the manufacture of one set of the books ($5.96) an additional $1 as the proportionate cost of the plates for each set of 15 volumes. A further item must also be added to cover expenses of office, handling, shipping, etc., which experience leads us to estimate below 50 cents per set, but as we must do at least a safe business we will add instead for this item another $1, making the total cost of manufacture and handling the 15 octavo volumes of the Library of Universal knowledge $7,96.

Thus you see that if we sell a copy of this great Encyclopaedia even at the net price of $10 we still have a net profit of over $2. As we have already sold about 15,000 sets in advance of completion, we think it very safe to estimate (and we have heard of neither friend nor enemy who makes an estimate lower) that we shall sell as fast as we can manufacture them, at least 100,000 sets, and allowing our figures given above to be correct, we have the comfortable sum of $200,000 to cover contingencies and dividends to our stockholders.

As some of our friends may question whether our estimates above given are perfectly safe, and as we have heard of some instances where the accuracy of figures previously given by us has been disputed by our enemies, we will say that the cost of the paper is but 8 cents per pound, the cost of presswork at $1.20 per thousand impressions, and the cost of binding at 16½ cents per volume.

THE PRACTICAL POINT.

We now come to the practical point in which you are interested — how you may get the books you want at the lowest possible cost.

It is evident that it can only be done by your doing away so far as you are concerned, with our immense expenditure for advertising, and with the commissions which we or you are compelled to pay the middlemen, if you buy thru the middlemen.

Another extremely important point in enabling us to afford the lowest possible price is that we receive quick returns for the investments we have made.

You readily see that we have invested about $60,000 cash; before we are able to offer you a complete set of the library of Universal Knowledge at any price. We must sell a great many thousand sets before we can even get back the money which we have invested, to say nothing of the reward which we must have, in some measure, for our labor and the capital of the stockholders involved.

A large portion of the public still persist in getting their supplies of books thru the middlemen (who must be paid for their services) instead of from us direct; and as a large expenditure for advertising will also continue to be necessary in finding out new customers, we must continue to hold to our present retail prices, in order that we may be able to pay these enormous expenses for advertising and for commissions to middlemen.

But because we are thus compelled to tax book buyers generally with these heavy expenses, there is no occasion why we should continue this heavy tax upon you individually if you choose to unite with us in avoiding it.

OUR PROPOSITION TO YOU.

We therefore make you this proposition: If you will send your order for the library of Universal Knowledge (either for yourself or for any number of friends and acquaintances) so that we shall receive the same on or before the first day of September 1881, we will accept such orders at a discount of one third from our published list prices, making net prices to you as follows:

LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE.

For the 15 vol. in cloth, net.....	$10 00
In half Russia, sprinkled edges	13 33
In half Russia, gilt top	15 00
In full library sheep, marbled edges.....	16 66

Orders sent to us under this offer will be accepted and filled by us under the following terms and conditions.—

CONDITIONS.

1 We do not in this case as has commonly been our custom, require that remittances shall accompany the orders. Payments may be made at any time that may suit the convenience of the purchaser, on or before the delivery of the books to him, and no later than January 1, 1883.

2. But in making deliveries of the books we shall give precedence to orders which are accompanied by remittance in full payment, shipping first those for which payment is first received.

3. After filling all orders which have been fully paid for at time of order, we shall in shipping give precedence to orders which are accompanied by a payment of 10 per cent or more on account of said order, the balance then to be paid on or before the delivery of the books.

4. Thereafter shipment will be made to those who have sent no payment with the order, precedence being given to those whose orders are first received by us, payment of course being required on or before delivery of the goods.

5. We shall not consider orders unaccompanied by any remittance as binding upon the person making it, if from any cause he is unable to take the books, or shall not then desire to do so; but in case payment is not made promptly when such person is notified that his books are ready for delivery, he will first forfeit his position on our delivery list, his name being transferred to the end, and in case payment is not made promptly when his name is again reached and he is notified, he will then forfeit the privilege of purchasing at less than our full price list, and no order will thereafter be accepted from him under any similar special offer which we may in the future make on other of our publications, unless the same is accompanied by payment.

ABOUT OUR OTHER PUBLICATIONS.

As the present stock of our miscellaneous publications is now comparatively limited, and as our entire manufacturing resources will in all probability be for months to come taxed to the utmost by the manufacture of the Library of Universal Knowledge alone, we cannot undertake to make an offer similar to the above upon the books covered by our miscellaneous list, except to the extent of our stock in hand. Until our supply is exhausted we will accept in connection with an order for the Cyclopedia under the above offer, orders for any of our miscellaneous books at the same rate of discount (one-third) from our list prices, but in all cases we shall require that orders for miscellaneous books under these terms shall be accompanied by the cash, as these books can be delivered at once, and cash orders will certainly soon exhaust our supply.

Any remittance for miscellaneous books, the supply of which may have by that time been exhausted, will either be returned promptly or the amount will be applied toward the payment for the Library of Universal Knowledge as may be directed.

VERY IMPORTANT.

In connection with the special terms given above, please note particularly the following points:

1st—We look to you direct for your order, and we also ask you to assist in spreading the knowledge of the existence, character and low prices of our publications. The larger our sales and the more promptly they are made, the more rapidly can we go forward manufacturing other equally good books at equally low prices, We will gladly furnish you any reasonable quantity of catalogues and circulars for distribution.

2—The terms herewith given are limited strictly to orders which shall be received by us on or before Sept. 1, 1881. Orders received after that date must positively come under our list prices or terms to clubs, which latter are limited to 10 per cent, or at the utmost, 15 per cent discount from our price list.

3d.—We are well aware of the fact that very many book-buyers have not at a moment's command even $10 which they can invest, however great the inducements. This offer gives you the privilege of making payment when it suits your convenience, at any time before January 1, 1882.

4th.—The Library of Universal Knowledge was completed on July 15, 1881, and we are now delivering the same in the various styles of binding advertised. It is a verbatim reprint, in large type of the last (1880) London edition of Chamber's Encyclopedia with copious additions (about 15,000 topics) by American editors, the whole combined under one alphabetical arrangement, with such illustrations as are necessary to elucidate the text. It gives an amount of matter about 10 per cent more than Appleton's Cyclopaedia (price in cloth $80.), and 20 per cent more than Johnson's Cyclopaedia (prtce $51. in cloth). For the general reader it is undoubtedly the best Encyclopaedia ever published, whatever the price. Specimen pages will be sent free upon application. AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, 764 Broadway New York. JOHN B ALDEN, Manager.

The foregoing came to hand just as the RESCUE was going to press last week, and it was impossible for it to appear then in time to enable a California or Oregon order to reach New York before Sept. 1. The publishers gave no authority for the statement but the readers of the RESCUE may be pretty sure that for them the limit of time for direct orders at the lowest rate named will be extended to Sept. 10, the applicant stating that he saw the notice in this paper. The matter has been represented to the A. B. Exchange from here.

Now is the time for every lodge to get a splendid copy of this excellent work at only $10, if sent for during the time specified. Postage must also be paid which is $3 a set.

The work given for a premium for clubs for the RESCUE is delivered free of charge, the postage being paid by this office.

The following are of the campaign leaflets used in the local option contest of 1874; and will bear repetition.

FOR LICENSE.

He who votes for license, votes to starve out the grocer, the dry goods man, the mechanic, and the working man to seek their bread elsewhere.

He votes that houses and stores shall be ticketed all over town "To let."

He votes that all the mortgages on workingmen's houses and other property shall be foreclosed and the property sacrificed.

He votes for jails, police courts, prisons, poorhouses and lunatic asylums in places of schools, churches, libraries, parks and happy homes.

He votes to have a murder committed by a drunken man every Sunday in San Francisco, and every day somewhere else.

He votes to make the Chinaman own the labor market of this State.

He votes to curse the farming interests and every good interest with the liquor saloons that infest the land everywhere.

He votes that California shall become poorer and poorer every year, and that no attempted improvement shall be possible.

He votes that 2,250 people shall die of whisky every year in this State.

He votes to let the whisky master put another chain on the working man.

He votes that the working man shall be the poor man, and only find work half the time.

He votes that the 41 per cent, of the children of California who now don't go to school shall be increased to 80 per cent.

He votes for the most cruel and outrageous monopoly that ever cursed the world.

He votes for what all good people and the liquor dealers themselves declare is a bad business—the worst on earth.

He votes to curse his children and all the children of the State with pitfalls of drunkenness and vice.

Can you vote for license and invoke in the act a curse and blight upon yourself, your family and friends and your country?

A NO LICENSE VOTE.

He who votes "against license" votes to wipe out two-thirds of the city, county and State taxation.

He votes for good times, prosperous business, employment of labor, profitable pursuits of industrial and manufacturing interests—because the liquor traffic makes men poor, unable to patronize the grocer and mechanic and producer, and unable to produce wealth and employ labor and improve the value of property.

He votes that the ten per cent, which has to be paid on groceries, dry goods, clothes, etc., by all good payers, to compensate for the bad debts created by the liquor traffic, shall be reduced and the sellers of legitimate merchandise be enabled to transact a safe and paying business.

He votes that the untenanted stores and dwellings in all our towns shall be rented to industrious and worthy citizens and families.

He votes that in his township, industrious men and families shall no longer be forced to move elsewhere in search of a place to make a living.

He votes that sixty millions a year shall no longer be wasted in California to produce paupers and criminals.

He votes that about 20,000 people in this State employed in the liquor iraffic whose labor and talents are wasted may be enabled to use them in a legitimate business, in the production of wealth, and not in the destruction of every good interest.

He votes to save these 20,000 men from continuance in a business which is utterly ruinous to them morally and financially—which ruins and destroys a larger proportion of them than of their customers.

He votes that his own and his neighbors' sons shall not grow up drunkards, useless members of society, and perhaps criminals, and that his daughters may be safe from becoming in time the wives of drunkards.

He votes that property valuation in the community shall increase in value 7 to 15 per cent, every year as it does in all places where no liquor is sold.

He votes that in a few years hence the Penitentiary at San Quentin, and the new prison at Folsom, shall be rented for manufacturing institutions in place of supporting the fruits of the liquor traffic, and that our police courts and jails be used for similar wealth-producing purposes.

He vote- that the harvesting of the crops shall be done by sober and efficient white labor rather than be monopolized by the Chinese because they are sober.

He votes that California, with the most energetic, enterprising and capable population in the world, with the finest and most healthful climate, and the richest and most varied resources of wealth and comfort, shall no longer be held in the bondage of slavery and poverty by the whisky dealers who sacrifice themselves and the whole people to make a little ring of 30 or 40 whisky makers and big whisky dealers rich and fat on the spoils and ruin of the whole State.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise," "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

C. L. S. C. TO GOOD TEMPLARS.

The cordial manner in which our olive branch has been received is very encouraging, and as soon as the course of study for the coming year is published we will report thereupon. Pacific Grove, the headquarters of the state Chautauqua Circle, is a most beautiful spot, combining a pine grove extending to the shore, a varied and picturesque coast on Monterey bay, and this year, perfect weather. The latter, however cannot be warranted, for it is sometimes foggy.

The grove, 300 acres was originally purchased of David Yocks by the Methodist denomination, and deeds to property are forfeited if the premises are used for liquor selling or gambling. Both iniquities are forever prohibited, so that the grove must ever remain a temperance stronghold, and its moral and religious atmosphere will render it a desirable place for recreation, and will attract desirable people. For some reason the property reverted to Mr. Yocks, and has now been sold to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, but with the same restrictions, liquor selling forever prohibited. The company continues the former management, and has built a large and commodious "Chautauqua Hall," designing to make the meetings of the C. L. S. C. permanent at the Grove.

Excellent roads have been built to its charming environs, so that the beauties of the peninsula are accessible to all, and at reasonable rates, and the R. R. Company finds it for its interest to put railroad fares very low and to allow 100 lbs of baggage, a tent and bedding to each ticket. On the ground are a restaurant with bakery, meat and vegetable stands, furnishing supplies at fair rates. There is plenty of room for Chautauquans and Good Templars, and we trust that the moral aims of the one and the intellectual aims of the other may so fuse as to give both added influence and a general uplift.

EDITOR RESCUE.—Your readers may be interested to know that in Humboldt county we have 11 Lodges of Good Templars with a membership of over 450 and everything seems to bid fair for progress. We have had Bro. F. J. Culver with us for some time: we think he is the right man in the right place, he is a good worker and his whole soul seems to be in the temperance cause: he handles rum and rum vendors without gloves: has delivered 28 lectures in our county and organized 3 new Lodges; traversed our large county and spoken in Churches, Halls and School houses.

We regret that he could not stay longer with us for we are satisfied that he is doing much good. Please send me a bundle of the RESCUE and we will try to send you a club from our Lodge. PortKenyon Lodge was instituted May 26 1881 and is situated about 2 miles from Ferndale; we now have 27 members.

L. D. PORTKENYON LODGE.

PLAIN COPY.—When you write for the RESCUE, the best paper to use is white, in sheets of eight or nine inches long by five or six wide: that is a very handy size for the printer to work from. Write on one side only; rather use a good pencil than pale ink. Please write plainly too, especially when you give names. Don't harass the printers with puzzling copy. Poetry for insertion must be unexceptionable in quality.

LODGE FURNITURE.

In addition to the above, I will attend to orders for Impression Seals, Blank Books, Special Printing, Regalia or Lodge Furniture. This will be done as an accommodation to Lodges and not as a source of profit either to the Grand Lodge or myself; hence all orders filled will be sent per express by the dealers, with instructions to "collect on delivery," unless the money accompanies the order. Address—

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. S.,

Nos. 25, 32, 64, 107, 126, 133, 138, 146, 152, 153, 164, 180, 190, 209, 215, 222. 224, 233, 237, 244, 279, 291, 297, 308, 313, 330, 337, 376, 398, 400, 408, 425, and 442.

RETURNS RECEIVED.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged.

Nos. 25, 32, 106, 113, 114, 123, 126, 129, 133, 137, 141, 146, 150, 153, 155, 156, 158, 166, 181, 191, 195, 212, 215. 218, 221, 223, 237, 239, 242, 244, 245, 264, 267, 270, 274, 279, 295, 298, 303, 308, 316, 317, 323, 327, 331, 335, 337, 345, 348, 360, 372, 375, 376, 398, 408, 409, 419, 424, 425, 435, 436, 438, and 442.

CREDENTIALS RECEIVED.—Credentials certifying representatives elect to the next annual session of the Grand Lodge have been received at the G. W. S, office during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged as follows.

Nos. 32, 17, 25, 51, 56, 64, 107, 111, 112, 114, 117, 119, 123, 127, 129, 131, 133, 134, 135, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 144, 146, 152, 153, 160, 163, 165, 166, 169, 180, 186, 189, 190, 193, 195, 200, 209, 215, 216, 221, 222, 224, 226, 233, 239, 241, 242, 244, 247, 269, 289, 291, 292, 297, 313, 316, 318, 323, 330, 331, 335, 339, 348, 361, 366, 369, 371, 375, 376, 379, 381, 385, 387, 398, 417, 429, 442, 451, and A. T. 1.

LODGE DEPUTY ANNUAL REPORTS.—Lodge deputies of the following lodges have filed proper annual reports with the G W S during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged.

Nos. 32, 51, 123, 126, 129, 133, 137, 139, 140, 141, 146, 150, 153, 155, 156, 165, 169, 180, 181, 191, 193, 195, 200, 212, 215, 220, 221, 223, 237, 239, 242, 244, 264, 267, 270, 279, 291, 308, 316, 320, 323, 327, 330, 331, 335, 340, 345, 348, 354, 371, 375, 376, 380, 382, 398, 400, 408, 425, 434, 436, 442.

NEWCASTLE.—It was our pleasure to spend an evening with Newcastle Lodge No 339 on the 14th inst, on which occasion the officers were installed and representatives elected to the Grand Lodge. This Lodge has made a noble record in the past and now in its thirteenth year is enjoying a greater season of prosperity than ever. It owns its hall, which, since our last visit thereto has been neatly carpeted, and has an air of thrift and activity which is always refreshing. On the occasion referred to visitors were present from the Lodges at Ceres, Lockford, Ophir, Colfax Auburn and other points. At the conclusion of business a "feast of pomona" prevailed, as the various members introduced fruits of their own raising, comprising the entire list for which Newcastle is noted—grapes from the Zante currant up to muscat plums, peaches, and nectarines. It was the intemperate hour of midnight before the assembly adjourned. During our brief stay the hospitalities of the Culver mansion were enjoyed. Visit Newcastle Lodge if you would spend an enjoyable evening.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office has been favored with passing calls from the following members of our Order. P. G. W. C., William Sims of Winters Lodge No 165; Prof. W. H. Reardon of Independent Lodge No 118 College City; Bro Charles E. Justis Jr, L. D. of Wheatland Lodge No 197, Bro. J. L. Hinman of Defiance Lodge No 219. Pleasant Grove.

GARBERVILLE.—Bro F. J. Culver reports a great victory of Garberville Humboldt county where he recently lectured and organized a Lodge. He writes, "The two town stores turn out their whisky and the proprietor of the one is W. C. T. while the wife of the other is W. V. T. Many hard drinkers have also united. The owner of the town site and many leading men have taken hold of the work."

CAMPING PARTIES.—It is suggested that the Lodges situated near Vallejo especially in Napa, Solano, Contra Costa and Yolo counties, make up camping parties and come down in force as visitors to the next session of Grand Lodge. There is plenty of camping ground near Vallejo, and the idea is perfectly feasible. What Lodge will lead off and announce a party made up to visit and camp out during Grand Lodge?

Quarterly Returns.—Ask the Lodge Deputy of your Lodge if he has forwarded the Quarterly Returns and his annual report to the G. W. S. ? If not request that they be forwarded at once. Two hundred and over have already been filed and the few lagards who are behind hand, to a great extent nullify the commendable promptness of the Deputies who have already reported.

Another.—The name of Bro. J. W. Webb of Lompoc, who is making a tour of the Southern portion of the state as one of the corps of Grand Lecturers announced last week, making a total of nine salaried Grand Lecturers in the field during this month.

Once More to the front.—Merrill Lodge No 299 of Los Angeles once more heads the list as the banner Lodge of the jurisdiction, with a reported membership of 200. The new Lodge at San Luis Obispo comes next with a membership of 225.

Coincidence.—During the past week in the G. W. S. Office three letters were opened in succession one from Bro. Burner of Biggs; one from W. Durner of Benicia; and one from Bro. Turner of Jackson.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the Rescue, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

W. C. KING,

JOTTINGS.

The noble State of California impresses the stranger with its many claims for admiration, and can surely boast of fine fruit and a delightful climate. It can also claim the doubtful distinction of having wasteful working people, and the most greedy, brazen faced class of saloon keepers that ever cursed a fair state. In all our travels we never saw such wholesale evidences of the curse of rum as California can furnish. We only marvel that any degree of prosperity exists, not that there is no higher. Eventually will the people of this State learn that waste means want even in California.

Whether Bee culture is successful in this State or not has not come under our observation, but we find a species very common that is not enumerated in any standard work on the subject. We refer to to the "used to be's". Every village, every minning town has several specimens of this very unenviable class. Indeed we have learned their history so well that as soon as the point, "there is a man, he used to be." is reached, we can carry the whole tale thru ahead of our informant.

Once energetic, came to Cal. in 49 or 50, has amassed several fortunes, but drink or the gaming table and oftener both have been his ruin, and now he is broken in character, health, fortune and spirit. Many villagers belong to this same class—used to be prosperous or apparently so—now are the opposite.

It is of the has-beens among temperance people we would especially speak. We meet them everywhere and find them more difficult to reach, more unreasonable than those who make no claim to having ever been identified with us. "I "used to be" a Good Templar but————and I left the lodge." Can you feel other than contempt for a person with no more principle nor spirit than this old old story indicates? Desert a holy cause, prove traitor to the noblest Order on God's green earth, because some one gave offence by word or deed! for shame! Again, there are others who deserve our pity and for whom we work.

May kind heaven have mercy on the man or woman who to-day must with galling conscience and pallid cheek say" Once I was pure—beloved of many—afraid to look none in the eye. Great God! what thru yielding to drink and temptation am I now? Oh thou rum curse, blackest demon hell ever sent abroad, haste, haste the day when thou shalt be among the things that were and are no more.

Two boys under our window are parleying over a trip to another part of the village, number 1 is anxious to go at once and says "come along," number 2 quite reasonably asks, "why do you want to go?" The former only answers "oh cause." Thrice has he been pressed for a reason, and as often laconically answers, "oh cause."

The little street waifs left me musing something as follows, How many of us possess no better reason for our actions than the boy. The number of "oh cause" people is simply astonishing. They do everything from impulse; ask them, why are you a Good Templar, and they in effect can only say, "oh cause," and even have nothing more definite to say, when pressed for a reason for abstaining. They accept their religion, their politics and temperance principles second hand.

Our reform will not commend itself to the mass of intelligent people as it should, until those who embrace it can give a well defined reason for the faith within them. It might benefit many of us to study first principles for a time.

H. R. HUGHES.

Editor Rescue.—Left Eldorado Thursday with a lame horse and had hard work to reach Amador, for D, L. met with them at the morning and afternoon sessions, and then drove all night and until noon Saturday to reach Sheep Ranch to meet with Calaveras D. L. The Amador D. L. is a fine organization, they were in dead earnest about the Sunday law and they showed the right spirit about patronizing newspapers that pander and truckle to the the beer, whisky and Hub punch interest; the action will no doubt be reported for the Rescue. The most important action taken by the Calaveras D. L. was in regard to the enforcement of the Sunday law." A new committee of five consisting of A. J. Cooke, C. Duffy. W. W. Hughes and W. Wood D. D. and ———Leavitt were appointed to prosecute violators, and it was decided to call on each Lodge to donate a sum equal to 25 cents per member, to provide funds to defray expenses, that will give us about $125,00 in addition to the funds in our treasury. Our D. L. has a per capita tax of 5 cents per member, which is paid quarterly, and we mean business. A new set of officers were elected, Bro. A. J. Cooke District Deputy, C. Duffy D. S. and Mrs. M. E. Richardson D. V. T.

Next session will be held in Murphys Nov, 13th, 1881. The 6 Lodges in our mining camps were represented with full delegations, the 6 valley Lodges being in the middle of harvest and the place of meeting being up in the mountains had no delegations present. From the report of Com. on state of Order, we learn there are 12 Lodges, membership about 500, and 4 Bands of Hope with 125 members, with a good prospect of organizing three other Lodges in the fall.

In the evening Big Tree Lodge gave an entertainment, and Anderson's large hall was crowded. The Band of Hope, doing the most of the entertaining, and did it well, their singing was beautiful and touching: and great credit is due Sister Hall for the time and pains taken to drill them so efficiently. A vote of thanks was tendered Big Tree Lodge for their hospitality, in providing dinner and supper for all delegations, visitors and the L. D. Bro. Mallett, had honorable mention for the active part he had taken to make the meeting a success. A committee of three was appointed to assist the editors of the G. T, column in the CalaverasCitizen during the next quarter. After D. L. adjourned at 10, P. M. drove home, and after a few days rest, shall turn my face South for Mariposa and upper Merced counties. Angels Aug 15, 1881.

C. N. GOLDING.

Camptonville, August 21, 1881.

Since writing the last, I lectured in Nevada City on the 16th; San Juan on the 17th and 18th; Camptonville, 19th and 20. At Nevada City I had the smallest audience of the season. The lodge is doing well, but no interest is manifested in lectures. At San Juan had large audiences, also at Camptonville. I go from here to Pike City, Alleghany, Forest City, Downieville, etc.

As you are aware the controversy between the farmers, and miners, Slickens and anti Slickens, has resulted in an injunction being served on all hydraulic mines, and in consequence everything is at a standstill. Business depressed, hundreds moving and general stagnation prevails. I find the friends of the cause hopeful, and, like Micauber, waiting for something to turn up to their advantage. Waiting and watching for the coming of that better day, that is not far distant.

MRS. STEVENS.

Mrs Stevens spoke at an open meeting of Kentucky Lodge on Thursday last, and an appeal for Rescue and membership met good results.

Friday evening at South San Francisco despite fog and opposition, a good audience assembled and the spartan band of workers there were rewarded for their efforts by a number of names for the lodge.

Saturday night for the first time in three years Mrs. Stevens met with her own degree temple. The beautiful Degree of Charity was exemplified in most creditable manner by D. T. McAmant.

Monday night Fountain Lodge Oakland, rallied the citizens of Oakland in large numbers and an enthusiastic meeting the result. Two Grand Officers were present, Dr. Halsey and G. V. T,, Sister Mayhew, who accompanied Mrs. Stevens and rendered efficient aid by her well timed and happy remarks. Bro. Arnoup gave some good words for our cause. Results were the best number of names secured for Fountain Lodge that have been received this month at any one meeting, District Deputy Naysmith deserves commendation for zeal and energy in pushing the work in Alameda Co.

Mrs. Stevens states, there is coming up in Oakland like a rising tide a determination to enforce the Sunday closing law. Temperance men feel inspired now to move with regard to this question. If the liquor men are not willing to abide by the law of this state, the sooner it is known the better, and it is Mrs. Stevens conviction that when Oakland moves in this direction it will move with greater power, wider sweep and more resistless onset than in local option days. The auspicious time is now; law may be evaded, but it can also be enforced.

The circular letter of the R. W. G. T. is commended to perusal. It is a kind of new departure. It ought to have a good tendency and is in the direction of drawing the two greatest temperance organizations of the world into relations of mutual sympathy and confidence. While an active practical response to it will be an active aid to our cause. For the circular and the postscript let us tally one for our California R. W. G.

Subscribers this week: J. W. Webb, 2; L. Leland. 10; Dr. J. C. Hawver, Mich. Bluff, 7; Mrs. E. Davidson, Woodland, 5; D. Sacry, 1 (3 years); Rev. W. C. King, Modesto, 2; Crescent City Lodge, 2; M. Kennedy, 2.

Mr. D. Sacry of Santa Rosa treats himself to a bran new Library of Universal Knowledge.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A RECITATION FOR SOME OF THE YOUNG FOLKS TO TRY.

Travelers who have visited and studied and described the wonders and grandeurs of older countries than ours, tell us of the great temples of this world, that are famous in history, grand in their architecture, richly beautiful in their embellishments, guarding the monuments of the heroes of many centuries and paged with records of their gallant deeds for king or creed, or liberty perhaps at times.

The purposes for which these relics and landmarks of past ages, ancient ideas, perished glories and buried greatness were designed, were no doubt surpassingly noble, and inspired the worshiper at their shrines with a love for the noble and the beautiful; but for me, none of them can seem to possess the grandeur and beauty and nobility and inspiration to valorous deeds—none of them so bears the visible impress of the moulding hand of the all beneficent Creator and Architect,—as this simple, unpretending, modest temple of a genuine Good Templar's Lodge,

This temple leads us back into no dead past; it points to no moldy tombs, it has no dead idols, nor ancient mysteries, nor worthless relics for us to worship. It speaks to us of the present and the future; let the dead bury their dead: look you to the living, is its motto. It is a live, modern, active, busy workshop for the moulding of human character; for the training of immortal souls; for the right direction of the twining tendril; for the merciful preservation of the young from the seductive wiles of error: it holds the lamp of safety before the feet of the unwary and kindly points out to them the path of wisdom. It is a materialization of the "light in the window" which is always sending out into the distant darkness a loving invitation to the weary, hungry, wayworn, wandering prodigal to return to the parental embrace and assuring him of an ever kindly welcome home.

It is a lighthouse on the shore of a troubled sea, which sends its gleam of hope across the wave, shows the life buoy to the poor shipwrecked mariner who is struggling and battling vainly with the overwhelming billows of intemperance and misery, implores him to climb up into the lifeboat, to watch the bright and morning Star and pull with us to the shore of safety and peace.

This temple of ours sends out its missionaries of mercy to rescue and tenderly care for the wounded, stricken traveller, whom the robbers have plundered and left to die out in the bleak desert: when the priest and the Levite have passed by on the other side, to bind up his wounds, to speak words of comfort and cheer and hope to his burdened soul, to restore him to health and manhood and lovingly direct him upward to the great Physician and Healer of all human woes.

Our temple is a teacher of all the virtues, inculcates fidelity to the laws of God and nature, is a conservator of virtue, purity, godliness, cleanliness, and is the best and truest and most effective aid that has ever been devised, not only to the moral but to the material and financial interests of the whole community. And in every field and conflict of the strife of truth with falsehood, it is on the honest and godly side.

Then let us not look lightly on the dignity and honor of being a Good Templar: ages and ages after the memory of all the great structures of marble and granite, which the patient industry of man has heretofore reared upon this earth, shall have been lost in the mist and dust of forgotten centuries, the work of the Good Templar's Lodge shall stand in the presence of God and shall shine as a bright star of blessing thru all the endless cycles of eternity.

But with its honors and privileges come its duties and responsibilities. The first great object of our Temple is the rescue of human souls from the slavery of sin and the cunningly devised snares of Satan: the finding of the lost, but most especially the protection and preservation of the innocent and the young from the approaches to vice. Those therefore who come with us are expected to help us save the falling and fallen and to labor to keep others from straying into forbidden paths. No one can be selfish, live for himself, be indifferent to his neighbors welfare, and be a genuine Good Templar without serious blemish. Yet the greatest work we can do for ourselves, is to gather others into the ever open doors of the fold of the Great Shepherd who desires that none of his flock shall be left out to perish.

To be what we profess, consistent pillars in this temple of God, we must be consistent exemplars of the truth in our own lives, and above all things, we must be teachers of mankind. Our young and our old members must be instructed to give an intelligent and satisfying reason for their faith and practice: we must instruct the community, and thus do our duty to our country and our God.

This temple has in its hands the power to make the future of its community what it will: if it chooses to exert all its power and energies, it can reform its vices and purge it of its sins and sorrows: it can fashion for it a future of virtue and peace and happiness that is ever accessible to those who simply obey the easy golden rule, "Whatsoever ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them.

THE ALMS HOUSE.

From the annual report of the Superintendent M. J. Keating of the Alms House, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1881, the following items are selected.

Inmates July 1. 1880. 539; admitted during the year, 564, of whom 434 were males and 130 females.

Of the whole 464 were discharged at their own request 74 died: 57 ran away: 6 were sent to insane asylum: and 502 remain.

The ages of inmates were 9 under 1 year: 49 from 1 to 9 years: 17 from 10 to 19: 24 from 20 to 29: 67 from 30 to 39: 79 from 40 to 49: 112 from 50 to 58: 152 from 60 to 69: 44 from 70 to 79: 11 from 80 to 89.

The inmates remaining are, native born 160, of whom 59 were of California, 2 of Maine 37 of New York 13 of Pa,. Of 404 Foreign born 14 were from the British Provinces: 35 from England: 17 from Scotland: 38 Germany: 29 France: 238 Ireland: 7 Switzerland; 4 Sweden and Norway,

The 564 admitted were thus classified, married 39, single 234: widowers 54: widows 119: children 68.

EXPENSES.

The expenses for the year were nearly $65,000. Of this $15, 500 were for salaries: $25,300 for provision and $1,719 for liquors and medicines. It is not stated how much the liquor part of that was, but it is probabbe the whole of the odd $19 was expended in medicines. The cost of food per day for each was only 12 cents.

They run a farm at the Alms house: the last crop is called a failure, but it produced 35 tons potatoes, 30 of hay, 35 of vegetables, 25 of beets, and they sold $1,031 worth of live stock, and have on hand of horses cattle and pigs 195 head: 13; 114 and 68 respectively, old and young.

It is a good and kindly act on the part of our city to take care of its poor, but it would be much better if it would stop the manufacture of pauperism and of the criminal idleness and bad habits which invariably lead to pauperism. There are lots of little boys smoking cigarets and drinking beer now, who are surely bound for the poorhouse, or worse than that if they dont stop short and give up their silly and filthy habits.

There is no doubt that the most part of those who are in this almshouse, have been brought there by the "twin evils": but for every one there, how many hundreds have died before they reached that harbor of charity.

The address of Mrs. E. P. Stevens is now 1907 Bush St. San Francisco.

TELLING FORTUNES.

BY ALICE CARY.

I'll tell you two fortunes, my fine little lad.
For you to accept or refuse:
The one of them good, the other one bad;
Now hear them, and say which you choose.

I see by my gifts within reach of my hand.
A fortune right fair to behold:
A house and a hundred good acres of land.
With harvest fields yellow as gold.

I see a great orchard with boughs hanging down
With apples, russetts and red;
I see droves of cattle, some white and some brown
But all of them sleek and well fed.

I see droves of swallows about the barn door.
See the fanning mill whirling so fast.
I see them thrashing wheat on the floor-
And now the bright picture has past.

And I see rising dismally up in the place
Of the beautifully house and the land.
A man with a fire-red nose on his face.
And a little brown jug in his hand.

Oh! if you beheld him my lad you would wish
That he were less wretched to see;
For his boot toes they gape like the mouth of a fish,
And his trowsers are out at the knee,

In walking he staggered now this way now that,
And his eyes they stand out like a bugs's,
And he wears an old coat and a battered in hat,
And I think that the fault is the jug's.

For the text says the drunkard shall come to be poor
And that drowsiness clothes men with rags,
And he doesn't look much like a man, I am sure,
Who has honest hard cash in his bags.

Now which will you have? to be thrifty and snug,
And be right side up with your dish,
Or go with your eyes like the eyes of a bug,
And your shoes like the mouth of a fish?

LETTER TO GUERNEVILLE JUVENILE TEMPLE.

DEAR TEMPLE;—Sisters and brethren: At this distance of five hundred miles from the dear old hall and church and camp beneath the giant redwoods, I find myself each week impatient for the arrival of the San Francisco steamer, and how agreeably do I devour the very bones of our dear RESCUE. The last several numbers have afforded me an almost breathless treat in the different accounts of your third great camp on the battlefield.

While reading of your splendid success in the third camping campaign I have been overwhelmed quite with the thot of this brilliant outcome of that enterprise; and dropping the paper in my lap and resting my eyes upon the woody hills of Washington territory, just across the great Columbia, I muse upon the trying incidents of its beginning. How vividly are the faces of three noble brethren—Heald Twombly and Burchard—stamped upon my mind, just as they appeared that day in Bro. Heald's room when the subject of a temperance camp meeting was first broken. And how pleasant and strengthening now, being far removed from those cherished scenes and associations, and forgetful for the time, of other hard fought fields, to rejoice with you over the glorious results of our well-plied labor of heads and hands in the working up of what now appears a permanent institution. How gratifying to remember with what more than willingness our noble temple responded to every suggestion of usefulness in the work.

I have feasted upon the several accounts of your last camp and read with sweetest pleasure the cherished names of my dear fellow soldiers, whose faces I may not see again amid the smoke and din of battle but when "the gates are past, and Heaven's won," I hope to clasp the dear hands again, for I feel sure that "many of them at the beautiful gate will be watching and waiting for me."

On the morning of the 4th my heart was with you at the camp. In my lively fancy I saw the gathering host; read the brave inscriptions upon the banners, heard the swelling songs and shouts of triumph, when all suddenly an idea struck me, and I hastened to the telegraph office. Now, imagine how disappointed I felt on learning that Guerneville was not yet in connection. How lonely I felt; I went to the celebration and cheered lustily when the orator strongly denounced the meanness of buying votes with whisky, and again when he came out broad and unmistakably for woman suffrage; but still my ears were chiefly occupied with the songs and speeches, reechoing among the mammoth redwood trunks down there on the bank of Hulburt creek, highly in this letter, but will venture the suggestion that such lodges as have no juvenile band, and are not moved by that essay to begin the work at once, had better get up a dance and then send in their In Memorian to the RESCUE with cause of death (not life enough to live) and appropriate resolutions.

I must not commend Sister Yettie's essay too

But let not the other sisters feel disappointed. They are not unsuccessful, for the chief grandeur in the matter is in having the courage to write; and I doubt not their essays are brilliant and useful. The prizes, no doubt were nice, but the best of all is the good conscience, and all the writers have that, for they have done their duty. But you want to know, (no) what I am doing here. Ah, please give me a little more time. This is unquestionably the most utterty whisky sunk city in the United States. To say the least it is a grand place for a battle; and my colors are out. One thing encourages me—my Captain never lost a battle when his soldiers have been true, and such I promise to be, tho only an armor bearer. I conduct a temperance school that meets each Sunday, and will soon start another in another part of the city, and as the battle warms, still gather soldiers

Oh, how I would like some of the fire from your temple. It seems very cold and discouraging here, but never flag nor falter, is the only worthy rule. The true soldier will fight the harder when the battle seems darkest.

Will Sister Annie Willetts please to send "The Mother's Prayer to the RESCUE? In T. L. and P.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 11.

AMUSEMENTS.

BY JULIA COLMAN.

The question of amusements and extraneous helps is one of great importance to the juvenile work. Very earnest inquiries have been made of me to know what I found for the children to do, and serious suggestions of sewing for the girls, and some kind of performance for the boys.

But I found no occasion for any such devices. My great difficulty has been to find time enough in which to give the lessons we wished to. The military drill is one of the things sometimes proposed, and it is usually pleasing to the boys as it would also be if prodosed instead of their day school lessons and perhaps their Sunday school lessons, It is sometimes made to answer a good sort of purpose when introduced briefly as a calisthenic exercise to relieve the confinement of sedentary positions of the school room, but to take it up as the main exercise would certainly be very absurd. It is still more so in a temperance school which meets but once a week and to which it is entirely foreign in spirit and in object. We have no use for the literal sword and musket nor for the military evolutions because we do not expect ever to do any literal fighting in this temperance war. As for the figurative part it is carrying a figure a long way to spend the most of the money and largest part of the time on a figurative performance of which they cannot tell the meaning after all. A very amusing case came to my knowledge once, where after a year's drilling neither scholars nor teachers could tell whether the swords or the bullets meant the ballots, and as they had no bullets and only wooden swords it was sufficiently ridiculous. In fact this is only an echo from the war, and as we are not a fighting people the figure is becoming constantly less and less forcible, and is destined to die out. This is the more certain because the women who so often conduct these temperance schools are unable to do the drilling themselves and it is difficult to get any one else to do it, often expensive to provide a room in which to drill, very expensiva to get the outfit, the regimentals and the wooden guns and swords, and worst of all when obtained they are really nothing but playthings, not even serving the purpose of figures in the minds of the children. Some of the teachers of these temperance schools are Quaker women to whom the whole paraphernalia of war is obnoxious as indeed it should be in times of peace to all christian people.

The real fighting in this war is to be done with facts, the assailable side of the liquor dealer is the nature of the drinks he deals in and he shows this constantly bolstering tbem up with medical testimonies in favor of their value. He cares little comparatively what we do if we leave firmly established in the hearts of the people a belief in the excellence and efficacy of his drinks, but if you touch these you touch a vital point. Witness the yell of rage that has lately gone up from the brewers convention abont our beer crusade." The fanatics have flooded the country with their temperance literature in which they have willfully misstated facts and misquoted scripture. They are thus rapidly and surely educating the masses of the people to these false theories and Puritanical intolerance, with the avowed purpose of driving out all malt liquors and closing every brewery."

When we furnish our scholars with facts about the badness of the drink and the real effects of it, we furnish them with the real weapons with which they can do the most execution in this war.

We can learn by our failures as well as by our success; we might in our first temperance school have secured quite a class of young men had we been ready for them. They came shyly several times to see the experiments, and then gradually dropped off because they had no special part in the program, and did not feel at home. With our present facilities we should have put them into a class room by themselves with such a book as "Alcohol and Hygiene," with a competent teacher and let them learn to make experiments themselves.

Occasional picnics, and especially excursions to places of interest are very desirable. Social visits of the classes or of the school to the houses of teachers or of friends of the enterprize, where some sort of entertainment is provided, rare books, pictures or other works of art, microscopes, stereopticons and magic lanterns are great aids to the enterprize. We had one such occasion long to be remembered. when some of our friends returned from the Centennial and collecting all the mementoes they could, the teachers and scholars were invited to see them and treated besides to a description of the brewers hall on the Centennial grounds, and the pretended process of beer making.

The English in their Bands of Hope make much account of feats of physical strength, such as running, leaping, quoit pitching, etc, with the idea of showing the advantage which temperance gives them in those performances, But to give much zest to any such comparison ii would be desirable to pit themselves against beer drinkers, and that would be impracticable in this country. With our more studious habits we think that the course we have indicated will have equal attractions, and that we shall thus secure a preponderance among the more thoughtful and controlling elements of society.

INDUSTRY AND THRIFT.

"How much can you earn a day? a reporter asked a clean-faced, tidy dressed bootblack, as he plied his brush.

"About a dollar and a half, sir."

"What do you do with it?"

"Give it to my mother, sir. She is sick at home with the rheumatism, and I support her and my little brother. I clean the room, cook the meals and do the washing."

"Where do you live?"

"At 66 Pacific street, sir."

"What is your name?"

"Patrick McMallon, sir, and I'm eleven years old."

"What Church does your mother belong to?"

"St. Peter's, sir."

"Does the Church help your mother in her sickness? I suppose there are rich people in it?"

"Yes sir, plenty of them; but there's lots of poor people around worse than we are, sir."

"And so you are the head of the family?"

"Yes sir; I do everything for 'em, sir. The rent's the hardest; it's five dollars a month, but I pay a dollar at a time, and keep things a going."

Despite his pale face and slim, delicate form, there was the pluck of a man in the boy. He shouldered his box and sailed off into the district attorney's office, where he added another ten cent stamp to his morning's gains."

One industrious bootblack is of more value to the world than an army of lazy men. One industrious, level-headed boy, will be out of bed, prayers said, breakfast eaten, and the day's work half done, while the indolent man turns over in his bed and says to himself, "What is the use of getting up so early?" — Kansas Methodist.

IMPORTANT TO SUPERINTENDENTS.

The letters of Miss Julia Colman which appear in the RESCUE are intended to be of much service and will be, if due attention is paid to them by the officers of our Juvenile societies. It should be remembered that they embody the results of a large experience in the formation and maintenance of temperance schools. One has just been started in Oregon upon Miss Colmans hints in the RESCUE. Every Band of Hope should have Miss Colmans Manual and Catechism and her Alcohol and Hygiene for the older members and the superintendent. To study them dont in the least interfere with the use of our rituals and teachings, but they will afford us a very pleasant and useful variation in the routine and avert any tendency to monotony. You all know Miss Colmans address and can send direct for her books, tracts &c, to 54 Bible House New York city. She is and has been a great teacher of temperance principles.

JOHN WESLEY'S ADVICE.

Mr. Wesley wrote the following curious letter to Mrs. S——, at Armah, in Ireland, April 24, 1769:

"Be active, be diligent, avoid all laziness, slothr, indolence. Fly from every appearance of it or else you will never will be more than half a Christian. Be cleanly. In this let the Methodists take pattern by Quakers. Avoid all nastiness, dirt, slovenliness, both in your person, clothes and house. Be always sweet abeve ground; uncleanliness is a bad fruit of laziness: use all diligence to be clean, as one says:

> Let thy mind's sweetness have its operation
> Upon thy person, clothes, and habitation."

Whatever clothes you have let them be whole; no rags. These are a scandal to either man or woman, being another fruit of vile laziness. Mend your clothes, or I shall never expect you to mend your lives. Let none ever see a ragged Methodist. Use no tobacco unless prescribed by a physician. It is an uncleanly and unwholesome self-indulgence; and the more customary it is the more resolutely should you break off from every degree of that evil custom. Use no snuff unless prescribed by a physician. I suppose no other nation in Europe is in such vile bondage to this silly, nasty, dirty custom as the Irish are * * * *Touch no dram. It is a slow though sure poison. It saps the very springs of life. In Ireland, above all countries in the world, I would sacredly abstain from this, because the evil is so general; and to this, and snuff and smoky cabins, I impute the blindness which is so common throughout the nation."

If all the preachers and teachers in Christendom had taught the people in such bold, plain unequivocal language, the nations professing Christ, would to-day be as industrious and frugal, presentable and prosperous in wordly matters as the society called Friends, among whom there is seldom found a poor person and never a beggar.—Kansas Methodist.

COLORADO SPRINGS.—Ten years ago the first stake of this town was driven by the surveyor, and the incorporators and pioneers had a stringent prohibitory clause inserted in the deeds of all property sold. Now it is a beautiful city of 6000 people, with water works, gas, good schools, a college, fine churches and other improvements far in advance of ordinary cities of its size. It has no mining nor manufacturing interests yet to help it, but the town grows because of its morality and good order. Last year they could afford to build an opera house at a cost of $80.000, and a Methodist Church is being finished which will cost $13.000. Prohibition works so well there that lots for residences, 50 feet by 150, are sold for $1.000 to $2.000. And because of its good name there is a probability that it will be chosen as the capital of the State of Colorado and if so it will be a capital without a grogshop for such a thing can never exist there. And yet because those poisonous, infamous mantraps have been permitted to curse the land, there are many people who dont want to disturb them here, altho they know they never did any good, not one time. Our young folks should think of these things and remember them.

DURING July the police made 1,998 arrests in San Francisco. Just think of it, all but 2000 people arrested in one month for violation of law, and doubtless ten times as many committed outrages for which they ought to have been arrested but were not. Now if we had no grogshops there would be very rarely any occasion to arrest any one. We never hear of a Good Templar being arrested nor a member of the Band of Hope. In Vineland and various other places where there is no poison school they dont ever have to arrest any body at all except it be now and then a stranger who comes there drunk from another place.

A little boy of our acquaintance was going past a liquor saloon—the door of which was wide open—with his dog Sport. The dog not knowing any better, went in; and his little master was soon after him, with the following piece of good advice; "Come out of there, Sport; dont be disgracing the family."—Ex.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

COSTLY IGNORANCE.

In a place of merchandize in San Francisco, a gentleman transacting some business last week, gave one of Dr. R. H. McDonald's handsomely got up circulars to a father and son of the concern and went out. A minute after the son opening his, and seeing the words alcohol and tobacco, handed it immediately to me saying, "here, that will suit you exactly, it's a temperance document." The answer was, "young man, that was specially intended to cure you of smoking and preserve you from other evil habits." Just then the father who had come from another part of the store, opened his circular, and as soon as he saw one word of it, he closed it sayiug to me, "here, this is just the thing you want, it is a temperance document." That was all probably that either of the two would have done with their circular: went no farther than to see it was about alcohol and tobacco. To the elder I answered, "It is not at all likely that Dr. McDonald designed that paper for me; but do you ever consider that because you and men like you wont read such things, a hundred thousand of our people go to a drunkard's grave, and as many more of the young and innocent like your boys are enlisted every year in the great army that is madly marching to perdition."

And thus the war goes on. A large proportion of temperance men dont want a temperance paper, tract or book, because they never drink a drop; and they never know anything about the principles of temperance; never work for it intelligently; never will vote for it, will never do anything to remove the curse of intemperance from the country until they learn something. The moderate drinkers dont want to read or hear or talk about temperance, because they "never get drunk; they know just where to stop; they can intelligently control their own actions. But from that class is recruited every single individual of the vast army, who in due time are found in the gutter, the poorhouse, the prison, the madhouse, the morgue, and who from the deck of the ferry boat or the end of the wharves at midnight, in their wild despair, plunge unbidden into the dark unknown of a hopeless eternity, and who darken every page of this city's daily history with a broad, dark, bloodstained mourning margin of sin and crime and tears and woes and miseries.

A third class resent the offer of a printed page of common sense, or a conversation upon the question of total abstinence as an impeachment of their character for sobriety. Many others are afraid to give any open countenance or express any open sympathy with the cause of sobriety and decency, lest they should incur the trifling loss of the business custom of a few outlaws who control or run the thief dens of the city. And a surprisingly large number of people of various classes secretly or openly hate temperance because they secretly or openly love a little intercourse with the spirit that dwells in the bottle.

And because of this ignorance our country groans under a weight of woe utterly beyond the power of language to describe. Our liberties, our Sabbath, our American civilization are in deadly peril of extinction. No American citizen can call his life safe an hour from the dagger or bullet of the assassin who is primed and loaded for murder in every grogshop every hour of the day.

Twice in 16 years the bullet of a drunken murderer, prepared for the job in the grogshop, has stricken down the President of this great Christian republic that draws its principal revenues from its chartered schools of crime and debauchery. The bullet and the dagger of the beer-crazed assassin and suicide have been doing their work every day for many years, making ordinary women and children widows and orphans, and it is not in the least strange that one of them should occasionally strike down a President as well.

This criminal ignorance occasions a greater loss and damage to our country every year than would result from the total loss of the entire wheat crop of the nation, beside all the loss of life and the debasement of our people. If men would read and think upon this most important of all subjects, we could destroy this infernal dragon that is devouring our people, body and soul. Our work is not only to provide temperance literature it seems, but in some instances at least to cram people with it as they supplement the appetites of certain fowls to prepare them for the market.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

IN THE Y. M. C. A,

"On Friday last the Secy. of the Y. M. C. A. at the noon meeting read a request for prayer for the Divine blessing upon the effort to be made to shut up the saloons on Sunday in this city. He read also the story of Nabal the churl, who was drunken and smitten of God.

He would pray and labor to close up the dram shops, but he firmly believed that the only efficient redemption from the curse of rum was in the power of God, given in answer to prayer. That was a sure remedy; it would cure every time. Rev. Dr. Gober prayed that the movement to close the rum shops might be aided by Almighty power and made so completely successful that not one of these nurseries of vice and crime should be left open on any day of the week, but especially on the Lord's day.

Rev Dr. Smith said that rum-selling was preeminently the work of the devil, and nothing was more essential for the temporal and eternal welfare of our citizens than to resrict and completely prevent, if possible, the dealing out of this destructive poison as was done in this city so freely on every day of the week.

Rev. Mr. Rowell said if God took charge of the work of reformation and gave it the aid of His Almighty power, it would be thoro but not otherwise. He did not engage in any halfway measures. Consecration must be complete. Mrs. Congdon of the Womans's Temperance Union spoke to similar effect. and several very earnest prayers for help were offered."—Examiner.

To pray for God's help to be added to human effort in this direction is every one's duty but it is to be hoped that no one really believes in this age of the world, that the only efficient redemption from the curse of rum is in the power of God given in answer to the prayer," of a people who neglect any one of a hundred human efforts and practical methods to remove the curse. If God would ever remove one fraction of the liquor curse in answer to the prayers of a few or many people, while the nation, praying and otherwise, continues to license 250.000 temples consecrated to the worship of Satan and Moloch, he would have done it in the women's crusade. But he never yet shut up one grogshop on those terms.

Whenever we accept or establish the position that the prayers of christian people avail nothing, and that God is not a hearer and answerer of prayer according to and fully up to all that has been so distinctly and repeatedly promised in the old and new Scriptures, we shall brand the whole christian system as a delusion, for if such an important pillar of it is baseless, it is all unreliable.

But in the matter ef prayer it is worth while to have some reverence for Him who is to answer prayer. If without using every human effort within our own power to remove an evil and which we would have to use if there were no God at all———we assume that we can ever induce the Almighty to overlook our idleness and guiltiness and remove it for us——or help us at all to remove it in that way—we belittle our God to the character with which the untaught heathen invest their idols of wood and stone. The Creator never sent us a grogshop and he will never remove one; but he makes the prisons and courts and asylums and tombstones call upon us with a thousand voices every day not to pray but to do something to remove the grogshop and the altars of Baal from his sight. It is man's work to do this, just as it is to sow his wheat. When he has done his part of the work, he can consistently ask God's blessing upon his labor and effort. But to sit idle and pray that our wheat shall grow for us, or that our grogshops and satan altars shall be removed for us, are parallel mockeries of God.

This is what the Rev. Mr. Simmons of this city says upon the subject in his tract just issued.

Will this thing never end? Is there no remedy? Standing in the presence of all this misery, crime, and woe, with the pulse of agony throbbing like the beat of ocean billows, I tell you NO, until you make up your minds to put a stop to it.

The matter rests with the people, They can have just what they like. Cry no more of your helplessness; but rouse you in your might and strike down this foe to your peace, this enemy of righteousness, this child of sin and Satan. Shout to the charge! summon every good man and woman in the land to the conflict, and stay not your hand until your banner lifted by every breeze, shall display victory inscribed on its folds, and the hearts of a nation beating high with the joy of deliverance.

JUSTICE.

The Signal says that during the absence of Secy. Windom from Washington, a Mr. Benjamin Munn of Chicago appeared there lately as attorney for 12 whisky firms who had judgments rendered against them under Secretary Bristow five or six years ago for $240,000. He proposes to settle the cases for ten dollars apiece. Contrary to their expectation, the matter has been referred to Secretary Windom.

It is a singular thing that these men who were found guilty of perjury, robbery, bribing revenue officers, conspiring against the government etc., and only fined perhaps one hundredth part of the sum, out of which they had swindled the government, should have been let alone for five or six years without being made to pay up their fines.

Mr Wm. E Dodge of New York had to hand over $272,000 a little while previously to the whisky frauds. He had not defrauded the government of a cent nor intended to, but his clerks had made careless entries, by which Phelps, Dodge & Co had overpaid about $1200 of duties and underpaid about $240 in a series of four or five year's heavy importations. No credit was given for the $1200 overpaid, but the invoices of the goods upon which the $240 shortages of duties had occurred, amounted to $544,000, and by a legal technicality that amount was forfeited to the U. S. The matter was compromised by Phelps, Dodge & Co. consenting to pay one-half the amount immediately rather than stand suit and chances of confiscation of the full amount.

That was because they were a grand and noble house of temperance, Christian people. Had they been thieves and perjurers and conspirators and public poisoners, doubtless they could have got off by paying ten dollars after a five or ten years' respite.

If Secy .Windom makes a dollar of deduction from the claim of the U. S. upon these rottenest of scoundrels and ruffians, the money exacted from Phelps, Dodge and Co. ought to be refunded with interest and compensation for injustice, and our jails and penitentaries should all be left wide open and let all the prisoners go free, including Guiteau. If the meanest of all the thieves and scoundrels are suffered by the U. S. to commit the vilest crimes with impunity, we should allow the lesser and poorer criminals exactly equal treatment.

THE WINE INTEREST.

NO. EIGHT.

SEBASTOPOL, SONOMA, County Cal. July, 1881.

The appended letter is so clear so true, so important to California readers, so fully accords with my own observations, I respectfully ask its publication in the RESCUE and if you can concur, will people atttentively read and consider it. I clip it from the Christian Advocate, New York.

J. L. BURCHARD.

MORALITY IN THE WINE-PRODUCING SECTIONS OF CALIFORNIA.

BY THE REV. R. E. WENK.

The statement is often made that the general use of pure native wine will tend to reduce drunkenness, and indirectly promote the cause of temperance. Reference is occasionally made to the wine-producing regions of France and California in support of such an assertion. Permit a few observations made in the principal wine-producing counties of California. The practice of moderate drinking in these sections is well-nigh general. Almost all drink.

It is difficult for any one to entirely abstain. Strangers entering these localities fall into the practice almost unawares. But the observation elsewhere is found to be true here. Moderate drinking leads to excessive drinking—perhaps not in every case, but in a sufficiently large number of instances to warrant alarm. To note effects, your attention need but be directed to the families of the sections spoken of, and who tolerate the practice mentioned. Out of almost every such family one or more members go to ruin. There are wrecks in almost every household. It may be a father who besots himself from the produce of his own vineyard. He may be a man of wealth and of prominence, and yet be a bloated, dissipated man. It is no uncommon sight to see such a spectacle. Wealth and prominence can secure no one against such effects. Lessening influence is ever to be seen, and when death overtakes, even the wealth is often found to have been largely wasted. Perhaps it is a promising son who goes to ruin. Instances are not rare where sons have become wrecks of manhood in consequence of a taste acquired from the produce of their own homes. Many a debauchee to be seen in these regions is out of a family which presumes to respectability and prominent social standing. Nor are the women of the communities referred to exempt from the blight of this sin. There is a blot—a dark spot—to be found upon the history of almost every family.

One prominent wine-grower in order to secure their safety from evil influence, removed his own children from his home. Allusion to the effect on the young men in these regions has already been made. It is a matter of common remark that the class growing into manhood is of a very unpromising character. There is a tendency to worthlessness and dissipation. Saloons abound, and form the general place of resort. Hardly one seems to be imbued with a noble purpose in life, and with a desire to be of importance in the world. The future looks doleful. The class who make the wine will serve as an illustration. The cellar-men are in general an unreliable and untrustworthy set. They are usually Americans, debased through drink, or a low class of foreigners. French, Italians, Portuguese, and Indians make hands in these places. They are of a low grade of morals as well as intelligence, Their sobriety can rarely be depended upon, and it is the testimony of cellar-masters that it is with difficulty a company of men can be obtained upon whom they can rely. They will be absent, unfit for work, and generally unreliable much of the time.

The general influence around a cellar is of such a character that no mother desires her sons to be often there.

In reference to the plea often made that cheap, pure wines are not of an intoxicating character, and that their general use would lessen the amount of drunkenness, the reverse is the truth.

The California wines are of an exciting character, and their use inflames the user sooner than almost any other kind of liquor. Their effects on the brain are also striking, by rendering a person wilder and more frantic. It is a common observation that "wine drunkards," as they are called, are more maddened than any other class. Even when the delirium is gone the brain seems affected, and the individual is less rational and sensible on account of the use of this wine. The fruit of the vine in California seems to curse everything it touches.

What is the effect upon the state of religion in such sections? It need hardly be said that it languishes. There is a general opposition. There is a tacit resentment to its benign influence, because it conflicts with selfish personal interests. There is a hardened religious sense that is unapproachable to piety. There is little interest of any kind in the Church. There is a general barrier to all religious progress. Spiritual reformation is almost hopeless. The Churches, are, therefore, weak, and are almost barred from ever gathering strength. Such an industry is not merely negatively evil in being free from good qualities, but it is positively pernicious in its effects upon the moral and spiritual interests of the people.

CALIFORNIA WINES LOOKING UP.

The New York Tribune has some cheering remarks about the increased consumption of California wines at the East. It appears that the failure of the French vineyards has resulted in so reckless a manufacture of spurious wines in that country as to break down the reputation of them altogether. The French wine-doctors, in their desperation, and perhaps also in their contempt for the discriminating faculties of their customers, has been putting forth such abominable decoctions that they have destroyed their own market. And as it was known that they were using large quantities of California wines in their unholy processes, the American public are coming to the conclusion that it may be better to drink this wine undoctored. Consequently the demand for it is rapidly increasing, and attention once turned to it we have no doubt that it will command a legitimate market. The chief danger arising from this access of prosperity is, as the Tribune points out, the danger of spurious wine manufacture in this country. There is also danger that some of our viticulturists may be tempted to put on crude and unfit vintages upon the market. All this kind of thing should of course be prevented whenever possible, but no doubt the chief safeguard will be competition, which must secure to the most skilful and conscientious wine-growers the reputation and the public confidence which are necessary to permanent success in this industry.—Chronicle.

What an exceedingly comprehensive opaqueness of mentality takes possession of wine-advocates, wine-drinkers and wine-devoted journals. To suppose that French wine-doctors use large quantities of California wine in their unholy processes, when there is plenty of sugar, starch, potatoes, beets, rum, British spirits, Dutch gin, etc., on hand at a nominal cost, is parallel to the suspicion that the sawmills at Guerneville and Mendocino County and Puget Sound are in the habit of importing from France large quantities of redwood lumber and Norway pine to adulterate their lumber with, when they have an abundance of the cheapest material right on hand of their own. As well suspect the Chinese of importing leaves from Patagonia to adulterate their tea, when China is covered with leafy foliage to the water's edge. It is exceedingly stupid in anyone now-a-days to suppose that the highest priced brands and qualities of every kind of wines and liquors cannot be produced in any wine-dealer's cellar, with a perfection of imitation that nothing but a rigid chemical analysis can ever detect. And it is doubtful whether these things ought to be called frauds, for they possess in perfection all the qualities that have any value in the original liquors. They make exactly the same drunk, and idiocy, and lust, and imbecility, and proneness to violent crime.

It would be pleasant, in connection with these stories of California wines used in France, to hear of one authentic instance of a shipment of as much as five barrels of wine of any description to France that did not come back directly in the same unbroken packages, as a blind to indicate that somebody was actually importing French liquors.

It is a well-known fact that large quantities of American cider, whisky and champagne is being always sent to France, returned paying duties and sold as exquisite French. Well, no folly is too great for anyone who yields to the all-comprising folly of poisoning his brain and senses.

MR. ROBERT HOWE.

FOR MAYOR OF SAN FRANCISCO.

The coming election in this city affords every temperance and Christian voter an opportunity to canvass for votes for the election of Mr. Howe. The respectable portion of the political opponents of Mr, Howe attempted to show that by reason of certain votes of his in the legislature on matters of minor importance, people ought not to vote for him to be mayor; but even they are obliged to qualify their opposition by the admission that Mr. Howe's personal record is perfect, and but for these one or two votes, there would be no objection to him, save of course that he is a nominee of the Democrats. Thus he is virtually endorsed by his opponents.

But Mr. Howe has showed that on the most momentous question that ever came before the legislature, he voted honestly, conscientiously, patriotically and intelligently. He voted for the local option law in 1874, which merely proposed to allow the people to decide by vote whether they should have or not have dens of crime everywhere to skin and rob and kill American citizens and fill the land with jailbirds and debauched criminals.

For this act the grocer's Protective Union, that means a ring of people who make and sell poisonous drinks to men, women and children: a ring of Republicans, Democrats etc. declare that Mr. Howe must be defeated.

The principle is boldly asserted by this association of conspirators against law and order and Sunday, that no man can be elected to office in this city on any ticket, who has a virtuous action on his record in the past seven years.

Several years ago Mr. Howe was placarded in this city by the beer dives and dens of infamy for the same reason, but never the less he led his ticket and was elected, and it is to be hoped he will be again.

There is every assurance of Mr. Howe's honest, faithful record and purity of purpose, and it is of the highest importance that our mayor should be such a man, while his being Democratic or Republican is of very minor importance save to a few office seekers.

All good virtuous people should make very strict inquisition of their consciences on this matter and be sure to do right for the reason that it is right. It would seem the duty of all good citizens to put in the ballot box an emphatic protest against this rule of a criminal rabble, and that protest is a vote for Mr. Howe.

A QUESTION FOR ZACH MONTGOMERY.

"Zach Montgomery is still fighting the public school system. He gave a lecture in St. Joseph's Hall one evening last week. He claimed that the present system was an infringement on paternal rights and was being opposed all over the land by leading church thinkers. He said the prisons are full of criminals who were first educated in crime in the public schools."—Post.

Suppose we grant that the criminals who are in jail and have been educated in the public schools, owe their criminality to the public school system. And suppose we grant that therefore the public school is a mistake and should be abolished. Then follow up your mode of treating statistics and you find there are in the alms house of the city 238 Irish born citizens of a total of 564 admitted. Forty two percent of the whole number Irish Catholics. And of the 404 foreign born inmates it is fair to suppose from their nationalities at least 309 are catholics against 92 protestants.

The showing of the prison statistics in the United States and Canada present the singular fact that an altogether monstrous and conspicuously excessive proportion of the deliberate serions crime perpetrated in this country is due to the people who profess Mr. Zachs religious faith, who were the least frequenters of the public school or any school. That a most enormous proportion of the occupants of our prisons, penitentiaries, lunatic asylums, as in the case of the San Francisco almshouse are of that faith and had only enjoyed the advantages of the so called religious schools, which he hopes to see stunt and stupify and dwarf the children of this country and make them obedient tools of a foreign despotism, which assumes unlimited mastery of the soul, body and conscience.

Again wherever the same church, which is anxious to teach us how to run our public schools, has had unlimited control of the school system and every other system for centuries, there the largest amount of ignorance and crime and pauperism and beggary in the world are to be found. And Ireland which furnishes such a quota to our criminal population is the most virtuous of all Catholic countries. And the French Catholics of Canada, a Catholic people, surrounded everywhere by protestant neighbors in a protestant country are infinitely above any Catholic people of Catholic countries in chastity and moral behavior.

Therefore the question is, does not your argument, in calling for the abolition of the public school system, demand with seven fold force the abolition of the Catholic church on the same ground? The RESCUE does not put that question; it is Mr. Zach's. No one who is not either wilfully or stupidly and idiotically blind, can fail to know that our public grogshops are the source of all the crime and beggary in the country, and if we had not a peculiarly excellent school system, and a peculiarly excellent system of teachers too, we could never hope to raise anything but criminals while we have 5000 training schools actively disseminating vice and crime and theft and all nastiness, night and day thruout the year.

It is hardly fair to close without saying that whenever the Irish or Northern European is completely divorced from his allegiance to the whisky and beer bottle and has mixed a few years a sober man with the sober protestant people who have been trained in the public schools of America, he makes a thoroly good citizen and is never found in the criminal list.

The tracks of the serpent are so visible in all the assaults made upon the school system, that most people think it unworthy their attention to notice them. But it is never wise to underrate the strength of a relentless enemy or leave any point unguarded for him to undermine.

From a letter of a very earnest sister Good Templar the following items are selected:

I have five in family, raise three hundred chickens have sheepshearers three times a year, have headers and threshers once a year, and have just got thru drying and canning fruit. I do all my work myself, my husband helping occasionally. When I can get a little spare time I canvass for the RESCUE. I love to work for the temperance cause; no one could hire me to do it but I will work for it all my life gratis. I am not done with ——— yet; am going there again, was surprised to find not one Good Templar there taking the RESCUE. I told them all they seemed to want was burying, and when it got cool we would come down from ——— and do it if they did not wake up on the temperance question. They all want prohibition and expect to get it, and go to sleep over it at the same time. I wonder what kind of a campaign they think the Democrats, Republicans or Greenbackers would make if no one took a paper or ever read about politics; what do they know about temperance when they never read a word about it?

Any whisky bloat can tell them that prohibition is done away with in Kansas and they, Good Templars, cant contradict it, because they dont know anything to the contrary, I dont see how they know who they would like to vote for, Neal Dow or Dennis Kearney, if they wont read.

Now I believe the circulation of the RESCUE will do more for the temperance cause than anything else; if we can get people to take it in their homes and read it quietly every week, it will convert more people for temperance than anything else we can get. I think if a good smart canvasser was constantly employed for the RESCUE it would be of utmost benefit to our order. That is a matter of much importance; every one that has taken it from me is very much pleased with it, but only a few of them ever knew there was such a paper in circulation. * * * *

TEMPERANCE PARTIES.

The Little Rock Banner says the action of the last Arkansas legislature, proved the Democratic a temperance party there. That seems to be so and there is no need of a separate party there. An impression still clings to many people, that the Republican party in the northern states or elsewhere is friendly to temperance. The only reason they can advance for the assertion is that there are so many more temperance men Republicans than Democrats. That is true without doubt, but the temperance men in the Republican party are as completely disabled, while in it, from giving any help to the cause of temperance or prohibition, as if their party had them every one locked up in a dungeon 1000 feet underground.

The engineers of the Republican party, unfortunately for its future, persist in trying to secure both the whisky and the temperance vote, but the whisky vote at all hazards. Now every one knows that not one whisky vote will stay with a party that permits a temperance ticket or a temperance plank or principle to have the least countenance. If the temperance and moral and christian voters would as rigidly adhere to the principle of right in their political action as the rummies do to the principle of wrong, the Republican party would probably decide to espouse the cause of the virtuous American citizenship and live, rather than commit suicide by a continued alliance with the foreign criminal outlawry.

And now we find that prohibition has been beaten in North Carolina not by republican liquor sellers or by a few republicans, but by the republican party, headed by the State committee who issued a campaign address against prohibition and fought it out too. The Democratic Governor and leading democrats were strenuous advocates of prohibition: so were the preachers, mostly democrats. But the Federal officials and republican leaders and the money bags of the whisky thieves carried the day: they made the ignorant negroes believe that prohibition was a democratic measure for their oppression &c.

For this infernal act, all good people should hope that whatever may happen in the South this may be the last victory the republicans will ever have, south of Mason and Dixon's line. And if it should never have a victory again anywhere else, nobody would be the worse except a few who, like Conkling and his supporters and apologists, know no definition of patriotism but that which begins with $. The atrocity of this republican crime is much the greater because there was no party issue in the contest; its work was volunteer devilishness, inherent vileness.

EDITOR RESCUE;—A dispatch dated Aug. 16th and published in all the city papers of to-day, after speaking of the President's failing condition and the fact that Attorney General McVeagh had given up all hope of his recovery, adds: "It is said by some who should know that the disturbed condition of the stomach is largely due to the free use of brandy in the past. The President himself protested against this as liquor is very distasteful to him, but the physicians have thought necessary to administer it in order to maintain his strength. It is upon the stomach that the physicians have relied and must rely to build the President up," If the President dies thru weakness of the stomach induced by the incessant dosing with brandy who will be responsible? AGAINST MY RULE.

A few evenings since two comrades clad in the uniform of Uncle Sam's men-of-war men went into the barroom adjacent to one of the theaters of San Francisco. It was Saturday night and the two having presumedly obtained liberty to come ashore and see some of the sights; had been into the theater and witnessed part of the performance, and, as is apparently the rule during the interval between acts, had gone out to "see a friend." One of the sailors was a man of about thirty years of age, the other a young man of about nineteen or twenty: the elder was somewhat under the influence of liquor he had imbibed during the last few hours, the young man perfectly sober.

Upon arriving in front of the bar, the elder, whose treat it was, called for a glass of whisky, the young manasked for soda. He was coaxed to take wine, beer etc.; but with a firmness somewhst remarkable declined doing so. The bar keeper interposed and even filled a glass of beer, shoving it over to him: but the young fellow replied loud enough to be heard by all around: "It's against my rule to drink even heer, and I'll take my soda." He had his soda, and it is to be hoped that the firmness so heroically illustrated thus early in life while surrounded by temptation will ever be a characteristic of this gallant boy in blue as the years roll over his head. He will learn what a benefit and blessing it is to have a will of his own to be displayed in the cause of right. Integrity, faithfulness and honor will ever be his thru life. How many young men would have had the courage to stand out firmly against companions and strangers and refuse the demon cup? PORTHOS.

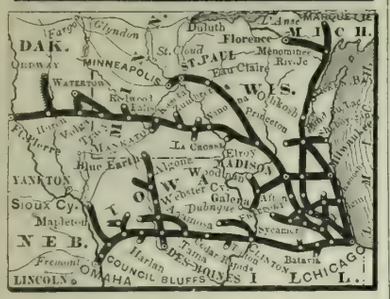
CINCHONA RUBRA.

Some oue requests a republication of the material proposed as a remedy for the disease of alcoholic appetite, which after a long search is found in the RESCUE of April 7th. 1881. It is here reproduced. Apply to James Divine No 214 Kearney St, San Francisco, for an 8 oz bottle of the mixture: take a tablespoonfull three times a day before eating until six ounces have been taken: save the rest for emergencies; carry 3 or 4 teaspoonfuls in a vial in your pocket, Never go without it, At any time the desire for liquor returns take a dose. For any further particulars address L. W. Simmons Fishermans Bay Sonoma Co. Cal. Some men declare this a humbug, but Mr. S. says he knows 4 or 5 reliable men cured by it. If it could do good, let it by all means. But there is one piece of advice which all victims of the cup reclaimed by any means should ever bear in mind. All things are possible, but never believe yourself, while on this side of Heaven, so cured that you can risk going into the way of the tempter. If you do you are never safe.

WHAT EXTRAVAGANCE COSTS.

An acre of government land costs $1. 25. A drinking saloon hanger-on will easily consume five ten-cent drinks or ten five-cent drinks per day. In two and half days he has swallowed an acre of as fine land as "lays out of doors." If he averages two days and a half of loafing per week, he consumes a fair-sized farm every year, If his tobacco and cigars average a trifle over half as much, he has squandered a quarter section. And these are the men who in cities can find nothing to do, are continually complaining of hard times, desert their families when the wife cannot earn enough to keep them in liquor or refuses to give them more, and overrun the country with tramps. It is these men who are fostering communism and fasten themselves upon every honest movement of labor for reforms in hours of work or for needed and just demands for better wages. Who can have any great amount of sympathy for a man who swallows a garden patch in the morning before breakfast, and who whines for bread before sunset?—Folsom Telegraph.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17, 1881..



EDITOR RESCUE:—I see you have at your masthead the name of Neal Dow for president in 1884. Now I do not write to complain of that but to inquire why it is not quite as important that we do something for temperance in 1881 as 1884. We are to have an election next month in this city, and why not make a start now and save some from a drunkard's grave before 1884? Yours truly.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo, 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen nd in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAITURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c.; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL AND HYGIENE.—By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

LETTER FROM C. H. PETERSON, S. D.

San Francisco, Aug. 21, 1881.

I have had a very pleasant trip to Tulare county; At the town of Hanford business is very lively; one brick building has been erected and another is about to be. Many wooden buildings are being put up; the town has more than doubled in size in the last twelve months. The hotels are not sufficient for the accomodation of the public. The Hanford house is the best, and is a temperance house. Another first class hotel would find patronage in this place.

Grangeville and Lemoore are also improving; the whole Mussel slough country is bound to prosper, as it is adapted not only for grain raising, but is unexcelled for fruit &c. Visalia is holding its own, one of the oldest towns in the county.

Porterville is a small town on the banks of Tule river, 31 miles southeast from Visalia. A lodge was organized in March last by Bro. Crowhurst; the W. C. T., Bro. Redd informed me they had increased in membership and are doing pretty well. I met Bro. W. H Gillstrap, L. D. of St. John Lodge: both agreed that a lecturer was needed much in their respective localities to stir up the people, that Plano and Woodville were also in need of temperance work, and that about the middle of September would be a good time. Bro. Zumwalt, L, D. of Visalia lodge informed me that his lodge is doing well, membership 108. The Mussel slough, and in fact the whole county of Tulare needs stiring up. I understand the Dist Attorney of the county has notified the storekeepers and others in Porterville that they must close up their business on the Sabbath. There is a movement all over the country to that effect. The Good Templars I understand are trying to have the law enforced. Town of Colusa closes up all public places on the Sabbath.

VENTURA.

The temperance boom continues since Sister Stevens gave us such a good stirring up. All the lodges old and new are doing well.

Our District Lodge was in session two days of last week at Santa Paula, there was a good attendance, and we trust that much good was accomplished.

Bro. L. C. Clark of Hueneme was recommended for D. D. for the ensuing year, and a fraternal delegate to attend the Santa Barbara D. L.

A resolution was unanimously adopted to have a committee appointed consisting of one brother and one sister from each subordinate lodge, to draft a request asking the saloon keepers to close their houses of business on Sundays.

The District attorney has promised to do his duty in the matter, and now if the Supreme court will do right we can accomplish something.

Another resolution was passed asking the G. L. Executive Committee for a lecturer for southern California.

The Rev. S. S. Fisk D. D. of Santa Barbara Co., was present, and delivered a very interesting lecture on Wednesday evening to a large and appreciative audience.

The next session of the Ventura county D. L. will meet at Huene me in October.

We now have eight lodges and 455 members in the county, an increase of four lodges and 324 members since Sister Stevens' timely visit in May. This shows what can be accomplished by earnest work, like she always does, she enconraged us to start a Temperance Coffee House, which was done; it is succeeding better than we had expected.

On the 4th and 5th of July the sporting part of the community had horseracing, and offered the refreshment stand to the coffee house directors for less than a wholesale liquor dealer had offered them for it. The proposition was accepted with the promise that no liquor should be sold on the grounds. So the ladies went to the race track both days and sold ice cream, strawberries, etc., etc. with tea and coffee.

It proved a grand success both morally and financially: there was not an arrest made either day and not a single fight occurred on the grounds. Such an occurrence surprises even the oldest inhabitant, as it never was known before.

We have a Band of Hope with over one hundred members, Mrs. C. W. Bard the Superintendent, takes great pains with the children to make the meetings interesting.

Constance and Hueneme Lodges hold public installations 5th and 6th, and Bro. Webb is on the ground. Myra Walbridge, D. S.

A REMARKABLE REVOLUTION.

The success of the Literary Revolution in producing a Cyclopedia, the largest ever published in this country, in large type, well printed and bound, at the nominal cost of $15, seemed to the majority of book-buyers so remarkable that the second Literary Revolution, which reduces the cost of this most excellent work to $10, seems almost incredible. The facts of the case are, however, made so evident and so reasonable, that there can be no questioning them. We have in this office some of the volumes which demonstrate their superior character in every way, and the facts and figures which are published in detail in an article to appear this week in this paper, under the title of "A Second Literary Revolution," show very clearly, through very surprisingly, how it is possible to make such an extremely valuable and costly Cyclopædia accessible to the masses at such trifling cost.

To remove any possible incredulity which might exist in the minds of some that this is only a plausible scheme for getting a large amount of money in small sums from a great many individuals, in return for books which might never be delivered, the publishers do not require any payment whatever in advance. You may, if you please, simply send your order by postal card, and make no payment except upon the delivery of the goods themselves, and after you have examined them and found them satisfactory. Orders should be sent to the publishers at once, in order to secure the special terms given during the month of August.

DOINGS OF ALCOHOL.

For one week as reported in a single daily paper. Beginning with 13th inst we have watched the reports in one of the dailies; and this is the result. —S. * *

1. "A dead body found at Benicia, he had been in a drunken condition for weeks."
2. Two men and one woman sentenced to three months in the House of Correction for drunkenness.
3. A man made drunk and robbed of $70.
4. A father and daughter constantly drunk, the daughter dies, whether from liquor or violence on the part of her drunken father does not clearly appear; father held for manslaughter in $10,000 bond.
5. A man fined $20 for drunkenness.
6. A man in Napa commits suicide who was "disolute and intemperate."
7. A man in Santa Barbara "found dead with a demijohn by his side."
8. A drunken individual runs off with another man's rockaway with three wheels.
9. A drunken man arrested while brandishing his knife in close proximity to the face of his drunken companion.
10. In a letter from the Arctic tells of great destruction of life among the Esquimaux. It says "According to the closest estimate no less than one thousand have died from starvation, It is alleged that the introduction of liquor by illicit traders caused this sad state of affairs. One place had 15 left out of a population of 200. Another had dead bodies lying around like the remains of a battle field. At another several hundred bodies could be seen. In one house 16 dead bodies were found, in another 30.
11. In Arizona one man shot and killed another while drunk.
12. A drunken brother, in this city beats his sister. robbing her of her money and keeping her locked in a room.
13. An officer held to answer for killing a man while he (the officer) was on a drunken spree.
14. A man fined $20 a woman $10 for drunkenness.

And assuredly the crimes and horrors that get into the papers and are made public are only one per cent or one per thousand of the crimes, cruelties, agonies and human tortures inflicted upon our people directly by the infamous rum fiends who live by shedding the blood and blasting the souls of our citizens. These things we read of, are only occasional, visible sparks form a vast unseen furnace of smoldering but ever actively consuming human agonies.

A Brewery, in 93rd St. New York lately had an explosion of malt dust, which blew off the roof and part of the front and made a bill of damages of $60,000 suspending the diabolical operations of the concern for sometime; all of which is good news: hope the malt dust will act just so, only more so, in every other brewery.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institu ion. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. IN MEMORIAM.

WORKMAN.—In Los Angeles Aug. 17th, Walter B. Workman, eldest son of E. H. Workman, aged 14 years and 10 days.

The deceased was a worthy and promising member of Merrill Lodge, No. 299, I. O. G. T. The lodge passed resolutions of condolence.

WANTED.

WANTED — Employment, as bookkeeper, shipping clerk, salesman, or other similar occupation. Address "GOOD TEMPLAR." office of the RESCUE.

A young man speaking French and German fluently, has the highest recommendations and is a Good Templar, desires employment in a store or warehouse. Willing to give a trial service on very moderate terms. Address W. RESCUE Office.

A FEW copies of the Proceedings of the recent National Temperance Convention at Saratoga, for sale at this office, 25 cents each; sent free by mail. Every Good Templar ought to have one.

D. O. WILKINS. now of the Washingtonian Home Chicago, and well known to the regular attendants at R. W. G. L. found out the RESCUE office a few days ago, having made a flying visit to the State. Bro. W's little visit was like a spell of very pleasant sunshine.

RECRIMINATION.—Some Good Templars of Pleasant Grove have been airing in the Sutter Farmer the circumstances of a trouble that arose in Defiance Lodge. No possible benefit can arise from such discussions. If a local paper affords space to Good Templars, it can be filled with a hundred other matters more agreeable to both editor and readers and more useful to everybody. Better tell the public something cheerful; nobody is edified with quarrel topics.

The Rev. Dr. Norman McLeod, a large, fleshy man in company with a slight diminutive companion was crossing one of the northern friths or straits of Scotland in an open boat. A violent storm arose and the boatmen were making little headway against it, tho rowing with all their might. A female passenger called upon the doctor to pray that they might be able to reach the shore, but the head boatman said, "no, no, let the little fellow pray, but the big man must take that oar if we are to save our lives."

MY END.—In tacking ship the mates plase iz forward and the kaptanz aft. On wun okasion in beeting up a harbor, the mate ov a skuner hallood tu the kaptan, that if he did not put the vessel about, she wud soon be aground. The kaptan answered, "you look out for your end ov the vessel and I will look out for my end." The mate seeing the shore quite klose and observing that the kaptan had bin looking thru the rong glass that da, at wunce let go the ankor. "Hwat du yu meen by that, sir?" sed the angry skipper. I hav taken kare ov my end ov the ship, az yu ordered, sir," replied the mate.

DEAN STANLEY who died lately, and his father Bishop Stanley, are both remembered with peculiar veneration for their entirely christian friendship for good people of other christian denominations, and for their entire absence of sectarian bigotry. The Watchword says they were both Good Templars except that they were not strict abstainers and were not initiated, (a rather serious exception) but "no two men ever acted more practically as brothers of mankind." Perhaps the best of the many tributes at the Dean's funeral was a wreath on the coffin from the French residents of London, inscribed "to the valiant apostle of friendship." But what a pity such a grand man should have been of those who thru a long life, "pass by on the other side" of the conflict between the kingdom of rum and the kingdom of God, however much their sympathies may be enlisted in favor of humanity.

SANTA CRUZ.—Some weeks ago the Transcript contained a protest from Mrs. Congdon against the proposed disbanding of the W. C. T. U. in Santa Cruz. There is evidently a widely spread temperance sentiment there; the moral tone of society is presumed to be away above the average; a temperance paper appears to be well sustained, which itself does large credit to the moral sentiment of the people, and the S. of T. hold the fort there. But the Good Templar Lodge, tho the first one of the State was planted in Santa Cruz 26 years ago, has never been able to live beyond a few months for about ten years past. If the Sons keep well alive the necessity for other similar societies may not exist, but there certainly ought to be a W. C. T. U. or an organization of women. That ought to flourish and find not only first class material for its membership, but material enough outside to work upon, to call into play a lively energy. To clear Santa Cruz of the dens of crime it has, is an enterprize worthy the efforts of all who desire to be engaged in the most noble and useful work which can employ a christian or philanthropist of the present day.

FARM.—A rare chance is offered to purchase at a small price a magnificent home in Los Angeles Co., which can be doubtless improved ere long to the value of three times the price now asked for it. See ad on page 691. Farm for sale. Hope some reader of the RESCUE will buy that farm and have the best of luck with it.

BRO J. J. Porter of Modesto is after enough scalps for the RESCUE to get a library of Universal Knowledge, for the library of his Band of Hope and he will have them to report in a few days. That looks like a good starter for a Juvenile organization, that will be of immense advantage to the elder members of it. It is more painfully evident every day that temperance organizations of seniors or juveniles which dont educate and instruct themselves and their communities, afford a large amount of patronage to the undertaker.

MICHIGAN BLUFF. Aug. 21.

ED. RESCUE:—A petition of this form is being circulated in our town to-day, having emanated from Crystal Water Lodge, I. O. G. T last evening.

To the business men of Michigan Bluff — Greeting.—By these undersigned you are each earnestly and kindly petitioned to observe section 300 of the Penal code of California which provides as follows: (Here follows the section.)

The petition is being almost universally signed, with the exception of those who keep the low class of saloons, who prove by their refusal to frankly sign it that they are doing a business which is in open violation of God's laws and California's codes.

However the action will be the means of stirring up the general mind and creating a public sentiment which will enable a jury and the judge, who is a clear minded, conscientious and just man, to carry out and maintain the just feeling of every good law abiding resident of the county.

LOVE.

God is love—a spirit which created all.
And doth create and save.
Is there that liveth heareth not His call.
Or seeks not love from cradle unto grave?
Behold the newborn babe! The feeble wail.
Incipient plea for love.
Nor man nor angel tongue, but echo frail
Of voice of God above.

Yea; pleading ever with his creatures least.
God asketh, seeketh His.
Yea, crucified, he spreadeth richest feast.
And beckon'th all to partake of love's bliss.
Eternal life and love; angelic state
Awaiteth soul of thine;
Couldst thou but trust; aye, gain a grain of faith
In God—in love divine.

J. C. K.

SCRIPTURAL INCONSISTENCIES

In letter, yes. Mortal tongue has never learned to portray even inspired thoughts. We yet labor among the brickyards of Babel.

But are we more fortunate in expressing hopes and aspirations pertaining to political, philosophical or other uninspired topics? Let us see.

The Declaration of Independence is a very popular instrument. We have learned to regard it as the emancipation proclamation of political and religious slavery. The spirit thereof aims to publish liberty untrammeled by nothing but individual or collective self government. The pursuit of our happiness is free—according to the letter therein—to elect ways and means, aims and objects, according to pleasure.

Now let us add the Spencerian philosophy that human hope, progress and acts are solely guided by whatever affords the most pleasure — dispensing thus, of course with faith in and allegiance to Divine law and revealed truth. And Jones may extirminate (or seek to) the rest of the human family, because Jones imagines that whatever interferes with his ideal of supreme will and pleasure, freedom and liberty; has no right to exist.

In fact there is no crime or atrocity committed but it is in pursuit of happiness–happiness as conceivable to the evil of the human heart.

We challenge any one to improve on the letter and spirit of the accepted word of God. If words and idioms change their meaning with abuse of them, surely nothing is to blame but the inconsistency of the human tongue. If the spirit of the gospel is lost in sceptic analyzation of the letter, nothing is blameable but the inability of the interpreter to see, or the vacancy of his heart to conceive what must be felt to be realized.

How can I believe what I dont understand? says our intellectual babe—in the swaddling bands of spiritual infancy. Suppose you commence on the ten commandments, the golden rule and the Lord's Prayer. It is not convenient to tackle Latin or Greek before having mastered the A B C in your mother tongue. Dont try to wear your father's boots while there is danger of your being lost between the stitches.

J, C. Kastner.

San Diego Aug 23rd, 1881.

Editor Rescue.—The last number of the Rescue (18th,) is full of good meat; yesterday being Sunday I read the paper thruout, advertizements and all and I can truly say I am proud of the paper you are making; it is a credit to our Order and to the cause of temperance, I marked certain articles as particularly thoughtful, pointed and practical, and I shall speak of them at the meeting of our Golden Rule Lodge to-morrow night; I hope the authors of those articles will "Keep up their lick" for I believe they will produce big results in the near future, I refer to "Appeal to the voters of California" by Rev. G. W. Fitch, "Political" by John Woods, "District work" by H. H. Peckinpah.

I feel obliged to Brother Peckinpah for the information he has imparted as to the growth of the Order, and altho as he says, constant reverses have been met, yet the growth has been sure; I cannot exactly agree with him as to the means to be used to solidify and make permanent the work; If a few grand Lecturers such as Mrs. Stevens can go thru the country as she did here, and stir up the "boom" she did, and it shall continue as well as her work has done here, and if as I see by the reports she collects a large amount of money more than is paid her, then I think she should be kept in the field all the time; and if she has not strength to go all around, why let us look up more lecturers of first class talent, pay those who travel according to their success in gathering sheaves, so that as often as every six months and perhaps once in three months it could be announced in every Lodge in the State that at a certain date open Lodge would be held under the auspices of a Grand Lecturer, in this way a constant active life in the Order would be maintained.

Let it be distinctly understood that Lecturers should be paid in proportion to their success and the financial part of the business would regulate itself, the Grand Lodge always of course guaranteeing a mimium of compensation to its lecturers, but with no limit in the scale the other way, and this policy will excite the greatest emulation and the very best effort.

I strongly concur with Brothers Fitch and Woods in their suggestions and appeals to the voters of the State. Temperance must make itself felt at the polls, we must achieve a political success of some sort if we are to be a power, and we must begin now and agitate the matter, we must be early in the field with our force in '82, we can shape the politics of the State, we can elect the Governor if we go at it with courage and sense, the campaign for us is open now;

There is one step that commends itself to my mind as the key to the victory in the rum fight, that is the enfranchisement of woman; the abolition of rum is a domestic question in which every mother sister and home woman has a direct and vital interest; give every woman of eighteen years of age who can read and write the ballot, give every mother a vote for herself and an extra vote for every living minor child under 18 she has, on all questions involving morals, education, good order, sobriety in the community. Let the women if they choose have their own election places and officers; the first year that this amendment to our constitution is adopted sounds the death knell to intemperance and banishes rum forever from the State. Yours.

A. B. Hotchkies.

Alturas, Modoc Co. Cal. Aug 14, 1881.

About four months ago we had a membership of over fifty. But there arose a difficulty in our lodge from an appeal taken from the decision of the W. C. T., which was sustained. The officers thot the L. D. had no right to decide against the W. C. T. They left the lodge to settle the matter. The lodge was without an officer except the marshals, guard and one supporter. But there were a few who have been faithful thru storm and sunshine. The P. W. Vice, one of the old veterans took the chair; the trouble is settled and harmony now reigns in our lodge. We still have over thirty members. Those who left us are trying to get up another lodge in Alturas. May they have success.

I find on inquiry that most difficulties that arise are on constitutional points.

Because a new member is a little gassy and full of fun they will put him into office, Whether he knows the constitution or not, he is a pretty good fellow, and when some one makes a motion contrary to law, there are always enough young folks who do not know the constitution to carry it, because they like the man who put it.

If there was a state deputy to visit each lodge once a quarter, and decide all constitutional disputes it would stop all this. The L. D. is often elected because he is personally a favorite, not because he knows the laws.

One thing more our lodge needs; it should be incorporated so that it could hold its officers responsible. When the officers went out they took over fifty dollars worth of property from our lodge which we cannot get at, because we are not an incorporated society.

Outside of this trouble the lodge is doing well. Steps are being taken to build a new hall. I will try to get more subscribers for the Rescue. I love the Order, knowing the good it has done for us as a community. Therefore I am willing to do all I can for its advancement.

Nine years ago when we came to this place it was part of Siskiyou county. There was then only one house where Alturas now is, and but a few houses in the valley. Alturas is now the county seat of Modoc county. It is about half a mile square, has three saloons and two stores dealing out devil's broth to make beasts of men.

Four years ago the lodge was organized with 12 members; like all lodges in such rough places it has had many drawbacks, but will come out victorious if we hold the fort.

The writer was a charter member, was only a child and was raised in the lodge. I hope it will be truly said of me, she hath helped to save many who had fallen and placed them on firm footing. May it also be said of every member of the Order. And one way to do this is to place temperance before them in the form of temperance literature. This can be easiest done by getting subscribers for the Rescue. My sister Vice Templars, whose duty it is to get subscribers for our paper, let us see how many we can get by the end of the quarter. You may do as much good that way as any other. The field is large, and there is work for all.

"GOD BLESS THE LITTLE WOMAN."

Copy just received of an elegant new Song and Chorus, called, "God Bless the Little Woman." The song was founded upon the following incident.

Immediately after the President was shot, he dictated a telegram to his wife informing her of the sad occurrence, remarking in amost affectionate manner to those beside him, "God bless the little woman." etc.

The words are written by Howard N. Fuller, and the music was composed by Charlie Baker the popular song writer.

The song is perfectly beautiful, as the melody has been well adapted to the words.

Chorus.

Stand by him, little woman!
Stand firm and brave and true!
And remember little woman,
We will always stand by you.

This song is easily arranged so that all players on the Piano or Organ can master it with perfect ease. Price 35 cents per copy; or four copies $1.00. Postage stamps taken as currency. Address all orders to F. W. Helmick, Music Publisher,

WHAT TO READ.

The dime novel is vulgar. Let a boy learn that some publications are not fit to be handled with the tongs. Let parents exclude from the family mansion the frogs and vipers that swarm forth from the oozy marshes of the satanic press. Let the dull boy make the acquaintance of Cooper, Scott, Defoe, and "Pilgrim's Progress"—a book by no means outgrown. Personally I must confess indebtedness to the "Rollo" books and the "Jonas" books. Let the dull boy be incited by his parents, his Sabbath-school teachers, and especially by his pastor, to dip deeply into the classics for youth. After the best works of historical fiction become interesting to him, history will interest and biography will attract him. When the boy has once acquired a keen interest in biographical and historical reading he cannot thereafter be wholly vulgar in his taste for literature. —Joseph Cook.

A GALLON'S WORK.

What incalculable mischief the use of a single gallon of whisky has done, is well set forth by Judge Pierce, of Philadelphia: —"Let me tell you what once came out, under the process of justice, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in this city from a single gallon of whisky, which to most eyes seemed innocent and harmless enough. There came out of it two murders, two widows, eight orphans, two cells in the State Prison filled with wretched convicts for a term of years. The whisky, moreover, was used in connection with the administration of one of the ordinances of religion—the sacrament of baptism. It was drunk at the christening of a child, and the men who drank it fought, and two lost their lives, and the further results were what I have said. "Did not Shakspeare say well; "O thou invisible spirit of wine, if thou hast no name to be known by, let us call thee devil'?"—Sel.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

This is the title of a 12 page tract published by Rev. J. C. Simmons, which deals very forcibly with the question: showing up the terrible injustice to which peaceable citizens are subjected, the dangers to our civilization from the licensed traffic in drunkenness, it calls upon the people to put down the nuisance at the ballot box. It is to be hoped it will have a large circulation and be of much service. Next week some extracts will be given which crowded space will not permit in this number.

Ed. Rescue:—A recent number of your paper contained an extract from the letter of Bishop Mansfield, addressed to the clergy and laity of the Protestant Episcopal church in the missionary jurisdiction of Northern California. I am a communicant of St. John's P. E. church at Petaluma, and with the majority of the congregation of that church endorse the action of our rector, Rev. G. B. Allen, in administering the sacrament with bread and non-alcoholic wine, for the reason set forth in the enclosed letter. Will you be so kind as to publish the reply so ably made by our rector to the Bishop's letter, and oblige one who does not believe that our Lord ever blessed that which has caused untold misery and suffering, while it has caused many a soul to pass out of this world with no hope of salvation in the next. Yours in F. H. and C.

Mary E. Congdon, Sec. Cal. W. C. T. U,

REPLY TO A PASTORAL LETTER.

Which the Bishop addressed to the Clergy and Laity of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Missionary Jurisdiction of Northern California.

For more than three years some of the communicants of St. John's Church, Petaluma, remained away from the Lord's Supper because alcoholic wine was administered. Among those who came to the chancel-rail, some took the cup without tasting its contents; others spoke to the rector, from time to time, about using such strong wine, saying that it was with difficulty they could swallow it.

Nearly one year ago the rector read "Wine and Truth," by Abraham Cowles, M. D., LL. D., and the writings of others on the subject. He purchased some new wine—the juice of the grape which had been in process of fermentation for several days—being unable to obtain any that was unfermented. He heated this—not boiled it—and hermetically sealed it in glass jars. When first opened, it has the freshness and flavor of new wine. It is new wine. It is not syrup or the unfermented juice of the grape, or liquid obtained by pouring boiling water on dried grapes.

Having used all the new wine, he prepared, under the direction of an experienced pharmacist, a non-alcoholic wine from old wine—1857 is marked on the bottle—by heating it in a vessel, kept in hot water till nearly all the alcohol was evaporated.

Why should any one object to receiving such wine at the Communion? Is it not a Christian duty to do so when we know that it will be a spiritual help to even one of the disciples of our Lord? The question at issue is not old or new, fermented or unfermented, but alcoholic or non-alcoholic wine.

Non-alcoholic wine may be the same kind of wine that is generally used. The wine commanded by Christ and received by the Protestant Episcopal Church was that made from the fruit of the vine—the pure juice of the grape. It was not currant or blackberry, but grape wine.

If the kind of wine is designated by fermented or unfermented, alcohol or non-alcoholic, the bread must also be defined as leavened or unleavened. The law that controls the percentage of alcohol in the wine should also limit the quantity of yeast in the bread.

There is no law regulating the quality of wine. Some use wine that has 20 per cent of alcohol; others 15; others use wine old or new, with very little if any alcohol. The alcohol preserves the wine. There is no nourishment in it. If the wine can be preserved without it, it is still wine.

Nearly all the communicants of St. John's Church, Petaluma, sustain the rector in using non-alcoholic wine. Some of the most intelligent, devoted and zealous, have requested the rector to use the new wine, though they do not object to the old if it be non-alcoholic.

Previous to the "Pastoral Letter" there was no controversy—no contention—no discussion. One individual told the rector that it was an innovation to use any wine but Port wine. Only two communicants out of ninety-five protested against the new wine.

During the last few months the average number of communicants has been larger than last year, notwithstanding twenty-nine have removed from the parish.

Several months ago the rector of St. John's exchanged with the rector of the Church of the Incarnation. He took a bottle of the Communion wine with him with no intention of using it. On Sunday morning, the gentleman whose guest he was, said that he had forgotten to get some wine for Communion, but would do so before service. The rector of St. John's told him that he had brought with him a bottle of wine as a sample for the rector of the Incarnation to examine, and use as he pleased. He gave it to the gentleman who poured some of the contents into a glass and drank it, remarking that it would do, and that he would not get any other; He was told how it was prepared. He took the bread and wine to the church. Neither of us had any knowledge of any other bread or wine being provided by any one else. No other vestryman or communicant of said church, except his wife has ever spoken to the rector of St. John's concerning the wine used by him, nor did any protest against receiving it. As he officiated for them during the vacancy of the rectorship, he feels as much at home as in his own parish, and yet he would not intentionally do what would not be acceptable to the rector and people. It did not occur to him that any one could object to using the wine under any circumstances. When the facts are known, undoubtedly, all will approve of the course pursued.

One of the communicants of St. John's said to the rector, "If you please, my wife and I will take the bread but not the wine." The rector replied that he must say to them the same as he had to those who refused to take alcoholic wine. He should do his duty in delivering the cup to them, and in saying the words of the Liturgy. They must judge themselves whether their conscientious convictions would be acceptable to the Lord. He endeavored to give "such godly counsel and advice as would tend to the quieting of the conscience and the removing of all scruples and doubtfulness."

He claims to have given "his faithful diligence, by God's help, so to minister the Sacraments as the Lord hath commanded, and as this Church hath received the same, according to the commandments of God, and has taught the people committed to his charge with all diligence to keep and observe the same."

The rector of St. John's, Petaluma, has never received a letter from his bishop containing any inquiries respecting one fact referred to in the Pastoral Letter. A few weeks ago he received a letter containing a request "to discontinue the 'novelty' which has disturbed the peace of some of the communicants in the parish." Though the bishop did not give him the privilege of pleading guilty, or not guilty, he intended to lay before him sufficient evidence that he had not used a substitute for the "wine commanded by Christ and received by our Church." He consulted several chemists and sent a sample to be analyzed He searched sacred and profane authorities. Being away from home a portion of the time, he was unable to do this immediately, and conscious of being right, he did not apprehend any trouble arising from the delay.

In conclusion, he trusts that his explanations will be perfectly satisfactory to all who are interested, and that the discussion of the question will result in the discontinuance of alcoholic wine in the celebration of the Lord's Supper in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States.

Rector of St. John's Church, Petaluma.

"Tho a communicant of St. ——— Brooklyn, N. Y., I have not for several years attended our own communion service, but gone to a M. E. Church on communion Sundays."

The above is what a lady occupying a prominent position wrote to an Episcopal clergyman. Why is it necessary for any com. of the Prot. Episcopal church to remain away from the communion of said church on account of alcoholic wine being used? Why? Will the clergy reply? **

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise, "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

COMMUNION WINE.

The undersigned takes this method to inform the churches that he has undertaken the manufacture of Unfermented Wine for Sacramental use. The article he offers for sale is Pure, Unadulterated Juice of the Grape, and is furnished to order in pint or quart cans, sealed and packed in boxes. Price $3 per gallon. Samuel Winter,

Yountville, Napa county, Cal.

Keep in a cool place, When used, open and let stand a while; then pour off carefully.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

LODGE DEPUTY ANNUAL REPORTS.—Lodge deputies of the following lodges have filed proper annual reports with the G W S during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged.

Nos. 97, 115, 116, 135, 136, 149, 162, 163, 177, 180, 196, 204, 206, 211, 217, 227, 249, 253, 254, 255, 256, 260, 283, 285. 296, 304, 307, 317, 322, 328, 334, 340, 341, 344, 359, 364, 368, 378, 396, 404, 405, 416, 423, 429, 442, 444.

LODGE DEPUTIES RECOMMENDATIONS.—Proper recommendations for lodge deputies for the next ensuing year have been filed with the G. W. S. from the following lodges during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged.

Nos. 48, 112, 115, 116, 120, 122, 125, 135, 136, 139, 141, 145, 149, 150, 167, 177, 178, 181, 188, 196, 204, 208, 217, 220, 223, 235, 242, 249, 252, 254, 255, 260, 276, 279, 283, 285, 294, 300, 303, 307, 308, 309, 319, 331, 338, 340, 341, 343, 344, 348, 354, 356, 360, 368, 382, 393, 396, 406, 407, 409, 429, 433, 434, 443, 446, 452, 461.

Nos. 97, 116, 136, 148, 149. 157, 162, 177, 196, 203, 204, 206, 208, 217, 249, 253, 255, 256, 285, 296, 302, 304. 307, 322, 334, 341, 344, 350, 358, 364, 367, 391, 396, 415, 416, 423, 429, 444, and Japan 1.

ABOUT CREDENTIALS. Notwithstanding the very perfect form of the credential blanks, and the instructions forwarded by circular with forms, as well as those contained on the back thereof, many of the credentials filed have had to be returned. The basis of representation is not observed, initials are not given, credentials are not signed nor authenticated etc, all of which indicate carelessness and inexcusable negligence on the part of the sender; and creates needless vexation and confusion in the G. W. S. office, which is now well nigh overrun with necessary and more important work to the Order, than pointing out to individual Deputies or secretaries the evidences of their carelessness. It should be borne in mind by the smaller Lodges, that where a Lodge has less than twenty members, it is entitled to but one representative, and that for its charter, and where two representatives are reported by such, as has been the case in several instances. the first name reported only is recorded as the representative, and the other name is stricken off. If Deputies or Secretaries will but read their instructions carefully, and fill all blanks properly and fully, much trouble may be avoided.

HISTORY OF THE I. O. G. T.—Bro. the Rev. T. F. Parker, who has been engaged for several years in preparing a history of the I. O. G. T., and who was invited by the R. W. G. L. at the New York session to print his work, is progressing favorably in the matter, and writes that the history will make a 12mo book of nearly three hundred pages and will be ready as early as November next. The book will be a little more elaborate than was at first anticipated and will be embellished with cuts. The price will probably be fixed at one dollar per copy, at which figure every Good Templar should be possessed of a copy of the work. A supply of the work will be forwarded to the G. W. S. office as soon as ready, when announcement will be made of the fact.

WHY NOT.—A brother writing from Chico says "I presume we are privileged to use the same weapons that are employed against us by the whiskyites, if so, I should like to see all travelers who come to Chico, advised to stop at the Union Hotel, the bar in which was promptly closed in response to our request in deference to the "Sunday law." Whereas the proprietor of the Chico Hotel pursued an opposite course and threatens to have every Good Templar and maintainer of the Sunday law discharged, so far as he can use his influence, from any position they may occupy in the way of employment." A word to the wise. If you go to Chico stop at the Union Hotel in preference to the other.

CHASES MANUAL.—The G. W. S. has a number of copies of Chases Manual or exposition of the I. O. G. T. for general distribution. They will be sent to any address free of charge, postage prepaid. The pamphlet is well written and its perusal cannot help but make members of the order stronger in the faith, and help on to a decision to unite with and help the order, those who are not members. If there is any leading man or woman in any community who needs educating as to what the order really is organized to do, send the address of such party to the G. W. S. office with a request that Chases Manual be mailed. The Manual is an excellent canvassing document in behalf of the order.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office was favored with calls from the following members of the Order: Bro. W. S. Read, L. D. of No 207, Oroville; Bro R. R. Lander of No. 115 Lockford; Bro. J. W. Eachus of No. 172, Berrys District Sutter Co; Bro. J. A. Black, D. D. G. W. C. T. of Yolo county of Knights Landing; Bro. J. E. Givens of No 183 Cosumnes.

Corrections. The proof reader did some bad work for this department last week, in reducing the membership of Merril Lodge from 255 to 200, and omitting the words "unintentionally omitted from the list," between the words "Lecturers" and "announced" in the fourth line of the item concerning Bro. Webb, and giving "a new name" to Bro. Durner of Benicia, whose initial was made W. when it is H. and the reference to whom was written Bro.

Siskiyou.—Bro. Wm. Crowhurst has by this time reached the uttermost Northern limit of our State and near the Oregon line. At last report he was in Siskiyou county. He has not met with the hearty co-operation of the temperance people who are divided into several factions and Orders, but he has nevertheless done and is doing hard and valuable work.

His Second Gun.—Bro Will C. King, Grand Lecturer is heard from again with a new Lodge, this time at Hills Ferry. Bro K. works right into our ways of doing things and is putting in some valuable and needed work in Stanislaus county. He will next move on Merced county and then Fresno.

Where Are They ?—Ninty one Lodges, or Lodge Deputies, have so far failed to fill Quarterly Returns for their Lodge for the term ending July 31st, The Returns are very important and essential to the G. W. S., are now overdue, and should be immediately forwarded.

Grand Lodge Arrangements.—The brothers and sisters of Vallejo are co-operating in making preparations for the entertainment of Representatives and visitors to the Grand Lodge. Arrangements for Hotel accommodations etc, will be announced next week.

El Dorado.—Bro. Hugh R. Hughes recently organized three new Lodges in El Dorado county at Georgetown, Placerville and El Dorado. This county was heretofore unoccupied by the Order. Thus Bro. Hughes has added another star to our galaxy.

Goulding.—Col C. N. Goulding is being initiated into the argonaut style of locomotion in Sierra Valley and its mountains and is led to exclaim "Oh! the dust, the stages and my bones!" It all goes to make up the experiences of a Grand Lecturer.

A Good Deal To Say.—Bro. John P. Larson L. D. of Little River Lodge in Mendocino county, writes "The Lodge is prospering nicely and out of all we have initiated, do not know of one who has gone back to strong drink."

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the Rescue, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

W. C. KING,

Modesto, Aug. 27, 1881.

Ed. Rescue.—There is but little new or interesting this week to tell you of our work. Trials and difficulties of course there have been, and we have received them all grateful to be privileged to bear and suffer for the cause we love so dearly. We shall never be permitted to do the grand work; that which is applauded and brings coronets of fame; long since ceased to lament the lack of ability which would make this possible, and are now at rest in the knowledge that there is ever room among the burden-bearers.

Turlock has the honor of being the only town in this county that is trying to enforce the Sunday law. Four efforts have been made to get a jury and all but three men within the circuit have been drawn. The saloon keepers boast that they will "wear them out," and yet "saloon keepers are law-abiding citizens and fine men"—oh yes of course they are.

Salida has a church, a strong, wealthy church, a fine community, so reported, only one small saloon in an out-of-the-way corner; and yet this church is said to have starved the lodge to death. The building was kindly offered us but so lethargic are the people touching one of the most vital elements of christianity, that only eight persons were present. Some things bearing upon the attitude of the church toward our reform have been burning in our hearts for expression for some time. We will wait till fully matured however.

On reaching Waterford Sat. evening we stepped into the one little store and made some enquiry of the proprietor as to a temperance meeting. He said it was widely known, eyed us from head to foot with a quizzical expression and then said, "and you vas the man who is going to lecture on demperance? vell you vill find Waterford one hard blace." When at nearly nine o'clock the one member of the lodge (that was) came up to the school house steps from which we had been studying astronomy all the evening and reported no key to be found, we voted our German friend a truthful man. Our Sabbath audiences and also Monday evening were attentive and of average size.

At Grayson we found seven saloons, one store and what is called a school house altho we could more easily have believed it a barn. Unmistakably, education is less loved than whisky, as is the case in every rum-cursed town. Not one person in the whole village was willing to join a lodge, nor even favorable to its institution.

On the following evening however, we were permitted to organize at Hills Ferry, where it was as sadly needed as in Grayson. We hope for much good from this lodge. It required genuine devotion on the part of the thirteen who committed themselves to take the step, and the same spirit, with energy and tact will bring success. That they may have these and be a blessing to that blighted community is our prayer.

J. W. WEBB.

Have thoroly canvassed Santa Barbara county. Six years ago I organized first lodge. Now there are ten, and only about three places large enough to sustain others. These claims are "shepherding" as miners would say, and hope to occupy with lodges before long. Have been thru part of Ventura county. Everywhere so far as I have seen lodges doing well; some booming; at some places influential parties taking hold. At Santa Barbara the latest accessions are C. F. McGlashan Esq. editor of the Press and wife. Near Ventura, about Hueneme, Saticoy and Springville public sentiment is very favorable and lodges are growing. Home seekers coming south should not fail to look at this section; there is a large area of good land for sale by Bro. Thos. R. Bard and others of Hueneme.

Instead of simply lecturing at each place, I have urged that one night be given up for open lodge, and admirably have the lodges responded and succeeded. At Ventura, Montecito, Santa Rita, Lompoc valley (the new lodge) and Los Alamos most praiseworthy interest was taken and excellent musical and literary programs gotten up; attendance of the public good at each. Thus local talent is developed and encouraged. The public see that the lodge and cause tho helped by are not dependent upon a Grand Lecturer. They observe the vitality and ability of the lodge and have a greater variety of thoughts and suggestions presented, and the lecturer can make a better address when called upon and a more successful appeal for new names for the lodge.

I find it a great advantage in speaking and in obtaining a full meeting for my lecture next night. And it seems to me that my duty is not to monopolize the speaking, but to put as many agents and agencies as possible at work. District Lodge contributed $5, Santa Barbara and Los Alamos lodges $1 each for temperance literature for gratuitous distribution.

I am buying children's and adults' tracts, prohibition documents, etc from National Temperance Society thru Bro. J. B Hill of the Methodist book concern, S. F. who keeps a large supply on hand. Dr, McDonald generously sends me ample supplies of his leaflets against liquor and tobacco, and Capt. Wood furnishes me with plenty of sample copies of the Rescue. We must get readers as well as hearers. Let the people do reading, thinking, talking, discussing. Agitate, agitate, agitate !

Am now in San Luis Obispo county. Thence I go to Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, Bro. W. D. Gould is busily and carefully making out and advertising a list of appointments; it could not be in better hands.

I push the canvass for the Rescue and not without success. By the way, it is surprising that some one in each lodge does not go vigorously to work to raise a club sufficiently large to earn a copy of the encyclopedia offered by the publisher of the Rescue as a premium. That encyclopedia is a very valuable library in itself. And how easy and useful a way to gain one! One lady has obtained a copy. Who else will start out for one ? Send your names to the editor. Let us see if fifty canvassers cannot at once be found.

Lately I traveled part of a day with Bro. S. V. Blakeslee, colporteur of the American Religious tract society's books, cards, tracts and periodicals. Could not a temperance colporteur be sent out to sell the books, pictorial tracts, pictures, illuminated pledge cards, etc. of the National Temperance Society and to obtain subscribers for the Rescue, National Tem. Advocate, Youth's Tem. Banner, and such like papers ?

If the colporters could also talk well to schools, Sunday-schools and Bands of Hope and stay a few days in outlying school districts, gather the children and parents together and get them to singing stirring temperance songs and listening to impressive temperance stories, facts and figures, they would do immense good, even if they were not talented orators, able to hold city audiences spellbound. But I forgot; lecturers' reports are to be brief.

Am glad to note a growing disposition to quit and discourage the use of tobacco.

We had good open Lodge also at Positive Lodge No 441 Santa Maria and Vesper 268, Guadalupe. I gave you a list of the Lodge meeting and you can just add these names. To-day organized very promising Band of Hope at Guadalupe 32 juvenile and 6 adult members, Bro. W. C. Triplett, Sup.

MRS. STEVENS.

Has been actively engaged during the past week in Oakland, Livermore, Berkeley and various places in Alameda county with a success varying with the attendant circumstances and surroundings. The demand for her services has been so pressing that a detailed report has not been furnished.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY.

To the officers and members of all the lodges of Independent Order of Good Templars in Los Angeles county.

You are fraternally invited to send delegates to the District Lodge to be held at Good Templars Hall, Los Angeles, Tuesday, Sept. 6, 1881, from 10 o'clock A. M. to 1 o'clock P. M.; and the delegates are invited by Merrill Lodge, 299 to lunch at the refreshment rooms at Horticultural Hall.

Each lodge is requested to elect twice the number of delegates allowed as representatives to the Grand Lodge; and each lodge is further requested to direct the Worthy Secretary to send me a list of the delegates elected.

Our Grand Lecturer, Bro. J. W. Webb, is expected to attend the District Lodge, and during that month to visit all the lodges in the county. Let us give him a cordial welcome.

All members of our Order are invited to attend the Dist. Lodge. Yours in faith, hope and charity.

Will D. Gould, Dist. Dep.

Los Angeles, Aug. 22, 1881.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

GREAT MEN.

One of the best mothers I ever knew, was much in the habit of telling her boys in their early days, stories of the lives of great and useful men; how they had become great and useful and worthy; and what their usefulness had done for themselves and others. These bright little histories excited a keen interest and a curiosity to master all their minute details, and they were told in such a way as to inspire the hearers with a lively sympathy and admiration for the noble and manly and kindly and especially for the honest deeds of these heroes. They were generally self made men, or more properly speaking, men who had become great by industry and probity and most of all by a strict obedience to the law of God: the teachings which have come to us from heaven.

And the winding up of every lesson was an assurance that her hearers might then and there set out with any high ambition which it was right and proper to cherish, and with diligent industry, perfect truthfulness and strictest integrity, a trust in God and "your ways committed to his guidance," be perfectly sure of winning the desired goal, or something else equally good or better for them and others.

The example of people who have succeeded well themselves and been of service to the world, is a good study for young people and it is proposed to give some little histories of such in the RESCUE, when a few minutes time can be caught for the purpose.

CHAMBERS: WILLIAM AND ROBERT.

In the Year 1800 at a little place in Scotland called Peebles, William Chambers was born of poor and humble parentage and in 1802 his brother Robert made his appearance. They both secured a fair school education and were gifted with a taste for books and literary pursuits. William became a bookseller on a small scale in Edinburg at the early age of 19 and a few years after, made the printing of books a part of his business. Robert also at 21 years of age was a bookseller, and soon after the brothers became partners. They soon began to write popular works in the line of histories of the localities, wars, rebellions, stirring events, songs, poems and the lives of the distinguished men of their country, Scotland. Their writings were well received and brot them into notice and made them favorites of the people. The great novelist Walter Scott was one of their intimate friends and assistants in their early publications.

In their early days books and newspapers were heavily taxed and very dear. The London Times the greatest paper of that time in the world, cost 12 cents a day and, besides its advertisements, did not contain as much matter as the RESCUE. About half the cost was tax paid to the government, which at the time the brothers commenced business was 8 cents per copy. But the stamp on newspapers was reduced in England to 2 cents about the year 1832.

In 1832 they commenced the publication of Chambers Edinburg Journal, a sprightly interesting weekly of 16 pages at 3 cents a copy, remarkably cheap at the time. They soon grew into an extensive publishing house. Their "Information for the People" was the best work for the purpose implied by its name, that has ever appeared. Then they sent out an "Educational Course" 150 volumes of cheap books, treating of every department of knowledge, also 20 volumes of useful tracts, and various others including their great Encyclopedia which you see advertized in the RESCUE, but now altered in name to "Library of Universal Knowledge," having been reprinted with some American additions in this country.

The great purpose of their lives seemed to be to give the general public and especially the poorer classes an opportunity of acquiring useful knowledge at moderate cost, and to place it before them in a simple and easily comprehended style. For this they are entitled to the gratitude of many millions of people of the present and future generations. We owe them a respectful reverence as among the greatest of the world's benefactors.

Between the years 1830 and 1840, the British government employed a committee of able men to make a tour of the factories and workshops of that country, and report on their condition and the manner of the treatment of the employed, &c. In their report they accorded the place of highest merit and credit to the establishment of W. and R. Chambers. The workers there were strictly temperate if not total abstainers; they were supplied by their employers with a splendid library, bathrooms, savings bank, reading room and every necessary provision not only for their comfort but for their uplifting in mental and moral improvement.

They were governed by a judicions system of regulations and moral requisites, and once a year every member of the concern from William and Robert the honored chiefs, down to the little errand apprentice sat down together to a holiday banquet, succeeded by an afternoon and evening choice entertainment of literary speeches and original essays by some of the employees. And men of scholarship and talent and honored station came from various places and distances to be present at these exercises of intellect, and listen to the clever and learned and witty essays of the working men in that model hive of cultivated intelligent industry.

This was a crowning honor to the brothers whose lives have been a continuous record of improving influences upon their fellow men. Robert died in 1871. William remains at the age of 81 the head of his great concerns in Edinburg and London. And in all their writings I do not know where to find an egotistical utterance or a line indicating that they or either of them ever accomplished any great thing or deserved any credit. They were honored with literary and civic distinctions and enjoyed the highest respect and admiration of the whole reading world. Their memory will be honored and their example held up for imitation while the world lasts. Some of our juveniles may be just as distinguished for good deeds and good influences, even if they dont publish a book of any kind let alone a Cyclopedia.

AFTER TEN DAYS.

FAIRER. FATTER. NOT HEALTHIER WISER.

WHICH WILL YOU JOIN?

About 2500 years ago the first Band of Hope was formed, altho there were temperance societies and total abstainers before and always. In Babylon the King had a school to educate the smartest boys in his kingdom to be his secretaries, ministers, princes, governors &c when they became men. And the boys who were the most diligent and capable and successful, who had no bad habits like some of our little boys who smoke and drink, were promoted to the best offices under the King, which was an excellent mode of securing good public officials.

Now the Jews (please remember this particularly) were a people who had obeyed the laws of God better than any other race of their time: their food and their habits were cleaner and more wholesome than those of their neighbors, and therefore their boys were more apt to be good students than other people's; and their men having healthier bodies, were much more likely to have healthy and vigorous minds, than the heathen of their day.

At this time there were a great many Jews, captives of war in Babylon; the nation had lately been wicked and many of them drunken and dissolute, and had been defeated in war and carried away captive by the Babylonians. Their God had been obliged by their wickedness to withhold his help from them, because he could not justly help and bless rebellious people.

There were some among those captives, who were good people, but they suffered with the guilty, as is the case now-a-days. Some boys were there who had been raised by mothers who taught and practiced temperance and godliness. They were the kind of women who would have been W. V. T. or Supt. of the Band of Hope or Secy. of the W. C. T. U. if those societies had existed then. These Jewish boys had been well trained and they had such a good appearance that some of them were selected for the Kings school. They had been trained not to eat certain kinds of meat which were unwholesome and forbidden and they had been taut not to drink any wine at all. But there was meat and wine provided for the whole school from the Kings table, and the other boys were thus fed.

Now Daniel the chief of the Jewish boys "purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the Kings meat nor with the wine which he drank:" he had been taut that pork and some other meats and wine were all unclean and defiling; defiling was what he said; please remember it.

Therefore our little Band of Hope of four asked to be fed on water and vegetables in place of meat and wine. The steward was afraid to consent, lest they should get thin and lean, and he should be punished for it. But Daniel asked to have a trial of the food for ten days and it was granted. The boys were fairer and fatter at the end of the trial than the others who took the King's portion. They became healthier and wiser and more capable, as they grew up, and were so noted for the excellence of their character that they were promoted to the highest offices: Daniel their chief was the Kings first councillor and chancellor: the highest of his wise men.

We dont hear that one of the king's wine club ever amounted to anything. Dont you think the boys who are obedient sons of good mothers, attentive pupils of good teachers and faithful members of the Band of Hope, have an immensely happier lot in store for them, than the members of the wine club or of the beer club or the cigar or cigaret club?

(Whatever is good in the above may be credited to Mrs. Crafts: anything to be found fault with may be debited to the RESCUE.)

THE HOME.

QUARTERLY REPORT.

The Board of Lady Managers, held their quarterly meeting at the Home Tuesday Aug 2nd, called to order at 11, A. M. by the President, the following Ladies present; Pres. Mrs. Thompson—Vice Pres. Mrs. Alsip, Secy. Mrs. Carpenter, Financial Secy. Mrs. Partridge, Managers. Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. Rix and Mrs Mayhew, G. W. V. T.; Absent Mrs. Benjamin of San Francisco.—

Reading of the minutes omitted. Report of the officers, standing and special committees read and accepted.

Number of children in the Home at the beginning of the quarter—106. Admitted since, nine; discharged six. Present number 109. The children were reported well, with one exception.

Applications received for the admission of fourteen children during the quarter—All were favorably considered but one who was rejected, because both parents were living; nine applications for children for adoption were also received, which were referred to the President and Secretary, with full power to act.

Miscellaneous business pertaining to the domestic arrangements of the Home, occupied some time, which concluded the work of the Ladies.

The Board then met in joint session with the Board of Trustees. After adjournment, every portion of the building was visited, and thoroly inspected; found every department in good condition and the Ladies are satisfied that the present employees are conscientious and discharge their duties faithfully,

DASH DOWN THE CUP.

BY W. C. TOBEY.

Dash down the cup! drink not again!
Its very touch is degradation!
Quick! dash it down! Oh, do not drain
Its liquid depths of deep damnation!
Break thru its toils while yet you may—
Rush from the warmth of its embracing;
Heed not its syren call—Away!
Each little dram a grave is tracing.

Drink not again; be wise, be free!
Seize on a noble resolution;
Rum's leprous arms encircle thee—
Yield not again to its pollution.
Drown not the pleadings of the soul—
Each dram a seed of woe is planting!
Drink not, tho beauty pledge the bowl—
There's death beneath its light enchanting.

Shake off the curse with manly might—
Court not a death of shame and terror;
Turn not your brightest days to night—
Oh, follow not this fatal error.
Crush not a pure and noble mind;
Make not degraded taste a merit;
Wake from your dreams! Oh be not blind
To God's bright gifts which you inherit.

Unloose the chain which binds you down
To cold, relentless, heartless fashion;
Shake off the bonds around you grown.
Sink not a slave to damning passion!
Rise from your burning bed of shame!
Yield not again to the foul demon!
Stop not nor pause; go forth, reclaim!
Be thou a man—a GODLIKE FREEMAN.

OUR FIRST TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—NO. 12.

WHY IT WAS NOT A BAND OF HOPE.

BY JULIA COLMAN.

Sometimes the difference is only in the name. There are "Bands of Hope," so called; where the exercises are conducted exactly like those we have described in our "Temperance School," and we see no serious objection to such an arrangement if it is desired to continue a favorite name, and yet to make the teaching more effective.

The real difference between the two, as generally conducted, is that the one is like a school, with all the impressiveness of authority and the dignity of having something worth learning, and the helps and the methods to learn it well; and the other is a society with boy and girl officers. Now a society is a company of equals associated for, we will say, mutual improvement, while a school is an association of teachers and learners. The natural place of the child is as a learner, and here as elsewhere, when we work in harmony with nature, we secure the best results.

The common plea is that the holding of office, pleases and attracts the children, and so it does at first, but it soon wears off, and I do not see that the interest excited even at first, is at all greater than that which can easily be excited by a proper management of the introduction of a temperance school, and a presentation of what you propose to do therein. We do not find any such thing necessary to interest children in the Sunday school and the day school. If it were introduced it would be looked upon as a sort of play-house performance, and such in fact is the feeling with regard to it in the Band of Hope.

Office implies power of planning and ability to manage. But children have not such resources within themselves for conducting a Band of Hope profitably; and that is understood, for the planning and prompting is done by older persons who, by a sort of wire-work arrangement, make the child officers perform their several parts. The whole thing is artificial and unnatural, and the results are of course in accordance. The teaching is subordinate and imperfect. The children regard the whole thing more or less in the light of a mimic performance, and as they grow older they grow out of it. This is one reason for the universal impression that "the Band of Hope is for little tots."

There is no provision as in the temperance school by which the older scholars can be advanced in classes, and their advanced wants met.

I have no desire to underrate the Band of Hope, nor the work it has done. I have given long and carefnl study to its history and achievements in England where it prevails far more extensively than it ever did in this country. It has been the means of doing great good there in various ways, but its greatest ground of promise at the present time in the words of one of their own leaders, well competent to judge, is that of late the attention is turned more than formerly to the study of the scientific aspects of the question, and a more thoro grounding in primary truths about the nature and effects of alcohol. But if this is the great object of juvenile work why not at once adopt the methods and promote the conditions most conducive to such results? why follow in the toilsome devious route of the Band of Hope when we can have conditions so much more favorable at once in the temperance school?

The latter is not only simple in its organization, but is fashioned after a pattern with which everybody is acquainted, that of the Sunday school. The mere mention of that contains a whole volume of explanations in a word. It is therefore specially adapted to popular and to church use. Anybody that wishes to do anything for temperance in any locality however unfavorable, can usually succeed in getting at least a few children together and if not at first with all the helps and the helpers desirable, he can do just what is done in the little pioneer Sunday school, teach the children, and as improvement is made, the plan contains in itself all the adaptations neccessary to the largest numbers and the fullest development, even to classes of adults and of reformed men. For this reason the church which has a well developed Sunday school can launch out at once into a temperance school that need not be afraid to compare with the Sunday school in all its branches, and which can provide for all the members of the Sunday school if they will come into it.

What we have written in this series has not been so much for existing organizations, tho if they can profitably take a leaf from our experience we shall be glad. The temperance school is capable of large development. It can be made a school for all classes of community. We believe it c ntains the elements of successful adaptation to the wants of the American people in the juvenile temperance line more than anything else before the public, and it will repay any pushing that may be necessary to get it into successful operation. Please send for a copy of the little five cent pamphlet "The Temperance School" and examine yourself, or better still send fifty cents for a "Teachers Outfit" and then you will be much better able to judge of what can be done.

BOY WANTED.

Have you often seen such an advertizement? In New York a boy who was wanting something to do saw such a sign. The merchant saw a cigar in his hand as he came into the office, and when the boy asked for the place this is what the merchant replied:

"I want a smart, honest, faithful persou; but I see you smoke cigars, and in my experience of many years I have found that boys who smoke are less reliable than those who do not. You can leave, you will not suit me."

Is it manly, boys, to do anything that will keep you from getting into business?

Read now

SEVEN REASONS WHY BOYS SHOULD NOT SWOKE.

It will stop their growth.
It will prevent study.
It makes boys weak and sick.
It wastes money,
It often causes fire and large destruction of property.
It makes the breath and clothes unpleasant.
It makes them slaves of habit.

If I were teaching a class of boys I should write all of these reasons on the blackboard, and then I should ask the boys to give me seven reasons for smoking. I do not believe they could find one good reason for doing it.—Banner

Young man, you who occasionally drink a glass of liquor and smoke a cigar, if you were looking for a wife would you go to a saloon to find her; would you select for a companion a young lady known to drink wine, to use snuff, or even smoke cigarettes? You answer, no, and wisely. You would seek for a wife from among your equals in literary ability, one endowed with as much good sense as you claim for yourself. Should she do the same where, oh, where would you be? Can you expect a decent young lady to give you her heart and hand, while you yourself are living a life abhorred by her? If you want a perfect wife be a perfect man.—Review.

The G Lodge of Scotland has declared the charters of two of its lodges forfeited for permitting dancing in connection with the Order. Every time one such a lodge is booted out the Order is made as good as ten lodges stronger.

THE TWIN EVILS.

(The following is an experimental essay by a young girl of 13 who did not in the least expect it would go into print.)

The alcohol of intoxicating liquors is one of the greatest evils ever prepared by man. By its use man lowers himself to the level of a brute. It poisons the system and diseases and enfeebles all the organs of the body. Happiness in countless homes has been destroyed: women and children have been rendered homeless and compelled to resort to crime and vice thru the use of alcoholic drinks by some of its members.

To liquor all kinds of crime and misfortune are traceable. It fills our reform schools, house of correction, jails and states prisons with criminals. It is not assimilated by the human system, but is found unchanged in all the tissues of a drunkard's body. On some rare occasions, alcohol may be useful as a medicine, but it is always hurtful when used as a beverage.

Tobacco is the next great evil. It also vitiates the blood and diseases all the organs of the human body, making men more susceptible to disease and making many criminal, many insane and many idiots. Tobacco was first introduced into Europe by Sir Walter Raleigh, and was first used by the Indians who used it in smoking, not having been so degraded as to chew it. It is a well known fact that many people die from heart disease, and there is little doubt that a great majority of such deaths are caused by the use of alcohol and tobacco.

LOS ALAMOS, Aug. 23, 1881.

I am giving special attention to addressing schools. Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope and organizing, or preparing the way to organize Bands. I have lately organized Bands at Cathedral Oaks, Goleta, Maple, Los Alamos and Saticoy. Have addressed during this month's lecture work 18 public schools, 4 Sunday-schools and five Bands of Hope. There is great ignorance in the public mind about Bands of Hope, their aims and work. I find so many children and adults delighted with the work when clearly explained to them, Let us all incessantly talk it.

Fraternally, J. W. Webb.

NOTES FROM THE G. S. J. W.

To Superintendents of Bands of Hope;—The Grand Lodge year is now drawing to a close, and at the annual session of the G. L. to be held in Vallejo on the first Tuesday in Oct. next, much interest will be taken in the various departments of labor, and in none more perhaps than in the juvenile work, and I therefore hope that all superintendents will return to this office as soon as possible, properly filled out, the blank report cards which have been sent to them by mail so that we may be able to report just what has been accomplished in this direction since January, 1881. As the card shows, we wish to give a correct report of all Bands now in existence. The name of the Band, location, the number of male members and the number of female members, together with the full name of the superintendent and such remarks as they may feel called upon to make.

Dear co-workers, let us have this done, and I assure you the report will make a good impression upon all who hear it, and cause them with emphasis to declare the juvenile work of California to be the grandest of all grand movements in the temperance cause inaugurated on the Pacific coast. And why not? Have we not every reason to believe it to be so?

For half a century I have heard it said, "The hand that rocks the cradle rocks the world." What does it mean? I have heard it said, prevention is better than reformation, the old maxim is, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and we believe it. Save a youth from becoming a drunkard, and you save him from all the misery, degradation and ruin incident to drunkenness, and there is no more reasonable way, no more hopeful way to accomplish this, than is afforded in our Bands of Hope. Let us press forward then in this line until our subordinate lodges of Good Templars thruout our whole jurisdiction will be ashamed unless they have under their control, a good working Band of Hope.

I think this article is long enough, but in conclusion let me say, dear co-workers, let us hope and pray that our juvenile department may be blessed with success, and that our youth may be so instructed, that, they may be fortified against all the snares of the present custom of drinking intoxicants.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884.

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

CHEAP JOHN I. O. G. T.

Some years ago New Jersey had a well established. able, well conducted temperance paper, organ of the I. O. G. T. The Order was doing a good and useful work, had many able earnest workers, and it seemed that prohibition was almost accomplished there. About seven years ago the cheap John epidemic which has committed such havoc in the temperance ranks, and has always secured such a large representation in the R. W. G. L. for many years, put in a vigorous appearance in New Jersey. In the hight and heat of the contest for a prohibitory law, Camden county Lodge sent up a resolution declaring that if the oppressive per capita tax of ten cents was not reduced, it would swamp all the lodges of that county. The immediate effect is not known at this distance, but the ultimate result of this beginning was their Good Templar paper dead and buried, their talented lecture force disbanded and cut adrift, and the only indication of the continued existence of the Order there since, that has come under the notice of this witness is found in the proceedings of R. W. G. L. this year, where the G. L. of New Jersey is heard from.

It was not troubled about prohibition nor concerned about temperance literature; no constitutional amendment, no mode of political action burdened its little song. No; it had a holier and higher mission, an unspeakably grander and loftier aim than any of these. Its brilliant contribution to the weaponry and ammunition of the temperance army was to eclipse everything heretofore heard of. Its message to the R, W. G. L. was—— "please abolish the catechism of the degrees and amend the degree odes!!! !!! The missing link to complete the chain of temperance reform is found at last in New Jersey. That catechism has stood in the way of something all along, and if it is only abolished, the kingdom can set in; sublime conception! The expense of learning that catechism saved, we could all go home and rejoice in our warfare gloriously ended.

In former times the I. O. G. T. was heard of as prominent in temperance movements. Now we read of W. C. T. U., ribbon and T. A. clubs, etc.; but no I. O. G. T. and the membership of the latter dwindled last year from 2997 to 2330. All of these results are due to cheap John and the father of mischief who employs him to cripple the revenues of our Order, destroy its aggressive usefulness, disable its workers and drag it from its proper place at the head of the advance of the temperance army and lead it by the ear to crawl in the rear after the fag end of the great temperance procession has passed.

OHIO.

Up to seven or eight years ago the I. O. G. T was the foremost and most prominent temperance power in Ohio. But about then it was touched with the poisoned breath of the evil spirit cheap John and of the cheapest of this tribe. They had a numerous membership, one of the ablest temperance journals, the prestige of a victorious history, a corps of earnest and able leaders, the state had voted by an enormous majority of about 90,000 for a prohibitory clause in a new constitution, altho the constitution was defeated. There seemed nothing in the way of a steady progress to accomplished prohibition.

But here the devil's most able ally, cheap John, appeared upon the scene. He showed them that a temperance journal was a dangerous luxury and extravagance, and retrenchment became the favorite Good Templar shibboleth. They voted that the paper which had a bill of $300 or $400 a year against the Grand Lodge would do just as well published once a quarter in the shape of a 10x12 leaflet. So they killed the paper which only made about one quarterly appearance afterward, and the act of killing that paper killed the Order and every movement since made to secure a legal or any other step toward prohibition: and cheap John scored another triumph.

Where or how the Order has been hybernating since only an Ohio man can tell. Temperance work has been done and much of it. The meteoric splendor of the great crusade has been succeeded by the steady glow of the altar fires of the W. C. T. U. We hear of ribbon clubs, reform clubs, lecture giants male and female, political action of M. E. conferences, resolutions, petitions, mass meetings but in all the temperance history since the death of brother Spencer's paper in 1874 we fail to see the letters I. O. G. T. or any systematic general organization or cooperation among the temperance forces.

But the Ohio G. L. was present at last R. W. G. L. session. The fact of its existence and presence is chronicled in the proceedings. On page 75 we find Bro. Scott of Mo, offering a motion which was adopted to cancel the overpowering debt of $60 which the great state of Ohio owed the cause of temperance in the R. W. G. L., and to permit Ohio's delegate to have a dead head seat and a dead head vote in that body. The $60 presented to Ohio might have helped to print some German temperance tracts or do some missionary work in concert with Bro. Malins among the colored people of the South. The statistics show that the G. L. of Ohio purchased supplies last year amounting to $80.79 and its membership has dwindled from 2987 to 2653 during the year.

Ohio has an army of temperance men and women, but it cannot be denied that the management of the I. O. G. T. has been scandalously and shamefully inefficient; and the fault is every whit due to cheap John. Just here it may be remarked that the R.W. G. L. has never taken a step or made a recommendation or an enquiry or done the first thing to stay or arrest all these years this cheap John progress of the Order in many states toward perdition.

Some one lately politely accused our Cali. jurisdiction of being nothing but blow; but it was only one person that said so. The foregoing is not written with a view of anything more than a blow to the abominable and contemptible cheapening and disabling and tinkering and twaddling accomplished in the Grand and R. W. G. Lodges to which alone is due the lamentable fact that our Order is not ten or twenty times more numerous and many hundred times more powerful and richer in successes achieved. The Order was born just right, but it has been quack doctored to death, and nothing but a return to first principles and a rational system of finance will ever reconstruct it.

If we have anything at all in this state which would justify a feeling of pride of success, beyond any of our sister states, it is due every time to our treatment of cheap John. He was on hand here same as elsewhere, but in place of being set up on a velvet cushion over the head of the G. W. C. T. in G. L. and worshipped there, he was taken by the ear every time and led to the backest and barest bench and never allowed to get any further forward. Twice or thrice he moved that the per capita tax should be reduced from 25 to 20 or 15 cts, but our lamented brother Nelson V. Waggoner or some worthy brother from the interior would amend with a motion to raise it to 30 cents, which carried, and next day was reconsidered and left as before. That was all the liberties we allowed cheap John and his chief. If we had bowed down and worshipped him we could have had a present membership of 1100, a five cent per capita tax and a fag end tail of 20 or 25 lodges in their grave clothes ready to bury.

HANFORD Cal. Aug, 22nd, 1881.

EDITOR RESCUE.—Two weeks ago M. Kennedy, Dist, Dept. I. O. G. T., made complaint before Hugh Wilson Justice of the Peace for Mussel Slough Township, against J. H. Malone, a merchant at Hanford, and nine other men, merchants and saloon keepers, for violating the Law by selling goods on Sunday, Aug, 7th 1881. On Friday Aug, 19th, a jury was empannelled and the case proceeded with. The merchants are trying to make the church and the Temperance society as odious as possible. Our citizens are torn all to pieces and talk of killing each other, two young men have been sent to jail for contempt of court for refusing to answer questions put by the court, and all hands are mad, especially the men who are indicted.—They got buggies and drove the young men up and down the streets just before they started to the county seat to jail and treated at every saloon in town. Men who seemed very good men before are blackguarding the church, the ministry, and treating everybody to anti-Sunday Law whisky and cigars—Why will not San Francisco enforce the Sunday law? Or cant it. Now what do you say Mr. Editor about this vexed question? must the law of California be defied openly by men simply because it happens not to suit their tastes and convenience, or can the Sunday Law be enforced? Is it constitutional? P. M. K.

The above came just too late to get into last number: since then Bro. Milton Kennedy writes that "the jury acquitted the lawbreaker on Monday 22nd. This act was followed by a rejoicing that almost equaled the centennial in 1876. Guns fired till past midnight and free whisky bounteously sacrificed in honor of the triumph of the Satanic type of morality. The public swearing and rowdying was spicy and would probably have continued till morning but for the conquering effects of the whisky which finally silenced the streets: after a while the sun, topping the summits of the snow capped mountains poured down a flood of golden light and peace and love upon the just and upon the unjust of the sleepers alike.

A few days of quiet followed and then a sense of shame and regret was felt at having thus insulted the respectable elements of their community and county. The suit occupied two weeks; it is reported that it was costly to the winning side after all. Few Good Templars took active part in the support of law and order.

THE RESULT.

Visalia and Tulare city and Porterville are reported to have closed all their business houses on Sunday and they talk of following their example in Hanford altho the Sunday test case was beaten. The complaints were made by Mr. Kennedy with the Lodge at his back: and as usual there was a Sister among the bravest from first to last, Sister L. E. Cheadle the L. D. she was in the front of the fight and deserves to wear the Order's "Cross of the Legion of Honor." The Rev. Mr. Motherell was also reported as an active help.

Bro. Kennedy says this matter must be followed up. The Sunday must and shall be preserved. The next grand jury will be furnished with ample evidence against every violator of law henceforward. He would like to hear a similar declaration from every D. D., and L. D. and Lodge in the State. And victory will surely crown the effort."

THE SUNDAY LAW.

Two articles bearing upon this subject were accidentally omitted by the printer last week which ought to have appeared but are now out of date, The question has been asked "is the Sec 300 constitutional?" It is not understood that any doubt exists at all on that question, but same time there is no doubt the rummies will spend money to test in every way known to them, to defeat or procure the setting aside of any law, which at all curtails their power to rob and kill on Sunday or any other day.

The manner in which the Sunday has been treated right along in California is a ringing and stinging disgrace to our civilization. The Sabbath of our country and the law of our God and our Government, have been snatched from our American people by an a vile horde of barbarian rumsellers, and trodden underfoot, and our American spirit and independence and intelligence have been spit upon and spurned by these outlaws, with the most utter contempt and derision of our "Americanism and puritanism."

Seven years ago an infamous rabble of foreign savages, insulted and outraged the best women of California with entire impunity on two occasions not one of the city papers dared to raise a voice of reproof or protest against the infamy, except the Post then under Henry George, and its report of the proceeding was copied in the Chronicle. They all retired into their kennels like cowards and dared not even growl from there: the Alta excepted, which of course endorsed the rowdies and ruffians, and therein showed at least some little courage superior to its fellows.

It has been a shameful, ignominious, cowardly surrender of American decency and decorum to European debauchery and barbarism. The press, the pulpit, the churches, the temperance people, the American citizens, the fathers, brothers, husbands of the American women, have acted a pusillanimous, cowardly, toadying, cringing part and have suffered themselves to be cuffed and snubbed and trampled upon and spit upon for long years in this matter, and have seen their birthright snatched from them without even the farce of a mess of pottage in return.

Every American, every one who has any pride in the honor of this country, whether he believes in the sanctity of the Sabbath or not, ought to believe in the validity of our laws and ought to consent to have one day of the seven redeemed from prostitution to the grogshop, if not religiously observed: ought to let the infernal pesthouses be chained up one day of the week; to have one day of safety from their murderous attacks upon the working men and the poor and their families.

Every citizen should rebel against this tyrannical rule of ruffianism and brazen impudence, which emboldens the vilest dregs and scum of the immigration which comes across the sea to disgrace their own decent countrymen and defy the whole American nation to make any law of ours apply to them, or prevent them from poisoning our people with the vices which drove them into exile.

It has been hinted that the G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. should see the law enforced in the two largest cities first. Certainly they should be ready to set the example in all things. But it is quite possible that had the strife commenced in these two cities, it might have been stillborn as the effort in 1874 was. Had the project failed of success in one or both of the most difficult places to enforce it, probably it would not then have been tested in the country towns and villages at all. Now the law can be put in operation there and all over the State if faithful effort is made. That done the conquest of the large cities is rendered much more feasible: and if it should altogether fail in the latter after due trial, the victory in the rest of the State would still be worth all it cost. As to its success here, that depends evidently upon the question, who and how many will try to enforce it. Two or three persons cannot do it unsupported. The RESCUE will do its best to aid the effort everywhere; but lest some one should ask if the editor is going to try to enforce the law or take any active part in it, the answer is no: the only possible time that could be devoted to that object would be from about midnight to 6 A. M, very unfashionable hours for that employment.

FOR MAYOR, ROBERT HOWE.

LOCAL OPTION.—"Mr. Howe was one of the most strenuous supporters of that measure, parting from his Democratic colleagues in several roll calls taken upon it. His name appears on page 919 of the Assembly journal for that session as voting "aye" upon the final passage of the bill."

This is used to defeat Mr. Howe. Let Temperance men take the hint and give him a vote."

Desperate efforts have been made to prove that Mr. Howe is not fit to be Mayor. The most damaging charge against him was that he had a chinaman employed as a servant in his house. This was ound to be a lie. But the Chronicle has sent a Stanley—Livingston Arctic- Jeannette Franklin expedition away up into Sonoma county at its own sole expense to investigate the fruit ranch there which belongs to Howe and Hall. The adventurous expedition penetrated as far as the town of Sonoma where it was learned from some drunken loafers who are barnacled on to a grogshop in that metropolis, that they believed Howe employed chinamen on his ranch; that 7 or 8 of his fifteen men were chinese. The evidence of these bummers ought to have been conclusive, but it was further fortified by seeing afterward several chinamen coming from the direction of Howe's ranch toward Sonoma and they looked as if they were coming to town to "play tan."

That last sentence is a settler; the fact if it is true, that Mr. Howe employs one half of his fruit pickers chinamen, in preference to those drunken tramps at the grogshop, could have been defended as an act of necessity and so practiced by probably every fruit raiser who employs labor at all in Sonoma county. Exception might also have been taken to the truthfulness of the drunks of the grogshop. But when chinamen were seen on the same road that leads past Mr. Howe's ranch toward Sonoma, and those heathens looked as if they were bound for some resort where the repulsive and immoral game of TAN was played, and where possibly the dice were loaded or the cards or whatever they play with, stocked, it affixes a stigma on Mr. Howe's character that will be hard to remove.

It is a pity that after searching all over Mr. Howe's record, turning all his antecedents inside out, carefully examining all his washerwomen's bills before he was married to see if they were receipted; interviewing all his political enemies, taking affidavits of all the dead beats that could not wring a bribe from him—after having put his life and character into the hottest crucible and finding him invulnerable in every other respect—they have got him at last on the tan question.

If Mr. Howe had only listened to the daily moral teachings and followed the pious example of the Chronicle, he would have had an unassailable record on that point too. He would have had a choir of moral and religious missionaries all over Sonoma county at his own expense, singing improving hymns to the Chinamen and teaching them the heinousness of playing tan—instead of being suspected of hiring them to work on his ranch.

It would have been pleasant to pronounce Mr. Howe innocent of every charge which his political opponents have urged against him, and it can be done except on that fatal point, the tan discovery.

It must be admitted if the evidence of the Chronicle expert may be trusted. (1) that Mr. Howe has an interest in a fruit ranch in Sonoma county. (2) that some bummers in Sonoma think that some of the labores on that ranch are chinese. (3) Possibly they are. (4) But conclusively there is a suspicion that some of the chinese in Sonoma county look as if they play tan, a fatal propensity of which Mr. Howe with proper christian devotion, having a ranch in that county, would have cured them before this, if he possessed the qualities which are requisite to make a good Mayor of San Francisco.

And after all it is quite probable that the friends of virtue and temperance will forgive that one weak spot in his life record, in consideration of his noble, patriotic and truly christian and gentlemanly record on the local option question. Above all other qualifications in the Mayor of a great city, a thousand times above all others, we want a good consistent record of that kind of patriotism and honesty which, in the fight of the rum despoilers against the people, has stood up on the side of the people and the women and the children and the innocent, which has been openly on the clean side in the contest between sober virtue and dabauching vice.

Mr. J. F. Matlock, Dist. Atty of Tehama county, was addressed by Justice Fish of Riceville on the subject of prosecutions for violation of the Sunday law.

He gives the sapient opinion that because grand juries have failed for many years to indict or prosecute any violation of this law, it is against public sentiment and ought not to be enforced. He advises the Justice to dismiss all cases in hand on the ground that the grand jury will soon meet, and Tehama Co. has no useless funds to spare "in gratifying the malice or spite of any person or persons." The last phrase indicates a very wanton ignorant malice in that officer, if not a wanton falsehood of implication. No one but a fool could believe that any such prosecution was prompted by malice. The malice is always on the other side, that of the devil and his agents. After next election that officer would serve his country best in some other employment than as district attorney, annulling the laws of his state and counseling crime and outlawry.

LECTURERS' APPOINTMENTS

REV. W. C. KING

Will lecture at Aristimba (?) Sept. 2; Central Point, 3, 4; Plainsburg and vicinity 5, to 8th.

COL. C. N. GOULDING.

Will speak at Eureka Mills, Sept. 2, 3; Quincy, 4; 5; Taylorville, 6, 7; Crescent Mills 8, 9; Greenville, 10, 11 12.

Mr. Howe voted right thru for local option; ever since 1874 it has been the custom in either party to consign any nominee or candidate for office to instant perdition if he has favored local option: For that reason the temperate, moral and virtuous element should cast a solid vote for Mr. Howe and let us have a mayor who has not a mark against his good record, and is a friend of temperance too.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

A denominational paper says regarding the movement:

"This action is not taken specially in the interest of religion, or in the interest of morality, but rather in the interests of the humanities; so that keepers, tenders and waiters may have a day of rest and recreation, and the frequenters may have the same, untainted by the steam, fume and fomentation of a day in the saloons. That such a closing would be right, and could be made legal, is evinced by the enforced closing of all saloons on election days. And surely we ought to have as much respect for a Sunday as we do for an election day. Sunday should become a rest day for all classes. It should be made more fully a diesnon, so that no traffic whatever should be legal, and no money collectable for anything done. Then those who wished to keep the first day of the week as a day of holy rest could do so with less distraction and more zest. Close the saloons on the first day of the week? Of course; and every other place, the paths to which run athwart the best intents of society."

The people who have been for a great many years laboring and battling here against the heaviest odds, to rescue the American Christian Sabbath from desecration and destruction, have been worrying under a very grievous mistake, if their action has not been and is not now in the interest of religion and morality as well as of humanity. It will be news of the rarest kind to them, to learn that it is in the interest of barkeepers, tenders and waiters, and to give them and their frequenters rest and recreation to prepare them for new indulgence in crime during the week.

The temperance people have been horrified to see the Sabbath of their God and of their fathers and of their native land trodden under foot, and in place of being devoted to a thankful service to a beneficent Creator and to religious and moral culture and improvement, prostituted to be an occasion of particular and excessive devil worship. They have always cherished an idea which they dont like to abandon now, that they knew what they were trying to do and its purpose. They knew that the open grogshop was sending 100,000 of our own people to perdition every year: that young men would not believe in the worship of their father's God, if they knew their fathers voted every time to elevate the bottle above the cross: that children could never learn to believe in the sanctity or reality or common sense of the lessons they hear in the Church and Sunday school, when on their way to and from that church and school on Sunday, they see dozens of mantraps and schools of blasphemy and vice wide open by consent of their parents and teachers, and observe that the Sabbath is wholly given up to the service and worship of Satan, with no protesting voice raised save by a few temperance fanatics.

They were under the impression that their desire to see the Sabbath restored meant that the Gospel and the instrumentalities of the elevation of humanity might be turned to some account in place of being as they are in the cities of California mere empty voices in the air, which the great mass of men utterly disregard. They hoped they were a few in Israel who had not bowed the knee to the Baal of rum and coin. Perhaps the main reason that actuated every one who has given any help or sympathy to the repeated attempts that have been made to restore the Sabbath was, that they believed it right to do so. But to be told that the whole movement is in the interest of barkeepers to give them a rest is a little more than edifying.

The fact is that when on the 22nd Feby. 1855 the first Good Templars Lodge was formed in California, its purpose was to drive out the empire of satan, restore the Sabbath and the christian religion in its purity and vigor, to plant the church of God and every improving and bettering interest of mankind in a soil and clime where they could live and grow. Every time a Lodge has been formed since, every time a lecturer has been sent out to preach the gospel of sobriety, virtue and godliness; every time the people have set out in the evening to meet in their Lodges; every District Lodge and Grand Lodge meeting and everything else that has been done by the Good Templars and most if not all the temperance organizations of this State, have had their one common aim, to restore our country's Sabbath, our country's Christianity and make possible the coming of the Kingdom of God among us.

That has been the polar star to which every work of the people, who are trying to close the grogshop on Sunday first and on every day afterwards, has pointed. And every act opposition to the furtherance of the temperance reform, every slighting and depreciating remark regarding it and its objects, has been a help and a bid and a shout in favor of debauching the Sabbath and outraging the most high God. And those who have looked on and never assisted to redeem this State from its slavery to the idolatry of bacchus, have stood not neutral, but on the wicked side, in the contest between heaven and hell."

MODERATE DRINKER.

The Bible lays down rules of life applicable to all time, but which may lead to unlike action upon unlike occasions, which thing the apostle Paul has very distinctly set forth. Thus as to the use of wines, the change in all the conditions involved since the early Christian ages has been most complete. We have not their wines and we have the strong drinks which they had not. What may have been suitable then gives no proof of what is best now. To make the case plain, if I think it be of some use to me and not harmful to my neighbor, I may well enough keep a dog. But if there breaks forth a general madness among the dogs so that they bite and kill men, and if my dog is liable to give it to other dogs, or to get it from them, it may become my duty to kill that dog. The wines of Palestine in these ages have run mad, or our wines have at any rate; and so it is most safe to let them alone.—Congregationalist.

It may seem to some men a very fortunate thing that we have an obliging class now-a-days, who rectify the mistakes which they clearly point out to us in the acts and teachings of the Savior and his apostles. If the Bible lays down rules of life which may lead to unlike action on different occasions, or if it ever justified the use of intoxicating beverages, it would be no better than waste paper in that part of its teachings. But rather than give up the darling doctrine that it is consistent for Christians to use the materials of drunkenness, the Congregationalist will insist on making the Bible doctrines and teachings on that question very contradictory and unreliable.

Those who are not blinded by appetite, bigotry or superstition, can see that the Bible and the apostles were perfectly right and consistent on the subject of wine, and need no apologies or sophistries to bridge over their mistakes. There is not a particle of evidence to show that there has been the slightest change in the conditions of the use of wines since the time of Noah. They made him filthily drunk, and the use of intoxicating wine is denounced and cursed and threatened with judgments thruout the Scriptures. Its use led to as vile and filthy results according to the Bible as it does now. The apostle Paul never said anything against keeping a dog, nor anything which could be twisted into the palliation of the keeping of mad dogs or trading in them.

One of the most difficult things to comprehend is the motive or object of certain men, who try to make the world believe that if they outwardly profess to abstain from the most filthy, debasing, unholy and accursed habit known to men, the use of a drink which impels men to the meanest and most vicious crime, they must be adorned with a robe of the most costly virtue and canonized for suffering such a fiery baptism of martrydom, all for the sake of that "poor, weak brother" of theirs, of whom we have heard so much, but of whom the keenest and most persevering research has ever failed to find trace or indication.

MORE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS.

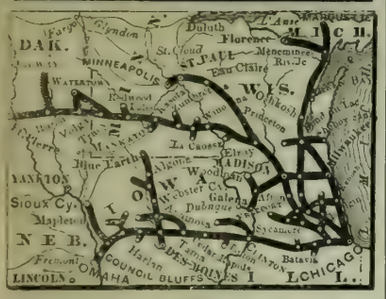
The Hon Felix R. Brunot of Pa. at the recent National temperance convention made this statement:

It seems to me that this question of temperance literature lies at the very foundation of the work sought to be accomplished by this Convention, and the result is not to be gained solely through the teaching of temperance in the Sunday-school or thru the circulation of literature among the young until the church, as represented by its ministry, shall have taken the proper ground on which the other movements must be based. A Christian lady sent me a tract which was a Sunday-school lesson. She informed me that a young man who had been intemperate was taken up by his friends and persuaded to change his life. He became a Christian and a Sunday-school teacher, and nearly a year after this reformation, which was believed to be permanent, he fell. His despairing friends, when he was brought to his home in a condition of intoxication, found on his person this paper, which was sent to me. The paper was a lesson on temperance. It commenced by giving some wise words of Solomon on the subject; it then went on to explain in effect that temperance meant moderation. It went on to ask the question "Is it wrong to drink wine?" What was the answer? "No; for our Saviour Himself made wine at the feast of Cana of Galilee." And that was the general tenor of this lesson. It was a so-called temperance lesson—that is, it taught that it was not right to get drunk and make a beast of yourself; but it effectually taught intemperance, and such teachings would gather the children of the Sunday-school into the army of drunkards. How could such a lesson be taught to children! It must be because the ministers of the Gospel do not believe that total abstinence is in accordance with the Scriptures. We must first learn that our blessed Saviour never made drunkards and that the lessons of the Scriptures are not in the line of making drunkards. One of the encouraging features of the temperance cause is that the church is awakening to the subject, and when it is thoroly awake we may look for success. I am glad that the church of my own love seems to be awaking to it. We have lately had established in the Eastern States, by the agency of a gentleman from England, what our people call a church temperance society. I do not think much of it myself, except as an indication that even the most conservative of our churches is beginning to awake to the consciousness that the church must do something to promote the cause of temperance.

CHICAGO.

Last Sunday the Bavarians held a picnic in Ogden's Grove, and Mayor Harrison made them a speech, from which we take the following from a report in the Morning Times:

(Here the Mayor's exertions made him thirsty, and he asked for something to drink. A glass of water was accordingly brought.) "No!" said his grace, "bring me beer—Bavarian beer. Give the Kentuckian his whisky, the Frenchman his wine, the Englishman his ale, but give me lager—the lager of Bavaria."



Here the Mayor quoted a snatch of a German song with a noble disregard for the peculiarities of German pronunciation. Then, holding up the glass of beer, the "best Mayor Chicago ever had" said: "There, my friends is the solution of the temperance question. Sit down on bad whisky, but give the people good beer."

That very day one of his policemen was carried from the grounds beastly drunk, having literally followed the Mayor, his superior officer's advice, and tried that new method for the solution of the temperance question.

That same night Chicago was a carnival of crime, for three murders were committed in as many hours, and three more persons dangerously if not fatally wounded by men filled with beer and whisky.—National Liberator.

Bro Leland writes from La Grande Oregon, where he is weary with hard labor and long journeys: but he winds up his letter with a list of ten new names for the Rescue from that distant section where he has been unfolding the flag of temperance and setting people to thinking and reading upon that most important topic.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c.
Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.— By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c.
This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.
It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen nd in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

POSTAGE FACILITIES.

In Barbacoas there is of course a mail service and a post office. A swift winged messenger leaves Barbacoas on foot once a week for the interior thru the forest, and returns from his beat as often. The mail is strapped on his back and he carries the whole commercial and literary and friendly correspondence, the foreign and domestic newspaper and money order business in that knapsack between several large interior provinces and the coast. Once in two weeks the mail canoe sets out from Barbacoas for the coast and carries the communications with the whole outer world.

The postage on a letter between any two places in the republic was 5 cts, outside 10 cents, but as business was considered rather depressed during the two years of my stay there, they raised the outward postage from Barbacoas to foreign parts from 10 to 35 cts. They probably desired like post master James, to make the post office department self-sustaining by this judicious inposition upon the nine foreigners there. But the movement must have failed, for we very soon organized a system by which we got our mail sent down by private hands and put on board the steamer on the coast without paying any postage at all. That put our friends to the inconvenience of paying double the honest postage at this end, but we were willing to sacrifice our friends at home to any extent, rather than pay these rascals the exorbitant and utterly illegal city charge of 35 cts. on a single letter. So, after the first week or so of the new regime, they never got anything at all from us, except the dime on the letters we received, which they always collected with an only half satisfied air.

On the arrival of the mail, the letters for the natives, after being all sorted are called off by the P. M., and those present who answer to the names called, are handed the correspondence without question. It is deemed that no one will ever ask for letters which he is not entitled to, and probably they never do.

The money order business of the postal system of that country is somewhat peculiar, Smith desires to send five to fifty dollars thru the mail to Jones, deposits his coin with the P. M. who issues to him a libranza or money order, and then wraps up the coin and sends it to the P. M. at the paying point. Jones having received the libranza, presents it, and when the money arrives he gets it.

It never did appear that there was a large business done in that line, for the prevailing custom in sending money was to send it in personal trust by the mail carrier, or by almost any private traveler; and it was about always safe to do so; even a foreigner would respect the integrity of the natives in that particular and act honestly in the performance of his trust.

SCHOOLS

There has been a vigorous effort for many years made by the liberal or progressive party to set a public school system in operation. Any community which will petition the school directors at headquarters for a teacher, setting forth that there are a certain number of children that will be sent to school, is at once supplied with a teacher at expense of the government, if a teacher can be found, which is often a difficulty. Barbacoas had a school for boys with about 80 attendants, and now there is one for girls. But until quite lately a girl had to be taught by a private tutor. It is held there that in a mixed school, "girls lose their modesty and purity," and those who argue thus think themselves like Zach Montgomery, qualified to deliver an infallible opinion, to which the intelligent world should submissively bow.

Of course the clerical party and their ignorant dupes resist with all their might and art and malice the establishment of schools. As here, after having made the schools godless, they use that cry against them. They denounce the teachers of all government schools as infidels and declare excommunication of the most comprehensive torturing type to all who send their children to the public schools. In this matter they might learn an additional lesson in devilish cruelty and satanic malignity from the priest in Oakland who condemns the children of his people who obey their parents in attending the schools of their country to everlasting perdition.

The priestly confederacy have plunged their country into several bloody civil wars to kill the school system, but have been worsted always.

Not one in fifty probably of the African population can read, but they would like to. One old man asked me if I could not teach him to read, he wanted so much to be able to read the Bible from which I had read sometimes to a few of his people. For the first time they learned from me that they could have a free school. They had over 60 children that could go. But after a meeting at which two or three of the colored seniors zealously advocated the establishment of a school, it was decided that they were too poor to afford a school. But, said the others, it dont cost us a cent, the government pays the teacher. Yes, we know that; but if a teacher comes we will have to give him a present of a fish or a head of plantains or something of that kind now and then, and you know we are too poor to afford it.

That very crowd had a ball from 6 to 12 times a year, sometimes lasting two or three days and 8 days at Christmas; at any of these the bill for native rum was from $10 to $25.

But they were too poor to have a school. Fools, you will say, but not a whit more so than our people who act in a precisely similar inconsistent manner as regards the liquor business and drinking habits. Our California towns are too poor to have a public hall or library that would cost one to five thousand dollars, but they can spend from fifty to five hundred thousand a year in debasing, pauperizing drinks and tobacco.

BRO GARDNER REBUKES BOB INGERSOLL.

"Two nights ago at midnight," said the President at the last meeting of the club, "I saw Brother Kyan Jones take leave of earth to cross the dark river. The old man had been ailing for weeks, and was ready to go. When his eyes looked under the dark cloud of death and caught sight of the gates of heaven, he gathered his friends about him, and we sat beside him when his life went out. If there is a man in this hall who believes with Bob Ingersoll, he should have been there when the soul of that poor old black man began slipping away from its home of clay. What brought the smile of joy to the old man's face? What put the look of blessed satisfaction in his eye? Why did he welcome the coming of that sleep which knows no waking till the blast of the trumpet turns earth into Paradise?

"Way down in the rice fields of Louisiana lies the body of his old wife. That smile of joy was born in the thought of meeting her at the gate of heaven. In a green lane in Georgia lies the dust of his first born child. That look came to his eyes when he realized that before the morrow he would fold that boy in his arms. In the years of the long ago they took his daughter away and he has never heard of her since. When he thought of the blessed family reunion up there behind the gates of gold, his face wore such a look that we could almost hear the music of the harps. Tell me of some unbeliever who died that way! Tell me of a scoffer who has let go of life with a smile on his face! All the words of all the infidels on earth could not have shaken the faith of that poor old man. He could not read, but he could pray. He could not write but he could hope. Just before the bells struck midnight we saw his smile brighten, and he pointed with his finger into distance. Shall I tell you what the old man saw? He saw beyond the curtain which hangs between life and eternity. He saw legions upon legions and hosts upon hosts marching down the dark river. He saw beyond that. He saw the sunlight on the other shore. He heard music. He saw the wife and children of other days, and when they held out their arms to him he whispered to us 'they are calling, they are calling.' And he sunk away without even a sigh.—Lime Kiln Club.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institu ion. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco,-who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

The business is so easy to learn, and our instructions are so simple and plain that any one can make liberal profits from the very start. No one can fail who is willing to work. Women are as successful as men. Boys and girls can earn large sums. Many have made at the business over one hundred dollars in a single week. Nothing like it ever known before. All who engage are surprised at the ease and rapidity with which they are able to make money. You can engage in this business during your spare time at great profit. You do not have to invest capital in it. We take all the risk. Those who need ready money should write to us at once. All furnished free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died, at Wm Brown's residence, Lake city Modoc Co. Aug 27th 1881, Enoch L Wood aged 43 years. an honored member of Lake city Lodge No 129 I. O. G, T.

In his death our Order had lost an efficient member and the country an exemplary citizen Altho without any relatives on our coast he was beloved by all who knew him, and many devoted friends assisted at the last sad rites. The customary resolutions were passed by the lodge, and Iowa and Wisconsin papers are requested to notice.

DIXON.—Dr. Merrick gave two lectures recently in Dixon. A report comes saying they were very well received, and in decided contrast with those by some of the itinerant independents who have been at work there. One lecture was on the "Duty of Christians," given on Sunday Evening; the other was on "Personal Liberty," and the Dr. seemed to capture his audience, and his talented efforts have resulted in several new applications for membership in the lodge.

FROM OREGON.

It cheers my heart to read the accounts in the RESCUE of the energy displayed by the G. T,s of Cal and their successes. If I can say a word to cheer and encourage our noble band of temperance workers, I will gladly say it. Sometimes we become discouraged and are tempted to lay our armor by and retire from the conflict. But let us remember that eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty but the price of home and country and all we hold dear. For if we retard our vigilance and slacken our efforts the forces of the enemy will surely invade our homes, capture and destroy our best beloved, undermine our free institutions and spread sorrow and want and crime, until our nation instead of being free and happy and prosperous, will be overwhelmed by intemperance and its attendant evils.

We cannot cease our warfare, we cannot remain idle while our sons and brothers are being lured to destruction, and our country on the very verge of overthrow and ruin. Disheartened ones, look abroad! see the grand temperance army advancing. Note the victories inscribed upon its banners. A few years ago every body drank of the intoxicating cup, but now how many, many thousands have joined our ranks. Our army composed of the noblest and best is marching on, slowly perhaps but surely, and we have all heaven on our side.

Hold the fort for I am coming,
Jesus signals still;
Wave the answer back to Heaven
By thy grace we will.

Well, I took my pen to tell you a little of what we are doing in Oregon. As many of your readers will not have the opportunity of reading the proceedings of our last Grand Lodge I will give in a few words some of the most important measures transacted.

Committees were appointed to perfect plans for a mutual aid society, plans for Orphans Home etc. County Deputies and subordinate lodges were urged to work for the establishment of county lodges in each county.

A resolution was passed petitioning the churches to discontinue the use of fermented wine at communion. Just here I would remark that the Baptist, Methodist and Christians, each have an association in Amity neither of which uses fermented wine.

A resolution was unanimously adopted and committee appointed to print and circulate a petition to the next legislature for a prohibitory amendment to the state constitution. This committee was to work in conjunction with one appointed for the same purpose by the State Temperance Alliance. But for some cause, I know not what, they failed to be on hand, and the Alliance has the honor of leading the forward move. They printed 1000 copies of the petition. (The committee met the 30th of July, drew up the petitions, had them printed and at this writing they are being circulated all over the state and being signed by our best citizens). If every community in the state is canvassed as thoroly and as successfully as this has been, we shall achieve a glorious victory.

The Grand Lodge did one superfluous thing in asking the ladies to extend their aid in the future as in the past. Of course they will; their hearts are in the work, and well they know that without their aid the work will never be accomplished.

I am making my letter too long, tho I havent written all I want to; but I must tell you about our lodge. We are increasing in membership and have opened a free reading room well supplied with choice reading matter. At present it is only open on Thursday night and Sunday night, but we hope ere long to keep it open every night in the week.

I think I see those scissors coming, so I'll stop.

MRS. S. A. MCKUNE.

Our good sister's letters are very welcome; to avoid all terrifying apparitions of scissors however, it is best to write more frequently and at moderate length.

TEMPERANCE POLICY.

An earnest sister worker writes from a country home:

I want to write of temperance inconsistencies. After I had met with some success in canvassing for the RESCUE in our vicinity, one of the Good Templars of a neighboring town urged me to canvass there, he thot I could get a good many subscribers. But, said I, there ought to be enough interested in temperance there to canvass, and I will work where I am needed more, and where there is no one else to do it. He said they had tried but couldnt get them to undertake it. So he pointed me to all the hotel keepers and people outside of the lodge and never said Good Templar once, so I made up my mind that all the Good Templars took the paper, he with the rest; I never went for them. All your subscribers from there are on the outside, not one Good Templar.

After I had canvassed pretty near all day, and it was about time for me to start home, nine miles to drive, I called on a lady charter member of the lodge, and asked her where she thot I would be most successful. She laughed and said I could not get one, tho I had got five since noon. I asked, how is your lodge prospering? "Poorly, it was not getting along very well." "Do you take the RESCUE?" "Yes, we get one in the lodge." "Does any one in your lodge take it?" "I dont think there is one: they can read the lodge paper.'. "Have you seen such and such articles in the RESCUE. "I haven't seen it; there is nothing in it worth reading, you are a fool to wear yourself out canvassing for that paper." I said, if you would make a move in that direction, your lodge and your business and your town might prosper better than they do. I dont think you know anything about the paper nor the articles in it any more than our saloon keepers do. What kind of tempersnce people are you? You must think that all your duty is to go to your lodge once a week and go to sleep on temperance the rest of the time. If you want to advance the cause you must take a temperance paper, and try to get every one else to take it. Read your own and then send it to some one that is not able to take it; that is the duty of every Good Templar, and to get as many on the outside to take it as you can. In the paper that you condemn lies your success as temperance people and with this I left her to reflect.

Inconsistency No. 2. There are two wagons run here, one from a whisky grocery, the other driver a Good Templar, no whisky. The first delivers whisky whenever ordered, the other none. The granger business association passed by-laws to have no whisky dealing in their store. Both these wagons pay the same price and sell for the same and run on the same route; and strange to say, quite a number of our Good Templars deal altogether with the whisky wagon.

Those things are just like raising grapes and hauling them to a winery to make wine for the grogshop to sell to make people drunk. I think a man of that kind more damage to the temperance cause than ten saloon keepers. There are many intelligent men favorable to temperance, and would vote with the temperance people if they would go to work systematically, organize as other political parties do, have a state central committee, have a temperance political club in every precinct, have speakers, temperance songs, music and so on; the lecturers you have now would soon do the rest. But let's have the best talent in that line. We are very much in need of a good temperance lecturer now; wish one could come soon. It would help you and us, if he is the right stripe. The temperance people want talking to pretty plain sometimes. J.

GOD'S POET.

All thru the sultry hours of June,
From morning blithe to golden noon.
And till the star of evening climbs
The gray-blue east, a world too soon,
There sings a thrush amid the limes.

God's poet, hid in foliage green,
Sings endless songs, himself unseen:
Right seldom come his silent times.
Linger, ye summer hours serene!
Sing on dear thrush, amid the limes!

. . . . . .

May I not dream God sends thee there,
Thou mellow angel of the air,
E'en to rebuke my earthlier rhymes
With music's soul, all praise and prayer?
Is that thy lesson, in the limes?

Closer to God art thou than I;
His minstrel thou, whose brown wings fly
Thru silent ether's sunnier climes.
Ah, never may thy music die!
Sing on, dear thrush, amid the limes!

TEMPERATE INTEMPERANCE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Nothing cheaper than assurances of harmlessness of forbidden fruit when the taste thereof has become popular. None more generous therewith than the self complacent victim of the old serpent after having lost all remembrance of whence he has fallen. He creeps on earth, feeds on ashes, glories in his shame and testifies a lie under the firm impression that he is what he should or might be, and competent of intelligently judging the necessities of other people. It matters not if evidences sufficient to convince hottentots or idiots of the deplorable effects of intoxicants fairly overwhelm endurance. He will persist that temperate use thereof never hurt anybody.

He may hold forth in the pulpit or gutter, the points of his logic are essentially the same. Such vary but in utterance, never in substance or intrinsic merit. Yet declamations of gutter snipes are less to be dreaded than sermons from our professed ministry of Christ, "promising liberty and being themselves servants of corruption;" for invincible ignorance evermore desires sponsors of this kiud to enter upon the byways and highways of vice. It is purchasing indulgences a la Texel. The masses of believers (?) want the Scripture interpreted to suit their taste, their conceit, their craving for forbidden fruit.

Modern faith expects to be theorized into heaven, and is willing to pay the cost—be lifted, and yet cling to sensual gratifications. Well meaning and sincere expounders of the word do their ablest to satisfy demand. Why, a moderate, temperate use of wine, opium, arsenic makes a body feel first rate. Why not a temperate, moderate indulgence in lying cheating, perjury, adultery, murder, etc.? Is there indeed a vice or sin without its charm? Were it otherwise, what need of a ministry of Christ at all?

It is safe to assert, and easy to prove that no professed follower of the Nazarene, advocating the use of intoxicants realizes the infamy of his course. Be the cause what it may, the undeniable fact is that present generations, and especially the American, cannot touch or handle intoxicating liquid, of any kind without suffering penalties and castigations (if not utter ruin) especially from burdening an exhausted nervous system with yet more deadly venom, in hope of return to healthful activity. Likely we have to thank our soothing syrups, patent quackeries and heroic treatment for this state of affairs. Or else we are fast descending to a spiritual level with the savage whom rum exterminates quicker than government reservations or contact with border civilization. Our national salvation lies rather in abstinence, fasting and penance than in accumulating more means to pave the streets of perdition with gold. This is the age of radical reforms or none at all. Compromise with the glaring evils is the spirit of the great harlot—the policy of the serpent of old.

J. C. K.

THE RESCUE makes the voluntary statement without suggestion or prompting of any one, that the R. W. G. T. who has a Department as G. W. S. in this paper, is not to be held responsible for any opinions as to R. W. G. L. or other affairs that are found in it, outside of his department, unless over his own signature. It is hoped nothing in it may be unpleasant to him or others, but anything directed by him will be so noted, that no blame may attach to him for the faults or offenses of others.

And it may be as well to say that when the action of R. W. G. L. is criticised in the RESCUE, present company is excepted.

CAMBRIA, Aug· 1881.

"The liquor traffic is a stupendous immorality; a crime against the state; against every man, woman and child, and its legal sanction is a wicked barbarism." G. W. Fitch.

Legalized liquor is the worst liquor in the state or nation: it produces pauperism, crime and taxation, and tends to the destruction of the race; it benumbs and paralyzes the moral susceptibilities by association and contact. It is this kind of liquor which gives an air of respectability to drinking and selling. The mass will, and do bow to fashion, to the popular verdict; and so long as it is "the will of the people" that liquor shall be made and sold, so long the making, selling and drinking cannot lose in popularity or become unfashionable.

It is this kind of liquor that builds state prisons, penitentiaries, asylums, hospitals, and makes a constant demand for their enlargement. It keeps courts active and the whole police and sanitary force of the state replete and alert.

It matters very little to the triumph of the temperance cause whether fermented or unfermented wines are appropriate for communion; it is not this that enlarges state prisons or increases taxation. It is not worth the while to split hairs on the question of Bible wines, nor is it necessary to enter into the chemical composition of alcohol, or its varying proportions in the various liquors, in order to know how to get rid of the burden of taxation.

It is said to be a lawyerlike policy not to be distracted or turned aside by any side issue strategy. Our great and leading question is, how shall we be rid of the liquor licensing laws of the state, and how shall we forever prohibit the traffic? Let us attend to nothing else until this is done; it is this to which all our efforts should be directed; it demands especial attention of the people; the people are responsible for their own government. It is the prerogative of the people to make and unmake their own laws.

The license liquor laws of the state and nation are the unparalleled blunders of the age; the greatest curse to any people; if a curse, the responsibility rests upon the sovereign people as the cause of the evils flowing therefrom. Drunkeuness and the consequent pauperism and crime are but the effects, the fruit, the product of a legalized liquor traffic.

How those calling themselves Christians and recognized as churchmembers in good fellowship can maintain their standing while they give their support and protection and countenance to a licensed traffic, can only be explained on the Scripture verdict, that "wine is a mocker." Not a church in the state can fellowship the drunkard, but the drunkard maker and the maker of drunkard makers can be found in all communions. And even that class of devout worshippers who hold to entire sanctification and complete forgiveness of their sins are found bearing their share in this stupendous immorality and crime against the state, and go to the polls year after year, and give their legal sanction to this wicked barbarism and to the defeat of prohibition.

Will not he who came to destroy this, the greatest work of the devil be compelled to say, "I never knew you—you who ought to have been earnest colaborers with me in punishing this "heaven-daring crime, have not stood by me, but have withstood me; I have been wounded in the house of my friends."

This liquor traffic is a public sin in which these wicked barbarians have united or conspired against the welfare of the people. These barbaric sovereigns have become so mean, so despicable, so depraved as to lay plans by which they get money surreptitiously to pay their taxes; they go down into the drunkard's pocket, into the meager purse of the drunkard's family and boast of the revenue.

The inconsistency of Good Templars in their sturdy antagonism to association or fellowship with drunkards, and yet cordially affiliate with those who acquiesce by their silence in this accursed traffic, and prostitute their divinest power in upholding this stupendous immorality should no longer be winked at or tolerated. To be a voter and not to be a prohibitionist in ballots as well as in words is treason against the Order. Joseph Cook says that the pulpit that is silent on temperance discredits itself. Does not a Good Templar whose ballot is silent on the liquor traffic or goes to defeat prohibition discredit his professions of temperance?

If the drunkard cannot enter the kingdom of heaven, how shall those find entrance there who are the cause and the producers of drunkenness by the sanction they give to this wicked barbarism.

How can those members of the Order maintain their self respect who gave their ballots to defeat prohibition last fall? And how can they preserve the respect of the sisterhood by their ambiguous temperance?

It is a cause of gratitude that the temperance sisterhood of the state have not yet attained to the honor (?) of complicity in this wicked barbarism. Whilst men who bear the burdens and responsibilities of government are the champions and defenders of this wickedness and have sold themselves to this great corruptor, and become themselves corrupted, their moral susceptibilities paralyzed, women have held their purity; they have not been among the principals in this crime—princeps criminis. However much or little they have been particeps criminis, they cannot be said to have made the same attainments in this stupendous immorality that they would have done had the ballot been in their hands, and they had helped to place and protect this prince of devils in the ballot box.

This purification of the ballot box can only come by the purification of each individual ballot. So long as each individual ballot does not declare and protest against this wicked license, just so long does it countenance and sanction it.

Let us use such instrumentalities as we have in hand; let us use the power we have; if it is but a single ballot it ought not to do the devil's work. We have no excuse for doing wrong because others do; let us show our confidence in the merits of our cause, and it will give us a leverage upon the mass which we cannot have by cowardly waiting for others. JOHN WOODS.

VENERABLE WHISKY.—A "very superior small quantity still left of the whisky drank by his late majesty on his last visit to Ireland," is advertised in the Irish papers as for sale by a Dublin whisky seller. As his late majesty of England died 44 years ago, that half barrel has stood the constant pull on it amazingly well, considering how much his late majesty must have improved its flavor and quality and its popularity. Miraculous; but similar miracles are frequent here. A half barrel of whisky bought at the sale of the effects of a rich banker 50 years ago, who had had it 45 years in his cellar in Paris, has panned out an average of 25 gallons a week for 21 years in San Francisco and discovers no symptoms of giving out yet. And a ten gallon keg of brandy about 70 years old, purchased at an enormous price under similar circumstances, and only sold to most intimate friends at 15 to 20 dollars a gallon has stood the drainage of about six bottles a day for over eighteen years, and always keeps just half full. They paid a big price for that keg, but it was good stock.

MORE MODERN JUSTICE.—Senator Miller is trying (the Chronicle says) to procure the pardon of the sailor Mahoney, who for using improper language (while drunk) to an officer, has been sentenced to three years imprisonment; while Master W. F. Halsey who was tried by a court martial, soon after at the same place, Mare Island, for being a "beastly drunkard," incompetent to perform his duties, was sentenced to six months on furlo pay and to reprimand in General Orders. Drunkenness in an officer of the U. S. Navy or army would seem to deserve a more severe penalty than in an ignorant seaman for whom his country has provided a mantrap, facing him in whatever direction he can turn. But as long as officers drink the same infernally disgraceful poisons, and visit the same beastly rum dens as they do now, they will have to sit light on a too impulsive brother who comes before them for trial; severity might come home at some future day to the judges themselves.

FAIRMOUNT PARK which came into the possession of the city of Philadelphia under the express condition that no intoxicating liquor should ever be sold on its grounds, has become the headquarters of the anti Sunday rum rioters. One of the commissioners defies the mayor to attempt to suppress the Sunday sale of liquor there, as has been done in the rest of the city, and says, the park "shall not be managed in a narrow, puritanical spirit, but any temperance spies will be kicked out if detected there." It is possible these outlaws, rebels, cutpurses and cutthroats will have to be brot to order with the bayonet argument yet.

BRO J. C. Hawver of Forest Hill has removed and after rendering some professional services to the people of Sunnyside, Iowa Hill and Damascus, he is going to be a settler in Auburn, which will be a much more fortunate occurrence for Auburn than it is for Forest Hill. In Michigan Bluff and other places he has lately visited, he has had time to attend to his Good Templar duties, to pick up a little club for the RESCUE, and stiffen up the courage and hopefulness of his brethren. Bro. Hawver is agent for the RESCUE anywhere.

A REPUBLICAN PARTY POLICY.

The Alliance News, Columbus, Ohio says that Captain Alfred E. Lee has been removed as Consul at Frankfort and Ferdinand Vogelin appointed in his place. Captain Lee is a temperance man, a member of the M. E. Church, a cultured, prudent, excellent gentleman and a meritorious officer, and he lay two days terribly wounded among the dead at Antietam. Vogelin is a beer guzzling infidel German. But Governor Foster of Ohio secured this action of our Government, in order to conciliate the infernal howling alien pack of filthy debauchers and debauchees in the Western States who are engaged solely in the business of creating drunkenness, crime and converting this land into a field of blood and savage violence. They were to be induced by this bribe to vote for Foster and carry his election as Governor of Ohio; himself a pliant tool and champion of the Sunday smashers, law defiers and devil worshippers.

MORE HELP FOR THE RUMMIES.

Our Government which has never in any other instance refused to appoint a committee of enquiry to report on any matter of general interest, cannot be persuaded to institute a commission of enquiry upon the effrcts of the system of licensing crime and pauper mills. But it is very ready to pander to the behests of any section of that party who are engaged in the respectable business of drunkard making.

Dr. Loring the new head of the Federal Board of Agriculture is said by the Chronicle to be a decided improvement upon his predecessor Mr. LeDuc; it seems the latter gave no recognition to drunkard and pauper culture as a department of agriculture and never noticed the vineyard drunkeries of this State, But with the present closer union of the Republican party with the whisky and outlaw faction and the crime breeders of the nation, the head of the department of agriculture has been chosen to suit them.

Dr. Loring's first act heard from, is a call for a national convention of viticulturists at Washington to be held next January. The cultivation of the vine for its natural uses is as noble a calling as any other industry: but the word viticulturist, tho it truly means cultivator of the vine, probably is intended to mean drunkard makers in the call.

The Chronicle is afraid that reduction of the wine duties would interfere with our drunkard and pauper factories and that if Mr. Loring affords proper facilities for our wine and brandy it will shortly be our chief industry. If the true source of a country's wealth is found in the vast number of its prisons, lunatic asylums, almshouses and its excessive swarms of tramps and criminals and paupers at large, the Chronicle is right.

But the grape interest honestly and decently carried on can be conclusively shown to possess a five fold larger amount of dollars and cents of annual revenue, than the wildest estimate that can be made of its doings when prostituted to the despicable, degraded, and beastly and criminal purpose of poisoning our fellowmen and becoming a hell caldron for scattering pestilence and pollution abroad over the state and the world.

People who vote against the prohibition of license and devil worship at every electi n, should begin to consider to what length of heathenism and open opposition to christianity they are leading their old parties.

KANSAS.—The professional lie makers who are employed by the whisky legien (Mark 5. 9, "for we are legion,") think they have given prohibition in Kansas a deadly stab by reporting that the German immigration has been entirely diverted from there to other States. There they have overshot the mark a little, for if it were true, it would be one of the best possible arguments in favor of the good results of a prohibitory law. We know better than to suppose that the sober better christian class of Germans will be diverted from Kansas because it has no vice-factories and thief dens. But if it were so, and no German of any kind should ever enter Kansas again it is difficult to conceive of any blessing for which a State should be so thankful.

No honest reasonable man would dream of offering any objections to the cultivated temperate, civilized Germans who believe in a christian civilization and in an overruling God: no one desires to offer any bar to their claim to be considered as good citizens as we could desire. But the German liquor sellers, brewers, beerdivers, beer garden and beer hell keepers, the Sunday debauchers and lawbreakers, have afflicted the new world with such a leprosy of debauchery and drunkenness and filthiness, have so deluged this heritage that God preserved so long for his people, with pauperism and vice and crime and outlawry, that we had better keep out 50 good German immigrants than let in one of the polluting class who are so numerous among them and who have spread a net work of dens of vice, dens of gambling, dens of thieves and of prostitution all over this land; who have poisoned our national politics, poisoned our national Sunday, poisoned our courts, poisoned our legislators and national government, poisoned the nation's morals and poisoned the physical health of the nation with their infernally poisoned beer and their universal accursed tobacco.

The sole business of that class of Germans and Irish and some other nationalities in this country, has been to poison the people who have pioneered and provided them a home and given them a welcome here—to undermine their religious and political institutions, to upset law and order and to destroy every vestige of morality and decency. But for that class of intruders, the sale and use of poisonous murderous drinks would probably have utterly disappeared from this republic 20 years ago.

So if Kansas can keep out the ruffians of the foreigners, they will be infinite gainers tho not a single foreigner of any kind should ever cross their border. It can afford to worry along with its American civilization without any alloy of foreign brutality and nastiness. The sooner the immigration of outlaws and criminals is diverted from 37 more states the better.

OREGON.

Bro, C. A. Sehlbrede in his excellent report as G. W. C. T. to the Grand Lodge at its last session does justice to the important services and righteous claims of the women of Oregon as follows.

WOMAN'S HELP.

"Too much cannot be said in behalf of the valuable services rendered our Order by the noble women of Oregon during the past year. Many lodges have been kept alive and the work in the community constantly pushed forward entirely thru their efforts, influence and earnest self sacrificing labors; and, while we realize and acknowledge the value of their services and influence we cannot but realize that woman laboring under the disabilities and restraints placed upon her by our present laws, can do but little compared with what she could if she were a free born American citizen and entitled to all the rights and privileges of American citizenship: hence I do not hesitate to say that it is my firm belief, that if we could enjoy entire freedom from the intoxicating bowl and its direful influences, we must first extend to women the freedom we enjoy—give her the ballot. She was made and is equal to us, and we must extend to her equal privileges."

The G. L. report of our sister State shows a present membership of 2,126, being a gain of 14 during last year, altho they have lost 11 lodges. This is not a very discouraging outlook when we consider that they number nearly as many Good Templars as either Ohio or New Jersey. It is fair to suppose that—considering the difference in the field, the population, the facilities and abilities of the respective States, the system and management which has resulted in a roll of 2,126 Good Templars in Oregon, two lecturers in the field and an active juvenile work set in motion—ought in either Ohio, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Maryland etc., to have made a showing of 50,000 or 60,000 members and a dozen lecturers in the field.

It is to be hoped our Oregon brethren will keep a bright look out for Mr. cheap-John, when he calls upon them to advise a reduction in any single department of their revenues.

Had a proper system of finance been adopted and adhered to all over this continent by the I. O. G. T. during the last 20 years, we could have been the most powerful organization of the country, could have equipped and sent into every State that attempts prohibition, 100 able lecturers and $10,000 worth of temperance literature and after a year's labor, carried prohibition triumphantly in one after another till we had succeeded in all.

But just as these possibilities began to loom up, the devil who has always been an active and exceedingly interested spectator and listener at all the temperance councils, set agencies to work in every State to preach the doctrine of making the Order so cheap that everybody could belong to it; and he succeeded in stripping it and dismantling it and in making it so poverty stricken that very few cared to belong to it, and its finances have been so thoroly crippled that it has been entirely shorn of all influence and power except in a very few States where cheap-John was not permitted to entirely pauperize it.

It is time a general movement was made everywhere to cast out the do-nothing devil and the go-cheap devil and the abolish-degree devil and every other shape of a destroying devil, out of our whole Order everywhere, and introduce a system of active improvement into the place of the active decay and active disorganization that under the cheap-John opiating effects of bad generalship and general bad management has rendered so many of our State organizations objects of derisive contempt.

When a sparsely settled hill of difficulties like Oregon is the peer in numbers and power of many of the older States of large population and numerous facilities and advantages, and is vastly the superior of them in activity, energy and effective work, it is time not for Oregon to feel complacent and satisfied with her success, but for the others to wake up to work or else honestly surrender the field to some competent organization that will occupy the ground.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc,. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

WOODLAND.—Chrysopolis Lodge, No. 210, of Woodland, Yolo county, held an unusually interesting meeting on Wednesday evening of last week, upon which occasion many visitors were present. The occasion was intended as a complimentary demonstration in behalf of the Rev. E. M. Stewart, who had been an active and constant member of the lodge, and who was about to take his departure from the lodge and city, having completed the full period of stay allotted by the itinerant system of the M. E. Church. The occasion was a benefitting and pleasant one, and of which the Woodland Mail said:

"Chrysopolis Lodge came together as usual, and the visiting members from the different lodges in the county, began to pour in from all directions until the lodge room was filled to overflowing, there being about one hundred Good Templars present. Geo. B. Katzenstein, the Right Worthy Grand Templar of the I. O. G. T. of the World being in the ante-room, was introduced and received as a Grand Lodge officer. Two candidates were then initiated. Under Good of the Order R. W. G. T. Katzenstein gave an eloquent address upon the Order. After closing the lodge, visiting members were invited into the banqueting hall to partake of ice-cream and cake, a bountiful supply having been provided. After all had supplied the wants of the inner man, those present listened to songs, instrumental music, readings, speeches, etc., when all separated, feeling well repaid for the time spent."

GRAND LODGE ARRANGEMENTS The 22nd annual session of the Grand Lodge of California I. O. G. T. will be held at Vallejo, October 4th, next at ten o'clock A. M.

Hotel accommodations have been provided for all who can and will attend as follows:

BERNARD HOUSE.—Board and Lodging—suite of rooms for two rooms for two persons first class $3,50 per day; second class $2 per day. Single room and board $1.50 per day each.

HOWARD HOUSE.—Board and Lodging for two persons per day $2,00; for one person per day $1,25; single meals, boarding, 25 cents each.

ASTOR HOUSE.—Board and Lodging for two persons per day $2,00. for one person $1,00; single meals, boarding 25 cents each.

RESTAURANTS.—Regular meals, without extras 25 cents each.

LODGINGS.—Suite of rooms for two persons $1,00; Single room, single person 50 cents,

Arrangements will also be made for the accommodations of guests in private families.

ABOUT CAMPING PARTIES—The suggestion that camping parties be made up to attend the next session of the Grand Lodge, seems to have struck a popular chord, and already several localities have adopted the suggestion. One brother, from Sonoma county, writes: "That was a good suggestion concerning camping parties to Grand Lodge. Keep it up. I believe we will get up a party, as some of our Good Templars have been talking of and looking for a place to go on a camping expedition." Come right along, brother, there is plenty of room, and the Vallejo brethren will arrange for you and see you well cared for. Yolo county is moving in the matter, and Bro. Hoag says a party will be organized to go on a camping trip to the Grand Lodge from Davisville. Next!

The train leaving San Francisco at 8 A. M., and Sacramento at 7:20 A. M., will arrive at Vallejo at about 10 A. M., in time for the first sitting of the Grand Lodge.

The steamer Amelia, connecting with trains from San Francisco and Sacramento, arrives at North Vallejo at 10 and 11:30 A. M., and 4 P. M.

At 6 P. M. street cars connect with the South Vallejo train.

Persons desiring to secure accommodations, either board or lodging, in advance of arrival at Vallejo, will write to Bro. Samuel Kitto, Vallejo, Solano County, Cal., stating the particular accommodation they require, in accordance with the foregoing list.

ABOUT MRS. HAYES' PICTURES.—Bro. John Robinson, of Guerneville, writes: "Would it not be better for lodges in this State to order through you? I think twice the number of lodges would order if they were enabled to do so through the G. W. S.'s office. After all had sent in their orders, and just before the publication of the picture, you could order them from the W. C. T. U. Our lodge decided at its last meeting to order a picture." The suggestion is worthy of a trial, and the G. W. S. will be pleased to receive the remittance of $5 from any lodge or individual and their orders for the picture. Several lodges have already acted upon the suggestion to provide themselves with a copy of the picture, and have already ordered. Send in your orders, accompanied with a remittance of the amount, and they shall have prompt attention.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the G. L. office has been favored with calls from Bro. the Rev. J. S. Jesse of Sheridan Lodge No. 260, now residing at Wheatland. Bro. G. W. Frazer, L. D. of Alamo Lodge No. 415, Elmira. Bro. M. D. Merrick, International Lodge No. 291, San Francisco. Bro. W. H. Pierce, of Defiance Lodge, No. 219, Pleasant Grove.

RETIRED.—Bro. F. J. Culver has retired from the lecture field, and entered the Pacific Theological Seminary at Oakland, to pursue and complete his studies for his chosen profession—that of the ministry. Bro. Culver has been an earnest and faithful worker, and retires with the best wishes of all for his success.

DELINQUENTS.—Last week a personal notice was sent from the G. W. S. office to each Lodge Deputy whose quarterly returns for the term ending July 31st had not been filed. Each was urged to immediately forward the Returns. Some have responded promptly, others have not. Next week a list of those remaining delinquent at the close of the current week, will be announced in this department.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

J, W. WEBB.

From Central city where Positive Lodge is wide awake and doing well, I went to Guadalupe and found many friends anxious to do all they could to make a success. This is a tough place for temperance or religion and many of the leading people seem content it should be, for they are apathetic and leave the work to fail. Very slim audiences, partly owing to want of understanding about posters.

Places like this need as frequent visits of lecturers as possible, and they should stay best part of a week so as to instruct, encourage and enthuse. Distributed a good number of RESCUES, tracts and Dr. McDonald leaflets, and set the people reading and thinking.

It seems to me that every lodge should send right off for a supply of tracts and pamphlets from the RESCUE office or Rev. J. B. Hill, 1041 Market street and get people reading. Try two or three dollars worth from your lodge treasuries; read and then distribute judiciously; you will find a great variety suited to children, adults, doctors, ministers, Sunday-school teachers, liquor sellers, politicians and temperance workers. There are many striking narratives that always take with the public. Wish the RESCUE would publish some more of that class. But dont forget as well to get up clubs for the RESCUE and other temperance papers.

Bro. Morse drove me to Arroyo Grande. Found much life in the lodge and out of it. Also in the Good Samaritan Lodge. The latter numbers about 50 members. Spencer Records is W. C. S. There are other lodges in the county. Some members subscribed for the Rescue. The Good Templars are also strong and growing. We had a full house to the lecture and also to an address to Sunday-school and a sermon on the Good Samaritan.

After dinner on Sunday Bro. Rice started me off with a pair of stout farm horses and a light wagon, minus a break. The animals felt gay and started out lively. I mistook the road and had to turn back in about half a mile. My horses supposing the trip was about over and they were being headed for home, started down hill full tilt and soon became entirely unmanageable, and made direct for a big rail fence. I concluded I would stay with them as long as possible, but remembered A. D. Wood's advice; "dont miss an appointment unless you can send word you're dead!" I thot it quite likely I should miss preaching at San Luis Obispo that night, and that some one would send the word that would be a justifiable excuse. Thanks to a kind providence the kingbolt came out just as the wagon struck the fence. The tongue broke, and as I picked myself up where I had been pretty roughly thrown out, I found no serious damage done except my knees bruised somewhat.

The horses got back to Bro. Rice's before I did, also unhurt. Bro Rice procured a fresh team and driver whom I hired to take me there; aud supperless but very thankful I reached the church in time to speak to a large congregation. A good many were out next night to the lecture, but I was surprised to see so few that were not Good Templars. I met some good earnest workers. Bros. Meredith and Wood, public school teachers etc., and a good volunteer choir.

Dr. Nichol's name is sent in, and as he persistently called me Bro. Webb, I am pursuaded he feels he has as good as joined, only awaiting initiation. He is a man of great influence and can induce many others to join. Hope he will get Dr. W. T. Lucas and wife —fine people of Guadalupe to join. Bro. Nichols and Bro Lucas would sound so well.

Scarlet fever was somewhat prevalent; this lessened our audiences which were very appreciative, and prevented starting a Band of Hope, for no school was in session. So I went back to Arroyo Grande during Monday and addressed the schools of Bro. J. F. Beckett Co. Supt and Sr. Lovett. With their hearty cooperation we organized a band of 53 out of a possible 60 or less present; Sr. Lovett Supt. and Bro. Beckett volunteering to assist all in his power,

All thru these parts Sister Stevens is remembered with more than esteem and has done wonderful good that must not be let die. Substantial people have joined the various lodges and there is stamina and principle and philanthropy enough to "hold the fort" in each place.

MRS. STEVENS.

Met with a gratifying success at West Berkeley as usual: nearly 20 names were offered as applicants for membership in the Lodge there and a club started for the RESCUE. A good deal of interest manifested in the "Twin Evils." At Livermore a good addition was made to the Lodge and among other good results an active feeling on the subject of Sunday closing. At Walnut Creek a $22 collection was taken and 30 applications for membership. A Band of Hope organized with 50 members, a lady teacher in the public school being Superintendent and a very worthy and capable one too. Steps taken here towards Sunday closing. Newark was all right morally and religiously and needs no improvement in that direction, so for the present the proposed meeting there was postponed. Lodge dead and wants to stay dead. At Washington Corners a good meeting on Saturday evening: 9 additions to Lodge and on Sunday Sister Rix reorganized the Band of Hope. Sunday and Monday evening lectured in Pleasanton and organized a Lodge of 30 members to start with. $10. contributed to the O. H. The mothers and sons of the leading families united with the Lodge, and under the able leadership of Mrs. N. L. Neale the W. C. T. its success is assured. Mrs. S. has high hopes of its promise of usefulness.

C. N. GOULDING.

My last letter was from Camptonville on the 20th of August, since that time I have lectured in Pike City (seven houses) three saloons. Forest City population 400; 9 saloons. Downieville population 500; 11 saloons. Sierra City population 450; 22 saloons, and am now in Plumas county. From the population of the towns mentioned, and the number of saloons in each you can draw your own conclusions as to the need of temperance work. I find the members of the order "staunch and true" and not only holding their own, but gaining ground in the towns mentioned. I shall reserve any comments on my trip, intending with your permission to review the same sometime in the future; am now up here 7000 feet above the sea; hope soon to reach "the summit" if possible. "Slickens and Anti-Slickens" is the talk and every man is a millionaire, that is providing etc etc.. Have been favored with fair audiences and trust that some good may have been accomplished.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

JOHN HOWARD.

He was a philanthropist or "a friend of men;" it is strange such men are so scarce that they invented that long name for them. But there is no doubt tho they are few, there are more and more of them in every succeeding generation.

John Howard was born in 1726 at Hackney near London. Perhaps the director of all things had so arranged it that Howard's father had been fortunate in trade and left a good deal of wealth which John put to a good use. When he was about 30 years old he went on a voyage to Portugal to see Lisbon after the terrible earthquake which destroyed a large portion of that city and 60,000 of its people. But the vessel he was in was captured by a French privateer, a kind of pirate ship licensed by the governments in that day to rob and sink or capture the enemy's vessels during war time. England and France used to be almost all the time at war, and were to each other perhaps the meanest neighbors that ever lived on this planet.

John was carried to France a prisoner and was kept confined in one of the villainous jails of that time in the interior of the country; and he had a very hard and wretched experience there. It was a fortunate thing for thousands of people since that he did so suffer there. The treatment of prisoners in those days was exceedingly cruel and barbarous everywhere; no matter for what they were shut up, prisoners, especially if poor, were considered entitled to very severe treatment. They were regarded as criminals, and thousands died of barbarities and cruelties and neglect and starvation.

Men used to be imprisoned for debts they owed: many times they deserved to be, but often they did not. The creditor could imprison a poor fellow who had been sick or had been robbed or burned out or had suffered any misfortune which rendered him unable to pay a debt, small or large which he had incurred. The debtor was thrust in with thieves and criminals, and thousands upon thousands in England of poor unfortunate debtors when they entered a jail never left it till they were carried out dead. And they had generally if not always to find their own food or starve.

After Howard got away from France at last, he knew how prisoners were treated. And he learned more of it when at 46 years of age he became sheriff of his county for a time. Here he determined to devote the rest of his life to the visiting of prisons, and so he did, writing up what he saw there, trying to mitigate the sufferings of prisoners and using every effort to induce the governments of Europe to reform their entire prison system and deal mercifully with the unfortunate.

He continued for the remainder of his life to visit and report and agitate about prisons. He wrote An Account of theLazarettos of Europe and other works. In 1790 at the age of 64 he caught a fever from a prisoner in Kherson in Southern Russia, whom he was caring for in his sickness, and John Howard laid down his life there, trying to the last to lessen and lighten the terrible burden of human anguish and torture which men's sins and wrongs inflict upon themselves and each other. How much and how long John Howard suffered by the sins and cruelties of others.

Thru his exertions people who never thot about poor prisoners before, became interested in them and ever since his time they have been better cared for; and men are not imprisoned now for several causes which deprived them of liberty in former times. It is thot by some, and with show of reason that many wicked and irreclaimable criminals are now treated with too much leniency.

It is very likely John Howard was called a fanatic, a fool, an idiot, a donkey and a medler for doing things he got no pay for and made no money by; but after people have had time to see the results of his labors, his name is always mentioned with affectionate reverence, as one to whom every dweller on earth owes a debt of grateful love. When good mothers try to instil lessons of kindness and compassion and gentleness into their children, the kind merciful and selfsacrificing labors of John Howard afford them a pleasant and useful theme. He was not considered a man of great talent or attainments so called; but he was one of the world's greatest heroes and benefactors.

THE SCHOOL ESSAYS.

When the children write their essays on the twin evils, it is hoped that among the effects of beer and tobacco upon the human brain and the hnman conscience, which they shall note, some of the smart ones will not forget to include those produced upon the writer or writers of two recent articles in the Bulletin upon the subject.

The writer of the first article is evidently so brain fuddled by his alcoholic absorptions that he calls Dr. McDonald's project "silly and stupid," because he says it is setting children to thinking upon a subject which has puzzled philosophers and theologians for centuries. Now if he had been properly educated in his childhood, like the children of the present day will be, he would have learned to avoid beer and tobacco and would have acquired sense enough to know that the only thing that has puzzled such philosophers and thelogians as he is, has been to frame decent pretexts and excuses for using the vile things. It has never puzzled any one a moment who has had sense enough to let them alone. We all knew they were poisons to be never touched: no puzzle at all in that. Now what a singular effect beer has upon a teacher who is brainsick of beer and is affronted and snappish and calls people silly and stupid who desire that the children under his charge shall be instructed to avoid the nasty poisons which have created such miserable and wicked tendencies in him. But that is just like the effect of alcohol upon the human brain. It destroys the principles of rectitude and honesty and fairness and good will to our neighbors, and makes men peevish and unreasonable and oh! so supernaturally stupid and goosey.

The writer of the other article, perhaps the same individual, pretends that he fears the children in getting up these essays will try to use the writings and sayings and thots of other people and pass them off as their own and will be thus made hypocrites. You see here beer or some kind of alcoholic mocker and brain perverter makes this man act the hypocrite himself as well as the fool. Any sane person knows that children are no more tempted to copy or repeat the words or thots of others, when writing of tobacco and alcohol than in writing any other composition. Any sane sober person knows that drinking and smoking make more hypocrites and frauds and lies than all other causes combined.

You see it dont trouble this kind of people a particle to know that 32,000 children in this city may be tempted and taut to grow up drunkards and tramps and live and die miserably: they like beer and dont care how many children perish thru it; and yet beer makes them mean enough to pretend they are afraid writing these essays and learning to avoid and hate beer and tobacco is going to hurt the children. That shows how truly the bible puts it, when it says wine deceives all who use it.

THREE LODGES SAVED.

A Juvenile Sup. in England reports that three lodges to his knowledge have been saved by having juvenile temples attached to them. They would have given up under difficulties, but they could not afford to have the temples go under, and they soon got well afloat again. Suppose every lodge in California that begins to feel down at the heel, sets a Band of Hope in vigorous operation; there will not then be so much need of a Grand Lecturer to stand a dead lodge up on its end again. And every lodge that feels well ought to have a Band of Hope under its tenderly protecting care, and that will help preserve the lodge from ever getting sick.

You'll meet with a thousand temptations.
Each city with evil is rife.
This world is a stage of excitement.
There's danger wherever you go,
But if you are tempted to weakness.
Have courage Boys, to say No!

The syren's sweet song may allure you,
Beware of her cunning and art.
Whenever you see her approaching.
Be guarded, and haste to depart.
The billiard saloons are inviting,
Decked out with their tinsel and show.
You may be invited to enter.
Have courage Boys, to say No!

The bright ruby wine may be offered.
No matter how tempting it be,
From poison that stings like an adder,
Boys, have the courage to flee!
The gambling hells are before you.
Their lights, how they dance to and fro,
If you should be tempted to enter,
Have courage Boys, to say No!

In courage alone lies your safety.
When you the long journey begin.
And trust in a Heavenly Father
Who'll keep you unspotted from sin.
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from a rivulet flow,
But if you are true to your manhood.
Have courage Boys, to say No!

THE SCEPTICAL SHOEMAKER.

"I have read," said the shoemaker, "a good deal about the heathen gods, and I believe the account of Christ is taken from some of the heathen writings."

"Will you abide by your own decision on two questions that I will put to you?" said the Bible reader. "If so, I will freely do the same. I will abide by your own answers; by doing so we shall save much time, and arrive more quickly at the truth."

"Well," said he, "out with it, and let us see if I can answer: there are few things but that I can say something about."

"Well my friend," replied the reader, "my first questions is—Suppose all men were Christians, according to the account given to us in the Gospels concerning Christ, what would be the state of society?"

He remained silent for some time in deep thought and then was constrained to say, "Well if all men were really Christians in practice as well as theory, of course we should be a happy brotherhood indeed."

"I promised you," said the reader, "that I would abide by your answer, will you do the same?"

"Oh, yes," he readily replied; "no man can deny the goodness of the system in practice; but now for the other question: perhaps I shall get on better with that. You have a chalk this time against me."

"Well, my next question is this; Suppose all men were infidels. what then would be the state of London and of the world?" He seemed still more perplexed, and remained a long time silent, the reader doing the same.

At length he said, "You have certainly beaten me, for I never before saw the two effects upon society, I now see that where the Christian builds up the infidel is pulling down. I thank you: I shall think think of what has passed this afternoon."

The sequel was that he was fully persuaded in his own mind to give up all his infidel companions, and follow the Lord Jesus Christ. But the change did not stop here. When first the reader called, he had to sit on an old dirty chair, with a number of half-starved children sitting in their rags on the floor around him, neglected and uncared for: now they have removed to a better home in a cleaner street. Within, all is cheerful and happy.

"Where the Christian builds, the infidel pulls down." Was not the shoemaker right? Which brings the most joy to the heart, Christianity or infidelity? Which is most calculated to make a life happy? Which will make the death-bed easy, and prepare the soul for an eternity which awaits all men—Christianity or infidelity?—Christian Herald.

GEORGE MULLER.

THE FRIEND OF THE ORPHANS.

About four years ago ascending a river in South America, making a monthly trip up to the Post office in a canoe, it occurred to me to tell the African peons who were my attendants the story of George Muller the man of faith and prayer. It was news indeed to these ignorant Catholics to be told of a Protestant that prayed or believed in a God at all. The story was about as follows.

Some forty years ago or more a German christian went to England and began to preach there. He told his people he did not want to make any bargain about a salary as he thot his God would see that he was taken care of. After he had labored a year or more in England, he removed to the city of Bristol, which was once one of the greatest shipping ports of the world and has now a very wealthy community.

He was a great believer in the promises of God to hear and answer prayer: thot that we should believe just what the bible says on the subject, and accept it just as we do a market report or an advertizement in a daily journal. He saw many poor, ragged, starving children and pitied them. It seemed to him that God would provide for the helpless orphan surely, if asked to do so and he determined to take a few of them in charge and depend entirely on God to provide for them. He wanted to show the world, not that Muller was a very good or kind or smart man but that God is the loving Father of us all and can be sent to and heard from by those who ask of Him, as they would of an earthly father and who treat him with the same affectionate veneration and confidence.

So he took a few and prayed to God to provide for them. He wanted nothing for Muller but he asked for the children, and that men might see that prayer was answered. He never asked a cent from any one but his God, but the money came along just as it was wanted. Never went into debt; always paid cash down: sometimes after breakfast there was nothing in the house for dinner, but something came in good time. Many times everything was eaten at supper clean up; but breakfast was sure to be ready in time next morning. The Lord sent it sure every time.

And so it went on till he had three houses rented for the orphans. It seemed to him he might as well ask the Lord for a piece of land and a building, and he prayed for $60,000 and it all came without asking anybody else for a cent. More orphans were coming too all the time, and he bought his land and built an Orphans' Home. By and by that got filled and a second and a third was added until about 1800 orphans were constantly under his care. They were well cared for too and very many times provision was made for them and their wants supplied, in a manner that gave strong evidence of a watchful, attentive and ever faithful provider.

For instance a man came one day and said he would like to help this good work, and if Mr. Muller only had a place to pasture some cows, he would like to send him a few to give milk for the orphans. All right, said Mr. Muller, the Lord will send pasture. In a day or two after a neighbor gentleman called to tell Mr. Muller that he ought to have some cows to furnish milk, and, said he, I will give you such a field for a pasture. All right said Mr. M. the Lord has provided the cows already.

Now my friends, said I to the peons, that is what these protestants do sometimes, those people who, you are told are such evildoers; I suppose that good old man is dead now, he was very old when I last heard of him four or five years ago.

We arrived at our point and hurriedly rushing thru the business on hand, started again for home which we wished to reach before dark, before the snakes began to travel thru the forest. The first paper I opened when seated in the canoe was the N. Y. Witness, and the first thing that met my eye was the name of George Muller who had just come to New York on his first visit to America. The paper contained a lecture he had delivered, in which he related substantially the same story I had told my peons a couple of hours ago. He was 75 or 76 years of age then and is now hale and hearty. Below is a report of his Orphanage which has been growing ever since. He stated in New York that he had expended about four million dollars, which had been sent him unasked except in prayer and it came to him in all sums from two cents up to perhaps ten or twenty thousand dollars. You see there is still a "prophet of the Lord" to be found and there might be thousands more if they would be. The Christian Herald says:

"The Rev. George Muller's annual report for 1881 shows that during the year ended the 26th of May, 1881, he received for his Orphanages and several Missionary objects the extraordinary sum of about one hundred and sixty-four thousand five hundred dollars. Such is one year's income of a man with no financial responsibility! He is God's steward, and he draws from the resources of the Almighty. None of that vast sum was laid apart for a fund to meet emergencies. It was all spent except a trifling balance of about $15,000. The work during the year included the support and education of 2,252 orphans at the Orphanage in Bristol; the support or assistance of 78 day schools, 56 Sunday schools, and 6 adult schools, most of which were in England and the rest in various parts of the world; the sale or the gratuitous distribution of 91,072 Bibles, Testaments, a d Scripture portions; the assistance of 151 preachers of the Gospel at home and in foreign countries; and the sale or the gratuitous distribution of 3,018,754 tracts and books. Truly this is one of the most wonderful works of God since Apostolic times. Mr. Muller's address is Ashley Down, Bristol, Eng.

HOW CAME HE THERE ?

One day a visitor to a prison saw a gang of convicts going from their day's work. They were walking "lockstep," each prisoner crowded close against another, with their feet moving together, their arms pressed back, with each one's hands on the forward one's shoulders. Between a great rough man and a negro with a low, cruel face, was a slender, refined young fellow.

"How came he here ?" asked the visitor.

"Oh ? a breach of trust—he cheated his employer out of twenty thousand dollars.,"

A few minutes later the young man sat alone in his miserable cell, out of which daylight had faded. Cowering on his hard bed, he pictured to himself the world outside, full of warmth, and light and comfort. That question came to him sharply—how came you here ? Was it really for the stealing of that last sum ? Yes, and no. Looking back twenty years he saw himself a merry-hearted school-boy, ten years old. He remembered so well one lovely summer day—why he could fairly see the roses in bloom over the porch, and the dress his mother wore at her work. Freshest of all before him stood his good old Uncle John—such a kind, forgetful old man. That very morning he had sent him to pay a bill, and some money was given him in change, and Uncle John did not ask for it. When they met that noon, this boy now in prison, stood under the beautiful blue sky, and the temptation came:

"Shall I give it back because I ought ? or shall I wait until he asks ?"

The birds sang as sweetly as if a soul was not in danger—as if a boy was not making his whole future. The boy listened not to the birds, but to the evil spirit, whispering; and he never gave back the money.

Yes? twenty thousand dollars brought the man to the prison door; but the boy turned that way years before, when he sold his honesty for money and never redeemed it. That night as he sat in the chilly cell, his Uncle John long ago dead, the old home desolate, his mother broken-hearted, the prisoner knew that it was the child's deed that had brought him there.—Selected.

SANTA BARBARA, has two Bands of Hope, one of which has 127 members and the other "Union Band, lately organized. There must be a good opportunity to teach valuable lessons now to at least 150 young folks in those two Societies. It is hoped the occasion is improved to the utmost. A large responsibility rests with some parties to improve that occasion: it would be interesting to know what is the order of exercises, how many juvenile papers, tracts, helps &c are in use. What they are and what progress is being made in the education of the young folks.

JOHN BROPHY, a saloon-keeper on Boardman place, applied at the city receiving hospital last evening to have knife wounds on his face and nose dressed. The patient stated that he had attempted to collect a bill from a customer named Charles Brogan, and that the latter, being slightly under the influence of his purchases, had resented the insult by carving him with a penknife.

Nice purchases which make the purchaser so often a murderer.

WITH much regret notice is received that the publication of the National Freeman is suspended, It was an excellent magazine and ought to have had a circulation of 20,000.

EXTRACTS FROM A SERMON BY DR. TALMAGE ON "THE MOTHER OF SAMUEL."

Years rolled on, and every year Hannah made with her own hand a garment for Samuel, and took it over to him. The lad would have got along well without that garment, for I suppose he was well clad by the ministry of the temple; but Hannah could not be contented unless she was all the time doing something for her darling boy. "Moreover, his mother made a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice."

I. Hannah stands before you, then, in the first place, as

AN INDUSTRIOUS MOTHER.

There was no need for her to work. Elkanah, her husband, was far from poor. He belonged to a distinguished family; for the Bible tells us he was the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of John, the son of Zuph. "Who were they ?' you say. I do not know: but they were distinguished people, no doubt, or their names would not have been mentioned.

Hannah might have seated herself with her family, and, with folded arms and dishevelled hair, read novels from year to year.if there had been any to read: but when I see her making that garment, and taking it over to Samuel, I know she is industrious from principle as well as from pleasure. God would not have a mother become a drudge or a slave; He would have her employ all the helps possible in this day in the rearing of her children. But Hannah ought never to be ashamed to be found making a coat for Samuel.

Most mothers need no counsel in this direction. The wrinkles on their brow, the pallor on their cheek, the thimble-mark on their fingers, attest that they are faithful in their maternal duties. The bloom and the brightness, and the vivacity of girlhood have given place for the grander dignity, and usefulness, and industry of motherhood. But there is getting abroad in some of the families of Americans; there are mothers who banish themselves from the home circle. For three fourths of their maternal duties they prove themselves incompetent. They are ignorant of what their children wear, and what their children read. They intrust to irresponsible persons these young immortals, and allow them to be under influences, which may cripple their bodies, or taint their purity, or spoil their manners, or destroy their souls. Indolent and unfaithful mothers will make indolent and unfaithful children. Let Hannah be idle, and most certainly Samuel will grow up idle.

Who are the industrious men in all our occupations and professions ? Who are they managing the merchandise of the world, building the walls, tinning the roofs, weaving the carpets, making the laws, governing the nations, making the earth to quake, and heave and roar, and rattle with the tread of gigantic enterprises ? Who are they : For the most part they descended from industrious mothers, who in the old homestead, used to spin their own yarn, and weave their own carpets, and plait their own door-mats, and flag their own chairs, and do their own work. The stalwart men and the influential women of this day, ninety-nine out of a hundred of them, came from such an illustrious ancestry of hard knuckles and homespun.

And who are these people in society, light as froth, blown every whither of temptation and fashion—the peddlers of filthy stories, the dancing-jacks of political parties, the scum of society, the tavern-lounging, the store-infesting, the men of low wink, and filthy chuckle, and brass breast-pins, and rotten associations ? For the most part, they came from mothers idle and disgusting, the scandal-mongers of society, going from house to house, attending to everybody's business but their own, believing in witches, and ghosts, and horseshoes to keep the devil out of the churn and by a godless life setting their children on the very verge of hell. The mothers of Samuel Johnson. and of Alfred the Great, and of Isaac Newton, and of Richard Cecil, and of President Edwards, for the most part were industrious, hard-working mothers.

Now, while I congratulate all Christian mothers upon the wealth and the modern science which may afford them all kinds of help, let me say that every mother ought to be observant of her children's walk, her children's behavior, her children's food, her children's books, her children's companionships. However much help Hannah may have, I think she ought every year, at least make one garment for Samuel. The Lord have mercy on the man who is so unfortunate as to have had a lazy mother !"

Have courage Boys, to say No!

In courage alone lies your safety,
When you the long journey begin,
And trust in a Heavenly Father
Who'll keep you unspotted from sin,
Temptations will go on increasing,
As streams from a rivulet flow,
But if you are true to your manhood,
Have courage Boys, to say No!

THE SCEPTICAL SHOEMAKER.

"I have read," said the shoemaker, "a good deal about the heathen gods, and I believe the account of Christ is taken from some of the heathen writings."

"Will you abide by your own decision on two questions that I will put to you?" said the Bible reader. "If so, I will freely do the same. I will abide by your own answers; by doing so we shall save much time, and arrive more quickly at the truth."

"Well," said he, "out with it, and let us see if I can answer: there are few things but that I can say something about."

"Well my friend," replied the reader, "my first questions is—Suppose all men were Christians, according to the account given to us in the Gospels concerning Christ, what would be the state of society?"

He remained silent for some time in deep thought and then was constrained to say, "Well if all men were really Christians in practice as well as theory, of course we should be a happy brotherhood indeed."

"I promised you," said the reader, "that I would abide by your answer, will you do the same?"

"Oh, yes," he readily replied; "no man can deny the goodness of the system in practice; but now for the other question: perhaps I shall get on better with that. You have a chalk this time against me."

"Well, my next question is this; Suppose all men were infidels, what then would be the state of London and of the world?" He seemed still more perplexed, and remained a long time silent, the reader doing the same.

At length he said, "You have certainly beaten me, for I never before saw the two effects upon society, I now see that where the Christian builds up the infidel is pulling down. I thank you: I shall think think of what has passed this afternoon."

The sequel was that he was fully persuaded in his own mind to give up all his infidel companions, and follow the Lord Jesus Christ. But the change did not stop here. When first the reader called, he had to sit on an old dirty chair, with a number of half-starved children sitting in their rags on the floor around him, neglected and uncared for: now they have removed to a better home in a cleaner street. Within, all is cheerful and happy.

"Where the Christian builds, the infidel pulls down." Was not the shoemaker right? Which brings the most joy to the heart, Christianity or infidelity? Which is most calculated to make a life happy? Which will make the death-bed easy, and prepare the soul for an eternity which awaits all men—Christianity or infidelity?—Christian Herald.

An advertiser (in England) of "wines for the parsonage" says that his father's connection as a church publisher led him to turn his special attention to providing thoroly good genuine wines for the clergy at moderate prices. He dont say that he makes them out of British alcohol, water and a few flavoring extracts at about 15 cts per gallon.

GEORGE MULLER.

THE FRIEND OF THE ORPHANS.

About four years ago ascending a river in South America, making a monthly trip up to the Post office in a canoe, it occurred to me to tell the African peons who were my attendants the story of George Muller the man of faith and prayer. It was news indeed to these ignorant Catholics to be told of a Protestant that prayed or believed in a God at all. The story was about as follows.

Some forty years ago or more a German christian went to England and began to preach there. He told his people he did not want to make any bargain about a salary as he thot his God would see that he was taken care of. After he had labored a year or more in England, he removed to the city of Bristol, which was once one of the greatest shipping ports of the world and has now a very wealthy community.

He was a great believer in the promises of God to hear and answer prayer: thot that we should believe just what the bible says on the subject, and accept it just as we do a market report or an advertizement in a daily journal. He saw many poor, ragged, starving children and pitied them. It seemed to him that God would provide for the helpless orphan surely, if asked to do so and he determined to take a few of them in charge and depend entirely on God to provide for them. He wanted to show the world, not that Muller was a very good or kind or smart man but that God is the loving Father of us all and can be sent to and heard from by those who ask of Him, as they would of an earthly father and who treat him with the same affectionate veneration and confidence.

So he took a few and prayed to God to provide for them. He wanted nothing for Muller but he asked for the children, and that men might see that prayer was answered. He never asked a cent from any one but his God, but the money came along just as it was wanted. Never went into debt; always paid cash down: sometimes after breakfast there was nothing in the house for dinner, but something came in good time. Many times everything was eaten at supper clean up; but breakfast was sure to be ready in time next morning. The Lord sent it sure every time.

And so it went on till he had three houses rented for the orphans. It seemed to him he might as well ask the Lord for a piece of land and a building, and he prayed for $60,000 and it all came without asking anybody else for a cent. More orphans were coming too all the time, and he bought his land and built an Orphans' Home. By and by that got filled and a second and a third was added until about 1800 orphans were constantly under his care. They were well cared for too and very many times provision was made for them and their wants supplied, in a manner that gave strong evidence of a watchful, attentive and ever faithful provider.

For instance a man came one day and said he would like to help this good work, and if Mr. Muller only had a place to pasture some cows, he would like to send him a few to give milk for the orphans. All right, said Mr. Muller, the Lord will send pasture. In a day or two after a neighbor gentleman called to tell Mr. Muller that he ought to have some cows to furnish milk, and, said he, I will give you such a field for a pasture. All right said Mr. M. the Lord has provided the cows already.

Now my friends, said I to the peons, that is what these protestants do sometimes, those people who, you are told are such evildoers; I suppose that good old man is dead now, he was very old when I last heard of him four or five years ago.

We arrived at our point and hurriedlv rushing thru the business on hand, started again for home which we wished to reach before dark, before the snakes began to travel thru the forest. The first paper I opened when seated in the canoe was the N. Y. Witness, and the first thing that met my eye was the name of George Muller who had just come to New York on his first visit to America. The paper contained a lecture he had delivered, in which he related substantially the same story I had told my peons a couple of hours ago. He was 75 or 76 years of age then and is now hale and hearty. Below is a report of his Orphanage which has been growing ever since. He stated in New York that he had expended about four million dollars, which had been sent him unasked except in prayer and it came to him in all sums from two cents up to perhaps ten or twenty thousand dollars. You see there is still a "prophet of the Lord" to be found and there might be thousands more if they would be. The Christian Herald says:

"The Rev. George Muller's annual report for 1881 shows that during the year ended the 26th of May, 1881, he received for his Orphanages and several Missionary objects the extraordinary sum of about one hundred and sixty-four thousand five hundred dollars. Such is one year's income of a man with no financial responsibility! He is God's steward, and he draws from the resources of the Almighty. None of that vast sum was laid apart for a fund to meet emergencies. It was all spent except a trifling balance of about $15,000. The work during the year included the support and education of 2,252 orphans at the Orphanage in Bristol; the support or assistance of 78 day schools, 56 Sunday schools, and 6 adult schools, most of which were in England and the rest in various parts of the world; the sale or the gratuitous distribution of 91,072 Bibles, Testaments, a d Scripture portions; the assistance of 151 preachers of the Gospel at home and in foreign countries; and the sale or the gratuitous distribution of 3,018,754 tracts and books. Truly this is one of the most wonderful works of God since Apostolic times. Mr. Muller's address is Ashley Down, Bristol, Eng.

HOW CAME HE THERE?

One day a visitor to a prison saw a gang of convicts going from their day's work. They were walking "lockstep," each prisoner crowded close against another, with their feet moving together, their arms pressed back, with each one's hands on the forward one's shoulders. Between a great rough man and a negro with a low, cruel face, was a slender, refined young fellow.

"How came he here?" asked the visitor.

"Oh? a breach of trust—he cheated his employer out of twenty thousand dollars.,"

A few minutes later the young man sat alone in his miserable cell, out of which daylight had faded. Cowering on his hard bed, he pictured to himself the world outside, full of warmth, and light and comfort. That question came to him sharply—how came you here? Was it really for the stealing of that last sum? Yes, and no. Looking back twenty years he saw himself a merry-hearted school-boy, ten years old. He remembered so well one lovely summer day—why he could fairly see the roses in bloom over the porch, and the dress his mother wore at her work. Freshest of all before him stood his good old Uncle John—such a kind, forgetful old man. That very morning he had sent him to pay a bill, and some money was given him in change, and Uncle John did not ask for it. When they met that noon, this boy now in prison, stood under the beautiful blue sky, and the temptation came:

"Shall I give it back because I ought? or shall I wait until he asks?"

The birds sang as sweetly as if a soul was not in danger—as if a boy was not making his whole future. The boy listened not to the birds, but to the evil spirit, whispering; and he never gave back the money.

Yes? twenty thousand dollars brought the man to the prison door; but the boy turned that way years before, when he sold his honesty for money and never redeemed it. That night as he sat in the chilly cell, his Uncle John long ago dead, the old home desolate, his mother broken-hearted, the prisoner knew that it was the child's deed that had brought him there.—Selected.

SANTA BARBARA, has two Bands of Hope, one of which has 127 members and the other "Union Band, lately organized. There must be a good opportunity to teach valuable lessons now to at least 150 young folks in those two Societies. It is hoped the occasion is improved to the utmost. A large responsibility rests with some parties to improve that occasion: it would be interesting to know what is the order of exercises, how many juvenile papers, tracts, helps &c are in use. What they are and what progress is being made in the education of the young folks.

JOHN BROPHY, a saloon-keeper on Boardman place, applied at the city receiving hospital last evening to have knife wounds on his face and nose dressed. The patient stated that he had attempted to collect a bill from a customer named Charles Brogan, and that the latter, being slightly under the influence of his purchases, had resented the insult by carving him with a penknife.

Nice purchases which make the purchaser so often a murderer.

WITH much regret notice is received that the publication of the National Freeman is suspended, It was an excellent magazine and ought to have had a circulation of 20,000.

EXTRACTS FROM A SERMON BY DR. TALMAGE ON "THE MOTHER OF SAMUEL."

Years rolled on, and every year Hannah made with her own hand a garment for Samuel, and took it over to him. The lad would have got along well without that garment, for I suppose he was well clad by the ministry of the temple; but Hannah could not be contented unless she was all the time doing something for her darling boy. "Moreover, his mother made a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice."

I. Hannah stands before you, then, in the first place, as

AN INDUSTRIOUS MOTHER.

There was no need for her to work. Elkanah, her husband, was far from poor. He belonged to a distinguished family; for the Bible tells us he was the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of John, the son of Zuph. "Who were they?' you say. I do not know: but they were distinguished people, no doubt, or their names would not have been mentioned.

Hannah might have seated herself with her family, and, with folded arms and dishevelled hair, read novels from year to year,if there had been any to read: but when I see her making that garment, and taking it over to Samuel, I know she is industrious from principle as well as from pleasure. God would not have a mother become a drudge or a slave; He would have her employ all the helps possible in this day in the rearing of her children. But Hannah ought never to be ashamed to be found making a coat for Samuel.

Most mothers need no counsel in this direction. The wrinkles on their brow, the pallor on their cheek, the thimble-mark on their fingers, attest that they are faithful in their maternal duties. The bloom and the brightness, and the vivacity of girlhood have given place for the grander dignity, and usefulness, and industry of motherhood. But there is getting abroad in some of the families of Americans; there are mothers who banish themselves from the home circle. For three fourths of their maternal duties they prove themselves incompetent. They are ignorant of what their children wear, and what their children read. They intrust to irresponsible persons these young immortals, and allow them to be under influences, which may cripple their bodies, or taint their purity, or spoil their manners, or destroy their souls. Indolent and unfaithful mothers will make indolent and unfaithful children. Let Hannah be idle, and most certainly Samuel will grow up idle.

Who are the industrious men in all our occupations and professions? Who are they managing the merchandise of the world, building the walls, tinning the roofs, weaving the carpets, making the laws, governing the nations, making the earth to quake, and heave and roar, and rattle with the tread of gigantic enterprises? Who are they: For the most part they descended from industrious mothers, who in the old homestead, used to spin their own yarn, and weave their own carpets, and plait their own door-mats, and flag their own chairs, and do their own work. The stalwart men and the influential women of this day, ninety-nine out of a hundred of them, came from such an illustrious ancestry of hard knuckles and homespun.

And who are these people in society, light as froth, blown every whither of temptation and fashion—the peddlers of filthy stories, the dancing-jacks of political parties, the scum of society, the tavern-lounging, the store-infesting, the men of low wink, and filthy chuckle, and brass breast-pins, and rotten associations? For the most part, they came from mothers idle and disgusting, the scandal-mongers of society, going from house to house, attending to everybody's business but their own, believing in witches, and ghosts, and horseshoes to keep the devil out of the churn and by a godless life setting their children on the very verge of hell. The mothers of Samuel Johnson. and of Alfred the Great, and of Isaac Newton, and of Richard Cecil, and of President Edwards, for the most part were industrious, hard-working mothers.

Now, while I congratulate all Christian mothers upon the wealth and the modern science which may afford them all kinds of help, let me say that every mother ought to be observant of her children's walk, her children's behavior, her children's food, her children's books, her children's companionships. However much help Hannah may have, I think she ought every year, at least make one garment for Samuel. The Lord have mercy on the man who is so unfortunate as to have had a lazy mother!"

NOT A SINGLE BID.

There is an auction mart in the City of London where public-houses, hotels, &c., are sold to the highest bidder. A house with a license is often there sold for $100,000 and upwards. We know one that brought $220,000. But great changes are impending, and people are perfectly aware of it. Observe; last week not a single licensed house was sold by auction in London. Every house advertized for sale either had the sale postponed or was withdrawn from public competition. The reason is not far to seek. The Temperance movement is sweeping onward like a mighty tide. Non-intoxicant drinks are multiplying. Coffee-palaces are popular. Medical men are advising less stimulation. Banquets are given without wine, and England is growing both more free and more sober. Hence there was not a bid last week in the great public-house auction mart. no, not one bid.—Temperance Record London.

That perhaps may not strike many persons as an item of very great importance, but it is possible that those few lines contain the most sublimely interesting news that ever came from England to this country. It announces the approaching downfal of the Kingdom of Satan more emphatically and explicitly than any other message from across the sea has ever done. It is better news than report of a hundred religious revivals, because it tells of actual disaster in the camp of the enemy and serious damage and dismay. Not a single bid in the mart of the legions and trainbands of hell who make merchandize of the souls of men. No one dare risk the investment of money in the temples of antichrist, which heretofore have been of all sources of gain, the choicest and most favorite and most competed for by English investors in all classes of Society, the church members of high standing by no means excepted.

Not a single bid; not a single bet offered on the continuance of the reign of the Beast. Allgood men and women should unite in a heartfelt "Te Deum laudamus" on this most auspicious occasion. We can feel at hand the approaching end of the long reign of blood and tears and human miseries. The promise is that judgment is coming speedily to the great hariot which did corrupt the earth with her fornication." We can almost hear the clank of the chain which is to bind the old Serpent that has so long deceived the nations. That is indeed something to be thankful for.

It is perhaps not generally known that it is the premises or building, not the man that is licensed to sell liquor in England. The men of business now see the writing on the wall which foretells the speedy end of the reign of blood.

BIBLE PERVERSION.

Some men are so anxious to preserve and perpetuate a sectarian doctrine or an ancient belief or unfounded superstition, that they are quite ready to sacrifice the consistency of the Bible, if necessary, to keep their crotchet on the surface. We have heard the new revision objected to because "if accepted, what is going to become of the old accepted dogmas X. Y and Z"? It would certainly seem that we had better risk the existence of our most favorite and charming theories of deduction, than object to the fullest blaze of the truth being turned upon them. A doctrine that can only live by an uncertain and doubtful interpretation of scripture cannot be worth much.

The old superstition which is attributed to the Bible, but which never was declared there, that God made this world out of nothing from the first to the sixth day of a certain week, has a peculiar charm for some people: it never could do any harm to believe it, and become happy in cherishing the delusion, except for one drawback, which is, that probably not one reasoning thinking man in a great number will or can believe the Bible at all, if he has to believe that a part of it is a self evident falsehood.

A Mr. James F. Wilson of Iowa is reported as trying to rehabilitate this fallen idol, but there is one difficulty in his way which it would seem well for him to clear up at the start.

No one will deny that if the Creator could, and wanted to create this world out of no material at all, in six literal days of ours, he could have made it just as it is or was made. It is claimed also that the same Creator gave us a Bible revelation of our creation and of His will, and regulations for our guidance.

But if he did, he also wrote another Bible in the bowels of the earth, on the rocks and in the coal deposits, on the mountain tops and in the skeletons and relics of ancient animals, away down in the earth's interior. If God made a coal mine 6000 years ago out of nothing he wrote all over it, on it, above it. below it, around it and all thru it, that it was made scores if not many hundred thousand years ago. Take the matter of the Tripoli used for polishing, that could of course have been made like the rest in a day; but it is written in it, that it was formed hundreds of thousands of years ago.

The tracks of long extinct birds and reptiles found in very ancient rocks, which men cannot interpret with certainty, are yet perfect and unmistakeable in the declaration that they were made long before the era at which superstitious misconception dates the creation of the earth. A thousand more instances might be pointed out in which, if God made all these things as claimed in a week and only 6000 years ago, he employed a very large amount of creative energy in stamping them all over with indelible falsehoods and filling the earth with false appearances which, we cannot conceive, could serve any other purpose than to make men disbelieve the Bible records, and all revealed religions, and therefore, as the Bible perverters put it, go into perdition because of their unbelief.

There is still another Bible written on the surface of the earth which cannot be mistranslated. Every verse of every chapter of it affirms and demonstrates in six feet characters as it were, that the Creator of this earth was governed in all its arrangements by an unbounded love and tenderest provident care for His children who were to possess it. It is filled with incontestable evidences of numerous miracles wrot in our behalf and we are surrounded with a thousand miracles of God's love and care, taking place in our fields and gardens and orchards every hour of the day.

It would seem a most likely thing, that a Creator who so loved his children, would communicate to them some expression of His will and some intelligence of their relation to Him. But the last and most unlikely thing to believe is, that he gave us two or three conflicting revelations and will punish us for not being able to distinguish between the false and the true. Better make a bonfire of musty paganisms and let God be true, and the Bible relieved of the false interpretations, which are sought to be weighted upon it.

CHEAP JOHN.

Meaner than the plague of lice which so harrassingly tormented the Egyptians, and unhappily for the world much more persistent than the famous vermin aforesaid, our old acquaintance the cheap john Good Templar still sneaks into the Grand Lodges here and there with a view of crippling any latent energy which he fears has not been successfully poisoned in the past, and which may burst out again into activity.

The Templars Standard of Grahamstown reports recent session of the Grand Lodge of South Africa. It says it was decided not to impede the usefulness of the Order by depriving it of its weaponry in the reduction of the per capita tax. Good for South Africa.

The N. T. Advocate also says of the Grand Lodge of New York after reporting a gain of 537 members only during the year, "An effort to reduce the per-capita tax failed." The present tax is probably ten cents, and the report of the Advocate is singularly incomplete; it should have added, "and the mover and seconder of the resolution to reduce that miserable, stingy, paltry, miserly per capita tax were taken out, ducked in a frog pond, expelled forever from the Order and commended to the post traders in the Western territories as peculiarly suitable parties to sell rum to the Indians.

The G. T. Order was first launched on a model and of a tonnage just fitted to cope with the liquor traffic, and after a vigorous active campaign of a few years, to put its heel on the neck of the conquered monster. In any army, military, religious, political, to plunder or pauperize its treasury, inevitably insures its utter impotency and defeat. Money is not the only means but it is one of its means, the lack of which paralyzes every other means as effectually as is done by the hand of death.

But the moment the Good Templars began to be a power anywhere, cheap john made an instant raid on the treasury, and wherever it succeeded, the Order has since been little better than a stumbling block and an obstacle which would do nothing for temperance itself, nor allow any one else. Thus the cheap john Good Templar has been of double service to his master and prompter. And as in state after state the Order has sunk into a Rip VanWinkleism that knew no waking, thru the infernal machinations of cheap john, at these times of most supreme emergency, when the battle at the gate is at the hottest for the life or death of the nation, when every tax for temperance ought to be quadrupled, that ubiquitous, oily, manysided reptile has the impudence to creep in, like Satan or more probably with Satan, among the Sons of God, and propose to stop the supplies of the army and disband it.

Hound such fellows out, brethren, put them out. One lodge of earnest Good Templars 20 strong is stronger than one of 150 with one or more influential cheap johns in it. A little handful of them starting from 2 or 3, have ruined the Order in whole states and retarded the cause of temperance more than a dozen Dr. Crosbys or religious journals of the Boston Congregationalist type. A little gang of them have made our great Order a sieve thru which many millions have passed, and not half a million remain. Oh that some one or some dozens who have the faculty of scathing, scalding sarcasm, would go for the scalps of the cheap johns.

SOLD THE RACE.

Bro. Webb, in a postscript, asks: "Did you note that two of the three who sold the Cornell race abroad were liquor-dealers?" No. Was not aware the race was sold. It is my custom to skip every item of news that refers to university boat races, horse races, walking races, and every description of scheme that is resorted to by the debauched to make gambling and cheating and lying and stealing respectable. It would be a good thing for the world if no one knew of the circumstances of any of these cesspools of crime, except the thieves and blacklegs who manipulate them and make stealings out of them.

Horse races, boat, and foot, and other races, games of billiards, ball, and muscle-developing exercises, might have been instituted and practiced without exerting or tending in the least to any demoralizing influences; but they have all been impressed and monopolized into the service of the rum-seller and his ally and partner, the gambling thief. The purposes for which all or any of these are pursued nowadays, are for theft every time; to debauch, to intoxicate, to excite, to entice men to gamble, and then to betray and defraud and rob them. And the design and tendency of all these things—from the Derby and Epsom in England, the Longbranch race course, the Sacramento state annual horse gambling debauch, the Cornell and University boat races, the champion scull matches, the Chinese tan game, down to the bunko and boodle and strap games—are all one and the same, and of precisely the same stamp of morality and decency.

There could be no grander scheme for building up a vigorous physique for our future ministers, judges, statesmen and men of learning, than to encourage them and give them every facility for developing both their physical and mental capacity in manly exercises, such as rowing, running, walking, jumping, etc. But it is a national disgrace that there is not a national protest against training our university students to be gamblers and blacklegs. For if Cornell and Harvard are going to compete in a grand, comprehensive betting and gambling race every now and then, and the fashionable world is going to look on, and the press applaud these saturnalia of gambling debauchery, it is absolutely certain that the great majority of Cornell and Harvard students will have very slender scruples against gambling. Some of them will have no scruples against the trickery that lies and cheats and steals; and some of them will perforce be trained into professional blacklegs, sports, race sellers, gamblers—any of which words, interpreted into plain Saxon, means thieves.

A practice which trains its votaries for crime, ought to have no apologist; it should be subjected to the scourge of public execration. Every race nowadays is a race for money, put up by blacklegs to rob, and it is a race not between men in strength and endurance, but between men in their capacity to descend to monstrous depths of nastiness and treachery and falsehood.

Readers should avoid the recitals of these revolting and vicious and debauching exhibitions, just as they should avoid the fraudulent and obscene advertisements in the obscene daily papers.

Two of the three were liquor-dealers. Well, can you point to any honorable act performed in modern times, where two of the three actors were engaged in the business of poisoning their fellowmen, making the boys drunkards and thieves, and robbing the homes of the poor of their bread and clothes? We need not look in the papers to find out that every race in England, New York, Sacramento, etc., is, and always will be, sold. Therein is the real race.

OUR MUTUAL AID.

A Jewish merchant in San Francisco, expressed his surprise a few days ago, at the now well established fact of which he had lately read, that total abstainers are so much longer lived and have so much less sickness than the most moderate temperate drinkers. It is a pity that our Good Templars would not give more attention to the consideration of this fact and avail themselves of its advantages by making our Mutual Aid system a success. We ought to have had our two classes A. and B. full before next session of Grand Lodge. It is a pity for temperance people to waste their time and means in joining benefit systems that admit people who drink any kind of intoxicants. Almost every drunkard who gets shot or stabbed in a saloon fight or commits suicide or dies of his excesses now-a-days was but a very few years ago a moderate temperate man so called and a first class risk in any of these societies who insure drinkers: there is very little more safety being assessed for untimely and unnecessary deaths in an indiscriminate society than in one of moderate drinkers.

Our members ought to push their Mutual Aid for there is pretty good reason to believe that it is the best, safest, best contrived and most economical system in the world.

LONG COMMUNICATIONS.

The effect of a long article sent to the Rescue is either to crowd out several other articles or to crowd itself out. Correspondents who habitually spin lengthy threads and then splice on additions to them, defeat their own intention to be heard. A large proportion of readers will soon say, "oh, there is another of Z.'s long yarns, I never read a word of them."

There appears in this number a short, pithy and practical letter from "Beth." There have been several such and it is hoped there will be many more. Now because they possess the qualities named and are cheerful and conversational and short withal, every habitual reader of the Rescue will be sure to peruse them all attentively, pleasurably and profitably. But if some one else would write equally well a two colum article every time, he would probably not have one-tenth of the readers.

It will be an improvement if communications and editorials too can learn a lesson of conciseness from "Beth." As it is now there is only room for one-half the matter that comes, and many useful things are of necessity elbowed out.

$100 PRIZES.

The National Temperance Society offers the following premiums.

1. $100 for the best tract, narrative or otherwise bearing on the importance of total abstinence or the evils of intemperance to railway employees. The narrative not to be less than three nor more than six pages of foolscap.

2. $50 for the second best and 3. $25 for the third best.

Again, 1. $100 for the best pictorial sketch, drawing or design about 12 x 18 inches illustrative of the above to railway employees. 2. $50 for the second and 3. $25 for the third best.

Manuscripts and drawings must be sent to the Society 58 Reade street on or before Nov. 1, 1881. Each manuscript or drawing to have a brief motto or mark written on it, and a sealed envelope must accompany it with same motto on the outside and name and address of the author inside. California ought to put in for those prizes and come out ahead. Some of the young folks try it.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

A gentleman writing to Rev. J. C. Simmons, the author of this pamphlet says: "I had your pamphlet read in open division last night and it was greatly appreciated by all and by a unanimous vote 100 copies were subscribed for. I hope it will have great weight wherever it is read. Our lodges are commended to do likewise. The pamphlet is a very useful and excellent one.

This tract can be had by addressing Rev. J. C. Simmons, 25 Russ street San Francisco, at the following prices: single copies 10 cents: 10 copies 60 cents; 100 copies $5; 1,000 copies $35.

Of the deluge of woe, wickedness and distress that drenches our land in one week, these twenty-four items are but the sprinkle that falls upon the pages of one daily paper.

Eureka Mills.—Bro. Trevena, W. T., writes-Hope of Eureka Hill Lodge celebrated its anniversary in a joint festival with the Sunday-school. Had a procession headed by the brass band, eight of the members of which are members of the lodge. And then of course there was a magnificent spread under which it was necessary to see to the solid quality of the tables and their sea worthiness to stand up under an ample load. Then a court was organized and the trial of John Barleycorn was carried thru before an appreciative audience and enlivened by the helpful services of the band. Proceeds of entertainment to repair lodge room. Altho the lodge has suffered losses by removals of its members it recovers itself by recruits from earnest work in the community. Its promise is ever to do its part in the great war to redeem our land from the defiling influences which desolate it.

Steroscopic views of American and foreign scenery are offered for sale by Mr. A Albrecht one of the agents of B. W. Kilburn, Publisher of Littleton N. H. By the judicious expenditure of a very few dollars in these beautiful pictures one can have always at hand the means of enjoying a cheap trip with his friends to nature's choice picture galleries of beautiful landscape and mountain on this continent and can make a call at the Vatican at Rome, have a chat with the folks in Jerusalem, hear mass in the great cathedrals of Europe climb the pyramids of Egypt, and have all this enjoyment without being pestered and persecuted by the hotel keepers bills and railroad tickets and porters, beggars, donkey boys, sand dust and fleas of the usual routes of travel. Mr. Albrecht is a Good Templar, and his pictures tend to the improvement and culture and elevation and enjoyment of mankind.

The Sunday law is being enforced strictly in San Joaquin Co., outside of Stockton, the Dist. Atty. having notified all parties concerned to obey the law. In Stockton the city attorney declines to prosecute until a decision is rendered by the Supreme court, saying that a previous attempt to close a barber shop failed. Our worthy Bro. Wm. Jones of Stockton so writes.

DIVISION OF THE STATE.

The Chronicle and some other papers very summarily dismiss the case of a mooted separation of the southern portion of this State, as it cannot be done without consent of the present State of Cal. and of congress. Some other reasons are given which would render the enterprise too costly they say, for the seceders to accomplish. The expenses of a new State capital, penitentiary, asylums &c have been figured up by the Chronicle as altogether beyond the compass of their means.

It may be that the southern section of Cal. can be compelled to remain a portion of this State just as it is now, whether it wills or not. But it can do no wrong to consider dispassionately and conscienciously the reasons for and against a separation, and wherein would be the loss or gain to either or both by the change. Altho it may be in the power of the State as it is, to enforce its continued integrity, it may be a question whether it has a moral right to do so, if the material and moral interests or either of a section should be seriously prejudiced thereby. It is not like a question of national secession and setting up a hostile power; it is more like the convenient division of a county, and it would seem that every justice and impartiality and courtesy should be accorded to both sides of the argument, and the first party who finds it necessary to resort to the weaponry of unfriendly empty ridicule or abuse, would seem to furnish palpable evidence that logic and reason and truth are insufficient to support the cause he champions.

The impression under which the present is written is that admittiug the expenses and disturbances incident to the division of the State to be a serious matter, it would be of immense advantage to the south to set up on its own account: but it is quite possible that after due value is accorded to the reasons for, there may be yet advanced reasons against, of greater force, that would tilt the scale in favor of the maintenance of the present conditions, but those that have been advanced are not of a convincing quality at all.

The first advantage the new State of Eden, or whatever its name, would derive from a division, would be the capacity to set out as a prohibitory State. To those who have intelligently observed for 20 or 30 years the devastation wrot by the rumseller in the finances and business conditions of this and other countries, and have watched the financial revolution which follows effective prohibition—this one condition of separation would outweigh every conceivable counter proposition which assumes the continuance of that all-pauperizing, all-blasting, all-blighting, all-rotting scourge, the grogshop. We are assured that just as the one thousand millions a year or nearly that, which is utterly wasted in drink in this nation and produces another equal annual amount ot loss and damage—would, if expended properly in the ways and modes pursued by the perfectly sober and honest citizenship of our country—bring instant, universal, unbounded prosperity to all our people—so Eden's share of that money now devoted to the creation of bad debts, poor trade, hoodlumism, pauperism, crime and a rapid centralization of wealth into the hands of a very few millionaires—would when properly used, entirely revolutionize her business and industrial conditions, and open a clear unobstructed avenue to an Eden-like prosperity. Upon that question a vast majority of intelligent thinking and impartial men would agree.

For sometime yet the southern portion of our State undivided, must submit to the rum traffic forced upon it against its will, and contrary to every conceivable principle of republicanism. In this thing it must continue to be under the heel of a ruinous, grinding foreign tyranny which collects from the American people a tribute of blood and money every day as mercilessly exacted as ever was done by an invading horde of Goths or Vandals in the ancient days when might constituted the only right.

In all other respects the southern part of the undivided State must suffer financially from being goverr ed by a city which can always defeat any legislation which in any question between city and country proposes to do equal justice to the latter.

Of course the interests of San Francisco and San Diego and Siskiyou and the whole U. S. too are identical in reality. The best thing possible for any one part of the U. S., is what would be best for every other part and would do no part any injustice.

But in these days of greed and blindness and ignorance, men cannot be made to see that principle or to act in accordance with it; so they generally contrive to nurture their own seeming interests at the expense of their neighbor's.

In the event of a separation one year's expenses of the present whisky bill saved would put up all the State buil lings. The copy set by this State in extravagance would doubtlessly be carefully avoided by a sober and non-crazy-political-party people. The new State would never need to build a penitentiary, or another jail, house of correction, industrial school, poorhouse or lunatic asylum; except on a minimum scale for the accommodation of a few present victims of their grogshops and wineries. One small building with accommodations for 50 people could be built or purchased and that would doubtless serve the prohibitory State of Eden for the housing of all its criminals, paupers and insane until its population reaches five millions and forever after: at least after the grogshop, licensed and outlawed shall have been extinguished.

While the politics of San Francisco are dominated by the foreign vote under the whip and coin sack of the whisky ring, the same power will be able at all times to defeat any such State legislation as a rural, virtuous, intelligent agricultural section would be likely to purpose or desire or which would be in the line of their interests. The Southern counties separated by themselves would be able to give their votes and principles expression at their elections and in their self government at all times: a privilege which they can never hope to enjoy under present circumstances.

Separated from San Francisco and the north, it requires proof to show that San Francisco or the north would be in the least injured financially or in any other way. The trade and intercourse between the two States would require no change. San Francisco would continue to be the commercial center and city as it is of the whole Pacific Coast and its great seaport.

This seems to be a legitimate subject for consideration and one that need provoke no accusation of disloyalty in its candid discussion.

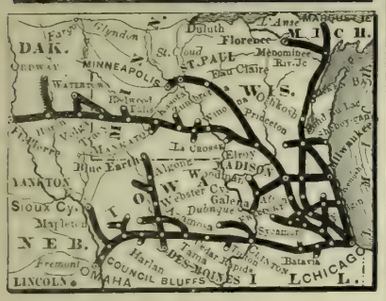
NO BIBLE TEMPERANCE NEEDED

From several parties in different localities comes the quieting assurance, that it is not of the least consequence to us what kind of wine was used and enjoined in the sacred communion or what is said or taught in the bible about wine or wines.

Our brethren are in this very much mistaken. To all philanthropic, benevolent men and women, active and earnest in the temperance reform, the bible wine and the communion wine question, the pledge, the Order of I. O. G. T. the W. C. T. U., the temperance societies are all matters of supreme indifference and uselessness, so far as they are needed to inspire us with a motive for personal activity in the cause of humanity. The sight of one grogshop for half an hour just one time in our lives, a look at the wretched crowd that comes out of it; and one sniff of its blasphemous atmosphere, blighting and blasting and slaying our people is enough to make som e of us its sworn and persistent and most intense enemies for life; we want no further motive to set us in active hostility to this infernal crime.

Now if we who feel that way could go to the polls and decide this matter where it can only be decided, we should need no reference to Scripture or ancient or modern custom; but all men are not so. To put a stop to the custom of burning live widows with their dead husbands was a work which moral suasion would have been unable to accomplish in any reasonable number of centuries. It had to be done by force of law. And if it had been an ancient religious rite with us and our ancestors for centuries past, to strangle or poison our parents on their sixtieth birthday and make the ceremony a festival with something good to eat and drink served out to guests, the innovation of doing away with that barbarity, would doubtless have met with exactly the same amount and quality of indifference, ridicule, opposition and enmity that our attempt to save the lives of a hundred thousand of our fellow citizens, cruelly slaughtered on the altar of Satan every year has met and still meets with; and perhaps the same persons would have been arrayed on both sides of the contest that are on opposite sides of this.

Therefore we must study not what will decide us who are decided, but what will convince, convert and bring into activity that portion of society that refuses to be actuated by the motives which have prevailed with us. A vast number of those who should be with us have encamped on the enemy's side, and have thrown up embankments and barricades of pretended Scripture, of custom and fashion, of bigotry against secret societies, of superstitious prejudices against women's agency in Christian work etc. etc.—all equally the cunning inventions and malicious lies of the great master of falsehood and malice and wickedness.



And the meaning of the bible has been so mystified and falsified that some innocent people believe the Savior of the world made and drank and approved the use of this monstrous iniquity. There are expounders of the bible who so render it that one must become an infidel before he can be a prohibitionist with any show of consistency. Just so long as any unfortunate individual conscienciously believes that the wine used and appointed at the communion is the venom of dragons and the poison of devils which leads to all the sins and miseries and woes of earth, just so long he ought to oppose all efforts to promote total abstinence or prohibition. If Paul advised Timothy under the influence of divine inspiration not to use wholesome, god-given grape juice, but to get partially drunk on poison; if the intoxicating property derived from the nasty, putrid, rotten filth of the dead and decayed product of the vine was blessed and sanctified and made a holy and precious thing—if that is what cheers God and man—our warfare against it is a mistaken crusade, or Christianity is.

But the temperance reform and our I. O. G. T. and the W. C. T. U. and every genuine temperance society is as much the child of God as any other organization in the world. It is as much a work, a vineyard, a church of the living God. It is as much founded on the teachings of the Scriptures and the principles of Christianity. It is as religious a society as exists and it is preeminently a Christian institution.

Therefore communion wine, the bible teachings, God's truth and the consistency and integrity of the Christian system are of the utmost importance to be properly understood in order to convince the world that we are right and our opponents wrong.

AN OFFSET.—Alluding to the beerfrothy articles that recently appeared in the Bulletin deriding the enterprise of setting the children to learn something about beer and tobacco, a good worthy lady of this city suggests as an appropriate offset to them " I saw the other day a little boy on the doorstep with one of the pledges; he said he had signed it for life, and if he did not keep it 'twould be telling a lie."

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.—A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL AND HYGIENE.—By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,

54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

CAL. W. C. T. U.

The second annual meeting of this society was held at the Y. M. C. A. building on Thursday Sep. 1st. Devotional exercises at 10 A.M. At 10:30 business meeting called to order by the Pres. Mrs. P.D. Browne. After appointment of committee for the day, proceeded to election of officers. Mrs. P. D. Browne was reelected Pres., Mrs. M. E. Congdon Sec., Mrs Judge Chamberlain Treasurer, Judge E. D. Sawyer, Auditor.

The presidents of the different auxiliaries were elected vice presidents. Address of welcome by Mrs. G.S. Abbott, response by Mrs. Young. Mrs. Judge Thompson, fraternal delegate from the I. O. G, T. gave the fraternal greeting of that Order in an interesting and appropriate manner. Mrs. Browne followed in a cordial response. The president then called upon Mrs. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., who said she was in hearty sympathy with our work and gave a good speech.

Best methods of conducting locals was then dissussed until 12 o'clock, Mrs Dr.Noble giving an account of the new reading room conducted by the S.F. local. Mrs. Parrott of Philadelphia told of the work there.

Afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Coxhead, short bible talk by Mrs. Congdon. At 2:30 business meeting called to order. A stirring address of half an hour was given by the president; then followed the Sec. and Treas. reports. Next the reports of the various locals. Dr. R. H. McDonald being called upon by the president, gave an instructive address, forcibly presenting the Sunday law and stating that the 360 lodges of the I. O. G. T. would probably all work for its enforcement.

Resolutions in regard to our work in the Sabbath schools, the press and the prize essays were adopted and at 4:45 the meeting adjourned. The society is very hopeful in regard to the future, and with renewed strength expects to do a practical and effective work the ensuing twelve months. Next week will give a synopsis of reports.

BEER.

I was shocked the other day to see a young lady send for a glass of beer for a German gentleman who called. At my protest she apologized, "you know he always wants beer." "Yes," I answered, and some day his children will want bread. Only today I saw a poor day laborer crossing the street, with a ragged coat over his arm to get a glass of beer. Ten cents multiplied several times, seven times, four times, twelve times, and you have the yearly arithmetic of the man who drinks beer; this is addition, and subtraction (of home comforts) is sure to follow, for text books are mostly made in similarity of plan.

I wish this debt and credit account in liquor could be left out of the new edition of life, that temperance people are trying so hard to revise with out a typ-ographical mistake.

There is a great cry over adulterated liquors, but is it not just as well to say nothing about it, and let those who will drink have the quickest poison in the market? Why prolong misery?

How many beer-boozy faces one meets on the street, stamped just as indelibly as by sensuality or any other sin. The alphabet of the human features is life's language; our deeds are ever writing.

One is introduced to a new face and the presenter does not have to add, this man or woman was addicted to drink once in his or her life, or is now; for the capillaries burst by the inflammatory action of the liquor speak the truth on the face. You cannot escape their tell-tale existence or cover them up; they are the fine but sure hand-writing of indulgence in fermented drinks. They tell every one, "this person has weakened the powers God gave him, his physical and nervous force: and he is just as liable to fall in other ways; he is not to be trusted." We are all desirous of friends that can control themselves, and impatient of evil that injures the neighbor.

BETH.

[For the RESCUE.]

I have received a number of the RESCUE which I have read with the deepest interest. This paper I believe is doing a noble work in the cause of temperance, I rejoice over the work being accomplished thru this medium; may the Lord crown the effort with abundant success, you have my heart in the noble work; the work that I have been engaged in for upward of 30 years, both east and west as well as in our adopted Pacific home. I believe that the time is not far off when the power of temperance will hold full sway all over the homes of our American people. I rejoice to see the progress that the I. O. G. T. is making not only all along the lines of this coast, but thruout the entire United States. When the word Prohibition shall be sounded not only from Maine to Florida, but from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Men and woman of temperance, let it be the motto of each:

Never doubt a righteous cause.
Go ahead!
Throw yourselves completely in,
Conscience shaping all your lives
Manfully thru thick and thin.
Go ahead!
Do not ask who'll go with you.
Go ahead.

Invoke the assistance of God, and do your duty well, and when the course of life is run, and the last hour of probation arrives, we may look back upon our efforts to stay the tide of crime and save the drunkard from intemperance, from temporal and eternal ruin, with holy satisfaction. Angels will whisper in our ears of men and women redeemed from vice and crime, and by our hands plucked as brands from the burning. I am yours in the rescue of our fellow-men from the evils of intemperance.

Rev. C. L. FISHER, D. D. pastor Baptist Ch.
SANTA CLARA, Sept. 1, 1881.

OAKLAND, Aug. 31, 1881.

Alameda District Lodge met, the guest of Brooklyn Lodge No. 384, on Thursday last, at which time the following lodges were represented: San Leandro, Fountain, West Berkeley, Durant, Athens, Brooklyn, Temescal, Prohibition. The D. D., Bro. Naismith, made a full report of the work done by him in the district. The D. F. S. and D. T. made their annual reports, which show the D. L. to be in good financial condition. The reports from all of the lodges are very encouraging, the gain in their numbers being partly due to the labors of our G. L., Sister Stevens; indeed so much do they feel the benefit of her work that the D. L. has petitioned the G. L. to continue Sister Stevens in Alameda county for another month. The officers were installed and Bro. C. H Haile was recommended to the G. L. for D. D. The election was followed by a bountiful collation, spread by Brooklyn Lodge, and afterward the D. D. exemplified the unwritten work. The next session to be held with Prohibition Lodge 412, West Oakland, Nov. 25. Thanks were voted to Brooklyn Lodge and to the retiring D. D., Bro. Naismith, for the untiring zeal and energy displayed during his official term.

RIO VISTA, Aug. 30, 1881.

This I send as an expression of my appreciation of Grand Lecturer M. D. Merrick, who has given our little community the two best lectures ever delivered here. Lecturer Merrick handles the subject in a plain, practical manner, answering objections and dissipating difficulties so thoroly and in such a common-sense way that we wonder how they ever troubled us. The Doctor's key-note is: Prohibition—it should be—it can be—and, how it may be. I found it delightful to listen to a temperance lecturer who believes his mission to be a loftier one than to raise a laugh, and who did not have to tell funny stories in order to hold his audience. His stories (what few he did tell) were purely spontaneous, and really told themselves against his inclination (like the boy's whistle). As a result of Lecturer Merrick's visit I look for the formation of a Prohibition Club among us, and in 1884 a better showing for Neal Dow than one vote.

GUERNEVILLE, Aug. 30, 1881.

In last week's RESCUE Enterprise Lodge has credit for $79.75 in the G. W. S. Department under the heading, "Orphans' Home Fund." This amount is one-third of the net proceeds of our late camp meeting, and was sent to redeem the promise made previous to the meeting that one-third of the net proceeds would be given to the Home. I think it right that all interested should know this.

JOHN ROBINSON.

MARYSVILLE, Aug. —, 1881.

EDITOR RESCUE: — Marysville Lodge No. 25, I. O. G. T., may have been regarded as in a state of "masterly inactivity, but I desire fo correct that impression. In May last we succeeded in inducing our G. W. S. to allow us to have the G. L., Bro. Crowhurst, for a week. The result was a rapid and substantial addition to our membership, and the creation of a healthier temperance sentiment in our city. Since that time, the occasional visits of Bro. Crowhurst and the opening of the Sunday Law fight have kept us busy and have steadily strengthened us in our work. We last week secured the services of Dr. M. D. Merrick who installed our officers on Friday, Aug. 5th, and at the same meeting delivered a splendid public address on the causes which resulted in the birth of our order. Next evening a lecture was delivered before a large and attentive audience at Yuba City. Sunday morning and evening in the M. E. Church, and Monday evening in the theater the Doctor addressed fair, but steadily increasing audiences, on the Social Aspect of the Temperance Question. Tuesday evening a forcible and eloquent lecture on Prohibition was appreciated by a large audience in the theater. At the same place, on Wednesday evening, before the largest audience assembled during the series of lectures, Dr. Merrick discussed the Sunday Law, giving us well-timed words of encouragement in our present work.

The course of lectures was closed at Yuba City on the 11th inst., where the G. L. dwelt upon the characteristics and the comparative efficiency of the Sons of Temperance and the Good Templars. All the lectures were excellent and effective. These are the sentiments not only of Good Templars, but of many who are strangely indifferent to our Order, while professing temperance principles. The audiences which nightly greeted Dr. M. were larger than have turned out to temperance lectures in this city for some time. The good accomplished is already showing itself in the constant additions to our lodge, while the encouragement and increased zeal imparted to our members are invaluable. We mean to "keep the ball rolling." CHARLES L. BROOKS.

TEMPERANCE LESSON-LEAF.—The National Temperance Lesson-Leaf for use in Sunday-schools in September. Title "Temperance in all Things." Text taken from 1 Cor ix, 22-27. Carefully prepared by Rev, W. F. Crafts. with Primary Lesson by Mrs. W, F. Crafts, Price 50 cents per hundred. It should be widely used. Samples sent free. Address J. N. STEARNS. Publishing Agent. 58 Reade Street New York.

The Common School Union of Avon, N. Y., a lively, handsome, spicy, prohibition monthly has evoluted into a larger paper, The Amendment, devoted to constitutional prohibition for state and nation. The "Old Biz" will be carried on as usual by John A Copeland, and it is hoped with ever increasing success.

TOLD THE TRUTH. With pleasure the fact is chronicled of a brewer speaking the truth in a public speech. A Mr. Sweetman in England advocating the cause of the rum sellers said that with him it was a question of "get money honestly if you can, but get money.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise. "Wisdom's Ways." by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo. 8 pages. 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS. Publishing Agent. 58 Reade Street. New York.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

WANTED.

WANTED - Employment, as bookkeeper, shipping clerk, salesman, or other similar occupation. Address "GOOD TEMPLAR," office of the RESCUE.

A young man speaking French and German fluently, has the highest recommendations and is a Good Templar, desires employment in a store or warehouse. Willing to give a trial service on very moderate terms. Address W. RESCUE Office.

A FEW copies of the Proceedings of the recent National Temperance Convention at Saratoga, for sale at this office, 25 cents each; sent free by mail. Every Good Templar ought to have one.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institu ion. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. IN MEMORIAM.

DIED—At San Luis Obispo, Aug. 19th, Miss Hattie Martin in her 15th year after short but severe sufferings from scarlet fever.

Sister Hattie was one of the charter members of San Luis Obispo Lodge recently organized by Mrs. Stevens and the first to be called from our Lodge as we trust to the lodge above. She had in early youth given her heart to the Savior and has now been called to her better home.

The announcement of the unexpected death of our sister just entering upon blooming maidenhood fills our hearts with sorrow and forcibly admonishes us that in the midst of life we are in death.

The lodge passed fitting resolutions of sorrow for her loss and sincere condolence with her parents and family in this sore bereavement.

DIED:—Near Soulsbyville, Aug. 30, 1881. Maria J. Morrish wife of J. B. Morrish aged 26 years. The deceased was an active and worthy member of Soulsbyville Lodge No. 340, I. O. G. T. which passed resolutions of condolence and testified their appreciation of her worth in the temperance cause, in behalf of which she was ever ready to raise her willing voice and give her ready help.

If no one defends fermented communion wine we may consider judgment confessed. It has no defence, not a shadow.

THE Religious Herald is quoted as saying that 5000 dead men are picked up in the streets of New York every year 4 of every 5 killed by whisky. That must be a mistake: 14 every day is too much. But Dr. Willard Parker reckons that 5000 persons die every year in New York from the effects of drink which is very probably within the mark.

Anaheim Gazette: "The whole number of children under 17 years, in Anaheim School District, according to the census Marshall's report, is 442. The whole number between 5 and 17 is 336—seven less than last year. The number between 5 and 17 who have attended school at any time during the year is 233" That makes 103 of 336 children that dont go to any school, it appears.

A WASTE.—All the space and labor and time, devoted in temperance papers on either side of the Atlantic to the discussion of the question of the separation of the larger body of English Templars from our Order, and of the reasons for and against are utterly wasted. The S. Africa Standard well says of an English paper that it would be better with that matter left out. A professed temperance organization, that expends its wind and steam in fighting any other temperance society is doing just exactly the work most pleasing and profitable to the devil and the bloodhounds of the liquor traffic. If one party chooses to do any of that work it is much better for the cause of temperance to let it be confined strictly to one side.

SELLING LIQUOR TO INDIANS.—Thompson P. Laird has been sentenced by Judge Hoffman of the United States Court to pay a fine of $50 and suffer eleven months' imprisonment in the County Jail of Los Angeles county, besides further incarceration until the payment of the fine. Laird was convicted on Tuesday last for selling liquor to an Indian on the San Bernardino Reservation. Gabriel Pacheco was convicted on Wednesday of a like offense, the jury recommending him to the mercy of the Court. He was sentenced to five months' imprisonment, to pay a fine of $50, and be imprisoned until it is paid. It is thought that these convictions and sentences will have a good effect in the southern counties in putting a stop to the sale of liquor to the Indians, which Agent Lawson is determined shall be stopped. —Chronicle.

Query. If selling liquor to an Indian deserves a penalty of $50 and eleven months fine, how many thousand dollars fine and how many years jail should a fellow get for selling rum to a white man and the husband of a white woman?

REV.———, Washington, D. C., writes: I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them.

That is a clipping from an exchange which credits it to the N. Y. Baptist Weekly. Hop Bitters are a fraud. a compound merely of bad whisky, only something to get drunk on, that is all; the Baptist Weekly and every clevgyman that can read knows that. It is quite likely neither the Rev.———nor the Baptist Weekly were ever guilty of uttering the above nastiness. If they were it would be intensely disgraceful. No physician above the most degraded character would or dares recommend their daily use, and if any clergyman commends them, it is either because he loves gin or can be bought to say anything.

BOUND VOLUME OF TRACTS.—The National Temperance Society have now 194 tracts of every kind published from 4 to 12 pages. They are now all published in one volume for $1.25, 954 pages which is remarkably cheap and it must be a most valuable book. Every lodge and every temperance lecturer and worker ought to have it. Send to 58 Reade St. N. Y.

ANOTHER matter upon which outsiders have a perfect right to pass an opinion was the keeping of the sick president so long in an atmosphere where strong men were suffering from malaria, and offering as an excuse the assertion that he had no malarial symptoms: but it was perhaps part of the program to give the president malarial poison with his rum, koumis and opium poisoning. Outsiders know too that keeping the patient there under any circumstances when it was a constant wearying source of distress and anxiety to him was very bad medicine. As to danger of removal in his weak condition, he was evidently moved at his weakest time and it seems with most salutary effect.

BELOW is an extract from a letter received from Bro. Baker of Rio Vista. This brother is one of the noblest men we have met in the State and who rendered us signal service in the work in that Co. If more lodges would arrange visits to their neighbors, it would result as did this in not only benefitting and encouraging the lodge visited, but the visitors as well. But hear what Bro. Baker says.

"Our trip to Birds Landing was a pleasant affair and one that I shall always look back to with pride. There were eight of us went down. When we arrived we found them in the Odd Fellows hall with new regalia and six more persons waiting for us to initiate them. Bro. E. M. Chase officiated as W. C. T. by request and they were duly received into the order after which we conferred the degrees upon them all." W. C. KING.

THE Metropolitan church, Rev. I. S. Kalloch, pastor, has severed its connection or affiliation with the Baptist State convention and the San Francisco association; has passed resolutions of confidence and affection for its pastor, who, it declares has proved himself a faithful and consciencious preacher and pastor for the past seven years. It is to be hoped this action may bring peace between that church and its enemies. No one outside is now responsible for its acts or utterances. The congregation who have had an excellent opportunity to know most about their pastor are completely satisfied with him, and if they are no one else has any right to meddle with or persecute them or him.

On last Sunday evening a very excellent lecture was given on bigotry, and generous allusion made to the trial of Mrs. Cooper for heresy, after suffering a five years persistent persecution at the hands of a male member of her church who had hounded her, so claimed, on a failure of hers to comprehend some occult matters of speculative faith as he did. He said he was sorry she had not stood up to a question put to her in this fashion: "If there is a hell which is to be peopled by such men as Ingersoll and Dickens, and a heaven to be inhabited by such men as Mr. Roberts and his fellow inquisitors, I would rather cast my lot with the former."

Mr. K. announced that a meeting will be held on Friday of this week in the lecture room to form a temperance society in connection with the church. This is a movement that will be hailed with pleasure by those who long more for the welfare of mankind than for sectarian supremacy. The lecture was a grand success; practical religion was brilliantly illustrated and presented in its happiest lights and phases. The mask was removed from narrow, one idea intolerance and persecuting bigotry, and its repulsive features exposed and delineated with a master hand. When summing up, the speaker remarked incidentally that the interest of this church in the cause of temperance gives it a much greater glory than a rigid orthodox accuracy of creed as to the doctrine of total depravity ever could

TOTAL ABSTINENCE IN RELATION TO HEALTH AND DISEASE.

BY J. JAMES RIDGE, M. D., B. S., ETC.

There are no persons to be found now, none, at least, who speak with any sense of responsibility, who contend that alcohal in any form is a necessary of life. The fact that millions of human beings live happily without it is so very palpable that to assert its necessity must be regarded as a symptom of insanity. * * * * * * *

We are told that there is no evidence that moderate quantities of alcohol are injurious to the health.

What would be moderate to one man would be excess to another: a quantity which would be moderate to a man at one time, or under some circumstances, would be immoderate to the same man at another time or under other circumstances. Indeed many a person is at the present time taking excess of alcohol while under the impression that he or she is far within the bounds of moderation. If the moderate use of alcohol is not injurious, mankind will always regard as moderation any quantity which is not sufficient to produce obvious symptoms of intoxication.

Before we pvoceed further it ought to be observed that alcohol has two distinct ways of affecting the body. The processes of life are under the control of the nervous system, and alcohol so disturbs the nervous centers that all these processes are more or less disarranged. But, beyond this, the alcohol exerts a chemical influence on every atom of tissue with which it comes into contact. Its action on the nervous system is affected by the law of tolerrnce. That is to say, a glass of wine given to a child or total abstainer will produce symptoms of intoxication; but, if it be repeated day after day, the nervous system will become so charged as not to respond to the alcohol in the same way—the former effects will no longer follow. This proves that small quantities of alcohol are able to affect and alter the body. In a natural condition the nerves ought to be and are affected by small quantities of alcohol, and if they are not, we may depend upon it this is a change, not for the better, but for the worse.

"God never made His work for man to mend."

It is by its interference with the function of the nervous system that alcohol produces the symptoms of intoxication. Its action produces progressive paralysis both of the senses and of the voluntary power. A person after taking a very small quantity of alcohol is less sensitive to every impression, he loses extreme delicacy of touch, he does not perceive so quickly, and his judgment is impaired. Dr. Brunton tells us of an author who found that if he wrote anything after he had taken a glass of wine, although it satisfied his judgment at the time, it never seemed satisfactory in the morning when his brain was no longer under the influence of the alcohol. Dr. Wilks tells us of a gentleman who was about to play a solo on a violin at a public concert, and was advised to take a glass of wine to remove his nervousness. He refused on the ground that though it would give him courage to stand before his audience, it would at the same time cause him to blur his notes; while rendering him unconscious of his degradation, by benumbing his sensibilities, it would also take the edge off his bow. If these are facts, and they are capable of endless multiplication, do they not show that there is a drunkenness of the mind produced by very small quantities of alcohol—quantities quite incapable of producing the thick speech and unsteady gait which is the outward manifestation of drunkenness of the muscles, and to which alone the reproach of intoxication popularly applies? To my thinking this drunkenness of the mind is by far the more serious. It seems to me that the responsibility incurred in producing it is extremely great. The conscience itself is weakened: the judge in the court is first affected. And the worst feature is, that the individual does not know he is altered. The judgment which is less able to discriminate external objects is also less able to recognize its own impairment. Thus does alcohol deceive the mind.

As the power of perceptions are weakened, so the voluntary power —the power of the will—is weaked also. The man has less control over his thoughts, less control over his emotions, less control over his movements, in proportion to the degree of his intoxication. There is no line to be drawn within which men can take alcohol and be sober, and beyond which they are drunk. If a man's brain is altered by alcohol to any extent, so that he thinks, or says, or does anything which he would not have thought, said, or done without it; or if, on the other hand, he does not think, say, or do, what he otherwise would, that man is more or less intoxicated, as the case may be.

The sin of drunkenness can not consist in the want of power over thought, emotion, or muscle; that is the physical effect of the poison alcohol, and if the poison is in the blood, the holiest man could not prevent its effect. Whatever sin there is must consist in the voluntary deadening of conscience and surrender of self-control by taking a substance which is able thus to interfere with the highest power of mind and body. Absolute and total abstinence from such a poison of the mind seems to me to be equally wisdom and duty.

THE BREWERS ON TRIAL.

The Business Men's Moderation Society of this city has addressed to the brewers in all parts of the country the following questions:

"1. Do you use in the manufacture of your beer, corn (malted or raw), glucose, grape-sugar, potato-starch, corn-starch, rice, aloes, molasses, cocculus indicus, or any other substitute for pure and sound barley, malt, and hops?

"2. If so, what and in what proportions?

"3. Are you willing to submit your beer to a chemical analysis, with a view to a determination of its materials?

"4. Are you willing to permit an authorized officer of this society to inspect the 'brewing books' of your foreman or master brewer for the last five years?

"5. Do you in the manufacture of your beer employ 'extracts' or 'essence' of hops, or any other substitute for 'choice hops'?

"6. How many barrels of beer did you make last year, and how many bushels of malt or pounds of hops did you use in their production?

"7. At what time in the year do you make 'stock lager-beer,' and how much six months' old stock have you on hand at the present time?

"8. How much that is four months, old?

"9. At what age do you sell your beer to customers.

"10. Do you blend your beer, new and old? If so, in what proportions, and what average do you aim to attain for your beer?

"11. What are the proportions, of barley, malt, and hops used in the making of your beer, as usually furnished by you to your customers?.'

Some of the brewers denounce these enquiries as "impertinent." After some discussion, at a recent meeting of the Brewers' Associations of this city, the questions were referred to the Executive Committee, "with power to decide whether any answer shall be given or not, and if an answer is necessary, what it shall be."

San Francisco, Sept. 1, 1881.

I visited San Jose and Santa Cruz last week, took passage on the South Pacific Coast R. R. Narrow Guage. The road is one of the finest in the state; passes thru one of the best valleys and over the Santa Cruz mountains whose grandeur and magnificent scenery cannot be surpassed. The train passes thru long tunnels, and again emerging into sunlight winds its way around the mountain steeps and ravines thru a fine body of redwood monarchs of the mountain, where men are engaged in slaying these giant trees and fitting them for the saw and shingle mills; immense piles of cord wood are stored along the R. R.

Again diving into another tunnel, again out into the sunlight, and so on all thru the mountain regions. The trip from San Francisco to Santa Cruz is indeed delightful and instructive: the time is well and profitably spent. Santa Cruz is a resort in the summer for sea bathers, the Saratoga of the Pacific Coast.

One peculiarity of the town is that when it is foggy along the coast the sun invariably throws its vivifying light on Santa Cruz. The town has no organization of Good Templars. I presume the people would have us believe they are so temperate in their habits as to have no need nor inclination to help our organization.

Towns are like temperate drinkers. They go down hill till they become drunken and degraded. Once upon a time when I hunted up the lodge room of Pacific No. 1, I found a union social and no lodge meeting. Enquired what kind of a union social it was to be. I was told it was a union of the different religious or church organizations. I staid about the place to take observations, saw a couple of violinists; the room below the lodge room (I think usually used for a reading room) was filling up with ladies and gentlemen and the next was honor to your partners, etc. I returned to the Pacific Ocean Home, and never had the pleasure to meet with Pacific No. 1.

I stopped over at San Jose, I met Bro. Bushnell, G. W. Ch. he is going to San Luis and Tulare counties some time this month to work in the vineyard of the Lord. He thinks he will be able to put in some work for temperance and in behalf of the good templars. I had the pleasure of meeting with Granger Lodge. Sisters Bacon and Goldworthy, L D and W. C. T-; with these offices so filled the lodge ought to prosper. About 60 members were present in whose company I enjoyed myself exceedingly. They will have open meeting on Saturday 10th.

Bro Hobson of Garden City Lodge of San Jose reports his lodge doing well, having a membership of 103. This lodge was organized in March last with 55 members. This is doing well for San Jose.

We are moving onward on the whole line in the interest of temperance morality and good will to all mankind. C. H. Peterson, S. D.

LONG AND SHORT.

Beth's short article of last week containing much wholesome truth sweetly and tersely expressed, sets me to thinking that everybody will be sure to read with much interest all that Beth writes. A good many people could with profit to themselves and your readers follow the example set them. Reports of meetings, district lodges, entertainments, lectures and travels would always be improved if they omitted certain facts "the meeting was called to order" and the time, minutes and seconds, and the act of the President presiding and taking the chair. We know these things are always done and that a meeting is closed or adjourned and the people eat when it is dinner time and go home and the sun rises next morning, accidents excepted. We like to hear how many people were induced to come over and espouse our cause, how many new subscribers were obtained for the Rescue, how much use is made of temperance literature, how many charter members, what advanced steps the Dist. Lodge proposed, what results from temperance literature, what about the Band of Hope &c. Dropping all irrelevant and uninteresting portions that we are apt to sandwich into our communications, would vastly improve them and we would not then have to wait three weeks at times as I have had, to get "our say" in: there that is long enough; I am a subscriber but did not subscribe for long idle stories. S. Short.

LOMPOC.

A Good Templar called this week at the Rescue office to enquire about Lompoc. He proposes to remove from Sutter county to Lompoc and be one of the good citizens who are to make that a land of promise. He will be a valuable acquisition to any community. But not a particle of information relative to lands or prices or terms, could be given him here, nor any reference to where anything could be learned in San Francisco. He said the vineyard districts and everything else but the temperance colonies and temperance interests were well advertised. The Lompoc Record which was handed him, was silent or nearly so as to the rates of property also. The Rescue being read by a good many thousands of people every week, some authentic statistics of Lompoc and what can be had there, prices and qualities of land &c, would be of much interest to the readers and the Rescue will most willingly and gladly give such information when received. It will be a pleasure to spread far and wide any truthful data which can help the interests of the colony and add to its success and progress.

Glucose is used in place of grapes or grain to produce alcohol. Glucose is a formidable word and if it were presented as a most deadly and fatal poison, many people would not know any better. But it is not a poison, it is exactly the same kind of sugar that exists in the grape, no better, no worse. Ordinary sugar to be made into alcohol must be first turned into glucose. But this substance is mostly made from the starch of potatoes or grain, and it is so much cheaper produced that way that brewers use it to make beer, and it is quite probable that most of the beer made in the U. S. never hears of barley. To suppose however that there is anything poisonous in glucose is a mistake. It is converted by fermentation into a poison, just as the sugar of the grape is: but wine, beer or brandy made from glucose is just the same as from the genuine material, if no other poison is added. Beer is the worst adulterated of all drinks now, but the glucose adulteration dont hurt beer or wine more than the barley or grape does.

CAL. W. C. T. U.

The following reports from two of our auxiliaries show what not only these but other Unions are doing. We believe in a practical work, and especially a work among the children.

GRASS VALLEY, Aug 28, 1881.

I wish we had more to report. Our number remains the same. Our regular meetings are poorly attended by the ladies, but the children come out in goodly numbers. Our juvenile union is very successful. We teach the Colman Catechism, give the blackboard lessons, temperance recitations and music. The juveniles meet twice a month on Saturday afternoons, and once a month we give them an evening social. Occasionally we have some gratifying evidence that our labor is not wasted.

We have one hundred and fifty children in the Union, and circulate among them fifty copies of the Youths Temperance Banner. After the January convention we offered in connection with the Nevada City Union prizes to the young people of the county for essays on Alcohol and Tobacco. Twenty-five essays were received July 1st, and showed a good degree of interest and study of the subject. The committee reported after examining them that they all merited prizes.

The first prize of $20 was won by a young girl in Rough and Ready; the second of $10 was won by one in Grass Valley, and the third of $5 by a boy in Nevada city; showing that the interest was not confined to one spot. The three papers were read and the prizes paid before a large audience at the Reform Club Hall. We feel that our best work is in the education of the young, and shall continue to labor for them, without forgetting the claims of our own generation, and doing whatever our hands find to do for the good cause anywhere.

Our local weekly paper gives us space each week which we have been using more than a year. The daily press has also been at our occasional service, as we have needed it, and our notices take their chance of standing side by side with advertisements of whisky dealers. Tho the saloons of the town are still very numerous, we believe that a hearty temperance sentiment is growing. The reform club is doing well, and the Good Templars.

MRS. SPENCER, Sec.

SAN JOSE, Aug 30th.

The local Union of San Jose has been in existence one year and a half. The first six months were spent principally in securing members and in awakening an interest in the cause of temperance among women.

Tracts were distributed and juvenile societies organized. About 60 members were enrolled among whom were many of the best Christian workers of our city. During the year now closing the society has held on its way with unabated interest, increasing its membership to seventy-eight. Its semi-monthly meetings for business, preceded by devotions, have always been seasons of interest and profit.

Altho it cannot report work commensurate with its possibilities, yet some good has been accomplished. The society feels that it has but entered upon its career, which embraces years of future labor, and admits of no thot of failure or retreat.

The work of establishing a Coffee House in the face of many predictions of failure, required much faith and effort. This has been a success in that it is self supporting and brings in a small revenue which will assist in some other enterprise of usefulness.

A fine kindergarten school, a reading room, and stated place for our Gospel meetings, are among our plans for the near future. We regret that our Gospel meetings have not proved the power of good that we desired. It is thot by some that a stated place for them not connected with any church, would be more favorable for drawing in those whom we desire to benefit.

Our committee on Literature have not been idle. Many excellent selected articles and some original ones have been furnished to our papers. These papers are friendly to our work tho adverse crisicisms have appeared at times. These only argue that we have entered upon active existence. The fact that the wordChristian appears in our name awakens hostility in the minds of some, but we hope to show that we can be that without being bigoted or puritanical.

MRS. S. B. GOULDING, Sec.

C. L. S. C. TO GOOD TEMPLARS.

Perhaps the Good Templars can form a correct opinion of Chautauqua aims, in no better way than from an epitome of the work of the last Summer's school commencing June 28, and closing July 13th. C. C. Stratton of the State University, is president of the State Circle, but he being absent, H. B. Norton of the State Normal School presided for a week until Dr. Stratton arrived and Mr. Norton's was the address of welcome.

The work was all comprehensible to any person of common education, willing to make a little effort to improve. During the day lectures, there was opportunity to ask questions and name specimens in natural history and botany, a chance invaluable to the isolated student. The course was partly scientific, partly literary, as had been the work of the preceding years, and I will make cursory mention of the subjects presented.

There were several lectures on Economic Botany, by H. B. Norton, giving a description of many of our insect pests, the means of identification and methods of extermination, a subject of especial interest to fruit and flower culturists. Dr. Wythe gave a course in Biology, mostly the histological branch of the subject. This course was well illustrated by chart and microscope.

H. L. Anderson gave a course in Marine Botany, one lecture on the sea beach, a good opportunity to name Algae. J. G. Lemmon an explorer of the High Sierras, gave several unpretentious talks about his experience in the mountains, and a particular description of the Pines of that elevated region.

F. B. Perkins of the San Francisco Free Library talked of libraries and their uses, and Josiah Keep gave some valuable facts about California shells, enabling one to identify those of his own collection.

Rev. C. V. Anthony gave three lectures on Psychology, and Bernard Moses of the State University gave two, one Literary History, the growth of our language, the other Scandinavia, its ancient laws, sagas and poems. Ira Moore of the State Normal School gave several lectures, one psychological the Arpan and the Semite, one historical, Hannibal, another scientific, the Comet, particularly appropriate when a flaming comet kept night guard over the Circle.

The fourth of July he gave an eye witness's account of the Siege of Vicksburg, so graphic that one almost saw the swamps, the pits, and heard the hissing of the bombs. C. C. Stratton gave two lectures, The Confusion of Tongues and Schlieman and his explorations.

The ladies were not ignored. Miss Washburn, last year's Secretary gave an account of the work of the year. There were last year some twelve circles, with local subdivisions and about eight hundred members. Mrs. Lemmon gave some delightful talks about Ferns. She showed numerous specimens, and it was a fine opportunity for fern admirers to grow very wise. Mrs. Field of San Jose gave three lectures upon American Literature, quite as valuable as any of the course, and very entertaining.

Revs. Britton, Patterson, Dwinelle and Burroughs conducted Sunday services, Catholic and Christian enough to help break down the crumbling wall that divides good people of different denominational names. To the busy members this was a season of rest, and an intellectual indraught for the coming year.

COMMUNION WINE.

The Rev. George B. Allen, Rector of St. Johns Church, Petaluma, in a printed circular to his congregation says:—

Those who heard my discourse on "Water made Wine," and my "Bible Readings" on the Lord's Supper, need not be informed that the Scriptures teach that the unfermented juice of the grape is wine and that the "fruit of the vine" spoken of by Christ at the institution of the Lord's Supper was not fermented wine. As there is no law of our Church on the subject, and as even custom varies in different sections, some using domestic wine which is very similar to that I have been using, I claim that no one has the authority to dictate to any rector the percentage of alcohol that the Communion wine shall contain, or whether it shall be new or old, fermented or unfermented, alcoholic or non-alcoholic.

I am not aware that there is any ecclesiastical "brand" which the General Convention has adopted.

The new wine which I prepared I know to be the pure juice of the grape. It has been ascertained by analysis that there was not a particle of grape juice in some Port Wine, and in other wines which had the "brand" of grape juice.

If there were no other reasons, this would be sufficient for me to use what I know to be pure and wholesome. I cannot use alcoholic wine in the administration of the Lord's Supper, when I can obtain any other. It would be a sin for me to do it.

I have thoroly investigated the subject during the past three years. I know facts which I cannot, as a pastor, speak of in public, which would awaken the sympathy of every heart filled with the love of Christ. The partaking of strong alcoholic wine in the Holy Communion is not only "fraught with evil" to some of the laity, but to a few of the clergy.

Having promised at my ordination "to drive away from the Church all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's Word," I shall exert my influence, by word and action, to drive away the erroneous doctrine, that Christ commanded and his Church received alcoholic wine in the administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

I would urge those whose conscientious convictions are in sympathy with the administration of non-alcoholic wine to remain firm and true, whatever may be the sacrifices to be made. Be obedient to the command and the promise shall be yours: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." I would beseech those who are indifferent whether alcoholic or non-alcoholic wine be used to consider seriously the duty of doing what will help one of the disciples of our Lord to comply with his command, "Do this in remembrance of me," without any apprehension of peril to the body or soul, that you may have the approval of Him, who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethern, ye have done it unto me."

I would ask those who think they have conscientious scruples respecting the receiving of non-alcoholic wine, to thoroly investigate the subject—reading sacred and profane authorities, and seeking light for the mind and love for the heart, from Him who said, "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

I would remind all to discuss this subject, also any other, in the spirit of love, and with the desire that truth shall prevail in the "Church of the living God."

HEALTH.

A journal of 20 pages published by C. K. Swartz and Co. Reading, Pa., devoted to the true healing art and to the preservation of health. It advocates natural rational treatment of the sick, the abandonment of the fetish and poisoning and opiating and drunkenizing treatments which so disgrace the modern practice of the otherwise eminently learned physicians of our day: barbarisms that have survived the days of medical ignorance. It will pay any one who values sound information to send 60 cents or $2,50 for a club of five and have its counsels for a year.

See what it says about Koumiss, our doctors' nourishing food for the President:

"And the President's stomach has rebelled; he is dying of dyspepsia, not of the wound. His physicians, have no definite principles to guide them, no basis on which to reason, have seized an idea from a semi-civilized people, and in violation of science and common sense, undertake to feed him the product of milk subjected to processes of decay, a product not one whit better than can be found in any unclean swill-barrel during any hot August day. A discreet farmer would not feed it to his hogs. It is known that just such food produces chicken cholera, hog cholera, &c. The agricultural journals have discussed this subject for years, and denounced such foods as utterly unfit for animals; and no intelligent editor, lawyer or farmer would feed it to a sick dog. Does the fact of its being prescribed by a man, possessed of a diploma written in a dead language, sophisticated by all the fallacies of the old school, educated in a routine if not as silly, at least as destructive as an Indian pow-wow, change its character or its effects?"

The address of Mrs. E. P. Stevens is now 1907 Bush St. San Francisco.

DELINQUENT. The following lodges have so far failed to file quarterly returns for the term ending July 31st. viz. Nos. 102, 103, 121, 124, 132, 168. 170, 176, 183, 205, 213, 214, 227. 228, 229, 234, 238, 240 243, 250, 258, 275, 301, 306, 333, 347, 349, 352, 353, 357, 365, 373, 377, 380, 383, 390, 401, 403, 414 417, 432, A, T. No, 3 and Mil, 2.

In each case the lodge deputy has been notified of the delinquency, but neither returns nor reply has been received. The time is close at hand when the books of the Grand Lodge must be closed, and any or all who have not reported at that time will be stricken from the roll of active lodges, as unless the returns are filed they are not in good standing, and none but bona fide lodges will be reported to the Grand Lodge.

Lodge and District Deputies are requested to examine the list and use their best endeavors to have delinquent lodge under them report during the current week without fail. State Deputies and Grand Lecturers will also lend their aid in this matter. It is not desirable to cut off any live lodge, but unless they report there is no means of knowing that they are alive.

BEG TO BE EXCUSED.—For several years past the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, Goodall, Perkins & Co. agents, have kindly allowed a commutation rate to all who attended the sessions of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. The G. W. S. wrote to the agents above noted as usual, and begged a continuance of their fermer favors in behalf of the members of our Order, particularly upon this occasion, as the Grand Lodge would meet at Vallejo, where was located the Good Templars Home for Orphans which many would desire to see and visit. The reply received was to the effect that they had so many applications for reduced rates of this kind that they felt compelled to adopt a new rule declining to issue reduced tickets etc., and therefore asked to be excused from doing so upon this occasion. The steamship line being theirs, there is no help for it, and they must be excused. But it would not have injured them in the least to have pursued their heretofore liberal policy toward their patrons. However these are the facts and cannot be helped.

M. E. CONFERENCE.—The M. E. Conference of the Northern District of California held its annual session at Sacramento from the 7th to the 14th inst.

During the sessions, Geo, B. Katzenstein, Right Worthy Grand Templar of the I. O. G. T. was officially introduced, cordially welcomed, and briefly addressing the conference, urged a heartier co-operation between the two organizations in the work of temperance reform, and asked for a continuance of the sympathy and aid of the M. E. church, which has always been recognized as a temperance organization in itself.

The following resolution was adopted.

Resolved That we heartily endorse the work of the Order of Good Templars, and extend to it our sympathy and co-operation in all efforts to secure local option and prohibition of the liquor traffic and the enforcement of the Sunday laws, and we make to the Grand Lodge of California our grateful acknowledgements for free copies of the RESCUE furnished us thruout the past year.

GRAND LODGE ARRANGEMENTS.—The printer last week divided the article under the above heading, placing the close after the item "About camping parties." The facts were all there however, and those wishing to secure accommodations in advance of their coming will address Bro. S. Kitto, Vallejo.... The Grand Lodge will convene at 10 o'clock A. M. on Tuesday October 4th in Odd Fellows Hall ..... The G. W. C. T. has established head quarters during the Grand Lodge session at the Bernard House. .....The new school house recently erected in connection with our Home for Orphans will be dedicated during the Grand Lodge session.....Have the credentials of your Representatives elect, together with the quarterly returns of your lodge for the last quarter, been properly filed with the G. W. S.? Ask your Lodge Deputy this question.

CHASES EXPOSITION.—A large number of Chases expositlon of the Order of Good Templars have been mailed in response to orders received thru the announcement in this department that they would be sent free of charge to all who desire to make use of them. The G. W. S. has still a number of copies on hand which will be mailed to any one upon application.

Fish's Parliamentary Manual.—The R. W. G. L, at the New York session adopted The American Manual of Parliamentary Law, by Bro. Geo. T. Fish as authority on all parliamentary questions. It is an excellent work on parliamentary law, carefully prepared, conveniently arranged, and probably one of the best manuals now in use. Price in cloth binding 50 cents, in morocco tucks, $1. The G. W. S. has a few sample copies on sale. Cash should accompany the order.

Personals.—During the past week several members of the M. E. Conference, who are also members of our Order, favored the Grand Lodge office with a call; among them were the following: Bros. C. E. Rich of Modesto, L. W. Simmons of Fishermans bay, W. M. Woodward of San Rafael, W. T. Mayne of Healdsburg, J B Chisholm of Arcata, A. K. Crawford of Elk Grove, Geo. Bramall of Hay wards, G R Starley of Rough and Ready, E H King of North San Juan.

Pomona.—Some one has sent a remittance per Wells Fargo & Co's express from Pomona to the G. W. S. office without advice and the amount remains still unclaimed. Who sent it and for what account are points upon which the G. W. S. desires information.

College City, Sept. 5, 1881.

Editor Rescue: The District Lodge of Colusa county met pursuant to adjournment at Colusa on the 2d and 3d, our G. W. C. T. presiding. The following lodges were fully represented, viz.: Independent, 119; Sheet Iron, 199; Protection, 319; and Sycamore, 379. There were also a number of the members out from the different lodges, making quite a large attendance. There was a large amount of business transacted. Our G. W. C. T. installed the officers publicly, after which he delivered a fine lecture to a large audience, which was well received. The District Lodge has awakened to its work in this county. We have a leader now that knows no fear. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we recognize the importance of enforcing the Sunday Law, and that we pledge ourselves, as a lodge, and as individuals, to stand by, and support by our influence and money, in proportion to our ability, every effort that may be made for its enforcement.

Resolved, Further, that the D.D., Bro. J. H. Liening, be appointed a committee of one to ferret out violations of this law and bring them to justice.

The next meeting will be held at College City, on Dec. 2, 1881. Yours truly, J. B. Hewitt, Dis. Sec.

Zena, Oregon, Sept. 6, 1881.

I am a member of Val Fontis Lodge, No. 74, I. O. G. T., located in this place, Zena, in Spring Valley, one of the best valleys in Oregon. It is about seven miles from Salem, and two and one-half from Lincoln, on the Willamette River. Our community has some of the best people of the state. The lodge here has withstood all the trials and temptations within and without for fourteen years next 6th of May. It has done good work during that time, and I hope and pray that it will ever be a beacon light for the fallen, and a trusty guide to lead men to avoid the breakers of intemperance. I admire that article in your issue of Sept 1st, entitled, "Cheap John I. O. G. T." We have lots of them also in Oregon, which we will sell to the lowest bidder. Would like to hear from more of our Oregon good templars and lodges in the Rescue. S. S. Gimble.

Turlock, Sept. 12, 1881.

The saloon trials are at rest, waiting on the decision from the Supreme Court, in the Burke case.

Harmony D. L. held its annual session in Turlock on the 10th instant, but was not represented outside of Stanislaus county, the Merced Lodges failing to be represented. The train being delayed, Brother G. E. Isaacs, D. D., failed to arrive in time to call to order, and G. L., the Rev. W. C. King, presided in a most efficient manner.

The standing of the order in Stanislaus county was reported very good; altho some of the lodges were declining, the majority were improving. It was recommended for the best interest of the order, and improvement of the declining lodges, that Harmony District Lodge disband, and the two counties organize in separate district lodges. The report was made the special order for 2:30 P. M., and at that time adopted. Then Harmony District Lodge was disbanded, and the delegates present proceeded to organize Stanislaus District Lodge, calling Brother, the Rev. W. C. King, S. D., to the chair. It having been filled during the other portion of the afternoon by D. D. Brother George E. Isaacs, who arrived about 1 P. M. Organization of Stanislaus District Lodge was perfected, officers elected and installed by D. D. Brother George E. Isacs, Bro. Rev. M. D. Gage recommended for D. D. The District Lodge then outlined a policy to pursue in the future. To meet quarterly and at stated places, and as many lodges as can are to meet monthly with the feeble lodges on their regular meeting night; the D. D. to be present and the lodges notified beforehand. During the evening open lodge was held with Fairview, of Turlock, presided over by D. D. elect, Rev. M. D. Gage, and the evening was pleasantly and profitably spent listening to an interesting program of exercises. The best thing of the evening was the logical, eloquent and forcible plea for prohibition, made by G. L. the Rev. W. C. King. It was admitted by all to be the best they ever listened to or read. I wish we had a great many more such lecturers in the field. Brother King was followed by Brother Gage, who is also a staunch prohibitionist. His remarks were well received, and we expect to hear from our D. D. often during the year. D. D. Brother George E. Isaacs then made a few well-timed remarks in accord with the other speakers. Our hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and everybody seemed happy at the successful day session and the splendid open lodge meeting of the evening.

Tulare City, Sept. 11, 1881.

Our District Lodge met in Visalia, Sept. 8th. Bright anticipations centered in that event for many days were now realized. The morning dawned beautiful, and our drive of ten miles was delightful. Six enterprising ladies, in the absence of the stronger party, sallied forth ourselves to represent the Lodge of Tulare. Our driver of sixteen landed us safely at the Palace Hotel, and in a few minutes all were "hurrying to and fro," donning white sacques, tying bows, putting a pin here and there, stealing sly glances in the mirror to see that all was right, and we pronounced ourselves ready to proceed to the hall. We were met and pleasantly greeted by our member and delegate, Dr. Asay. A warm welcome was given us by our brothers and sisters of Visalia Lodge. The D. Lodge opened at 11 A. M. In the absence of the D. D., Past D. D. Bro. Zumalt took the chair. Different lodges were represented; reports encouraging and favorable. A spirited, pleasant meeting; at noon adjourned till 2 P. M. A long table was set in the hall, a refreshing and delicious lunch prepared, to which all did ample justice. Bro. Frank Thomas and wife, Bro. Knox and wife, Bros. Zumalt, Haines and others strove to, and succeeded in, making a most enjoyable and delightful occasion. Again at our posts, officers were elected for the ensuing year, and other business attended to. Many happy suggestions for the good of the Ooder were made, which I hope may be carried out. We separated, inwardly praying to be all spared to meet again at our next District Lodge, December 1st, at Hanford. Tulare.

Santa Clara, Cal., Sept. 12, 1881

This town is dead—no energy—temperance sentiment at zero. True, the Blue R. Club manages to keep up a nice free reading-room, but it is hard work. To get a member for the lodge is like drawing out a stump; yet we have an initiation every night; all young people, with few exceptions. The M. E. minister came in at the start and helped all he could. The adult portion of the town is asleep; nothing but dried sticks. We want lectures and a flood of temperance literature. We pay $100 per year for our little hall. We have no spare money to buy papers. Just as soon as the lodge increases we will send for more Rescues. To-day I had the Treasurer of the Sunday-school I attend, to send for temperance papers for the scholars. The people here must be educated; many are professors of temperance, but they are slumberers. I wanted one to read the Rescue; when he discovered it was a temperance paper he would not touch it. No, he had reading enough; go away. Everything is dead, dead, dead. I wish Mrs. Stevens could come here and give a bugle blast! Wouldn't the dry bones rattle? We have some folks who don't believe in secret societies. No doubt the devil is the author of that objection to Good Templarism. There are two or three persons in town who are ready to fight at once. The constable was hunted for to-day. The saloons must close on Sunday. One noble brother says the saloons will close on Sunday, and he will spend $1,000 before he gives it up. But he is all alone, or nearly so. But better times are coming. At the next election for Town Trustees we are going to put up "no license" candidates, and fight on that line. If all the temperance people were awake, there would not be a saloon in town within 24 hours. If the Town Board would do it, the license on gin-mills would be $500 per week, or more. Lodge.

AMADOR DISTRICT LODGE.

(A report of the session was overlaid by a mass of other communications and overlooked accidentally; it was intended to appear in proper season.)

The Dist. Lodge of Amador county convened in Amador city Aug. 12th, D. D. I. D. Wood presiding. Officers all on hand except two. All the 11 lodges in the county were represented by 58 delegates: aggregate membership 650. A balance of $500 remains in the sub. lodge treasuries.

Resolutions were passed 1. calling upon the Dist. lAttorney to give warning in the county papers that al vioations of sec. 300 after September 15 will be pro-l secuted.

2. Appointing a committee of the D. D., D. Sec. and three other members to secure enforcement of liquor laws.

3. To support no candidate for office who is not a temperance man.

4. Denouncing certain slanders published by the Amador Sentinel as false, and withdrawing their support from said paper as an enemy of temperance, and doing all in its power to build up the empire of rum.

5. In memory of our good and worthy Bro. E. Degarmo, who was murdered by robbers near Pine Grove, June 25.

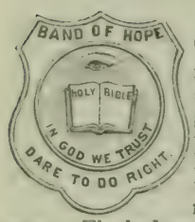
Members of the Order in the district assessed two cents each for expenses of D. L. A procession of 160 members was part of the proceedings, and there were 200 present at the session which is a pleasant indication of the interest manifested by our worthy brethren and sisters of Amador.

One of the sweet things which immortalized the Amador Sentinel was a statement that 99 percent of the members of temperance and religious societies are hypocrites or perjurors.

Offensive.—The adherents of the Order of Good Templars are not "ashamed" of being called Hickmanites as some of those who call them so have lately indicated. There are a hundred other men whose names might be given us as a nickname, and we would not be in the least "ashamed" of being so called. But we are really very much ashamed and humiliated that any member of either branch of this beneficent order, should be so little profited by its influences, as to resort to the exceedingly contemptible and pitiful littleness of trying to affix what they deem offensive nicknames to any temperance organization. There is large room for shame there.

Found Guilty.—A saloon keeper in Brentwood was last week found guilty of keeping his saloon open on Sunday, fined $30 or 30 days in silent meditation in jail. Poor fellow preferred paying his $30 and it is to be hoped the prescription will radically cure the patient and restore him to good moral health on one day of the seven.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.



The Executive Committee of the Prohibition Reform Party will meet in Vallejo, October 4th, for the transaction of such business as may come before it; and all those who believe in independent political action for the prohibition of the liquor traffic, are cordially invited to attend, and by their presence and counsel give direction to such action as will best accomplish the object above stated.

If any are unable to attend personally, let them communicate with the Corresponding Secretary, Rev. George Morris, West End, Alameda County, Cal.

M. C. Winchester, Chairman.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

ORIGIN OF ALCOHOL.

After all that has been said and written about Alcohol there are millions of otherwise intelligent people, still as ignorant about it as nursing babes. A short definition will be given again. Alcohol is the intoxicating property in all intoxicating liquors from cider and table beer up to the strongest brandy; and there is only one thing in all the world that alcohol can be made from, and that is grape sugar or glucose: other things are used to produce alcohol, but before any is produced, the thing used must be turned into glucose.

The starch in barley, potatoes and almost any vegetables and the sugar and starch in milk and in the sugar cane and in the flesh of animals and in anything that contains sugar, or starch, can be converted into glucose or grape sugar, and then alcohol can only be produced by rotting and decomposing that glucose in the grape or from whatever source it is obtained—and subjecting it to exactly the same process that the most offensively smelling putrid meat or fish has undergone.

When the sugar is rotted, its particles decomposed in fermentation (which is only rotting), are united again in a new form and become the alcohol in beer or cider, or wine of any kind; if the fermentation or rotting was permitted to continue, the alcohol would soon decompose and its elements would come together again in the new form of vinegar: if the rotting ferment was not stopped then, the vinegar would be rotted next and all that would remain, would be the pure water now cleansed, a vast amount of poisonons gases having escaped into the atmosphere, and a mess of useless gum and dirt in sediment at the bottom.

There is an idea that alcohol only came into use about 800 years ago. It was discovered then only how to distil alcohol from wine or beer. But it was alcohol that made Noah drunk and every body that has got drunk since his time. They did not know it was alcohol, but it was. In the 11th century an Arabian chemist discovered how to distil or evaporate alcohol from wine. Distilling does not make a particle of alcohol; it only separates it from most of the water with which it is combined in wine, beer or cider.

Wine is composed of these materials in 100 gallons, 10 to 18 gallons alcohol, a little tartaric acid, a little sugar, a little flavor or smell of the grape and all the rest water. Beer is 5 to 10 gallons of alcohol and the rest 90 or 95 gallons water with a little gum, rosin and a variety of nasty, filthy, unwholesome, deadly poisons: the way it is now made by brewers. it is more fatal to health and life than the small pox and is poisoning the people hip and thigh. Cider again is 5 or 6 gallons of alcohol to 94 or 95 of water and a smell of apple, remaining without any substance. Rum, brandy, gin, whisky are made by evaporating the alcohol from beer, wine or cider and are 30 to 50 gallons alcohol to 50 or 70 gallons water, with some tobacco juice, strichnine and other poisons, to make men quicker drunk and crazy.

With some common rum or whisky which can be made, duty paid, for $1.20 a gallon, and either cider or water, and a few drugs and flavoring and coloring extracts, any kind of port, sherry, claret or champagne wine can be made to the utmost perfection for 20 to 25 cents a gallon: it is just as good and actually the same material as that made from grapes.

Also after rum or whisky or brandy is made, it cannot be made to cost any more than about $1.20 a gallon; for there is nothing more can be done to it to make it more valuable. Still people who drink these things are silly enough to pay $2 to $5 a bottle for wine which was made last week from alcohol and drugs and water at a cost of 7 or 8 cents, and they pay $5 to $15 a gallon for whisky and brandy that could never cost over $1.20 to make them. It is just like supposing that by putting the same kind of wheat into different colored or labeled sacks, one sack could be worth $10 or $15 while the other is only $1.25.

One thing more; in all the things that God has made upon the earth, he never made a single drop of alcohol; without man's art there never would have been any. But the Creator made plenty of good wholesome starch and sugar for our food in our grain and fruit. And the only way man can produce wine or beer or alcohol in any shape is to rot and waste and putrify some good and precious food which God has made for us. And that is a wicked and blasphemous and most accursed act.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

The Chronicle of Sept. 3d. gives the following cases complained of during August, by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. All the work of the accursed grogshop, and probably we never hear of more than one in the hundred of such cases.

The first occurred on the 5th, when it was complained that a peddler, the father of three motherless children, aged respectively 8, 10 and 12 years, living on Eighteenth street, was almost constantly drunk, while the children were roaming the streets neglected, half clothed and half starved.

No. 2. A father, drunk a week at a time, has two children utterly neglected. One of them expelled from the public school recently because the drunken father had sent an insulting note to the teacher who enquired about the boy's frequent absence.

No. 3. The keeper of a beer hell, 308 Montgomery Avenue, has his wife, stepdaughter and three young children acting a kind of monkey show to attract the filthy rabble who drink beer to his thief den.

No. 4. A woman confined to bed from eating opium and her daughters, 12 and 3 years of age utterly neglected.

No. 5. A girl of 11 turned out on the street, by her father, Jacob Levy and also by a sister with whom she sought refuge.

No. 6. A little girl in Oakland discovered in a horrible condition from frequent beatings from her mother.

No. 7. C. A. Brodt. an Oakland teacher. arrested for brutal treatment of many pupils, beating them on the head etc. It is not reported that this is a case of drunkenness, but the conduct charged would naturally be referred to beer brutality:

And 10 scoundrels fined $10 to $20 for selling liquor to children, and two more on trial. These atrocious villains are generally considered viler than those who sell the same liquor to grown up men: but it is hardly worth while to split hairs as to which is the meanest, to entrap, rob and poison and kill people over 21 years of age or under those years. The butcher kills calves and grown cattle, lambs and old sheep with equal indifference, so does the bloodhound of the grogshop and beerdive.

A FOOLISH DOG.

A good sized dog of a rather snarly disposition, when on a foraging expedition away from home one day, found a very fine piece of meat that somebody had bot for dinner and had left out in the yard for a little while. The dog was fond of that very kind of meat and without waiting a moment to consider whether it was right or not, he had it between his teeth and was galloping home with it for fear his master should be uneasy at his absence: at least that was the way the dog talked to himself. On the way homeward he had to run along the margin of a beautiful clear lake; it was quieter by that lake than in the main road and there was no one there to ask him where he had bot that meat and how much a pound the man charged him for it.

He had only gone a few steps beside the lake when he saw another dog just under that crystal water, carrying another chunk of meat in his mouth and going the same way. Strange is it not, said Carlo, he has got a piece of meat too, and I really believe it is larger than mine: it is too, and it looks like a better piece than mine: wonder where he got it: like as not the rascal has gone and stolen it, the shameful fellow. A dog that steals a piece of meat like that ought to be horsewhipped—and I really believe it is bigger than mine. And he's only a mean looking dog anyway, guess I'll take it away from him.

So he made a sudden spring for the other dog and a grab at the piece of meat, but as he opened his mouth to snatch it, his own piece dropped out and sank immediately to the bottom, where it happened to be very deep. He splashed round for a time but could neither find his own meat nor see nor feel the other dog anywhere. At last when he gave it up and went ashore he caught sight of the other dog, but he had lost his piece of meat too.

There are thousands of men who have lost their own property in a vain attempt to grab dishonestly their neighbor's, and there are as many who part with a present certainty in the hope of a future uncertainty: who barter a substance for a shadow. Gamblers are always practicing the policy of the dog who risked what he had himself to steal what he thot his neighbor had.

AN AUTUMN TEMPERANCE LESSON.

BY MRS W. F. CRAFTS.

A bunch of grapes? Will you take one? As you pull it off the stem you leave a little cork behind. Each grape is a little skin bottle filled with the sweetest of wine. It is unfermented wine, and has not a particle of alcohol in it.

Here is another kind of bottle filled with sweet juice for you to drink. When you eat the peach you drink the bottle too, do you not?

Last summer I had some sweet juice that God had put into little red bottles no larger than a pin's head, many of them fastened together in the shape of a basket. Try to guess now the name of that fruit.

I had bunches of little black bottles too; each one looked like a little glass bead; Perhaps fifty of them grew in a bunch together no larger than the end of my thumb. Can you not tell the name of that fruit? What lovely purple and green bottles we may have now! When we eat them we might almost think the corks had slipped down inside. Do you know the name of them?

How good God is to make such delicious juice and put it up in such beautiful bottles! He has made them for our food and for our pleasure, and He wants us to take them while they are fresh and sweet.

God puts signs on the bottles when they are no longer fit for us to take. Do you not know what they are? When we see spots of decay or rot on fruit we must take them for signs that the fruit is no longer fit to eat. I will tell you a true story about a little bird that took such fruit. A gentleman had a canary-bird with bright black eyes, which he kept in a cage in his office. Every morning he gave the little bird seed and water, but one day he thought he would give it some grapes that had been lying in a basket on his desk for some days. He did not notice that the grapes were decayed. As soon as the grapes were put in the cage the little bird began to eat them. The juice of the grape made the little bird so drunk that it could hardly stand on the perch. When it tried to hop about it fell down. Its sweet songs were all stopped.

Decay in fruit turns the sweet juice into a kind of poison which we call alcohol.

Perhaps some of the boys and girls are saying, Rotten fruit is so unpleasant that I could never take enough to make me drunk. There are some wicked men who make it their business to put that poison-juice into bottles, and give it such high-sounding names that people either are deceived or forget what it is. They pay a great deal of money for it, and drink and call it "good," the very poison that God warns them against! Champagne, Catawba, old Port, Madeira, are some of the names given to this poison-juice which men put into bottles. There are some mothers, whose duty it is to provide good and wholesome food for their children, who take the sweet juices out of the fruit God has made and let it decay until it becomes poison-juice. Perhaps they do not mean to do their children harm, but they certainly do.

Mr. B——planted several thousands of grape-vines, and God filled the vines with beautiful grapes. When they were all ripe Mr. B——had numbers of men and women to pick them. There were so many grapes that they had to be carried away in large wagons.

Then Mr. B———sold them to a man who wanted to make wine out of them. Do you think Mr. B——— did wrong? Wrong? you say. Yes, I am very sure that no one ought to sell grapes to make wine out of, even if he does not make it himself. Will the boys who read the Banner remember this when they are old enough to grow fruit? Will you not promise never to make your fruit into liquors?

Will you not promise, as well, never to drink the juice of fruit made into liquors? Will the girls promise as much too?

I wish the boys and girls would get their Bibles and read in the twenty-eighth chapter of Isaiah how some people used their grapes for drunkenness.

SHE WONT NEED THEM ANY MORE.

Some days since a disseminator of Chaff noticed a ragged little boot black pulling some bright blossoms from a bruised and faded boquet which a chambermaid had thrown from a chamber window into the alley.

"What are you doing with that boquet, my lad?" asked the disseminator.

"Nothing," was the lad's reply, as he kept on at his work.

"But do you love flowers so well that you are willing to pick them out of the mud?"

"I suppose that's my bizness and none of yourn."

"Oh! certainly: but you surely cannot expect to sell these faded flowers."

"Sell 'em! who wants to sell 'em? I'm going to take 'em to Lill."

"Oh! Lill is your sweetheart, I see."

"No; Lill is not my sweetheart: she's my sick sister," said the boy, as his eye flashed and his dirty chin quivered, "Lill's been sick a long time, an' lately she talked of nothing but flowers an' birds, but mother told me this mornin' that Lill would die b-b-before the flowers an' birds came back."

The boy burst into tears.

"Come with me to the florist's, and your sister shall have a nice boquet."

The little fellow was soon bounding home with his treasure. Next day he appeared and said:

"I came to thank you, sir, for Lill. That boquet done her much good, and she hugged it till she set herself a coughin' again. She says that she'll come an' work for you soon as she gets well."

An order was sent to the florist to give the boy every other day a bouquet for Lill. It was only the day before yesterday that the boot black again appeared. He stepped inside the office door, and said:

"Thank you, sir, but Lill—Lill—(tears were streaming from his eyes) wont—need—the—the flowers any more."

He went quickly away but his brief words had told the story. Lill wont need the flowers any more, but they will grow above her, and the birds will sing around her just the same—Detroit Chaff.

STARTING BANDS OF HOPE.

I will briefly state a way of starting Bands of Hope that I find very successful. As soon as I reach a town and get presentable from dust, I get some good, influential brother to accompany me to the public school and introduce me to the teacher. Or, having an English tongue in my head "go and introduce myself. After listening to recitations awhile, usually find or ask an opportunity to address scholars on habits of application, deportment, respect for teachers and parents &c. And on the use of intoxicants, tobacco and profanity. By some pleasantry and anecdotes get their ear and confidence, and by earnestness try to impress them for good.

I find most teachers favorable and consult them about Bands of Hope and ask all who want to hear about it to remain after school. Get teacher to act as Supt. or have a suitable person, then let all rise who wish to be members, or only those who do not wish, (very often the easier way as whole schools chime in some times) ask the teacher who is familiar with names and faces, to take down names. I then administer the pledge, let them name their officers, explaining the kind of young persons needed and duties of each officer; alternating the sexes for officers and letting boys nominate girls and vice versa: Teachers, Supt. and members decide time, place and frequency of meeting.

A Dying Landlord.—"If I had my time to live over again," said a landlord of a public-house at the verge of death, "I would rather sweep crossings, or beg, or even starve to death, before I would again see the woe and misery which I and my trade have produced."

The principal business of some men's lives is to suck tobacco smoke thru a filthy pipe or filthier cigar. A frog fills a nobler destiny.

The whisky grocery is the vilest of all nests of sin and debauchery.

FOLLOW THOU ME.

Have ye looked for sheep in the desert,
For those who have missed their way?
Have ye been in the wild, waste places,
Where the lost and wandering stray?
Have ye trodden the lonely highway,
The foul and darksome street?
It may be ye'd seen in the gloaming,
The print of my wounded feet.

Have ye folded home to your bosom
The trembling, neglected lamb?
And taught to the lost little one,
The sound of the Shepherd's name?
Have ye searched for the poor and needy,
With no clothing, no home, no bread?
The Son of man was among them;
He had nowhere to lay his head!

Have ye carried the living water
To the parched and thirsty soul?
Have ye said to the sick and wounded,
"Christ Jesus make thee whole?"
Have ye told my fainting children,
Of the strength of the Father's hand?
Have ye guided the tottering footsteps
To the shores of the "Golden Land?"

Have ye stood by the sad and weary
To smooth the pillow of death?
To comfort the sorrow stricken,
And strengthen the feeble faith?
And have ye felt when the glory
Has streamed thru the open door,
And flitted across the shadows,
That I had been there before?

Have ye wept with the broken hearted
In their agony of woe?
Ye might hear me beside you whisper,
'Tis a pathway I often go!
My friends, disciples, brethren,
Can ye dare to follow me!
Then where the Master dwelleth,
There shall the servant be.

Cruelty to Children. The society for prevention of cruelty have had in the last month 45 complaints respecting 86 children. They have attended to 39 of the complaints. Have placed 7 children in benevolent societies and 2 in private families. There have been 12 arrests for allowing children to visit saloons, and 3 for allowing them to dance or play in saloons: 8 convicted and 7 pending still. Their receipts for the month were $385 and expenses $114: and there is $1200 in the treasury.

The operations of this Society are of very great importance. It is fair to suppose that only a very small percentage of the cases of cruelty, starvation and neglect suffered by thousands of children in this city can come to their notice, but their labors relieve much suffering and tend to direct public attention to the monstrous crime producing power of the brewery and grogshop. If it were not a matter fraught with so much misery and death to our fellow creatures there would be cause for a broad grin of derision at the infamous public policy of giving a license to a poisoner of men to keep a poison shop and then fining people for allowing children to go to those schools of vice.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise," "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

"NON-INTOXICATING" WINE.

Joseph Cook, in his new address, just published by the National Temperance Society, entitled "The New House and its Battlement," says:

"I think it beyond dispute among the scholars of the first rank that at the Passover the wine used was non-intoxicating, and that our Lord instituted the Supper with such wine."

The Congregationalist of Boston, referring to it, says;

"Taking this adjective, 'non-intoxicating,' in its only legitimate sense, it seems incredible that Mr. Cook can have been guilty of such a misrepresentation as the language contains. We ask for information. Is there a single 'scholar of the first rank' (and recognized as such) at Andover, Harvard, Yale, New York, Princeton, or anywhere else in this country, who holds and teaches what is thus affirmed to be beyond dispute? Is there a solitary missionary of the American Board, who has studied the subject in Bible lands, who does this? If the statement really was as reckless as it seems to us to be, we must protest against it. The task of persuading men to total abstinence is difficult enough, without its being increased before the minds of intelligent and sensible persons by such actual (however well meant) misstatements of facts.

It seems more than "incredible" that the Congregationalist should make such a comment as the above. Mr. Cook gives his authority for his statement, which is unquestioned and cannot be overthrown. Besides these there are Professor Taylor Lewis; Drs. Moses Stuart, Eliphalet Nott, Jacobus, Samson, Patton, Duffield, Adam, Clarke, Dawson, Burns, Albert Barnes, Owen, and hundreds of others, very many of them in the first rank of scholarship, who have amply proved the existence of non-intoxicating wine, and the Congregationalist is guilty of "misstatement of facts" when it sends forth such paragraphs as the above. If the editor would give a dispassionate and careful examination to the whole subject, earnestly desiring the truth in the matter, we should feel confident of a different class of verbs as well as "adjectives" hereafter in his writings.—N. T, Advocate.

The Congl, denomination has been with good reason counted as friendly to temperance. It has all long contribnted and does to-day its quota of earnest, able, active helpers and workers. Its conferences have time and again given expression to advanced temperance declarations and its churches have frequently and numerously pronounced in favor proper communion wine in place of the cup of pollution still so often adhered to.

Their national organ above referred to probably has ability and excellence of a high order in some directions, but if one may be permitted to judge of it by its persistent warfare against every phase of consistent and rational temperance, as appears in the extracts quoted from it almost weekly, it seems that the management of the paper has fallen into unlucky hands for the advancement of temperance and christianity, and still some of its defenders tell us it is as much a temperance paper as the Rescue is.

Sometimes a minister of some religious body discovers that the doctrines of his church are fundamentally wrong, and preaches to that effect; but altho he professes to be as much of a bible Christian as any of his fellows, they invariably boot him out. They dont want any converts made to a confessedly anti-bible and anti-Christian Church. And the temperance people must be excused if they emphatically disclaim any kindred, fellowship, tolerance, or friendship with any parties who pronounce temperance unscriptural, unchristlike, unchristian—and if they declare war against the heresies of the "moderate" use of wine or gin being consistent either with friendship to temperance or with christian profession.

The Congregationalist professes at times to commend total abstinence, but it persistently and fiercely assails every consistent argument in its favor and every consistent method of its advancement.

It grants the propriety of total abstinence solely on condition of the admission that Christ and his disciples were utterly opposed to it in practice and principle: that the Savior took especial pains to make partial intoxication in his honor and memory a sacred duty on the part of his followers. That in the institution of the supper the Savior was so pointedly desirous of perpetuating the honored use of intoxicating polluted putrid wine, that he openly violated not only the most urgent and oft repeated injunctions of the Mosaic law, but also the decent observances of Jewish society and the principles of ordinary morality—in using a thing so strictly forbidden as the cup of rotten leaven or ferment, during the Passover week, so denounced thruout the Bible and so indecent and immoral to use at any time.

The only christian argument permitted us by the paper with the long name, is that we may urge people to be a little more moral and holy than Christ was and so much better than he commanded or deemed at all necessary, and on this ground it commends total abstinence. It is said a miner in Colorado lately sold a mine for $10,000 provided it turned out as well at 10ft down as it looked at the surface. He put in a blast of giant powder to develop it, but after the explosion, all the experts and assessors and prospectors in the county were insufficient to find a trace of that mine. And that is just what will be the result of the new program so kindly planned for us; whenever it is clearly made out that Christ was a lawbreaker, a winebibber and set a bad example for respectable people to follow, the Christian religion will be where that mine went to. And if it had had no more consistent expounders and exemplars than the modern Crosbyites, it would have gone there long ago.

On the question of the wine of the communion, the intelligent and consciencious scholars who have impartially and faithfully examined both the evidences and probabilities, are said to be entirely unanimous and have not left a single doubt or difficulty to encounter or a single discrepancy or inconsistency to reconcile. Beerguzzlers, winebibbers and punch loving theologians, tho they understand Greek and Hebrew, have looked upon this question with utter contempt, and have derided the idea that anything ever translated wine, or the blood of the grape, or the fruit of the vine, could have been unintoxicating. And a number of other professors of religion who never drink, but who have a good deal of the old leaven of antitemperance bigotry clinging to them, have chosen to pin their faith in this matter to the coat tails of the old fogy wine lovers, giving no personal study, not a moment's, to the subject and utterly ignoring all the authority of the sober respectable, honest, trustworthy scholarship who have thoroly established the facts.

That topers should so elect to interpret the Bible to justify their habits, is consistent with the word which says "wine is a mocker," and "priest and prophet are turned aside" &c. but why sober men should assent to a wicked and obvious perversion of scripture, which libels, degrades and blasphemes the Savior, is an emigma: unless we happen to hunt up the word, bigotry.

It is noteworthy that the Joseph Cook side of this question have given to the world the most explicit proofs of their position and have left nothing at all in doubt. On the other side, the champions of the doctrine of the immorality of the Savior, have never dared to attempt to prove their position by any facts adduced, any argument or any probabilities—all they have done is to say that some first rate scholars, who are nameless dont believe our conclusions. Henry Ward Beecher asserted his belief of course of the doctrine, that would receive the greatest applause, but his only proof attempted was the unmanly and dishonest fling that "some third rate scholars believed" in the unfermented wine theory.

And there is not an advocate of the use of the cup of pollution on sacramental occasions that dares to come forward to defend his position by any honest manly argument; the best of them can only say, I believe or I dont believe so and so; the worst of them adopt the old tactics of the rumseller—accusing eminently gifted men of ignorance and as the Congregationalist has done, backbiting, slandering and accusing of wilful falsehood, the eminent scholar, gentleman, philosopher and christian, Joseph Cook and scores of other eminent, excellent and learned christians.

JUVENILE WORK.

The more faithful and actively the training of the young in the principles of temperance is followed up, the more eminently satisfactory the results. Temperance organizations have been for 50 years past neglecting more or less the education of the young and waiting to combat a mature sentiment trained in a hostile camp, or at best trained with an utter indifference to the most important question of their lives.

We have all hoped that the war could be concluded before the children grew up, but if such will now at last be the case, we shall more than ever need the pupils of the present juvenile temples to preserve and maintain the fruits of the victories gained. And if we do not succeed till they grow up and neglect their education now, we shall find them as the neutrals are now, on the enemy's side in every actual issue of a vote for or against temperance.

There is a sacred duty to be performed to preach the gospel of temperance to the young, as well as to the older folks, and to guard both from the temptation of drink: and we should never forget that the active temperance workers are the only source from which the children can derive any warnings against the thousands of snares which are to beset them thru life.

The secular and religious teachers who are not openly and actively pronounced on the side of temperance, are invariably hostile to it and if we fail to direct the young aright, they are very sure to grow up with a bias against or a contempt for the principles and advocates of temperance, which may be fatal to their welfare here and hereafter.

We have every reason to urge us to activity in this matter, the saving of the children from the ever present snares that are waiting for their feet, the securing of their aid in the general warfare against the kingdom of Satan, and in addition the perhaps selfish motive of building ourselves and our lodges and our cause up right now. If we are going to neglect any class, better let it be the older folks: for if we educate the children they will educate their elders sure in what they learn: if we secure the children they will secure the old folks: if we gain them over they will gain over their parents.

Now there is no reason why every Lodge in the State should not have its juvenile society, but there are fifty reasons why it should. Educating the children will educate the lodge and the community by the shortest possible way and the cheapest and most effective manner.

We shall never hear of a Lodge surrendering that does its duty by a Band of Hope. The Grand Lodge has provided every facility gratis and there is no excuse for delay or failure.

cHEAP jOHN

The Rescue has a persistent quarrel with the whole dominion and empire of rum: and particularly with one of its most successful lieutenant generals, perhaps the most damaging that ever undermined our works, general cheap john. Nasby said he found he could do more good to the confederacy by going north and hindering enlistments, than he could by fighting in the southern army. So cheap john in our Good Templar Lodges and R. W. G. Lodges has been able to do the cause of temperance a thousand times more destructive damage than al the powers of rum and satan could have done in the open field of honest fight.

It was no disgrace to Job, it is no dishonor to his memory, that the devil considered him worth going after to tempt. To account for the acts of bad men in the past or present we may dispense with a belief in the existence of a tempting devil or devils. But it is impossible to account for the acts of thousands of really well-meaning, honest, worthy men without drawing the shadowy outline of a tempting cunning spirit of evil at their elbow. If there are such agencies, there is every reason to believe that they are particularly active nowadays about good men of large influence: since the inquisition and open violence are no longer permitted. It would therefore be a poor compliment to a leader in christian or temperance work to suppose the devil dont think him worth tempting, and may not often be at least partially successful with him.

Therefore it is not disrespectful to suggest that the great tempter has been an active counsellor and participant in the Good Templar organizations. More than any other agency that has arisen against him for a century at least, the temperance reform menaced his supremacy on earth. Destroy the I. O. G. T. and his lease had a long renewal. His place therefore to hurt us was to be a deceiving spirit in our midst and he was initiated as a member of the order and went into and possessed the cheap john legion in it.

There is no denying the fact that the order properly generaled above and below, well drilled and disciplined, united and loyal and devoted and with a consistent financial basis and revenue system, was a power capable of enlisting all good men and women in its interests and accomplishing the emancipation of our country and the world. And it is an equally obvious fact, for we see that fact standing out with the utmost distinctness, that the order in every state where cheap john has controlled the financial legislation, the order in its present condition is a most complete and utter and comprehensive failure and fizzle, as a power to cope with the liquor traffic or to secure prohibition while the world lasts—not only that, but it has become one the most imbecile and insignificant factors in any such enterprise.

In place of putting itself on a proper financial basis, almost the first act of every temperance society has been to pauperize itself and our order has in general been no exception to the easy conquest of cheap john. In place of securing a vigorous growth and absorbing all similar societies and planting its own standard everywhere and being the one great temperance power and a hand in hand partner and protector and helper of the W. C. T. U., it has looked on unconcernedly and seen itself supplanted with a score of different kinds of ephemeral and independent and incompetent local cheap john societies. Anything was better than the Good Templars in a thousand places and cheap john has been in his glory everywhere.

If the Rescue desired the utter extinction of the order it would keep profoundly quiet about these things. Those who are helping to extinguish the order and turn it out to die, a picked and disemboweled bird, will perhaps assail the motives of this discussion. Let them do it. Better have a good deal of howling than let the order rot out. And if it is going to be killed the sooner the better and let some competent and consistent body replace the 5 and 10 cent Good Templary.

Looking over the list of 77 Grand Lodges we find loss, loss, loss everywhere except in Cal. Ill. Iowa Mich. and N. Y. In these there have been some increase in numbers and in several others there has been also an increase of five or ten members. This wretched slauter has been going on steadliy for ten years or more: only a very few states have shown any gains all this time, and our R. W. G. L. and Grand Lodges have met and had always a glorious and enthusiastic time, fighting down per capita tax, degrees, signs, regalia, wiping out every source of revenue and killing and drowning every proposition made by any revolutionary spirit to rehabilitate the decaying order, to reform abuses, to create revenues, to add anything to the enterprises of the order, to issue temperance literature among the Germans or among anybody else, to create a mutual aid, juvenile progress, or a temperance press, or in fact to do anything for the good of the cause.

The R. W. G. L. about 12 years ago did one very brilliantly progressive, enterprising and generous act. It expended $200, in sending our departed Bro. Roberts of Pa. to establish Good Templarism in Great Britain, and about six years ago it sent a squad of missionaries there at an expense of $8000 or more to fight the Good Templarism that Bro. Roberts had planted.

There is something suggestive in the contrast between the poor, laborious struggling mission of $200 and its modest missionary landing in England to found Good Templary, and the plenipotentiary embassy of many thousand dollars to fight Good Templary. But it is a fair type of the past recorded acts of the R. W. G. L. They have met year after year pell-mell without any program or policy: have expended many thousands a year to abolish degrees, alter signs, tinker the ritual, pick the order to pieces, lower its dignity, pauperize it: and it has not spent a dollar or an hour in anything calculated to strengthen the order and promote our cause.

And all this mischief has been wrot by men and some few women, not one of whom meditated mischief: not one actuated by evil motives: not one of them who was not a worthy and well-meaning, sincere and ardent well-wisher and worker in the temperance vineyard——but most of them under the infatuation of the evil spirit cheap john and the subtle whisperings of the great tempter, believing themselves under full sail toward a good time coming to be ushered in on the cost nothing principle.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

From many quarters come reports of a successfu outcome of the movement made to enforce the Sunday law. It is an effort which will receive the good wishes and good help of every good honest square citizen and it will be objected to, hated and cursed by men who love nastiness and wickedness—by those who are smitten with moral leprosy like the Amador Sentinel, and it wili receive little sympathy and much discouragement from moral cowards of every stripe.

There is then every reason to move onward; it seems very bad policy to wait for the action of the Supreme court; there is no reason to fear an adverse decision there; but if there should be, the more that can be done in the meantime to show the direction of public opinion as to the perversion and debauchery of our day of rest, the better; and the more agitation effected the more will be the beneficial results.

And this is not a matter that affects California alone. If we succeed here it will no doubt be the beginning of a reform that will sweep over the whole country. And it behoves the Good Templars of California to be active and energetic in an enterprise which has in prospect such a vast benefit and blessing as the restoration of our American Rest Day overso large an area.

MRS. STEVENS.

At Valley Lodge had a good meeting: 13 applicants for membership. Col. Babcock was present and assisted; a profitable meeting, Bro. Joseph, D. D. presiding. This lodge is prosperous as regards numbers, having over 80 members. At Constitution Lodge open meeting, a happy program was successfully carried thru. Mrs. S. made the opening attack, a choice and interesting paper by Mrs. Hart followed, "a day in a temperance coffee room," and a speech by Mr. Barnes, Grand Master of the A O U W who paid a high tribute to the work now being done by the Good Templars of this state.

On Monday evening of this week lectured at Alameda and secured 19 names for a lodge which on Tuesday evening after a very interesting and spirited meeting was organized with 30 members, Rev. Geo Morris, L. D. The lodge sets out under good auspices and with good material and a promise of good success. During the term of Mr. Naismith as Dist. Dep., five new lodges have been organized in Alameda Co.

Delinquent Lodges.—Turning to the report of the G. W. S. in this number, it will be observed that 43 lodges have become lately so dead that they make no returns for the quarter ending July 31st, and make no reply to the repeated notices of the G. W. S., asking for explanation. Two of these 43 have lately given signs of life; one subscribed a few days ago for two copies of the Rescue for 6 months; a member of the other has within two weeks sent in 27 subscribers, all but three or four for a year. These two lodges evidently are not dead, but it is significant that except what has been done by these two in this month of Sept., not one of the whole 43 lodges has been a subscriber to the Rescue, nor has a single member of their communities been a subscriber. Whether any of them have made any use of the L. D. copy sent them is of course known only to themselves. It is an unfortunate condition to make public, the demise or utter apathy of so many lodges in one quarter, but we shall never suffer from telling all the truth every time.

Faith, hope and charity are sometimes exemplified quite liberally outside of temperance and Christian Orders. A stray copy of a Spanish paper of 1880 published in this city has a long list of festive delinquents who have been subscribers for terms running from two to five or six years, and have never paid a cent. Their indebtedness foots up from 5 or 6 to $50 in cases where some commisisons have been kindly attended to by the publisher. Perhaps they are keeping their money so as to rush it all in at once on him, and make him a sudden millionaire. But his faith and patience for all these years is to be reverenced. He has a larger assortment of faith, hope and charity than the Rescue, and is especially richer in hope.

The income of the Rescue does not justify the constant employment of a printer making alterations in the lodge directories. A thoro alteration has just been made and as there will be another complete change after G. L. session, things will have to stand as they are till then.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD POISONED.

The wound of the sick man would doubtless have been fatal, were it not for his remarkably healthy and vigorous physique. His survival of the effect of the wound was a wonder, but his continued survival of the effects of a persistent course of the most iniquitous quackery is simply miraculous.

It is said the Chinese use certain classes of beetle's wings and the toenails of children of a certain age, reduced to powder, and similar nonsense, as powerful remedies for some disorders. Every body is allowed to pass judgment of ridicule upon such superstitions, but they are not a whit more absurd than some things in the medical treatment of the President.

Those who dare to criticise the acts of medical men are at once conveniently shoo-shood as ignorant. No outsider presumes or desires to question the surgical skill of the president's physicians, but any common intelligence can perceive that in their medical treatment they have all along been guilty of the wild absurdity, as a Health Journal of Pennsylvania expresses it, of striving to keep up the patient's strength by means that exhaust it, of allaying irritation by means which excite it, of reducing inflamation by means which produce it, of preventing fever by means which increase it, of saving life by means which destroy it.

And all this has been done in spite of the emphatic protest of enlightened science, in obedience to the exploded theories and heathenish quackeries of a class of unreasoning conservatives who refuse to listen to any thing which conflicts with their fossilized and barbarous superstitions.

The doctrine of infallibility must be preserved; the books they learned from, the men they studied under, and the system they embraced, are all infallible. And it is true they have been infallible death to an army of their patients, who have died and are dying to-day from alcoholic and opiatic quackery.

Any person of moderate intelligence who is not a doctor devotee of the whisky delusion, can see very clearly that a man in good health without any wound, if subjected for two months to the abominable tinkering and poisoning that have been practiced upon the president, would now be in more critical danger than Dr. Tanner was at the conclusion of his forty days' fast. His stomach, weak and delicate for such a strong man, and subject to derangement when in ordinary health, needing wholesome, nourishing, simple food, has been fouled, tortured, inflamed, weakened, and its digestive powers destroyed by swinish and filthy and poisonous and revolting doses of nasty rum and brandy and wine, and every dose was laden with death. To cap the climax of idiotic fetishism, the Russian drink koomis, rotted, putrid milk, despoiled of all its nourishing qualities and converted into unwholesome, innutritious, repulsive and abominable swill, its only property that renders it different from the refuse of a swill barrel, being the alcohol poison which it contains.

Ordinary intelligence can understand that a medicine that quickens the action of the heart without giving it an atom of strength or power, when that heart has been making 100 to 130 beats a minute, if continued for two months must be fatal to life, except the miraculous power of God interpose.

The idea that alcohol keeps up or imparts any strength or sustains or nourishes the human system in the least degree is too monstrous a folly to waste time in refuting.

And those hypodermic injections of morphia and uses of whisky otherwise, opium and whisky, koumis and morphia, koumis and whisky in an unceasing round, are enough to make us blush as a nation that such a barbarity dares to publish itself. No one can doubt the honesty of the President's physicians; they believe thoroly in the rectitude of their practice; their reputation is at stake and they are doubtless as anxious to bring about the recovery of their patient as any one can be. But God help any poor wretch who is so unfortunate as to be slowly butchered by them in place of being more mercifully left out in the field to die in peace, or better, left with any respectable nurse woman to take care of and feed and cure.

It is safe to presume that there is not a single regular doctor who is a total abstainer of a few years, who approves the alcohol and opium dosing of the President; and probably every one who drinks even beer heartily endorses it. The fact is, no doctor who understands beer and alcohol and their effects, would ever use it internally on himself or others. Pardon is craved for presuming to doubt (having no diploma) the necessarily beneficial healing qualities of a swill beverage invented by the Tartars, and used by them not as food, but solely to get drunk on. Send for Li Po Tai; he will have the patient out in a week, and well.

In too much of a hurry, is that man who writes his own or any other person's name so indistinctly that every one who has to read it has to waste five or ten minutes precious time puzzling over it to make it out. So are those who write a five minute article for a paper and the editor has to spend half an hour deciphering it and writing in half the words lest the printer should be driven to suicide or profanity over it.

THE BREWERY AND BEER SHOPS.

The brewer's wagon discharges regularly on stated days a barrel of its poisoned swill, at the gate of many a respectable Christian household in California. And church members and good worthy benevolent people of pure intentions and excellent qualities of character are drinking this infernal poison, under the mistaken impression that it is a wholesome and harmless and safe beverage. And there are numbers of just those same classes of people who have become hopeless drunkards on that beer, and many more, men, women and young folks who are already drunkards on that satanic poison, and do not know it.

Yes, members of Christian churches have been deceived and opiated and drugged and are drunkards on beer. And they dont know it. They have been deceived by satan's master stroke of politic strategy, to believe that beer is a pure and innocuous drink and not liable to lead to drunkenness. Whereas it is the most wickedly and most poisonously and fraudulently adulterated of all drinks. And it draws thousands upon thousands of men, women and children into the dragnet of pollution, who never would have learned to drink at all of strong liquors had they to take their first lessons in them.

About fifty years ago the Beer Act was passed in England to induce the English people to avoid strong drinks and be sober on beer. It opened beer houses everywhere to coax away the customers of the gin shop. That Beer Act was the most debauching, degrading, pauperizing, beggar and thief and drunkard making calamity that ever afflicted England. Gin drinking was increased and hundreds of thousands became drunkards on beer, that never would have learned to like gin or perhaps touch it.

Here we have followed the same course and have added to the crime and pauper factories already in existence, the winery and brewery, both institutions of peculiar capacity for nastiness and filthiness. But the brewery and the V. c. rat trap of rottenness and the beer wagon that visits respectable houses, are the most prolific and accursed agencies of lewdness and vileness and beggary and brazen naked crime, that ever cursed a community. The fiends of beer are the most insidious, poisonous and fatal of all the agencies of Satan, and they are so because of the disguise in which they attack their victims.

ANTI TEMPERANCE AT SANTA CRUZ.

The Sentinel giving notice of a meeting of rum-selling outlaws in Santa Cruz to oppose the Sunday law, makes a plea rather in favor of keeping Sunday as a day of special debauchery as it is now: and suggests that the enforcement of the Sunday law will give Santa Cruz a "black eye" as a pleasure resort on Sunday. As the only benefit to be derived to Santa Cruz as a Sunday excursion resort is a little coin in the tills of the criminal pursuits, one would suppose a sensible journal would discourage it.

It reminds one of an attempt made by the police of Sacramento 8 or 9 years ago to shut up the gambling houses during fair week: they closed them all one evening and made many arrests. Next morning the human bloodhounds who sell poison drinks petitioned the city authorities to suspend that law, giving as an all sufficient reason that, "if it were not suspended the 300 gamblers who had come to Sacramento to ply their trade during the fair would immediately leave the city." And the argument was sufficient, proceedings were quashed, the ordinance was suspended, to give 300 thieves a weeks opportunity to rob and plunder the visitors at the State fair, and to help 300 bloodhounds to sell whisky to aid in the robbery. A counter petition from 300 honest citizens was spit upon. Virtuous officials ! ! ! California morality ! ! !

Wine Cases. Sometime ago a wine advocate in the Chronicle advocated the importation of French immigrants for California, on account of their superior capacity for guzzling wine. It was argued that as the French people drink on an average 34 gallons of wine in their own country, their presence here to pour our wine into, would be a great blessing to the State. It is suggested that we have 20.000 to 50.000 Irishmen, Germans, Portuguese and Indians who could get away with 365 gallons of wine a year and still the wine business dont enrich any thing in that direction. It might be an enriching process to afford a free passage to California for all the tramps and vagrants in the other States. They could take care of all our wine and brandy too. The State could be made to foot all the bills too.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

1 Catechism on Alcohol, 05.
1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, 25.
1 Ripples of Song, 15.
1 Mannal Set (Illustrated Tracts), 08.

All sent for 50 cents.

When you have studied these, prepared the way and fixed upon the time for opening the school and decided how many scholars you will probably have, send for catechisms enough to supply one to each scholar, to whom they may be either given or sold, price per hundred, more or less, $5.00
Ripples of Song, per dozen, 1.60
For any number less than one dezen, each 15 cts.

The above are essential while the following are extremely desirable.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE.

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.—A Prize Essay: Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL. By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public.

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors. Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo. 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS. By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo. 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL. By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL AND HYGIENE.—By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞ To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

Lecturers' Reports.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

W. C. KING.

JOTTINGS.

A few evenings since arrangement made to get to our evening work was likely to fail, so we sought the aid of an obliging young brother to carry us thither with all possible speed' In a few minutes he was at the gate with one of those peculiar Cal. vehicles known as a Buckboard which by the way proved far more comfortable than many a more pretentious carriage. At once we were dashing thru the dust at a furious rate and hence took closer notice of the horse our brother was driving. The horses most desirable for a long journey are not those which pace off the first mile or few miles with greatest speed. These if not balky are apt to lack what horsemen call bottom. This same rule holds good among men. Some seem to succeed only in raising a great dust and doing little traveling in this world. A new craze is started—they catch at it. Their enthusiasm rises to fever heat in a few hours. They ridicule all the slow going "fogies" who are plodding quietly along—at once tear away raising a cloud of dust so dense as to hide all the old veterans. Judging from appearances we would conclude that the world is to be overturned in the next 24 hours. But in that time the cloud has vanished into air carrying the enthusiasm of our would be reformers with it, and they are becalmed waiting for a fresh breeze. But to return. We had not proceeded far until our horse was inclined to be balky; before getting out of the village there was a decided disposition either to turn toward home or else come to a standstill.

To escape either result our driver held firmly to the nigh line. Matters soon assumed a serious aspect when a happy thought occurred to him; he eased up on the nigh right line and tightened the off one and thus we went sailing around and were on the back track.

I was at loss to know just how this was to bring me to my appt in time but waited patiently for the end. It soon came, for I noticed my brother was gradually tightening the off line and, as the track was broad was bringing our horse around to the right course again and so we were in a few minutes facing from home and the foolish brute was hastening on indulging the delusion that he was going to a stall and feed, and we reached our destination in good time.

That was a fine little stroke of policy on the part of our young friend and if he will ever be as shrewd in managing men and turning their whims to account as he is in handling horses, his success is assured.

So many people have whims and worst of all hug them so closely that the only way we can get along, is to humor them or find ourselves balked. Many lodges would be vastly improved in efficiency if the leaders would cultivate charity and use more tact and good humor in handling members and turning their whims to account.

How often have we felt, while listening to a profitless discussion over a technicality, like twitching the brothers coattail and whispering "ease up on the nigh line my brother."

A leader who studies human nature, remembers that we must take people as we find them—foibles and all, and who is filled with a love for the cause, and strives to make all these serve the "great end," is an invaluable requisite to every lodge.

We knew a prosperous business man east who in some manner, worked a motto into his every advertisment embodying this sentiment, "We have an eye to the main chance." Thus all thru life by watching the main chance he has gone on accumulating until now he is immensely wealthy.

If in our work we would attain like success, we must ever keep our eye on the main end—viz—the advancement of our cause, If others will insist on holding more closely to their piques and foibles, to the hiding of this, why then we must ease up on the nigh line—let them hug their delusion—tighten up on the off one and thus bring them around facing front again. The main chance to aid our fellowmen must be our over-weening desire; let us ever bear this in mind.

F. J. CULVER

OAKLAND, Cal. Sept. 9, 1881.

We hope whoever gets our last and lost report, mailed at Cloverdale on our return, will enjoy it. We have waited for its appearance before making our bow to the Exeeutive Committee. Our last that appeared in the RESCUE left us at Table Bluff, Humboldt Co. Here we lectured on Friday night, the 20th of July in the school house.

The teacher would not give way for the lecture, because he did not look to the churches or temperance people for his supper, but to the saloons. This remark caused me to ask the Christian parents and others whom they were permitting to educate their children—themselves or the saloons. They answered who would do so in the future by giving us twenty-six names for a Good Templar charter. Owing to the lateness of the hour we did not organize, but agreed to come again.

Saturday visited Rohnerville Lodge; conferred the degrees and instructed them in the unwritten work; a pleasant meeting. Sunday evening lectured to a full and very attentive audience. At this place resides Bro. A. M. Gill, Dist Sec., of Northern Dist Lodge—an earnest and true templar.

Monday evening drove to Port Kenyon. Stopped at Ferndale to see the L. D. of Port Kenyon Lodge, Judge Ferrell. He had been confined to the house by sickness for nearly two weeks, but went with us to the Port. Here we lectured in the hall of the lodge to a fair audience. Met with the lodge at the close of the meeting and exemplified the unwritten work. The Judge thot the ride to Petrolia would be good for him, and his company we were glad to have during a bleak ride of forty niles down the coast; at Petrolia all things were in readiness. Bro. Simpson and his co-workers are wide awake. Had a good house. The G. Ts. have the lines directly drawn. The good templar has no business loafing at the saloon.

Wednesday drove to Upper Maftole, 15 miles. Here we met some earnest Christian people who were willing to go into a good templar lodge and give their aid to the cause as well as to teach the rising generation to shun the cup of woe. No saloon nearer than Petrolia; fifteen G. Ts. from Petrolia Lodge came in near the close of our lecture and assisted in the organization which was completed with seventeen charter members.

Thursday returned to Petrolia and lectured at the camp ground, thus opening a religious camp meeting under the auspices of the U. P. church by giving them an address upon the Sunday law. It was well received; the audience large.

Friday returned to Ferndale over that coast road. At this place the churches were virtually closed against us. The Christian people will have to be given a few more shocks by attempts at murder before their eyes will open to the enormity of crime committed thru Satan's agent, Rum, as well as realize who are schooling their boys in crime. May they see.

H. R. HUGHES.

ANGELS CAMP, Sept. 4, 1881.

Have visited the lodges at Milton, Salt Spring Valley, Copperopolis and Telegraph city,' Being farming communities the attendance is small during the summer months. Hope Lodge has never missed a meeting; Faith and Charity lodges are gaining in attendance. Milton is in a state of suspended animation, but a little later in the season will be revived. They have passed thru their first season of depression, had to suspend some and expel others, but have retained the true spirits who have enlisted for life, and intend to make their lodges not only prosperous but permanent.

Have attended two meetings of my home lodge, Bear Mountain. It is a year old, has increased from 17 to 50 and is doing a good work; 9 copies of the RESCUE are taken. It has a Band of Hope under its fostering care.

Last evening visited Murphys Lodge which I organized one year ago with 40 charter members; they now number even 100, have bought a lot to build a hall, and a series of entertainments have accumulated quite a hall fund.

They have also a Band of Hope, a nursery to their lodge. They take a few copies of the RESCUE, but so far have manifested but little interest in our paper.

Their L. D. Bro. A. J. Cooke has been recommended for for District Deputy and the next session of Calaveras D. L. meets with them.

We have four lodges in ElDorado Co. On account of the sickness of my sister, the constant companion of my travels, I had to change my program. Will not be able to go to Mariposa or Upper Merced but spend this week in Tuolumne and attend D. L. the 10th at Columbia.

J. W. WEBB.

Before leaving San Luis Obispo Co became better acquainted with Bros. Oakes, Sheriff, Standifer, editor Tribune. C H Wood, principal of public schools and W. C. T. son of John Wood, the staunch prohibitionist, Prof Merredith and others of the lodge. Bros. Rev. Kirkland, M. E. church and Rev. H H Dobbins, Presbyterian, are active members and Sr. Dobbins presided at the organ on Monday night.

There is a desire for more lectures, especially Sr. Stevens if it be possible. This place and the wonderful interest created is too important to be neglected. Have suggested the propriety of part of this large lodge "swarming off" and keeping house for itself, merely for convenience, as no hall in town can accommodate all at once, and it must be difficult to keep the run of all the members. Then they are having additions to their numbers.

Bro. Wood promised to try and get the lodge to take a number of Rescues for free distribution, and get W. V. T. and others to canvass for subscribers. I left some copies for that purpose with him. Schools being closed on account of scarlet fever, I had no opportunity to address the children or organize a Band of Hope; quite possible, as teachers would co-operate.

CAYUCOS.

What Granger, Son of Temperance or Good Templar does not know Capt. J D Fowler, formerly of Hollister? wide awake and true as steel, he was on the look out for the lecturer and devoted five days with his own team to taking me from place to place, never failing to speak in public and private wherever he could do good.

Met with the lodge for instruction and initiated his eldest daughter. The lodge is not large, and has labored under many disadvantages, the main one being the want of a hall For two lectures I was indebted to the generous offer of a hall by Mr. Stone, hotel and saloon keeper. The proprietor of the other also offered his as they both do for any public occasion. With such noble, conscientious workers as Bro. Fowler, D C McMillan and wife, Bro Evans Teacher, Bro. Raines and wife and several others, we may consider the colors nailed to the mast and the watchword "no surrender."

Gave Bro. Evans' bright scholars two temperance talks, and can organize a Band of Hope when I go again. The stores are conducted by gentlemanly firms who regard the law and public sentiment and voluntarily close on Sunday. This is a good grain, flax and dairy region, has a good wharf where S. F. weekly steamers call, and is becoming a place of importance.

Cambria is the next place; fine dairy country; people well to do: live and influential lodge. Bro. Kaetzel, W C T, an able and popular gentleman. Rev. Bro. Fairbairn, Presbyterian, Bro. Dark, most successful teacher and ex supt. and numbers of his older scholars are good members. Bro. Sherman and Bingham and Bro. Dr. McCurdy, who neither uses nor prescribes intoxicants must not be forgotten. We had splendid meetings full of life and enthusiasm; obtained over a dozen subscribers for the RESCUE, others at Cayucos; get some at almost every place. Bro. Fowler and I addressed the nearly 70 scholars that Bro. Dark unassisted teaches and controls admirably; and then I organized a good Band of Hope, Sister Franklin Supt. Here the lodge has moved in the Sunday closing and the stores have voluntarily complied with the request, and if the saloon keepers wont, the law and Grand jury will be invoked. Cambria has a fine brass band. As we left after very hospitable treatment the cry was, when shall we have more lectures. Am now busy in Los Angeles county.

Fermented wine, even in the communion cup, has undergone exactly the same vile process which the most offensively smelling dead dog or cat or rotten fish has been subjected to. A sweet thing to put on any table. Emblem of purity.

There are two kinds of fools in this world; those who cant change their opinions and those who wont.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

TEHAMA Dist. Lodge met on Sept. 2nd. Pride of the Sierras, Hercules, Paskenta, and R. B. Band of Hope were represented. Bro. J. R. Whitlock gave good account of Paskenta. Bro. Rev. H. Smith of Hercules and Mrs. Doty Vice President of the Band gave cheering accounts of their progress. The D. L. donated $7.70 to the Band of Hope. A good time was enjoyed, a good interest was enkindled in the work: vote of appreciative thanks to the retiring D. D. Bro. A. Ryan; G. W. Jeffress recommended D. D. for next year: and next meeting to be in Henleyville Dec 2nd. Aggressive work is determined on for the future.

IT is singular that it is a matter of most shadowy dout where port wine comes from, but there is no dout whatever as to where it goes to.

THE APACHES. It is an appalling thing to hear that a few Indians maddened by white men's whisky and exasperated by white mens outrages, break out once a year and kill two or three or a dozen white people. But it dont shock people at all to read in every morning's paper that about as many murders are committed by the saloon keepers and beer sellers right in San Francisco, every week as are committed over the whole continent by Indians every year. And without any compensating result whatever except the temptation to get $15 a quarter from the murderers for a licence to kill.

MR. Lauer, a European gentleman, chairman of the Brewers Agitation committee says thus of the respectable portion of the American people: it would be good news to have the fulfilment of this threat begin to-morrow.

"It is high time to show these scoundrels and robbers, that we will not quietly submit and become the slaves of their whims. When they seek to rob us of our property, it becomes the duty of self preservation, to defend our rights and our property, by force or arms if need be."

The property of the German Brewers are the lives and souls and the sons and the daughters of American people; to boil up for their money fat as they do sheep in Australia.

THE CALIFORNIA PATRON, organ of the Grangers yields to the temptation to be also organ of the whisky and wine business. It advertizes all the roll of whisky poisons and thus gives the business all the character it can of respectability. It is the medium of some correspondence on the wine making question; clippings have been sent of some communications from Mrs. W. D. Ashley of Stockton who undertakes to decide that wine making is a commendable business because Solomon "the wisest of men" had a good paying vineyard for which he charged a rent of 83 per cent of the crop, but she omits to add that having 300 wives and 700 lefthanded wives is a most commendable program for California because Solomon the wisest of men found it a pleasant experience.

There is no controversy to be had with the worthy lady correspondent of the Patron. She is perfectly innocent of any intention of wrong: her first sentence proves her perfect innocence of the subject she takes hold of. "The wine Mr. Wetmore recommended was claret, or the light dry wines, well fermented and free from alcohol—not port, champagne or heavy wine." That is enough: "well fermented and free from alcohol." Any one who supposes that fermentation frees from alcohol is excusable in any flight of fancy and is unanswerable.

SLOVENS.—One of the most trying and unnecessary nuisances to which the editor of this paper is subjected is to pore and puzzle for an hour over the infernal hieroglifics of some communications and utterly waste much more than the time necessary to compose and write such a document, in trying to make it possible for a printer to tackle it without blasphemy. Some friends write as carefully and plainly as print and their manuscripts bear a cheerful, welcome, friendly appearance; others that come from writers good, honest and worthy in all other respects look like the marred, scarred, wicked, wrinkled, ragged, malicious countenance of a hardened criminal. If the writers could see the pang of distress which passes over the face when their letters are opened, and which receives an additional aggravated contortion as word after word and line after line is slowly and laboriously interpreted and has to be rewritten—then hear the foreman printer's criticism and listen to the pronounced swear of the compositor (if not a woman) whose unlucky star, in the ascendant on that day, has doomed him to the misfortune of wrestling with that hideo-script——they would perhaps practice a little "courtesy" in their writing. These remarks do not point in the least to those who cannot write or spell well; they always do the best they can, and no one would complain of that; but to those rapid writers who never reflect that it is discourteous to put their friends to the expense of a half hours worrying labor that might be saved by a ten seconds care on their part. The new style of putting the dot of an i over the e or o in the following word and putting the mark which should cross a t about four inches to the right of that t over an l or h or p is, to say the least, silly and absurd, as well as a source of exceeding annoyance to busy people who have to puzzle over lazy people's errors. Some day a document of this type will be printed as a specimen, just as the words look to a compositor.

Here both parties haul off to repair spars and ropes and armor plating shot away; meantime thousands of charmed spectators are turned from the error of their ways and converted to the principles of Faith, Hope and Charity, so ably exemplified by the two champions. Perhaps. And the grogshop smiles and complacently pursues the peaceful tenor of its unruffled way.

WHEN an individual of good intentions and good morals, or even a worker in the religious vineyard, is either neutral in temperance work or opposed to it, as some evidently well meaning people are—on the ground of their conscientious objection to secret societies, it is fair to suppose that the devil has set a trap for them and caut them with a remarkably inexpensive bait:

No doubt every good man is subject to temptation and liable to be trapped in some direction. When a good stout trap carefully concealed and artistically baited, brings up a good citizen or a good Christian now and then, he deserves our largest sympathy and tolerating forgiving help, and we should remember our turn may come for forbearance and forgiveness.

But when the devil takes an old, second-hand, wornout mousetrap, and baits it wide open with the leg of a dead flea (like the anti-secret society scare applied to the Good Templars) and catches a Christian or a minister with it, we are apt to mingle with our pity something that dont exactly imply profound respect. But such things are happening.

Some very good people are violently opposed to a Good Templar lodge and assert various reasons therefor. But does one of the reasons they can present justify them in taking sides with the grogshop as they do? It must be a terribly distorted wry faced conscience which guides a sane man to take service with the sweet pair of twins, the grogshop and brothel.

NOR HOT NOR COLD,

Oh church of Laodiceans, great thy name!
Thou gloriest in thy wealth. And more, thy shame;
For blind thou art this day, as wast of old;
Lukewarm for good or ill—nor hot nor cold.

Thou trustest in thy ease, thy praise, thy pride,
Thy witness of the Lord—thou hast denied,
Betrayed and sold for empty stilt and gold
From hour of sin of thine—nor hot nor cold,

Decay thy lot, and wretchedness thy state,
Fain wouldst thou homage reap from live and dead;
Wouldst clothe thy nakedness with pretense bold.
But writ is on the wall "nor hot nor cold."

Thou fearest hate of men, and fleest frown
Sufficient in thyself, yet bowest down
A craven before ills which earth enfold,
Oh that thou wouldst be either hot or cold!

Nor hot nor cold! let Heaven spew thee out;
Creep upon earth, until thou turn'st about
And gloriest in reproach and love untold
Of Him thou mockest by "Nor hot nor cold,"

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

BY PROF. GEO. E. FOSTER.

"Watchman, what of the night?"

How often and how eagerly has this question been put. Humanity has again and again hung breathless upon the answer. Hope has stood still and joy been rooted in expectancy as the face of the watchman worked in deep thought. The woful paleness of Despair, or the broad smile of Happiness has spread, as the reply comes, ominous of ill or freighted with "good tidings of great joy."

The question was put by men of ancient times to the foremost scouts along the lines of liberty, when the midnight gloom of tyranny had long settled upon the nations. The watchers looked and were silent, but at last passed from lip to lip the joyful tidings of freedom's dawn. The sword of absolutism was broken in twain, the yoke of slavery was wrenched from human necks, and the long silent aspiration for an equal freedom swelled into an open pæan of victory which filled the earth.

"Watchman, what of the night?" was asked of the outpost along the march of religious freedom. Long he beheld the idols of superstition, the witchery of priestcraft, the burden of dogma, and the force of selfish interest; but his sharpened vision saw away in the distance the rising children of intelligence and research, and the gladly solemn answer came back from his lips, "The night endureth for a little, then cometh the day." Scarce had he spoken when the faint rays smote upon the faces of his questioners, harbingers of that full day in whose light we now live.

"Watchman, what of the night?" was asked by a million hearts in those long anxious days when American slavery put forth her power from the South. It was asked by the sons of the sturdy Puritans from Plymouth Rock, by the restless Westerner in his new free home, by the hiding, hunted fugitive whose face was set to the promised land far north, but whose ears heard behind him the yelp of the sleuth hound and the curse of the slave hunter. It was asked from trembling, indignant lips about a million firesides of the North, when the heart burned and the eye streamed over the sad, plaintive story of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. Long was the watchman silent, but at last he caught the brightening and shouted back the coming of the day, which Northern blood and the plain heroism of Lincoln made both glad and solemn.

"Watchman, what of the night?" has been asked even for these many years by thousands of eager, anxious ones as they have caught sight of the outposts in the temperance campaign;—mothers whose boys have been pierced by the arrows of the enemy; sisters whose brothers have been pressed into the hateful service; wives whose husbands have been led into captivity, men who have started out for the promised land of temperance, but who hear and see about them the crack of the slave driver's whip, and the temptation of the slaveholder's flesh pots. Out of tear-dimmed eyes and from the very depths of sorrow and anguish they breathe the question, "What of the night?" and as the watchman looked, they might have heard him thinking, "The night is dark, so dark." Custom has hallowed this dark curse and clad it in garments of blessing. Medicine has defied it and called upon it as chiefest God. Governments have fondled it and derived from it their gains. Greed has sworn to defend it, and lust and appetite have surrounded it with strong walls. The church has fed it at the altar and lent livery for its servants. The night is dark, so dark. I hear the dying wail of virtue as it sinks below the drunken tide of debauchery. I hear the sad moan of household Peace as it lies down in its coffin, and is thrown out by the rough hands of reveling Discord. I hear the sad, sad cry of children wandering aimlessly, seeking pitifully for the fathers and mothers slain. I listen to the dying curse of Saxon men and women, who by thousands hug their murderer till life goes out in utter despair. I see the wringing of hands, the silent, dumb beseeching, the voiceless prayer of a million loving ones who stand amid the shadows and look on their loved ones borne down this ceaseless river of ruin. The night is dark, so dark. But, see, there is a breaking! The radiant face of Father Matthew, the winsome voice of Gough, the lights of the Washingtonians, the banners of the crusade, the beacon fires of the reform clubs. It is lighting up. Maine sets up a banner of light, and upon its folds burns in purple flame, 'Drink selling a crime!"

"The Green Mountain boys, descendants of the heroes of Bennington, catch the gleam from the Pine Tree State, and unfold its synonym above the loveliest hills of New England. The white ballot papers fall from a million hands, and speak the downfall of the nation's curse. Civil damage is written on the statutes of a score of states. Kansas has run up a nobler flag than that of 1861, and on it stands inscribed, 'Prohibition forever.' Iowa and Indiana follow the open path and close quickly up in the march of their grand young sister. Out of the South, North Carolina raises a flag, but lately washed of slave stains, pure white from this second greater curse. Canada comes to the front with a Local Option law covering an area greater than any other country in the world, and a rigid prohibitory law for the countless acres of her north-west territory.

"Great Britain has closed the door on Sunday traffic in Scotland, Ireland and Wales, and has her hand already on the English Sabbath desecrator. Her grand old conservative House of Commons has demanded the right of the taxpayers to shut up the death dealing dramshops, and affirmed it in two successive sessions. Science has revised the decrees of more ignorant days, and pronounces alcohol always an intruder, in most cases an enemy, and everywhere to be jealously watched.

"Political economy dubs it, 'Waster-general,' social science calls it 'Destroyer,, the church curses it, and the moral conscience of the heart loathes it.

"Aye, the day is dawning, it breaks in promise over the not very distant hills; it casts its growing splendors into the upturned faces of the millions who have been looking long."

And the watchman turns and cries, "The night is passing forever away—the day comes on apace."

Sing it, ye patient, waiting ones who have marched thru the weary years; treasure it in your hearts, ye suffering, sorrowing ones,—"The night is passing forever away—the day comes on apace."

TOTAL ABSTINENCE IN RELATION TO HEALTH AND DISEASE.

BY J. JAMES RIDGE, M. D., B. S., ETC.

But alcohol has a chemical action also, and, however much a person may become accustomed to the action of alcohol on the nervous system, this chemical action never loses its effect. Alcohol acts chemically on the body always in direct proportion to its quantity, and, if the nervas are able to tolerate a good deal, so much the worse for the body. Very small quantities are able to affect living and growing cells, as I have shown by my experiments on the growth of cress. Alcohol has a hardening effect on all albuminous cells and tissues by which the changes which are natural to life are hindered. Thus there are minute bodies which float in the blood, and convey the oxygen from the lungs to every part of the body, and bring away the carbonic acid, and which are called blood-corpuscles; these are less able to preform their duties, and so the body is not purified as it ought to be. Hence the liability to gout, rheumatism, bilious attacks, headache, and other complaints. The long-continued action of alcohol deteriorates the tissues of the body; it produces fatty degeneration, not always large deposits of fat, but degeneration of the blood-vessels even when the frame is spare and thin. In this way it leads to apoplexy and paralysis, which are more frequent among those who drink alcoholic liquors. Alcohol has been well termed "the genius of degeneration."

If we knew nothing of the ways in which alcohol injures the body, we could, nevertheless, be certain of its injurious influence by the results of its use. Wherever a comparison can be fairly made between abstainers and non-abstainers, the former have the advantage both as to health and longevity. As one illustration, may be given the following comparison between abstaining and non-abstaining soldiers in nine regiments in India: 2,118 abstainers and 4,430 non-abstainers. The monthly average admissions into hospital were 93 per 1,000 drinkers of alcohol against 48 per 1,000 abstainers. Of the non-abstainers 8,7 per 1,000 were invalided to the hills, and 5.27 per 1,000 to England, against 3.9 and 1.27 per 1,000 of the abstainers. The deaths among the drinkers were 1.45 per 1,000 per month; those among the abstainers .375 per 1,000, almost exactly one-quarter of the mortality.

These figures only confirm the results of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution, in which during the last sixteen years 3,450 claims were expected in the general or moderate drinking section, and 3,440 were actually made; while in the temperance section 2,002 were expected and only 1,433 were presented.

What do these facts prove if it is not that the continued use of alcoholic beverages, in quantities which seen harmless at the time, and which must be included in the term "moderation," is really injurious to life? If alcohol is not only not necessary, but is actually injurious; if it does not add strength to body or mind, but produces a gradual weakening of conscience and moral self-control, ought we not to protest against its use both by precept and example? * * *

Hundreds of medical men order alcoholic liquors from habit, from ignorance of their real effect, from fashion or from a desire to please, or not to offend their patients. Port-wine is constantly being ordered when persons are recovering from various diseases; day by day they regain their strength, and the port-wine gets all the credit of it, especially since each glass seems to diffuse a comfortable glow over the whole body. They forget that the process of recovery would have gone on without the port, and that hundreds and thousands of people do get well without it. They often ignore the fact that they are taking real tonics in addition. They are misled by the sensation which the alcohol causes; they do not know that it relaxes the blood-vessels instead of improving their tone; that it exhausts the heart by making it beat away more rapidly to no profit. Hence the convalescence is actually more prolonged than it would otherwise be. Gentle exercise, regulated baths, good food, balmy sleep, these are the true restoratives of the exhausted system, and no jugglery with sedatives, such as alcohol, can produce the desired result. * * *

What more can we say? What more need be said? Science and experience both testify that total abstinence is perfectly safe, and that moderate drinking is injurious to body and mind; that, other things being equal, the abstainer will be able to do more bodily and mental work, will have less sickness and will live longer than the moderate drinker. Therefore, the sooner every one abandons the use of all alcoholic drinks, the better for themselves, the better for their neighbors, and the better for their country and the world.

Longfellow says in reference to war:

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts,
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need of arsenals nor forts."

It is equally true that if half the time, wealth and energy expended in trying to remedy the evils caused by alcohol, were spent in getting rid of the alcohol which causes the evil, in moral suasion and legal prohibition, there would be little need of our gigantic charitable institutions, and much less employment for the medical profession.

JEROME W. HENDERSON.

Old time readers of the RESCUE will be glad to hear from an old friend who was once an L. D. in Sonoma county, and used to be a correspondent of this paper.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas, Sept, 4, 1881.

DEAR BRO.:— I ought to have written to you long ago; I have not been kept from it by laziness, but from the fact that it did not seem to me that there was anything of interest to write about.

The local option law works well where the people want it to. In Rockwall county prohibition for three years gives as results better educational facilities, a largely increased prosperity, a higher tone of morals, an empty jail. Sulphur Springs tried prohibition one year; trade was better for it. Every interest of every citizen—not only of Sulphur Springs, but of the whole county—was greatly enhanced by the operations of the prohibitory law, notwithstanding the fact that the law was very crude and imperfect.

Sulphur Springs now supports a large number of saloons, also a few mantraps in the family groceries.

The saloons are doing a big business, but times are harder than at any time since I have been here—now nearly eight years. The saloons will continue to flourish; perhaps their numbers will be added to, for the coming year is likely to be the most disastrous ever known in this state. In this county there is not wheat enough for seed; not one-tenth enough ; there is not corn enough for bread, there is not one-fourth of an average crop of cotton. Nearly every farmer is in debt to the merchants to the full extent of a full crop of cotton; still the grogseller's face is as round as the full moon. He knows that old clothes, empty stomachs and hunger pinched faces for the women and children mean an increased harvest of dimes and dollars for himself.

This month we will hold an election to pass upon some amendments to the constitution to shorten the annual term of service of judges, and to increase their pay; also some other amendments of an equally important nature to the people. The people did not ask for these amendments, probably because they did not happen to think of them, or, may be were thinking of something else, for instance; thousands of the best citizens of Texas last winter petitioned the legislature to submit to a vote of the people, an amendment to the constitution, forever prohibiting the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in this state; but the liquor dealers associations of the country appealed to Louis Schade of the Sentinel, and Schade appealed to our delegation in congress, and our congressmen appealed to our legislature, and Louis Schade informed the grogsellers of the United States that they all responded nobly by refusing to submit to a vote of the decent people of Texas an an amendment that many thousands of them asked for, that they had a right to vote on, that was altogether and only in the interest of good morals, religion, education, in short of the highest and best prosperity of the state, simply because the foreign born grogsellers of this and other states asked them to.

If this related to anything else in the world than grogselling, all of those who took a part adverse to the citizens of this state, or who would so act contrary to the wishes and best interests of the good citizens of any other state would be asked to sit down on some dynamite, and to sit down on it so hard that it would be certain to do the most good.

The proposition now is to cut off the head of every politician who acted in the interest of the liquor dealers. So far as my observation goes, not one temperance voter in ten knows whose head to cut off, because not one in ten or in a hundred perhaps reads a distinctively temperance paper—like the Advocate. One of the leading temperance men in Sulphur Springs was surprised when I told of the part played last winter by the Sentinel and our congressmen, and especially by our pet congressman from this district (who is a walking whisky barrel) in regard to the amendment. I asked him to subscribe for the Advocate. "Wa-a-l-l, you see I take so many papers now, a county paper and a religious paper and a grange paper and a political paper, and you see I have to take all them." Yes, I always see it.

One of the worst things here is, there is no money, cotton is almost the only crop, and it takes about all of that to keep up the saloons. After the saloons are well supported as they always are, and taxes paid, there is not much left for churches and schools and temperance societies. There is no more drinking than in other places, not so much as in Ohio or California. There is more preaching here than in other places where I have ever lived. The people are not worse, no better than in other places; but if there is not more than money enough to run one kind of business, the saloon must have that, must it not? In the town there are plenty of fine looking saloons, on the outside; but outside of the saloons I have never seen a decent looking church or schoolhouse: both are generally one; in fact, in any northern state they would be called shanties, and very rough ones at that.

The existence of the saloon does not wholly account for the prevailing chronic hard times here: it it is greatly, mostly, I may say, due to a peculiarly absurd labor system, of which I might tell you at some future time, only I fear it would bore you too much.

Myself, wife and daughter spent a portion of this morning wishing ourselves in old Sonoma county, somewhere between the mouth of the Russian River and the Gualala.

We go away from such little meetings—and we hold them very frequently—very much refreshed. I believe it would do me as much good as it used to Sam Potter to smell the kelp once more.

Hoping that this budding anticipation may some day blossom into a sweet reality, I remain yours fraternally. JEROME W. HENDERSON.

A GOOD LEAF FROM ENGLAND'S BOOK.

The Temperance Record says the National Temperance League has for thirteen years been in the habit of inviting the members of the British Medical Association to a breakfast during the annual meeting of the latter. In August last about 120 of the medicos responded. The Rev. Canon Connor presided for the league and the president of the doctors was roped in to make the first speech after the opening prayer.

He said he was not a temperance man himself, did not approve of total abstinence nor quite practice it, but he knew the cause they represent is fraught with good; did not approve of pledge takers but he must confess that the faces and noses of those about him attested the good habits of their owners. He sympathized, etc., etc.

Dr. Carpenter got in a good temperance speech, and asked the president, Dr. Barrow, if he did not believe total abstinence was the very best thing that could be advised for children, to which he most promptly assented.

Now why dont our temperance organizations watch such opportunities, and invite medical and other society meetings to a friendly conference as our sharp eyed brethren across the water do.

Some of the doctors recommended an effort to abolish grocers license as a fruitful cause of drunkenness in women, And the Rev. chairman wished devoutly they could be put down as well as the pest houses, the public houses, which he said are almost without control, and while this is so, PREACHING AND WORKING SEEM ALIKE IN VAIN. The British Temperance medical association now has 250 members but aims for 20,000.

NO MORE REGALIA.

I find by reading the report of last R. W. G. L, that it becomes the duty of all lodges at the third meeting in October to decide whether they want to continue to wear the regalia that we all have learned to look upon as part of our institution, that is recognized in our ritual and degree work, or to substitute in its place some brass button or metallic badge.

Now I for one am opposed to any such change. No good can arise from it; what does it mean? Is it another cheap john movement?. It is a pity indeed that the R. W. G. L. cannot recommend something of more importance for subordinate lodges to consider. The proposed change would necessitate a change in our rituals and degree books. Let us vote against the change.

I propose that the next R, W. G. L. spend its spare time considering how to put into effective operation its platform adopted at the session of 1859. Down with all cheap john changes.

JOHN ROBINSON.

Guerneville Sept. 12, 1881.

Why, Bro. Robinson, we will have you tried for heresy; dont you know that if we had a metallic badge in place of the regalia, and if New Jersey had the catechism of the degrees abolished, everybody would at once stop selling and using alcoholic liquors? The R. W. G. L. have been looking many years for the only two missing links in the temperance reform, and some cheap john has discovered them both. Why, friend John, that change of the regalia, a darling project of 12 years of cheap john incubation is worth all the prohibition ever dreamed of. Keep still and watch for the incoming tide of glory in that two cent badge. By and by temperance wont cost anybody a cent: and then the millenium may be considered to have hauled up its curtain.

"THE State Liquor Dealers' Association of Illinois is determined to assist the authorities of that State in preserving order and sobriety and in suppressing disreputable places. The next thing in order will be for Satan to offer his services to the churches to assist in checking sin and crime."

That paragraph is from last Saturdays Chronicle and the writer of it has made a remarkably apt comparison.

BRO Crowhurst reports some parts of Siskiyou county as difficult for the temperance advocate. The chains of slavery to the liquor traffic drawn very tightly.

SMOKE.

I saw to-day a wife shabbily dressed, walking beside her husband who was smoking——shoes, dresses, shawls all going to smoke ! I mused—it is surprising that one partner should put up with poverty and hard-work while the other wastes the community property in so offensive a habit, that does no good, but injury.

Tobacco smoke is every where; you cannot escape it. If you call a carpenter for repairs, he fills your house with smoke; if you buy dry goods, the delivery clerk puffs smoke into the hall, as the servant opens the door.

You cannot buy a pair of shoes without its fumes being wafted from the other side of the store, where men are being fitted; and even your groceries are tainted with tobacco.

You cannot lunch at a restaurant without some gentleman (?) as he leaves lighting his cigar and leaving a puff before he closes the door. You can not go to a lecture without the fumes greeting you before and after the exercises.

One meets a friend on the way to church and he begs pardon for the presence of his cigar !

I have always regretted Ike Marels disposing of such fine talent on so base a subject as cigar smoke. Had he not smoked he would have made a worthier use of so divine a gift. Blessings wrongly used are never ultimated here but retarded or withdrawn.

BETH.

W. C. T. U. PAPERS.—It is unofficially suggested to the ladies of the W. C. T. U. who read the RESCUE that the literary outfit of an active member of that excellent organization is hardly complete unless it comprises "Our Union" monthly at 60 cts a year and the Chicago Signal, weekly at $1.50. Both of them full of good things: one would suppose them indispensible to every active earnest reader. they ought to have each 1000 subscribers in Cala. $50,000 a year spent in temperance literature in this state would be of more financial and material advantage than a million applied to any other purpose.

HOW IT DIED. Died in Every Distriet, last month a Lodge aged——years and——months. Its health has been poor for many months and its life despaired of. A few friends kept it alive and revived and encouraged it for some time back.

But it died at last from discouragement and neglect; it is dead. Not a Templar was present when it died. Over 50 were within a mile of it, but not one present.

Had ten been present, its life might have been saved: two thirds of the 50 might have been there but they were not and so the Lodge died.—Watchword.

JOSEPH TURNER an English Good Templar one of seven saved from a fatal ship-wreck at Port Royal last March, is now second mate of the Bark Bertie of London. Previous to sailing on another voyage, he has recently brot up ten of his crew for initiation in the Order and intends running a lodge on board during the voyage. He was saved from the wreck by the captains dog with whom he had cultivated friendly relations. That dog was a good friend of temperance. In fact all dogs set an example to men in that line.

BRO. J. J. Porter has got up a pretty lively club of readers of the RESCUE in Modesto; there are 30 paying subscribers there now. Of the first 20 he says only five belong to the Order and four to the church, three of whom are included also in the five. But he says no friend of religion or temperance shall have peace where he is, till he is a reader of the R.

BRO. Hanson of Forestville reports his Lodge doing well and thinks it is a good time to work and pray for prohibition. Yes it has been a good time all along for years to do both those things: people who do both are in earnest.

Nos. 142, 173, 176, 228, 258, 349, 380, and 417.

CREDENTIALS RECEIVED. — Credentials certifying representatives elect to the next annual session of the Grand Lodge have been received at the G. W. S. office during the past week, and their receipt is bereby acknowledged as follows.

Nos. 156, 158, 176, 203, 218, 258, 273, 309, 408, 416, 439, and 444.

LODGE DEPUTY ANNUAL REPORTS.—Lodge deputies of the following lodges have filed proper annual reports with the G W S during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged.

Nos. 25, 142, 158, 173, 176, 203, 218, 258, 435, 439, and Japan 1.

LODGE DEPUTIES RECOMMENDATIONS.—Proper recommendations for lodge deputies for the next ensuing year have been filed with the G. W. S. from the following lodges during the past week, and their receipt is hereby acknowledged.

Nos. 114, 142, 158, 211, 212, 228, 258, 267, 439, 455, and Japan 1.

THE USUAL "PETTY LARCENY FEE".—Bro. the Hon. Niles Searles of Nevada City, Nevada county has made his usual annual contribution of one hundred golden dollars, for the benefit of the G T. Home for Orphans. May he "live long and prosper."

DELINQUENTS.—The following lodges are still delinquent, in not having forwarded quarterly returns report for the term ending July 31st, and unless such returns are received within the week, they must be stricken from the list of active lodges. For convenience of reference they are given by counties. Amador, 214, Butte, 204 and 403; Calaveras, 121; Colusa, 124, 132, 168, and 205; Fresno, 243, 365, and 390; Lake, 347, 432; Los Angeles, 103, 237; Mendocino, 333, and 338; Modock, 229, 234, and 275; Monterey, 357; and Plumas, 227; Santa Clara, 414; Sonoma, 353; Shasta. 102 and 213; Stanislaus, 401; Tehama, 306; Tulare, 170, 301, and 383. Some of these lodges have filed their credentials, which are of no value until their returns are filed, since the former is based upon the latter. All have been repeatedly notified thru their Deputies. This is the last call!

NO COMMUTATIONS.—The C. P. R. R. find it "inconsistent with our usual rules" and P. C. S. S. company "beg to be excused" from making any commutation of fares to representatives and visitors attending the Grand Lodge. Second class tickets are obtainable however, via the overland train leaving Sacramento at 7:20 A.M. (only) for $1.50 and returning from Vallejo by the same train in the evening at the same rate. These reduced rates are made only in connection with the Atlantic and Pacific express trains.

NEW YORK AND WISCONSIN.—The Grand Lodges of these two states whose annual sessions were recently held, honored themselves by re-electing their former G. W. C. Ts. and G. W. Ss: Bros. W. Martin Jones and D. W. Hooker for New York and Theo. D. Kanouse and B. F. Parker for Wisconsin are among the stalwarts in Good Templary.

"The friends thou hast and their adoption tried, Grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steel."

NEW LODGES.—Twelve new lodges were instituted during the month of August last, and four in September so far. The last and one hundred and nineteenth, new lodge reported for the year was Alameda Lodge, organized on the 13th inst. by sister E. P. Stevens, Grand Lecturer at Alameda.

ATLANTA.—On the 10th inst. Bro. M. J. Nightingale L. D. of Stockton Lodge, No. 182, acting as a special deputy G. W. C. T., instituted Wildwood Lodge at Atlanta, San Joaquin county with 20 charter members. Night of meeting, Saturday; Lodge Deputy, Bro. E. L. Moore

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office has been favored with calls from the following members of our Order. Hon. Niles Searls of No. 201, Nevada city, Bro. J. W. Whitson of No. 124, Arbuckle, Bro. James Wasley of No. 253, Linden, Bro. Geo. H. Chambers of Samaritan, No. 177, Chico.

ABOUT REGALIAS.—Representatives and visitors attending the Grand Lodge session will do well to provide and bring with them their own regalia, so as to make sure of being properly clothed, as the indications are that the attendance will be very large, and regalias scarce.

THE YEAR CLOSED.

Tuesday, October fourth we met to close our year's work as Good Templars in California. Old friends meet to renew acquaintances. New faces come to cheer with smiles and cordial greeting. The work of the year is counted up and books balanced. The capital for the new campaign is estimated and the plan of battle formed. The individual sympathy flows into a common channel. From this broad, deep river all can drink their fill of the pure, the holy and the unselfish.

There will be a multitude of counsel in which there is safety. Reports from the field will yield new hopes, and our enforcements will inspire new hopes and deepen determinations. Out of this four days session comes much of worth to the individual and our cause. The most valuable four days of the year are those spent at the grand Lodge. Let each delegate come and bring a good time with him, and then it will be sure to be there. Faith in having a pleasant session lays the foundation for it. All are interested who pay attention, and all pay attention, because our work is interesting to all.

It is really and truly good to be at Grand Lodge, Those there always pity those who cannot be present; each have something of interest; humane, unselfish, philanthropic, all. "How can we bless mankind?" that is the burden of the inquiry. How quickest to banish misery and crime, and fill their places with comfort and peace. No one ashamed of his work; practical, exclusively practical all thru. Come and partake of the feast.

PATRONIZE TEMPERANCE GROCERS.

I stepped into a large grocery and drygoods store in Santa Barbara lately to make a purchase. The proprietor and I fell to talking on temperance and he expressed a very natural wonder that strong temperance people, church members and even ministers and their families frequently bot all their goods at stores that sold and advertised wines and liquors.

It is strange: The merchants who, for principle, will not sell intoxicants lose a good many customers and much trade in consequence, and we ought not to let them be rewarded only by "the answer of a good conscience;" but we ought to put ourselves to some little trouble at least, to divert what trade of our own and others we can to their stores. In giving employment the same principle should be borne in mind. J. W. WEBB.

The parties named do those things unthinkingly. Their attention is never directed to the impropriety of it. They take no temperance literature and the secular and religious papers are equally silent on anything that hazards the loss of a subscriber. Thousands of people practice inconsistencies which they would not if those to whom they look for precept and example cared to counsel them as to their moral duties in daily life.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

H. R. HUGHES.

On Sunday, the 4th, was able to attend the Sunday-school and Golden Circle Band of Hope of Angels for the first time. Sister Leeper and Brother Duffy have been faithful and zealous in keeping up this little Band On the 6th attended 'Open Lodge" in Sonora; hall filled, and pleasant program. The 8th, met with Soulsbyville Lodge; still prospering; 123 members; have just bought a new organ for $125; Band of Hope also prospering. Sister Coles, W. V. T., is elected to represent them in the Grand Lodge. Was kindly entertained by Brother Barron, L. D., who is an excellent worker and a live man. 9th, went to Jamestown to visit the lodge; doing a good work, and their young members manifest a deep interest. Brother Drescher has been efficient in his efforts to enforce the Sunday law. The 10th, attended Tuolumne District Lodge at Columbia. Delegations present from each of the nine lodges in the county. Matters relating to Sunday and liquor laws were discussed. The reports of the Committee show that eight violators of the Sunday law were prosecuted; seven were fined. One case for selling to Indians was prosecuted by Brother Holland, D. D., and fined $80. If the Supreme Court will sustain the law, Tuolumne District Lodge will enforce it, and are determined that the illegal sale of liquor shall be suppressed.

Resolutions passed instructing the D. D. to call the attention of Subordinate Lodges to the importance of circulating temperance literature, and promoting the juvenile work. It was a very pleasant and harmonious session. New officers were elected; I. T. Holland, D. D.; J. L. Coles, D. S.; Mrs. J. L. Coles, W. V. T.

Mr. Coles made a public appeal for the RESCUE, and Sister Coles canvassed for subscribers. About 100 copies were distributed as samples. It seems that but few Good Templars have time to read a temperance paper. At 5 the D. L. paraded through the principal streets, preceded by the B. Band. The Presbyterian Church was crowded at the evening public meeting; church beautifully decorated; program, arranged by Brother Peters, was excellent; the children of the Band of Hope did well; the singing by Sisters Richardson, Knapp, Whittier, and others was very fine; the speaking good; the audience was enthusiastic. and the meeting was a grand success. Good Templarism is becoming popular in "Old Tuolumne," and "Our Cause is Marching On."

Columbia, Sept. 11, 1881.

F. J. CULVER.

Sat'y 6th August at the close of public installation lectured at Rohnerville. A good program of music supper etc., and seven additions to the membership followed.

This Lodge was rather despondent, on our arrival they felt that new life had been infused and their hope for the future is strong.

Sunday evening a full house in Grange Hall Table Bluff, W. F. Browne D. D. and Judge Fernell were on. hand to help organize Table Bluff Lodge which we did at the close of the lecture with forty-one members.

Word comes now thru Bro. A. Mock that by the fourth meeting they just doubled the number making it eighty-two; nineteen out of the forty-one were heads of families; That speaks for the futurity of the Lodge; the leading men of the community are at at its head;—one saloonist has concluded that this is no longer a free country, yet free enough says Bro. M. that said saloon keeper uses all the vile epithets that he can against a Mr. Sawyer who was the one that got us to come to Table Bluff: but he can stand it for he has always been that at war with sin. The Co. papers are giving the success of Table Bluff Lodge its full share of publicity. we hope it will have a good effect on the editors,

Monday evening found us at Hydesville where Bro. Dexter, Cong'l minister, with Bros. Knorder Coyle and some noble sisters and in fact the whole lodge doing a grand work; they have the field here, so that nearly all the support the one saloon gets is the transient customer.

A short session of the lodge then open meeting Installiation lecture and social &c.

Tuesday night lectured in the church. Wednesday crossed the Eel river to Port Kenyon; Hall well filled similar program.

With Dr. Glascock and Judge Ferrell and the noble sisters to help we look for good fruit from their new lodge, a host of the enemy are strongly entrenched about them, but the lodge was organized for battle and right will prevail for God is their leader. Thursday night we lectured at Springville to a good audience, secured sixteen names for a charter but we deemed it best to wait and let the good Brothers and Sisters in the Co. work on this plan a while. Friday we set our face homeward passed thru Rohnerville and Hydesville receiving many farewells with a God speed. At all of our public meetings there were more or less fraternal visits from the neighboring Lodges.

MRS. STEVENS.

At Mission Star open lodge had an audience of 300 to 400, after the lecture received 22 applications for membership. Dr. McDonald was present and wtih some well timed and appropriate remarks added to the interest and good effect of the program.

The necessity of some attention to temperance literature was urgently put. A desire was expressed to have another meeting at an early date.

On Monday eve, open meeting at South San Francisco (Crystal Lodge), a good audience listened to Mrs Stevens address and to the literary and musical program prepared and efficiently rendered. The news of the death of the President coming near the close of the exercises had a depressing and saddening effect. This evening Mrs. S. addresses Evening Star open Lodge meeting.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED:—In San Francisco Aug. 22nd, O. Le Boeuf a worthy and highly esteemed member and W. M. of International Lodge No. 291, a young man of much promise and an earnest soldier in the army of temperance. The lodge passed fitting resolutions of respectful memory of the deceased and of condolence with the bereaved relatives.

DIED.—In Folsom, September 6, Frank, only son of Mrs. J. F. Howe; aged 23 years.

Frank Howe—the deceased—was born in 1858 in Alexandria Mo. While still young his father's family came to California, and upon the death of his father some eight years since—although but 15 years of age—he took charge of the TELEGRAPH. The grave responsibilities that fell upoh him while yet but a boy, he fulfilled nobly and well. At the time of his death he occupied the office of W. C. T. of Unity Lodge of Good Templars, in which society he was a most active and energetic worker—often speaking during his late illness with great affection of his brothers and sisters in the society, and wishing for the continued prosperity of the cause of temperance. Upright and honorable with his friends, affectionate and dutiful to his widowed mother, tender and loving to sisters he became endeared to all. Yet God's ways are not as our ways and the Death-angel hath taken our loved-one in the prime of his early manhood, and homes and hearts are made desolate.—Folsom Telegraph.

Members of the order will cherish most kindly the memory of the deceased, hold up his worthy record as a stimulating example for worthy yeuth, and will extend their kindest consoling sympathy to the bereaved family.

GUITEAUS POLICY.

After all the wild expressions of horror, the unparalelled denunciations, and the speculations as to the appropriate punishment for so vile an act as that of Guiteau in the attempt to assassinate the President; now that Mr. Garfield is thot to be out of danger, may we not well cool down a little and take "calm view" of the matter with an eye to the political lessons it may afford ? In the policy of Charles Guiteau, as promulgated in the Depot at Washington, we find nothing essentially new. Guiteau is a Republican, Surely no intelligent person will doubt that. The prominent Republican policy—the sacrificial—was too clearly demonstrated in the Baltimore Depot to leave a doubt as to his party affiliations.
